HEAVY DEMAND BY RUSSIA AND ARMY BLAMED

Ban Sale Till Point System Begins.

New Rationing Form and Coupon Values

The Tribune tomorrow will publish for the first time the point values for canned and processed foods under the new point rationing system which becomes effective March 1. Along with the table The Tribune will reprint a reproduction of the official consumer declaration form on which housewives will set forth their stocks of coffee and canned goods at the mass registration in school buildings this week.

With the suspension of sales of the rationed goods last midnight consumers will have an entire week in which to familiarize themselves with the point values applied to each type of rationed food and to learn how to apply the coupons from ration book No. 2 on future purchases.

Readers who clip the declaration form from tomorrow's Tribune and fill it out before going to the mass registration in the schools will save time in applying for the ration book. Declaration forms may be obtained also in the Tribune Public Service offices at Dearborn and Madison streets and in Tribune Tower. Only one form will be available for each family.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard tonight directed the rationing of dry edible beans, dried peas, lentils, and dehydrated and dried soups along with the processed and canned vegetables and fruits to be rationed beginning March 1.

These foods were added to the ration list, Wickard said, because of "extremely heavy demands by the American armed forces and the Russian army."

Pending start of rationing, retail stocks of these commodities were frozen tonight. They will not be available to consumers next week.

Affected by Meat Shortage.

Wickard, the food administrator, said supplies of beans, peas, lentils, and dried soups had dwindled considerably in recent weeks because of short supplies of meats and other high protein foods. Consumers turned to these vegetables as meat substitutes.

These commodities will be rationed under the new point system ration books to be distributed next week.

The office of price administration said housewives would not be required to declare the amount of dried vegetables they have on hand.

While not forecasting quantities which might be available under rationing, the secretary said per capita civilian supplies of these foods for the marketing year ending next Sept. 1, as compared with supplies in the previous marketing year, were about as follows:

Dried beans, 7 and 8.8 pounds; dried peas and lentils, 0.9 and 1.2 pounds; dehydrated soups 0.3 and 0.3 pounds.

All Types Rationed.

Under Wickard's directive to the OPA, dried edible beans and peas of all classes and varieties will be rationed. The dehydrated and dried soups include all types such as vegetable, tomato, corn, potato, onion, cabbage, borsht, dry cheese, noodles and meat or chicken combinations, bean, pea, soy bean, meat or poultry, bouillon, cubes, or any dry or dehydrated soup made of a combination of any of these products or other ingredients.

Wickard recommended that the OPA, in determining point values for the new items to be rationed, give consideration to establishing point values for the dried soups at relatively low levels.

Wickard said the production of dried beans and peas in 1942 exceeded all previous records. However, nearly half the supply of dried beans available for consumption during the current year and almost two-thirds of the supply of dried peas will be needed, he said, by United States military forces and allied nations. Russia alone, he said, needs 500 million pounds, or about one-fifth of the total supply of beans.

Brains and Gas Lick Army Problem in Housekeeping

Pine Bluff, Ark., Feb. 20 (AP).—An army captain at the Pine Bluff arsenal has solved the problem of having things shipshape for inspection. A newspaper story passed by the arsenal's public relations department said the captain loaded everything he didn't have room for on a truck and kept it cruising about the reservation until the inspection was completed.

NO BLACKSMITH, CHIPPEWAS FEAR

Suspect They're Losers in Fort Dearborn Deal.

The worst fears of the Chippewa Indian nation have been confirmed by the tribe's first official visit to Fort Dearborn, known nowadays as Chicago, the chief, William Nywaush, said yesterday.

"In one of the treaties by which my grandfather ceded Chippewa lands to the United States, the government promised to maintain forever a blacksmith shop at Fort Dearborn for Chippewa use," the chief said.

From time to time the Chippewas have suspected that the government was not abiding strictly by the treaty. However, Fort Dearborn, or Chicago, is too far for the Chippewas to travel from their homes in extreme northern Minnesota to get their horses shod, so no official check was made.

Can't Find Chippewa Shop.

But this week Chief Nywaush, the tribal secretary, Joseph Northrup, and four others came here to confer with officials at the Indian affairs bureau, recently moved to the Merchandise Mart from Washington.

"The secretary and I have hunted all week," the chief said with a solemn face, "and we can't find our blacksmith shop any place."

The delegation plans to go to Washington tomorrow. It will forget the blacksmith shop issue there, concentrating on four bigger wants from congress:

1. Title to 50,000 acres of submarginal land purchased by the department of agriculture.

Want to Buy Beer.

2. Permission to buy 3.2 per cent beer. Federal rules ban sale of any intoxicating beverage to any Indian.

3. A refund to the Chippewa tribe of between two and three million dollars which the tribe says was illegally appropriated by congress from tribal funds to pay tuition for Indians attending public schools.

4. Permission to spend, without congressional approval, the "very small amount" remaining from the tribe's original 16 million dollar fund.

Members of Delegation.

In the delegation besides the chief, a resident of White Earth, and the secretary, from Fond du Lac, were Sam Zimmerman, Grand Portage; Lawrence Connors, Bois Forte; Perry Lyons, Leech Lake; and Franke Shinaway, Mille Lacs.

The Chippewas have heard that strange sights can be seen in Fort Dearborn on Saturday nights, especially in 1943, the chief said yesterday, so the delegation still hoped it might locate its blacksmith shop somewhere in the city during the night.

Chicago Gives Guadalcanal Oldest Yank, Shootin'est Cook

Smoke Eater Is 55

GUADALCANAL, Feb. 8 [Delayed]—(AP).—When you ask Pvt. George T. Stanton of Chicago his age, his deep set eyes shine and his red face wrinkles into a sly grin. "Forty-five," he says firmly.

Pvt. George T. Stanton.

Before joining the army George was for 22 years a Chicago fireman, last a lieutenant in company 6, 15th battalion. He also belonged to the National Guard. As the United States moved closer to war, Stanton said he got a "hankering to be a regular soldier and go overseas with the boys."

But when his National Guard unit was inducted into the federal service early in 1941, Stanton was asked his age, and he said 45.

He Asked for It.

"The officer smiled and said 'it's going to be hard for you!'" Stanton recalled. "He said he didn't know whether I could survive the hard work. I told him I was asking for it, and anything that happened to me would just be my tough luck."

Because of his first aid experience as a fireman, Stanton has been a valuable medical man and orderly.

Stockyards Fire Hero.

"George has proved he can take it," an officer said one day. "He's a hard worker; he keeps at a job until it's done, and he's rarely idle a moment. He proved stronger and healthier than many fellows young enough to be his sons. He's never been sick a day."

He often reminisces about his days in the Chicago fire department.

In the 1934 stockyards fire he worked 22 hours consecutively and rescued several people.

Potwasher Pots Japs

[The following story, written by Sergt. Samuel Shaffer of Washington, D. C., a marine corps combat correspondent, is distributed by the Associated Press.]

GUADALCANAL, Jan. 19 [Delayed].—Private Leland B. Simpson, 22, of 865 Auburn road, Winnetka, Ill., decided yesterday that he "couldn't fight this war from a galley," so he went Jap hunting without permission.

Pvt. Leland B. Simpson.

Without a word he quietly laid aside his ladles after serving morning chow, picked up his rifle, a bandolier of ammunition and three hand grenades, and slipped off toward the front.

The marine cook said he was getting "plenty scared," as he ventured 200 yards into no man's land.

A Surprised Jap.

"I was going along the side of a cliff in the jungle," he said, "when I noticed a movement in the bushes. I crawled up quietly to within 20 feet of the place and yelled: 'Get the hell outa there!'

"A Jap stuck his head up. He had a look of surprise when I shot him dead."

Simpson shouted again:

"Any more there?"

Gets Sergeant's Hell.

Hearing no reply, he pulled the pin from a grenade, counted four and threw it into a cave behind the bush. Inside the cave Simpson said he found the mangled bodies of two Japs—one a major.

Upon his return to camp, the battalion commander smilingly reprimanded him for "free lancing." The mess sergeant "gave me hell for slipping off but promised me he wouldn't have me locked up," Simpson added.

He could not sleep last night. The excitement of killing his first Japs was too much for him.

This morning he was back at his job of preparing chow.

ACT TO FREE 5,000 AFRICA INTERNEES IN TWO MONTHS

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 20 (AP).—Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, deputy French civil and military commander in chief, announced tonight that 5,000 political prisoners still interned in North Africa would be released or repatriated within two months.

"No De Gaullists are now held in the camps," he said.

Of the 7,000 persons interned when the allies landed in North Africa last November, 200 French nationals and about 1,100 foreigners have been freed.

PLANE WITH 20 SAFE IN CANADA; CREW TO FLY OUT WITH SKIS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—An army transport plane with 20 persons aboard, missing since Feb. 4 in "a Canadian wilderness area" is safe with all alive and well, the war department reported tonight. Since location of the plane from the air, food and equipment including ski landing gear have been dropped. The crew plans to drag a runway and fly the ship out. Names of the 15 passengers and five crew members were not disclosed.

NEW RED THRUST PERILS GERMAN DONETZ ARMIES

May Also Force Foe to Quit Crimea.

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP).—A swift soviet wheeling movement southwest of Kharkov put the Red army tonight only 36 miles from Dnepropetrovsk, keystone of Nazi secondary defenses in southern Russia, it was disclosed in a special Moscow communique recorded here by the soviet monitor.

It also threatened to trap retreating German forces in the Donetz basin far to the east and raised the possibility of an axis abandonment of the Crimea.

Krasnograd, 60 miles southwest of Kharkov, and Pavlograd, 100 miles due south, both important rail junctions, fell to the Russians, the communique said.

Only 36 Miles from Dnieper.

These key cities apparently were taken by Red columns striking from Lozovaya, 75 miles south of Kharkov, one advancing northwest for 50 miles to take Krasnograd; the other moving 30 miles southwest to enter Pavlograd, which is 36 miles due east of the Dnieper river bend.

By taking Pavlograd, the Russians were only 20 miles from Sinelnikovo, a rail junction whose seizure would cut off thousands of German troops fleeing out of the Donetz basin. Zaporozhe, another big German base on the Dnieper, also is only 40 miles below Sinelnikovo. Melitopol, near the Sea of Azov on the Crimea railway, is only 100 miles below Pavlograd. The last is the final escape avenue left to the Germans in the Donetz basin.

Near Another Big Nazi Base.

Other Russian units 100 miles east of Pavlograd are trying to close a 70 mile wide escape gap. This new Russian sweep puts the Germans in even more peril.

Occupation of Krasnograd, 60 miles northwest of Pavlograd, put a Red army only 40 miles from Poltava, another big German base and rail junction to the northwest. Kiev, Ukraine capital, lies about 185 miles beyond.

Advance West of Rostov.

At the northern end of the active front, the Russian midnight communique reported the capture of several more towns in the Kharkov-Kursk sector, including Krasnaya Yaruga, only 40 miles east of the large city of Sumy. Earlier reports had said the Reds in this region were driving on the key Nazi base of Orel from three sides.

In the south, the midnight bulletin reported the Reds seized "a number of populated places" and huge quantities of war material west of Rostov.

Farther south, Russian forces in the Caucasus drove spearheads deeper into the narrowing sector along the Black sea coast around Novorossisk where the German invaders are pocketed. One of several towns taken on this front was Ilskaya, only 40 miles east of Novorossisk.

JUST A COLD OR SUICIDE? HERE IS MYSTERY OF EAST

[By the Associated Press.]

The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokio report last night saying Japanese and foreign journalists had called upon Gen. Chang Ching-hui, premier of Manchukuo, after his recovery from a two-months illness with "an intense cold."

Last Dec. 22 the Chinese high command reported Chang had poisoned all members of his family, shot and killed a Japanese adviser and five high officials of his puppet government, and committed suicide.

The Chinese at that time said their information came in a Chinese intelligence report, and that the premier was reported to be "unable to stand any longer the Japanese oppression."

Hitler Indicted in Texas; Do Your Duty! Sheriff Told

Sulphur Springs, Tex., Feb. 20 (AP).—A District court grand jury today indicted Adolf Hitler. A lengthy indictment accused the Nazi Fuehrer of a series of murders, robberies, thefts, rapes, and violations of sovereignty. District Atty. Ramey A. Smith told Sheriff W. E. TELLS HOW YANK TANKS BATTLED NAZIS IN TUNISIA

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA, Feb. 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—A lone Gen. Sherman tank boldly took on a last ditch, running fight with 10 German tanks in order to save an American column of light vehicles from destruction, and destroyed four Mark IV's before the crew was forced to leave their own shell riddled and flaming vehicle.

Their act which, in one soldier's estimate, saved 300 American lives was hailed by officers and men alike as one of the most gallant engagements of the African war.

The tank was named "The Texas."

The action took place Feb. 14 when American forces outnumbered more than two to one, tangled with more than 100 German tanks in the greatest battle of its kind in Tunisia.

Yank Losses Severe.

The United States tanks suffered severe losses in both men and equipment, but inflicted equal or greater damage on the German foe, and kept the Nazis from spreading thru the entire Faid valley.

The commander of the "Texas" was Lt. Col. Louis V. Hightower, 34 years old, of Winnsboro, Tex. Hightower was questioned over a two hour period before he would give details of the battle.

"The credit for the score we chalked up belongs to our gunner, Corp. Austin H. Bayer, of La Porte, Ind.," he said. "We pulled out about 7 o'clock that morning while about 30 tanks were attacking us at a hill called Djebel Lessouda not far from Faid.

"When we got there, 15 Mark IV's were ahead of us and 22 more on the crest to the left.

"We sat there and shot at them, knocking out about five or six while losing three ourselves. Then the 22 tanks which came over the hill toward us and turned out to be 50, including at least four of their giant Mark VI's [52 tons] which so far as I know have never been in action on any other front before.

Caught by Dive Bombers.

"We drew back to cover as they tried their usual trick of envelopment. We kept pivoting back and shooting at first one German flank and then the other. We kept from being surrounded, but at a heavy cost—then their dive bombers caught us, coming over in wave after wave.

"They didn't hurt us much, but smoked us up so we couldn't see thru the dust. We pulled across two miles of open field into Sidi Bouzid with our artillery covering us by using their 105 millimeter howitzers for direct fire.

"They were hitting German tanks at every pop. I saw three go up in flames with just three rounds.

"We reorganized in the town, but after two hours they began another huge double envelopment. We got our artillery and two supply trains safely out, and then started down the road to Gafsa ourselves.

"After getting all our tanks away except two lights and two mediums we took out across country and came across nine Mark IV's and one Mark VI about 700 yards away opening fire on one of our columns of half tracks and light vehicles which were completely helpless before them.

Sends Other Tanks Away.

"The guns on the other medium tank were jammed and since the light tanks were too thinly armored for the task before us I sent all three away and signaled the column of our light vehicles to swing behind the Texas.

"As the Germans turned in for what they thought was a picnic we let go and struck their commander's tank with our third shot, stopping him as cold as if he had hit a tree. We got a second tank with one shot.

"The eight remaining Nazi tanks

GANDHI WEAKER; BRITISH REFUSE TO RELEASE HIM

Phillips Warned of Bitterness to U. S.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 20 (AP).—In reply to Indian leaders' demand for the release of Mohandas K. Gandhi, the viceroy's secretary reiterated today the government's position that responsibility for his hunger strike rested solely with Gandhi and the decision to end it must rest with him.

Viceroy Linlithgow.

Viceroy Linlithgow's secretary said in a letter to Tejbahadur Sapru, moderate leader and chairman of a conference of 200 asking by resolution for Gandhi's immediate and unconditional release, that the government had clearly set forth its position in its communique of Feb. 10.

Gandhi grew weaker in the 11th day of his three weeks' diet of citrus juices and water, it was announced.

Send Resolution to Churchill.

The Indian leaders decided to send copies of their resolution to Prime Minister Churchill and United States Ambassador William Phillips.

Industrialists, lawyers, and educators were among those who assembled under a mogul style awning to call for Gandhi's release. Among the group were several Britons, including Arthur Moore, once editor of the newspaper, The Statesman.

Gandhi, reported to be "weaker—weaker than yesterday," was said to be remaining in bed in meditation now during his morning and evening prayers.

Warns of Bitterness to U. S.

Chakravarthi Rajaopalachari, Indian nationalist congress leader, visited Ambassador Phillips and said afterward that, should Gandhi die, bitterness in India would be directed against Americans as well as British.

Gandhi has been under detention in the palace of the Aga Khan here since Aug. 9 when his All-India congress party began a civil disobedience campaign. His youngest son, Devidas, and other members of his family arrived at Poona tonight to remain at his bedside.

Labor M. Ps. Ask Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Several Labor members of parliament and certain newspapers today came out for prompt action by the government to release Mohandas K. Gandhi and avert "consequences which might well wreck all hope of a settlement in India."

The members of parliament, THE TRIBUNE learned, sent telegrams to Viceroy Linlithgow, urging the unconditional release of Gandhi. The newspapers revealed concern over the possible serious consequences of Gandhi's voluntary fast on the Indian public as well as on world opinion.

The News Chronicle said: "So great is Gandhi's hold upon the faith and convictions of scores of millions of his fellow citizens that his death would be regarded as a sublime act of martyrdom in the cause of Indian independence."

In contrast the Daily Sketch stated bluntly that Gandhi's fast is "an attempt to blackmail the government into releasing him unconditionally and to blackmail the Moslems into agreeing to Gandhi's hegemony of Hindustan." If worst should come to worst, the Sketch asserted that the Indian and British governments can only accept that climax as profoundly as they will deplore it.

Hull and Halifax Confer.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Secretary Hull expressed American concern over the situation in India in a conference today with British Ambassador Halifax.

While the conference took place as a result of the state department's concern over the situation in India, correspondents were given to understand that this in no way meant American intervention in the Indian situation.

PREDICT VICTORY FOR M'KIBBIN AND KELLY TUESDAY

Regular Mayoral Entries Seen as Nominees.

Republican and Democratic organizations alike were supremely confident yesterday that they will nominate their candidates for mayor at the primaries next Tuesday. George B. McKibbin is the Republican slate choice and Mayor Edward J. Kelly has the support of the Democratic machine.

Two other Democrats and two other Republicans are seeking the mayoral nominations. They are: Democrats: Ald. John S. Boyle [16th] and Billy Patts; Republicans: Arthur F. Albert and John H. Lyle.

Nominees for two other city offices and for one place on the Municipal bench are also to be chosen, but not one of them will be faced by an opponent at the polls. The Republicans are running Morgan L. Fitch for city treasurer, Henry D. Lindblad for city clerk and Patrick B. Prescott Jr. for associate judge of the Municipal court. The Democratic entries for the same three places are Paul Drymalski, Ludwig D. Schreiber and Irwin B. Clorfene.

Aldermen May Win Tuesday.

Winners for these posts go into an election on April 6, but a far different situation prevails in reference to Chicago's 50 council seats. Tuesday is the first of two election days for aldermen. Any candidate who receives a majority vote in his ward on Tuesday will be elected. In those wards where no candidate receives a majority there will be a supplemental or runoff election on April 6 between the two highest candidates.

Were it not for the high interest shown in some of these aldermanic contests, it is admitted everywhere that the total vote cast would not exceed by any substantial margin the low mark of 752,756 cast in the corresponding primary in 1935. The heat in the aldermanic races in some wards on Tuesday is expected to boost the total beyond the 850,000 mark.

War Eclipses Politics.

Even that mark will be extremely low. The registered vote is 1,784,324 and if anything like a normal 70 per cent vote turned out there would be 1,250,000 voters at the polls. In 1939, the last mayoral nomination contest, the total cast was 1,236,456.

More than one reason is given for the prospect of a small turnout. First in importance is the war situation. The public mind is concentrated on foreign battle fields and there is a feeling that local politics is relatively unimportant. Linked with this is the transportation situation. Voters haven't the gasoline necessary to attend massmeetings.

McKibbin has been on the radio frequently, but, more than that, he has appeared before several ward meetings a night and the rank and file of the organization has shown a liking for him. Ward leaders say they will bring him in the victor by 2 to 1 over the combined total of Albert and Lyle, both mayoral aspirants in 1931.

This is the first time that McKibbin has sought important public office. He was a practicing lawyer in 1939 when Gov. Dwight H. Green became a candidate for mayor. He was a member of the lawyers' committee for Green that year and again in 1940 when Green was a successful candidate for governor.

Directed State Finances.

As governor, Green gave him the most important post in his cabinet, that of director of the state department of finance, and McKibbin held that post until he announced himself for mayor on Jan. 12.

By attending meetings in nearly all 50 wards in the city, as well as dozens of luncheons and similar affairs, McKibbin sold himself to the membership of the Republican party and won a large segment of independent support.

The primary opposition developed chiefly from Ald. Boyle, a former member of State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney's staff, but with whose candidacy the prosecutor has not been identified at any time.

A second minority candidate appeared when Patts, without any preliminaries, filed his petition and made a limited appeal for votes. His real name is Boleslaw Pattkoski and he had been identified with aggressive Polish-American activities, chiefly among young voters.

It was estimated that if the total Democratic vote falls below the 600,000 mark, Mayor Kelly will poll about 400,000, Boyle will receive something more than 100,000, and Patts will receive somewhere around 50,000.

Party Voting Strength in Chicago

The Republican and Democratic voting strength in various elections in Chicago.

Voters' Eyes on War

Fewer than two-thirds of the registered voters will cast ballots in Tuesday's primary election for city offices, political observers agreed yesterday. At the last comparable primary in 1939, 67.66 per cent of the potential vote was cast, and in the 1935 mayoralty warmup, only 50.68 per cent.

The war has kept primary news off the front pages of newspapers during most of the race. Politicians report that many registered voters are apathetic except in wards where their interest has been heightened by hot aldermanic battles. More than 100,000 Chicagoans have gone to war and few of them will vote.

Public preoccupation with the war was indicated by the casting of 76.76 per cent of the vote in November, 1942, in contrast with the 81.82 per cent at the comparable 1938 election for state offices.

However, Republicans expect to poll a greater percentage of the total vote than in the 1935 and 1939 city primaries, when there was virtually no G. O. P. organization.

Global Symposium to Open Educators' Parley Today

A symposium on "Understanding the Peoples of the World," in which representatives of five allied nations will take part, will be held at the first general session of the annual national conference of the Progressive Education association at 3 p. m. today in the Morrison hotel. The conference, which is being held in cooperation with the Association for Family Living, will continue thru Tuesday.

OHIO BEGINS DUAL TIME TODAY AS REPEALER PENDS

Columbus, O., Feb. 20 (AP).—Ohio goes on two times tomorrow amid indications that the expected confusion would lead to quick legislative efforts to modify or repeal a bill transferring the state from "fast" war time to the hour slower eastern standard time.

While many rural areas will turn back the clocks an hour, virtually all cities will remain on "fast" time at least until autumn. Columbus and Dayton were the only large cities changing officially, and even there many enterprises will continue on war time.

Sen. Frank E. Whittemore, majority floor leader, said he believed the rural bloc that insisted on the time change "will find it creates so much confusion that they themselves will ask for repeal or modification." A bill to repeal the law now is pending in the senate.

SHIPS BIG NEED OF PUERTO RICO, SAYS SEN. CHAVEZ

Miami, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Sen. Dennis Chavez [D., N. M.], returning today from Peurto Rico, said the island's greatest need was for shipping to get needed supplies there.

Chavez headed a five man senatorial committee which left here Feb. 9 to investigate conditions in Puerto Rico. The investigation grew out of reports that there was a serious food shortage on the island due to a lack of shipping.

"What the committee's report to the senate will be," Chavez said, "I cannot say until after I confer with the other members in Washington." Chavez leaves tonight for Washington.

Called Step to Break Up Two Party System.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Republican national committee, in a statement today, charged the White House with "commandeering" radio time for talks by President Roosevelt on Lincoln's and Washington's birthday anniversaries and declared it to be a "step toward breaking down two party government."

A spokesman for the New York county committee said James Selvage, recently appointed public relations director for the Republican national committee, told him today the statement had been mailed to newspapers.

The statement claimed that many Republican speakers who had been scheduled for weeks ahead were "forced off the air."

Took Time 2 Days Ahead.

It said the Lincoln day address by President Roosevelt was announced two days before the anniversary. It added:

"The possibility that the White House, in announcing this speech, was thinking in political terms was indicated by the fact that the same announcement by Secretary Stephen Early stated that the president 'at the invitation' of the chairman of the Democratic national committee, would address by radio the $100 a plate dinners of the party on George Washington's birthday."

The Republican statement continued that "all radio time is again being commandeered as tho it were an official Presidential speech."

Compelled to Listen.

"Thus," it continued, "those who agree or disagree with the politics of the President are being compelled either to listen to the address or turn off their radios."

The state concluded:

"On Feb. 12, therefore, the White House boldly interfered with the dissemination of opposition doctrine by radio and in the press. Ten days later, on Washington's birthday, it takes the next step toward breaking down two party government by commandeering all radio stations to participate in the fund raising party for its political party."

Aurora to Vote Tomorrow on $150,000 Airport Site

Aurora will vote tomorrow on issuance of $150,000 in bonds to buy the site of a proposed airport five miles south of the city in Kendall county. The civil aeronautics administration allotted $1,250,000 for construction provided the city will obtain the site. The airport is to be operated by the army for the duration of the war and then is to be turned over to the city. The city council ordered a referendum after several factions, including farmers near the site, expressed opposition.

U. S. POSTPONES SECOND 10 PCT. NEWSPRINT CUT

Action Follows Move for Probe of Curbs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The war production board today unexpectedly announced that the second reduction in newsprint allotments to newspapers, scheduled to become effective April 1, has been postponed indefinitely.

The postponement was announced while a resolution was pending in congress for an investigation of all restrictive regulations against the press with a view to determining whether the regulations had been ordered for the unavowed intention of abridging the freedom of the press.

Production Estimates Revised.

A 10 per cent reduction in newsprint already is in effect, and newspaper representatives, who appeared before closed hearings, declared that the new restriction would fetter freedom of the press.

The WPB did not acknowledge that its decision to postpone the second reduction was motivated by fear of congressional investigation or by the stand taken by newspaper representatives. It was said the decision was based on a revision of Canadian estimates of newsprint production.

The decision to postpone was made after the arrival here of R. L. Weldon, newsprint administrator of Canada, which is the source of three-fourths of the paper on which United States newspapers are printed. Weldon reported that pulpwood prospects in the dominion were brighter because a large volume of wood has been cut in eastern Canada than was expected. He said this would ease the supply situation for the time being.

Plea for Small Newspapers.

Spokesmen for the newspaper industry recommended a graduated scale formula when and if a further reduction of newsprint is ordered. Under this, smaller newspapers would suffer a proportionately smaller reduction than would large ones. It was explained to the WPB that great hardships would be worked on small papers, which cannot readily reduce their size, if another flat percentage reduction were made.

The postponement was announced to members of the newspaper industry advisory committee by W. G. Chandler, director of the printing and publishing division, and Donald J. Sterling, consultant to Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman. Officials emphasized, however, that today's action will have no effect upon the present order governing the use of newsprint.

"In this manner, the market will not overtake supply," they said.

The present curtailment of 10 per cent has been in effect since Jan 1. The order restricted newspapers to the amount of newsprint necessary to produce their 1941 net circulation.

The regular Republican candidate for mayor, George B. McKibbin, is a rugged figure of a man, 6 feet 3½ tall, prematurely silver haired—he is only 54—and is credited with pulling the state out of one of its worst financial holes.

When McKibbin was appointed state director of finance after Gov. Dwight H. Green's election in 1940, there was $1,000,000 in the treasury. But the state's current expenses were about $10,000,000 a month and McKibbin has since compared its then financial position with that of a man who owes $100 and has only $10 in the bank. When McKibbin resigned a few weeks ago to battle against Mayor Kelly and his Democratic city hall machine, he left a surplus of $52,000,000 in the state treasury—it has since grown to beyond $53,000,000—much of which is being invested in "win the war" federal securities.

Pledges Same for City.

That change of finances was accomplished under McKibbin's régime in less than two years, altho the sales tax was reduced from 3 to 2 per cent July 1, 1941. If elected mayor the Republican candidate has promised he'll do the same for the city's finances.

George McKibbin was born April 26, 1888, in Keosauqua, Ia., where his grandparents on both sides had settled more than 100 years ago. His father, a country doctor, died when George was 6 and his mother then went back to teaching school to provide for her family. At 14 George got his first job, cleaning up a law office for 50 cents a week, and he has been making his own way ever since.

McKibbin, ambitious to become a lawyer, learned shorthand as a stepping stone. He attended Iowa Wesleyan college at Mount Pleasant. Secretarial positions then aided him to earn his way thru law school at the University of Iowa, George Washington university, and the University of Chicago.

Enters Practice of Law.

He began his Chicago legal career in the office of David F. Matchett, now a judge of the Illinois Appellate court. In a few years he became a member of the firm headed by the late James W. Good, former secretary of war. In 1926 he formed a law partnership with former State Sen. Thurlow G. Essington. He left that firm in January, 1941, to accept the post of state director of finance.

McKibbin married Helen Tyler Sunny, daughter of B. E. Sunny, Nov. 11, 1916. They have five grown children. In World War I., altho married and rejected for army service, McKibbin left his law firm and served in the army chemical war service. His campaign slogan in the present campaign is, "Win on the Home Front Too."

JOHN H. LYLE

John H. Lyle, former alderman and former Municipal judge, and Arthur F. Albert, also a former alderman, are opposing McKibbin in the Republican primary.

Lyle, is a widower with one daughter. He lives at 6517 Stewart avenue. After serving 7 years as alderman, during which he was a member of the council judiciary committee, he served 2 terms in the state legislature and 12 years on the bench. During the gangster era of prohibition he received publicity for issuing vagrancy warrants for all Chicago's "public enemies," compelling service of the warrants and fixing the hoodlums' bail at $100,000 each.

Native of Indiana.

Lyle was born in Gesse, Ind., Oct. 2, 1882. His father was Samuel Thomas Lyle. His mother's maiden name was Lillie Dale Richardson. He learned court reporting in the Jones Business college at Morristown, Tenn., came to Chicago in 1900, studied at the John Marshall law school, and was employed for periods as secretary to Dean Vincent at Northwestern university and Coach A. A. Stagg at the University of Chicago.

He earned his way for a time by driving a truck, playing summer baseball, and by court reporting helped not only to educate himself and sister but to support his stepmother and two half-sisters.

Lyle's wife was Mildred Townsend. He married her in 1911 and she died June 19, 1919 as the result of an accident. His daughter, Jane, is married to Howard McCaskey. They have two children.

ARTHUR F. ALBERT

Arthur F. Albert—McKibbin's other G. O. P. primary opponent— was born in Chicago on Oct. 4, 1898, the son of Jacob and Sophia [Ortmayer] Albert, both natives of Germany. In 1927 he married Rosetta Agnes Hettich, daughter of the president of the Standard X-ray company. Albert is now president of this company which has several hundred employés. He is rated as moderately wealthy.

Albert and his wife live at 727 Hutchinson street, away from the 43d Ward he represented for 10 years in the city council. But it was to the 43d Ward that Albert went—he said for sentimental reasons—to open his present campaign a couple of weeks ago at a meeting in a West North avenue hall. The Alberts have one son, Arthur Jr., 14 years old, a student at St. John's military academy, Delafield, Wis.

Candidates in 1931 Primary.

Only at the beginning of his mercurial career in politics was Albert a member of the regular Republican organization. He broke with it soon after his first election to the council and thereafter was a firebrand in the then Republican body. In 1931, after his five terms in the council came to an end, he was a candidate for mayor in the G. O. P. primary under the sponsorship of Edward R. Litsinger, former Republican office holder and factional leader. Albert on that occasion ran a poor third.

In the 1939 mayoral primary Albert headed a so-called non-partisan business committee on behalf of Thomas J. Courtney, a Democrat, against Mayor Kelly. After the primary, however, he admitted he had voted a Republican ballot.

If 46 war workers at the Elwood, Ill., ordnance plant were late to work yesterday they came armed with a good excuse. Somebody stole their 46 passenger bus.

The big vehicle was being warmed up at 5 a. m. yesterday in front of the bus station of the Kankakee Motor Coach company, along with seven or eight others, preparatory to taking war workers to the ordnance plant. The bus drivers were inside the terminal.

The bus was last seen, Kankakee police said, between Momence and Grant park on the Dixie highway, 15 miles from Kankakee, headed for Chicago. A truck driver recognized the empty ordnance plant bus and wondered what it was doing so far off its route.

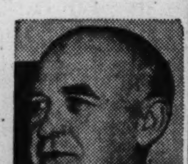
TUNISIAN LOSSES BLAMED ON PLAN FOR HUGE ARMY

Smaller Force, Greater Production Urged.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Calling for lowering army man power goals to facilitate greater production of munitions and food, Sen. John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.] declared today that "reports of disaster to American soldiers in Tunisia, if true, disclose that our soldiers were at great disadvantage and thousands have lost their lives because of the lack of adequate and effective war equipment."



Sen. J. H. Bankhead.

"The lesson is more production—more production of all the needed implements of war," Bankhead said in a radio broadcast.

The Alabama senator, who is the author of bills to defer farm workers from the draft and to provide for furloughing agricultural workers now in the army, asserted the "present rate of withdrawing men from production to increase the armed forces should be stopped."

Overseas Goal Described.

He said that by the end of this year the army expects to have 2,700,000 men overseas and 5,500,000 in this country, making a total of 8,200,000. Other branches of the service expect to have 2,500,000.

"The joint chiefs of staff have not decided how many men should be inducted into our armed forces in 1944," he said. "If the current rate of increase continues, we may look forward to an armed force of 15 million men."

He said these increases in military personnel are being made at a time when Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard has said that an increase of 30 per cent in the production of foods will be necessary to meet home front and lend-lease requirements.

Russian Demands Cited.

Bankhead added that the Russians are "begging for food" and insisting that half of each cargo sent to them should be food.

He noted that selective service has drawn 804,000 workers from farms and that more than 2 million others left agricultural pursuits in 1941 and 1942, most of them attracted to industrial plants by higher wages.

He cited the average monthly pay for agricultural workers in January as $62.43, against the $209.40 he said industrial workers would average with a 48 hour week.

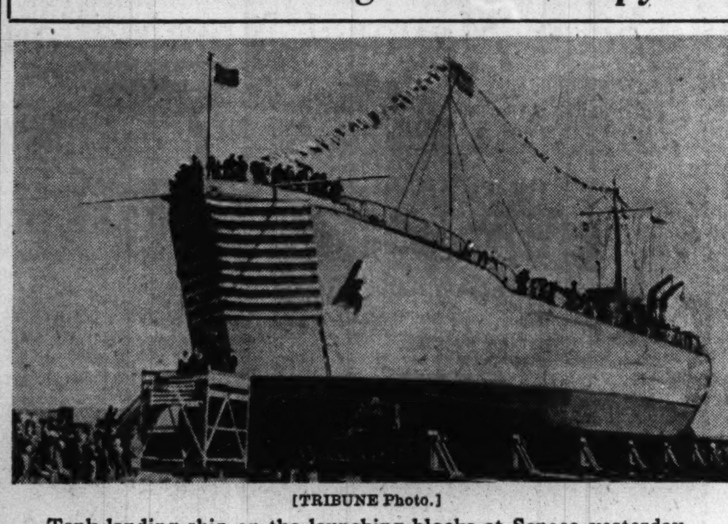
Million in Losses Suggested.

Computing the 1943 strength of the fighting forces at 11 million, Bankhead said allowances also must be made for an additional million men who would "be required to replace men in our armed forces who are eliminated thru casualties and attrition.

"Nothing could be more dangerous or more destructive to our war effort than placing a burden upon our people which they are unable to carry," he asserted.

"It might result sooner or later in a negotiated peace without requiring unconditional surrender by our enemies."

Another Launching at Seneca Shipyard



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Workers Attend

The Chicago Bridge and Iron company yesterday launched its fourth large tank landing ship from its Seneca, Ill., shipyards, converted since last spring from prairie and cornfields into a bustling midwest ship factory. Most of the yard's 8,000 workers, many of them women, heard Capt. W. R. Dowd, superintendent of shipbuilding for the 9th naval district, give the launching address.

The ship was christened by Mrs. Mary E. Armstrong of Ottawa, Ill., mother of Pvt. Doomey C. Armstrong, a marine killed Nov. 11 in the Solomon Islands. Her other three children, Dorothy, 12 years old; Marilyn, 17, and Billy, 13, watched the ceremony.

George T. Horton, president of the company, said that 2,000 additional ship workers are needed at the yards and that a school will be started there soon to train prospective workers in the skills needed in shipbuilding.

Asserts General Will Open Tokio Road.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] outlined a three point win the war program tonight, urging as one point that Gen. Douglas MacArthur be elevated to the supreme command of all allied forces in the far Pacific. He said of the hero of Bataan:

Rep. Hamilton Fish.

"Give him the men, airplanes, and ships and he will find a way to open the road to China and Tokio."

The New York representative advocated in a radio address these other points: Creation of a supreme allied war council similar to that of the last war and an increase in aid for China thru lend-lease.

Asks Stalin's War Aims.

He lauded the heroism of the Russian army, but asserted that admiration for the soviet fighters should not preclude a request to Josef Stalin for an open declaration of his war aims in Europe and Asia.

"We should be willing to place our own cards face up on the table and should have the right to ask Great Britain, soviet Russia and China to do the same," he said.

"In fairness to Josef Stalin he did not influence our entrance into the war, and is under no obligations to us except for lend-lease food and weapons.

"The one question, however, that apparently is uppermost in the minds of those interested in post-war problems and the maintenance of world peace is what are the designs of Stalin the inscrutable. I do not know the answer, but I do know it is a sheer waste of time discussing peace terms and European or Asiatic rehabilitation until Stalin makes known his views."

This is not the first expression of concern in capital circles over Stalin's silence and the secrecy surrounding his plans. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] has declared that official Washington is uncertain over developments on the Russian front because of the soviet refusal to inform American representatives on what is happening and may happen.

Asks Plain Speaking Now.

Wheeler warned that if the Red army succeeds in crushing the Nazis before British and American troops are landed in Europe Russia will be in complete control of the continent.

Fish asserted that the time for plain speaking by the allies is while the battles still are being fought. He continued:

"Most Americans expect Germany and Italy to collapse within a year or 18 months. One thing is certain—we have no imperialistic designs on either Europe or Asia. If we are to be the arsenal for democracy, and to largely feed Europe and finance the war, I submit that the American people have a right to know the war and peace aims of all our allies, and our own.

"I am fearful, unless we take a firm stand now for freedom, democracy, and self-determination, that it may be too late, thereby sowing the seeds of another and more disastrous war that will overwhelm civilization, religion, and free institutions thruout the world."

Urges 2,000 Planes for China.

Turning to his proposed win the war program, the congressman urged the arming of 10 million additional Chinese soldiers to carry on the fight against Japan from that direction and said China should be provided with adequate air bases and 1,000 fighter planes and 1,000 bombers.

It was noted that this would call for a sharp increase in lend-lease aid to that nation.

Fish paid high tribute to Gen. MacArthur, asserting he has the confidence of the American people who, he said, know MacArthur as the "ablest, the most brilliant, and most experienced fighting man in our army." He said the island hopping campaign against the Japs, which began six months ago, might drag on for six years without ever reaching the heart of the Japanese empire, adding:

"The American people want to bring the war to an end by defeating and crushing our enemies. Japan not only started the war but took the Philippines from us. The American people are beginning to ask why we do not get on with the war; why we do not bomb Japan."

Some Types of Play Shoes to Escape OPA Rationing

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Some play shoes and other footwear, including Mexican huaraches [a type of sandal], will be exempted from rationing next week, the office of price administration announced today. The order will exempt play shoes, made largely of fabrics or types of leather not on the shortage list, as well as other nonstreet wear shoes.

DRAFT OF FAMILY MEN IS OPPOSED BY HOUSE GROUP

State-wide Priority Basis for Selection Urged.

Washington D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The house military affairs committee today went on record—apparently for the benefit of local draft boards—as opposed to general drafting of family men, and termed such a policy injurious to the nation's welfare.

In a formal report of the reasons why it approved the Kilday bill to give family men draft deferement priorities and to put draft quotas on a state-wide basis, the committee expressed belief that "it would be injurious to the welfare of our country to have local draft boards feel that men with families can be freely inducted into the armed services."

The report asserted that "many local boards thruout the country, due to confusion and difference of opinion in the construction of the rules and regulations adopted by the [selective service] bureau, have been inducting large numbers of men into the armed forces with little regard for the number of dependents, particularly in relation to men who are the heads of families."

The committee reiterated its adherence to "The fundamental principle" that "there is certainly a genuine social reason for preserving established families." It said that "established families should not be indiscriminately uprooted and torn from their moorings solely because of the fact that their financial needs have been taken care of" by previously enacted legislation providing for government allowances to dependents.

Led First Air Raid on Foe: Made Brigadier General

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—United States army 8th air force headquarters announced tonight the promotion of Col. Frank A. Armstrong Jr., to the rank of brigadier general. The nature of Gen. Armstrong's new duties was not revealed. As commander of a bombardment group Armstrong led the first American attack against the enemy from Britain on Aug. 17, 1942. For accomplishment of that mission without the loss of a life or plane he was awarded the silver star.

Kidneys May Need Help to Clean Out Excess Acids

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Sixteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Guaranteed Trial Offer

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

EDITORS REVOLT IN DIXIE AGAINST BUROCRATIC RULE

U. S. Found 'Hell Bent for State Socialism.'

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 20 [Special].—Sharp protests against New Deal burocracy and government press agentry were voted here today by editors and publishers attending a special war time business conference of the Mississippi Press association.

Assembled in this traditional Democratic stronghold in the heart of the solid south, the 114 member association wound up a two day meeting by unanimously adopting a resolution deploring "increasing burocratic rule" and expressing fear of "the growing tendency toward communism or state socialism in America."

Government press agents were described as "prostitutes of journalism" and as "about the lowest form of human life" in speeches from the floor. A resolution was adopted warning against newspaper acceptance of bureau releases or the utterances of government paid press agents as the only source of information.

Condemn Rule by Decree.

The association also condemned the pushing thru of social reform legislation under the guise of "winning the war," denounced government by decree and assailed man power shortage contentions while still maintaining a 40 hour week.

Maj. Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson Daily News, long a torch bearer for the Democratic party, said government bureaus have flooded the country with propaganda and that New Deal press agentry has reached "a complete saturation point."

"Unless the editors of this country wake up we are hell bent for state socialism," boomed the 65 year old editor, one of the most widely known figures in Mississippi journalism. "These bureaus in Washington are usurping the powers of the people. These socialistic and communistic policies are being worked insidiously thru these bureaus."

Swamped by Handouts.

J. B. Snider, editor of the Clarksdale Press and a former lieutenant governor, said government press handouts have increased in volume to a point where he spends almost an hour a day tossing it in waste baskets.

"The press of Mississippi has been a rubber stamp and I'm ashamed of my part," said J. Oliver Emmerich of the McComb Enterprise. "There has been too much cowardice on the part of the editors of this state, and I must confess I have been guilty."

Miss Hazel Brannon of the Durant News, one of the Mississippi delegates to the Chicago Democratic convention in 1940, said that "winning the war" is being used to put the freedom of the press in greater jeopardy than at any time in the history of the country.

"Putting Us in a Vise."

"Encroachments on the freedom of the press and our democratic way of life are gradually putting us in a vise," Miss Brannon said. "Editors have got to show more guts. I regret that I have to use this kind of language but it is going to take strong words and stronger action to lift this yoke from around us."

George W. Godwin, publisher of the weekly Terry Headlight and president of the association, illustrated the inequity of burocratic rule by describing as "utterly ridiculous" an edict which prohibits a motorist from charging to his account two gallons of gasoline while at the same time allowing him to charge a $100 repair bill.

The editors and publishers renewed a pledge to lend all their efforts to prosecuting the war and to coping with the man power and newsprint shortage. On the subject of freedom of the press, a resolution set forth:

"We give full recognition to the freedom of the press in America, that we not be restrained merely because utterances may be stamped as unpatriotic because they are contrary to the policies of certain bureaus. We reassert the need of public information and interpretative discussions to maintain our freedom. We recognize the imperative need today of a courageous press, outspoken, articulate, aggressive, and unbowed before the iron hand of burocratic rule."

Dangers to Democracy.

Other resolutions asserted that "we recognize a loss to the democratic way of life when bureaus prosecute so-called reforms under the guise of winning the war," and that "we give full recognition to the dangers to democracy wrought thru government agencies not dealing directly with the war but who work their reforms while waving the banner, 'let's win the war.'"

The association voted to ask postal authorities to withdraw a rule requiring written requests by soldiers before newspapers may be sent overseas, and described as "absurb" any idea of classifying the newsprint industry as nonessential to the war effort.

ROOSEVELT'S WORDS INDICATE BLOWS AT JAPS, SAYS AP MAN

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Max Hill, chief of the Tokio bureau of the Associated Press at the outbreak of the war with Japan, said tonight President Roosevelt's Feb. 12 address is "the first indication that Washington finally is taking our war in the Pacific as seriously as the war in the Atlantic."

In an address for delivery at a meeting of the Virginia Press association he said the President gave the first indication that the planners of grand strategy were devoting more attention to the Pacific theater. Supporting this, Hill said, was this paragraph in Mr. Roosevelt's address: "There are many roads which lead right to Tokio. And we are not going to neglect any of them."

Hill noted that the President mentioned specifically only one route of attack—China. He added: "Germans have the hatred of the conquered peoples. Japan, for the most part, has their assistance."

ALLIES SMASH NEW THRUST BY AXIS IN TUNISIA

Yanks Hold Kasserine Mountain Pass.

ALLIED HDQ., IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 20 (AP).—Military authorities said today the "tide has turned" in Tunisia after American and British troops hurled back Marshal Erwin Rommel's renewed thrust toward the Algerian base of Tebessa in mountain passes near Sbeitla and Kasserine.

Marshal Rommel sent a strong patrol against an allied brigade in the Sbiba region, 20 miles north of Sbeitla, and also attacked United States forces guarding the Kasserine gap, an allied spokesman said. At Sbiba, the Germans were said to have lost six tanks and six self-propelled guns. The spokesman said enemy losses were even heavier at the Kasserine pass.

Yanks Recapture Positions.

United States combat troops were deployed on both sides of Kasserine pass when the Germans struck early Thursday. The enemy made some small gains in the initial fighting, but by night the Yanks were back at their original positions and the enemy had turned tail toward the town of Kasserine, which is 18 miles southwest of Sbeitla. Field reports said that the Germans were "strongly entrenched" at Feriana, 22 miles southwest of Kasserine.

[The Germans claimed they had captured nearly 3,000 prisoners during the week, mostly Americans, and destroyed or captured 125 heavy tanks, 50 big guns, and 40 armored cars.]

Fresh supplies and material have been hastened to the Americans in the mountains near the Algerian border of central Tunisia. The indifferent communications in this region slowed the reorganization and probably will delay the coming allied assault.

Withdraw from Valley.

The loss of tanks, guns, and trucks was viewed more seriously than the abandonment of 4,000 square miles of central Tunisia to Rommel's numerically superior troops. The territorial loss was regarded at headquarters as "incidental."

Allied forces in forward positions of the Ousseltia valley below Robaa were withdrawn from the eastern to a western line of hills because their position became untenable after the Americans were forced back farther south.

The British 8th army sent curtains of artillery shells into German positions approaching the Mareth line in the Medenine area and were in contact with the enemy there. Patrols sparred with the foe 30 miles south in the Foum Tatahouine area. Dust storms hampered this powerful allied arm some 65 miles inside southern Tunisia from Libya.

British Imperil Gabes.

Reports that the 8th army was about 40 miles south of Gabes and had captured the Island of Djerba, 35 miles across the Gulf of Gables to the east, put allied air power and British naval power so close to that port that it was believed Gabes was no longer of any use to the axis as a supply base for Nazi forces intrenched in the Mareth line.

Sfax, a good 90 miles to the north, now is the main supply port and this is within easy reach of allied bombers, both from the western side and from the 8th army front.

CHARGES ANCIENT BOMBERS USED BY R. A. F. IN AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Reports from North Africa reveal the perturbing news "that the R. A. F. there is equipped with obsolete twin-engined Blenheim bombers, the News Chronicle's air correspondent said today. He charged that the fact that several squadrons of these bombers are operating there does not support assurances given by Air Minister Archibald Sinclair that the nature of the axis' opposition had been taken into account in planning the composition of the allied air force.

GIVES STRATEGIC PRELUDE TO AXIS DRIVE IN TUNISIA

How British Were Pushed Away from Tunis.

With the American forces having established a new defense line along the western border of Tunisia and the British 8th army moving up from the south to hurl a new challenge at the axis forces, military observers yesterday turned their attention to the strategic background of the Tunisian campaign.

In their study of the factors that led up to Axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's advance almost all the way across Tunisia, they gave particular attention to an article in the February issue of the Field Artillery Journal. Writing in that semi-official army organ, Col. Conrad H. Lanza gave this picture of the situation from the start of the allied invasion early in November until late December:

Machinery for the allied move into Tunisia was set in motion on Nov. 9, when Lt. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson of Britain's 1st army reported for duty at the Algiers headquarters of Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the North African operations. The 1st army was to form the nucleus of the proposed invading force, reënforced by American and French units, with Maj. Gen. Charles W. Ryder of the American army acting as Anderson's deputy.

Axis Gets There First.

Forewarned that the allies intended to send troops thru Tunisia, the Germans moved in first, landing 1,000 soldiers on Nov. 10 and continuing their reënforcement at about the same daily rate.

The first landing of British troops for the drive into Tunisia was made on Nov. 11 at Bougie, an Algerian port about 250 miles west of Bizerte, Tunisia.

Axis air reconnaissance discovered the British landing, and a violent air attack was made on the port. The British have admitted loss of ships, without disclosing what they were, and the axis claimed they sank two transports and damaged 12 others.

Drive Toward Sousse.

More British troops landed at Bone, Algeria, midway between Bongil and Bizerte, on Nov. 12. Motorized units were sent to establish an outpost at La Calle, 50 miles to the east and just outside Tunisia. Both ports were bombed again, and the axis claimed to have sunk numerous transports and escort vessels.

Thereafter British troops landed rapidly and French troops in Algeria moved across the mountains toward the Tunisian port of Sousse. American parachutists joined this mission, and on Nov. 15 landed on the Algerian airport at Youks les Bains to give allied air forces an advanced field near the Tunisian border.

The allied force crossed the northern Tunisian frontier Nov. 17 in three columns—two British and one French. The next day the axis lost 11 tanks of an attack force of 30 before retreating, but inflicted heavy losses upon the French column near Mejez el Bab, 35 miles southwest of Tunis.

Allies Gird for Drive.

On Nov. 24, three columns advanced. The north wing marched on Mateur, 35 miles northwest of Tunis; the middle column toward Tebourba, 20 miles west of Tunis, while the south column struck at Mejez el Bab.

On Nov. 25 the south column of British Guard troops attacked Mejez el Bab with strong artillery and air support. Carrying a hill on the east slope of which the town lies, the British drove the axis out despite a stubborn defense. Some American units participated in this action.

The mixed liaison column of the center, consisting mostly of armored units ready to support either flank, circled Tebourba, destroyed 40 grounded planes, and beat the enemy in a tank battle.

North Drive Stops.

The northern column appears to have stopped before Mateur. The allied estimate of the situation was that the axis was on the defensive and unable to do anything more than delay the allied advance, principally thru demolition.

On Nov. 27 the middle column attacked Tebourba from the north while the southern column drove in from that side. The enemy was forced out and beaten in a counterattack just before heavy rains turned this front into thick mud.

The following day the center column was shifted to the northern flank for a joint operation against Mateur, leaving one detachment at Djedeida, 6 miles east of Tebourba and only 13 miles from Tunis. While the main allied force was deployed around Mateur, the axis suddenly attacked the holding force and retook Djedeida.

Axis Attacks on Three Fronts.

On Nov. 30, after allied planes had bombed Djedeida, a British regiment failed in an effort to recapture it.

The allied attacks on Mateur and Djedeida were continued the next day, but the enemy attacked at both places and also at Tebourba. In view of this severe battle, the allies' mixed liaison detachment was sent back to the center [Tebourba-Djedeida] and does not appear to have engaged in the general action which soon covered nearly the entire front. The enemy attack from Mateur was repulsed by the north column and no change in the line took place.

A very strong enemy tank attack, supported by dive bombers and much artillery, made progress against Tebourba from the beginning. Notwithstanding the resistance of the British south column, with which United States troops were serving, the enemy recaptured Tebourba and compelled our troops to withdraw southwest toward Mejez el Bab.

Gap in Line Closed

This left a dangerous gap in the line which the British 1st army closed by ordering the mixed liaison [central] detachment to take over this part of the front by establishing a new line on the high ground west from Tebourba.

On Dec. 2 the enemy did not press his attack, but improved his position with minor operations. More American troops were rushed up near Tebourba and covered the withdrawal of the British who had been threatened with encirclement. Many prisoners were taken in these operations, including 300 British parachutists who landed behind their lines, axis reports claimed.

The enemy renewed his attack on Dec. 4, advancing substantially westward from Tebourba with tank, artillery, and dive bomber support. This threatened a penetration of the allied line, and the British 1st army ordered a withdrawal of the center to a new position. The new line ran roughly in a straight course from Mateur [held by the axis] to Mejez el Bab [in allied hands], eliminating the bulge near Tebourba [axis] and involving abandonment of the Djedeida region. This shortened the line from 45 to 25 miles.

Allies Retreat 10 Miles.

Advancing as the allies withdrew, the Germans claimed the unconfirmed capture of 1,100 prisoners Dec. 5, and on Dec. 6 pushed the allied forces back 10 miles from Tebourba.

On Dec. 10 the axis delivered two attacks against Mejez el Bab. One was from the territory taken at Tebourba, while the other blow came from the south against French troops. Both attacks were repulsed, however, and further fighting thru Dic. 12 did not change this front materially.

Action then shifted to the south after the temporary stabilization in the north. On Dec. 19 French troops advanced toward Kairouan on the road leading 35 miles northeast to Sousse. Another French outfit started moving on Sousse from the vicinity of Pont du Fahs, 60 miles to the northwest. Both columns had some success until Dec. 23, when enemy counter attacks halted them.

The same day the south British column made an attack opposite Tebourba near Mejez el Bab. Supported by Americans, this attack captured some high ground near Mejez el Bab, altho Tebourba was not reached.

The axis counter attack on Dec. 24 regained a foothold on the allies' hill. To clear the enemy off, an allied attack was launched that night. Just before midnight our infantry secured their objectives. However, at dawn on Christmas day the axis made a new attack and swept the allies off the crest of the hill. Part of the hill was retaken, but it appears losses were heavy and the hill was abandoned by the allies on Dec. 28.

Col. Lanza concludes that the Tunisian territory the allies were forced to relinquish had been held temporarily at a considerable loss of men and equipment.

At least 23,000 axis troops probably were in Tunisia by Dec. 11, he reports on the basis of battle accounts, and considerably larger forces were moved over from Italy.

GEN. ALEXANDER TAKES PERSONAL COMMAND ON TUNISIAN FRONT

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT AMERICAN FIELD HDQ. ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT, Feb. 19 [Delayed].—Gen. Harold Alexander, commander of the allied land forces in North Africa under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, this morning assumed personal command of the allied forces in this sector.

The British general took over at the most critical juncture, while the Germans were massing troops at Feriana and Kasserine, near the Algerian border, and shells were exploding among the American positions.

Alexander said that what is needed is a pulling together of all units trained to work together, instead of using them in bits. Asked by a correspondent if he did not think that he was assuming command at the worst time, Alexander said:

"The time to take over is when it's tough. As soon as I stabilize this sector, there will be great things coming up from the south."

PUT ALL FIT MEN IN WAR, SAYS NAZI MAN POWER CHIEF

[By the Associated Press.]

The Berlin radio last night said Gen. Walter von Unruh is directing Germany's total man power mobilization. It quoted him as saying every ablebodied German male who can be spared must go to the front and every man on woman who can be used in war work will be enlisted. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Von Unruh "now probably is the mast talked about man in Germany."

A New York Times dispatch from Stockholm said Von Unruh is combing Germany for new cannon fodder, traveling about the country in a special train. This report said that at each town or village Von Unruh links his car with the local telephone system and queries all factories, offices and shops regarding the number of men employed. Then he calls for a certain percentage of them to be sent to the front.

He then is said to order to the front part of the men of the town who have been declared unfit for military service.

CHARGES SELFISH INTERESTS BLOCK HELP FOR CHINA

If allied leaders are sincere in their declarations of giving all possible aid to China, then at least 1,000 tons of supplies can be transported daily by train, coolie, and pony from India to China, Dean E. Smith, an American oil executive with 27 years of experience in the orient, declared last night before members of the Whitewater club, a group of former Whitewater, Wis., residents meeting at 310 South Michigan avenue.

Referring to a recent announcement that all American aid now is going by air to China, Smith declared that airplanes could not possibly handle the volume of outside material China must have to fight the Japs.

Sees Influence of Small Group.

Smith declared that a small group of men with heavy interests in China did not want to see that country come out of this war a strong nation and that "apparently their influence is being felt in allied councils."

The oil executive, who said he had superintended the transport of millions of tons of supplies of all kinds thru China, said that China's transport system is made up of coolies, ponies, boats, carts, trucks, and airplanes, with the first three moving the bulk of the nation's goods.

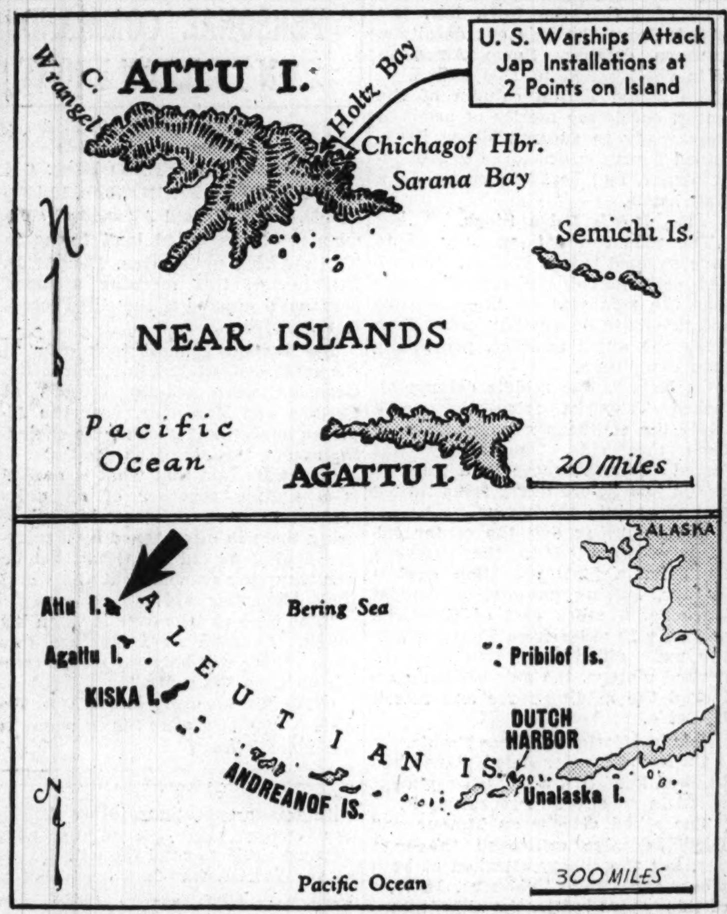
In peacetime, Smith said, a conservative estimate of the freight moved by coolies each week in China would be a million tons. The accepted mode of transporting freight in many localities is by coolie alone, 50 pounds being the average pack, while 180 pounds can be carried by a pony and 600 pounds by each cart.

Tiny Aid by Lend-Lease.

British military railroads run almost to the borders of India, Smith said, and from there pony and cart paths could be used to transport a minimum of 1,000 tons a day. He estimated that less than one-half of 1 per cent of the nation's lend-lease total had reached China. Of the 1.8 per cent reported by government officials, Smith said a large part of this was still in India and much had been destroyed at Rangoon, Burma, just before the arrival of the Japanese.

"Remember that for the supplies it takes to keep an American soldier in the field, China can keep 30 soldiers," Smith pointed out. "We must have all the American soldiers in the Pacigc that we can get, but we must also have all these Chinese soldiers and they must have more equipment than they have been getting. Japan is tremendously strong—much stronger than many realize—and it will take all the help we can give China if we are ever to reach the bases from which we can bomb Tokio."

Yanks Bombard Jap Positions



Details of two bays on Attu Island (map at top), which were attacked by American warships. Lower map locates Attu Island in the Aleutians off Alaska.

U. S. SHIPS SHELL ATTU ISLAND, JAP ALEUTIANS BASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—American warships, apparently attacking under cover of fog, shelled Japanese positions on Attu Island at the tip of the Aleutian chain Thursday, the navy announced today.

The bombardment was directed against installations at Holtz bay and Chichagof Harbor, a communique said, but results of the assault were not observed. There was no mention of Jap resistance.

The same day the enemy sought to attack American positions in the western Aleutians with two float planes, probably operating from the Jap base at nearby Kiska, but the planes were shot down before causing any damage.

The bombardment of Attu was the first surface raid of enemy positions in the Aleutians since last August, when Kiska was shelled.

Attu, westernmost of the Aleutians, is 170 nautical miles west of Kiska and is believed to have been used by the enemy as a seaplane base. In a sense it is an outpost of Kiska and last September the Japs entirely abandoned it in the interest of strengthening their base at Kiska. Toward the end of the year, however, Attu was reoccupied.

In the south Pacific, American aircraft made their 69th raid on the Jap air base at Munda, on New Georgia Island, and also bombed Vila on the southern coast to Kolombangara Is.

L.K. Swenson, Lost Skipper of Juneau, Is Cited as Hero

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Capt. Lyman K. Swenson, 50 years old, skipper of the cruiser Juneau, sunk in the sea battle of Guadalcanal last November, has been awarded a navy cross by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for extraordinary heroism in line of duty. Swenson, whose home is Provo, Utah, is listed as missing in action. His citation said he displayed extraordinary heroism "in the line of his profession during action with enemy forces." Swenson's son, Robert, is a midshipman at the Naval academy.

BRITISH BLOW UP MUNITIONS DEPOT AT NAZI SEA BASE

Blast 40 Arms Sheds, 150 Acres at Wilhelmshaven.

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP).—The main munitions depot at the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven was blown up in the British bomber raid on the night of Feb. 11, the air ministry news service said today.

This depot was composed of 50 long sheds in parallel rows containing mine materials, depth charges, and naval munitions. In one shattering instant at least 40 of the buildings disappeared, leaving huge craters, the ministry said.

The blast devastated 150 acres and large oil storage tanks 700 yards from the depot collapsed from the concussion, the announcement said.

Sky Ablaze for Miles.

After the raid veteran bomber crewmen had reported an explosion far greater than anything they ever had seen. They said it lighted up the sky for miles around.

This announcement of great previous damage at Wilhelmshaven came only a few hours after the heavyweights of the royal air force had returned from their second successive night blow at Wilhelmshaven. The big planes last night spread destruction and fire on the city's U-boat lairs and shipyards in a 30 minute saturation raid.

Attack Costs 11 Bombers.

A bright moon brought out strong fighter opposition. Eleven bombers were lost and one enemy fighter was destroyed. One Halifax bomber pilot said:

"There seemed to be bombers wherever you looked and fighters weaving here and there among them."

He said brisk fires still were burning from the night before.

Canadian squadrons joined the R. A. F. with a force described as "large." The raid was officially classed by the R. A. F. as "heavy."

Attack Power System.

At the same time, bombers of the army coöperation command attacked the German controlled electric power system in France, concentrating on transformer stations along the Loire river.

By German account, high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on western and northwestern Germany, nine raiders were shot down, and 36 persons killed and many injured by R. A. F. raids over occupied territories in the 48 hours up to this morning.

German planes caused a few casualties in night attacks on two towns on the northeast Scottish coast.

CRUISER CHICAGO SINKS WITH GUNS BLAZING AT JAPS

Torpedoed 4 Times, She Bags 7 Planes.

[This is the first detailed story of the sinking of the United States cruiser Chicago since her loss was announced by the navy department last Tuesday. This communique said 17 Jap ships were sunk or damaged in a four-day engagement in the Solomon Islands. American losses were given as the Chicago and one destroyer.]

AN ADVANCED BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Feb. 10 [Delayed] —(AP).—The United States cruiser Chicago, already powerless from two torpedo hits the night before and being towed slowly, never had a chance as Japanese torpedo planes attacked again the afternoon of Jan. 30.

Eleven torpedo planes concentrated on the cruiser. Despite that attack, one of the most intense yet hurled at any United States ship, the Chicago lost only six officers and 56 men of more than 1,100 personnel.

"Five torpedoes headed right for us, We sat there knowing at least three or four would hit us," said Lt. Edward B. Jarman, 25, of Staunton, Va., the Chicago's air defense officer.

Torpedo Hits Magazine.

"It was still a minute or more before they hit—four of them," he added, then:

"One torpedo hit the forward magazine, which already was flooded. Three struck at where we had been hit the day before.

"She laid over on her starboard side and went down fast but smooth —in 19 minutes.

"She fired a five inch salute to herself as she went down—shells exploding from the heat of the torpedo set fires—and with her colors flying.

"We got off every survivor on rafts. We had nearly 300 recruits but all were orderly and waited orders. There was no panic."

The Chicago was patrolling south of Guadalcanal when 24 Japanese torpedo planes attacked in two waves Jan. 29. Our escorting fighters had left the task force just 15 minutes earlier.

Jarman said "there was just enough light to silhouette our ships. We opened fire at 7:25 p.m . One torpedo just missed us. The first wave of Japs dropped float lights to light us up and marker flares to designate our position.

Shoots Down Jap Plane.

"We shot down at least three Jap planes and other ships in the task force got at least three more. We filled one torpedo plane so full of steel that it almost exploded on the Chicago. It missed our boat by 10 feet. It burned three or four minutes, silhouetting us for the second wave.

"Two torpedoes hit us. They all concentrated on the Chicago, apparently mistaking her for a battleship. No other ship was hit. Fire broke out in our engine rooms and we lost all power. We were taken under tow and headed for port while the task force resumed its patrol.

"The next morning we were taking more water than the books said we could and keep afloat, but we kept her up.

"At 4:25 p. m. we sighted more planes on our beam. We were making only four knots under tow. The Japs dropped their torpedoes well out because we were a 'cold shot,' and then came straight in to strafe.

"I don't believe any Jap escaped. Our ships got six Japs and our fighters got another five. The Chicago got at least three, and downed a fourth jointly with a destroyer. One PBY on patrol tried to break up the attack, but failed. He flew around and between those Japs alone, before our fighters could get to them, but they came right on. He had lots of guts. It's a wonder he wasn't shot down."

Medical Officer a Hero.

Sixteen of the Chicago's casualties were men who had been wounded in the first attack and were trapped and drowned in the sick bay during the second day attack. Jarman said Lt. Comm. E. N. Jones of Boise, Ia., senior medical officer, and hospital corpsmen tried vainly to rescue all of the patients.

"Dr. Jones carried out a spinal meningitis case and then tried to reccue another patient, but he couldn't go back down because of the inrushing water," Jarman said. "Two kids carried down several wounded from the main mast."

Marine Platoon Sergt. Anthony C. Anderson, 30, of St. Louis, praised marine Privates William L. Stander, 22, of Promontory, Utah; Verona Brown, 27, of Kansas City, Mo., and Harold M. Dixon, 18, of Warren, Ariz. He said they continued their anti-aircraft fire despite serious injuries.

"Stander continued firing despite two bullets in his back until I took him out of his harness and got in myself and kept his gun firing," Anderson related.

"Brown had a shrapnel wound in his right leg, but he got down on one knee and kept loading. Dixon stayed at his post until he collapsed."

Heroism in Engine Room.

There was heroism below decks, too. The after engine room door was jammed open, permitting water to flood into a mess compartment so rapidly, Jarman said, that "we were settling fast and it looked touch and go whether we would sink."

Then the ship's carpenter, Albert A. Bartholomew, 27, of Long Beach, Cal., went deep into the ship. He shut valves, closed hatches and prevented the ship from sinking. Bartholomew, in charge of damage control, had to swim thru oil and water to reach a heavy door. He made several efforts before he could close and fasten it.

Bartholomew said his damage control party "worked like dogs to keep us afloat. They swam 30 feet in water chin deep, dodging heavy tables and chairs as the ship rolled, to dog down hatches."

Bartholomew and Lt. James S. Brown, 36, Cockeysville, Md., aft repair officer, were given special commendations for keeping the Chicago afloat. Brown's repair party shored bulkheads and formed bucket brigades to bail out oil and water.

Bond Drive Gains

War bond sales toward the purchase of a new cruiser to replace the U. S. S. Chicago, sunk Jan. 30 in the Solomons, yesterday exceeded the $1,000,000 daily goal for the fourth consecutive day, the treasury department reported. The day's sale of $1,132,725 brought the total for the first four days in the 40 days campaign to $4,699,468.

CHINESE FORCES REPULSE TWO JAP DRIVES IN YUNNAN

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 20 (AP).—Japanese forces trying to extend their grip along the Burma road were repulsed in two attempts to cross the Salween river in western Yunnan province, the Chinese high command announced today. A communique said the Japanese sought vainly to force their way across the river yesterday and Thursday.

The Japanese poured reënforcements on the Luichow peninsula in the southern province of Kwangtung, capturing Hoihong on Feb. 17 and Suichi Feb. 19, the communique said. It added that the fighting was progressing.

In northern Kiangsu province, Chinese forces were declared to be "counter-attacking continuously." Fighting also was reported raging in Hunan and Hupeh provinces.

Dear Men:

So enemy torpedo planes sank your ship, did they? And after narrowly missing the deadly bomb fragments you had to jump into the sea. As you plunged down and down odd thoughts of scenes from home crossed your mind. Am I going to die—is this "it," you wondered? Then suddenly you were mad—you fought to wipe the oil from your face—fought to force air into those bursting lungs. "They can't do this to us," you could have shouted. "We'll get those ———! Maybe not today or tomorrow—but we'll get 'em!"

Listen, crew—you bet we'll get 'em! Money is pouring in from thousands of sources for Bonds to pay the $40,000,000 cost of a new U. S. S. CHICAGO—and it's already under construction! We want you, and all the lads from our stores who are now in service, to know that we, too, are fightin' mad!

You'll get your ship. You'll beat the Japs. And it is our fervent hope that you will all come home safely after a job well done.

Earnestly yours,

The Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons.

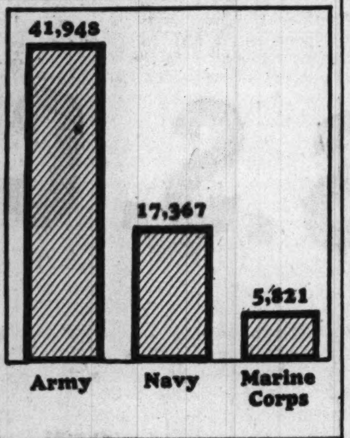
Michigan Soldier Killed in Blast at Army Base

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Lieut. Russell S. Gribble, 23 years old, was killed in an explosion at the army engineers' Fort Belvoir base, Capt. S. D. Swann, public relations officer, announced today. Details of the explosion, which occurred yesterday, were withheld. Gribble was a native of Ironwood, Mich., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Gribble, live.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Mrs. Mary Kennedy, 85 years old, resident of Chicago for 50 years, died yesterday in her home at 6540 Perry avenue, apparently the victim of a heart attack.

Casualties



Announced casualties for three combat services as given out yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The office of war information reported today that announced casualties of the army and navy and branches have reached a total of 65,380 killed, wounded, taken prisoner, missing, and interned in neutral countries.

The combined total since Pearl Harbor was reported as 10,150 dead; 10,959 wounded, and 44,181 missing or prisoners, plus 90 interned. The army list was complete thru Feb. 7 and the navy list up to Feb. 19, but the navy totals included only casualties whose next of kin have received notification.

Army casualties were 41,948, of which 3,533 were killed, 6,509 wounded, 25,684 missing, 6,132 prisoners, and 90 internees. Of the wounded, 743 have returned to active duty. The army's toll includes 12,500 Philippine scouts, most of them assumed to be prisoners of war.

Navy department casualties aggregated 23,432, with 5,083 navy dead listed, wounded, 2,087, and 10,197 missing, for a total of 17,367; marine corps dead totaled 1,483; wounded, 2,344, and missing, 1,994, for a total of 5,821, and coast guard dead totaled 51; wounded, 19, and missing, 174, for a total of 244.

BRITISH REPORT 248 AXIS SHIPS SUNK, DAMAGED

BRISTOL, England, Feb. 20 (AP).—Allied forces in the Mediterranean, including United States planes, sank or damaged 248 axis ships totaling 626,000 tons between Sept. 1, 1942 and Jan. 31, 1943, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said in an address today.

The loss to the axis, he said, included hundreds of thousands of guns, tanks and other supplies consigned to German and Italian troops in North Africa. He said 136 axis ships had been destroyed, 44 seriously damaged and 68 damaged.

ALLIED BOMBERS DROP 23 TONS ON SOLOMONS BASES

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Feb. 21 [Sunday] (AP).—Twenty-three tons of bombs have been dropped on Buin and Faisi in the North Solomons in the third straight raid on that Jap base 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, the allied high command announced today. Buin is on Bougainville Island and Faisi is a tiny island to the south of it.

"Our heavy and medium bombers attacking at night against heavy anti-aircraft opposition hit Kahili and Ballale airdromes and Faisi seaplane base with over 23 tons of bombs and incendiaries, causing widespread damage," reported the communique.

"Numerous large fires and explosions were caused in the dispersal areas, trapping many enemy grounded aircraft which were destroyed. Fuel and ammunition dumps were hit, starting enormous fires lighting up our aircraft at 750 feet and emitting a pall of smoke over the area rising to 6,000 feet." Bombers raided the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, and destroyed two Jap bombers on the ground. Two torpedoes were released at a destroyer.

FRONTS ARE WELL SUPPLIED, SAYS GEN. SOMERVELL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Back from a tour of the world's combat fronts, Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the services of supplies, declared today that the war has become primarily one of transportation and supply lines.

He expressed confidence in continued successful movement of supplies. Eight tons of shipping are required, he said, to move each soldier to the fighting front and keep him supplied for 60 days.

Somervell, whose tour took him to Africa, the middle east, India, and Burma, said there was no lack of supplies at any of these points. "Everybody had plenty of food, plenty of clothing, and all the ammunition he could shoot," he said.

KEEP HANDS OFF U. S. JOBS, F. D. R. ASKS CONGRESS

Fights Bill for Approval in Higher Brackets.

Sen. McKellar.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt today told congress the proposal to require senate confirmation of federal employés paid $4,500 or more a year amounts to meddling in matters reserved to the executive branch of the government.

He said it would hinder the prosecution of the war and he thought in that event "the American people will not fail to realize that it is the legislative branch" which had done so.

But Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.], sponsor of the proposal, was not impressed, nor was Sen. Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, before which the measure is pending. Van Nuys said one of the President's objections—that too much of the senate's time would be consumed with confirmations—was "bosh." Van Nuys told reporters he was "100 per cent for the bill" and hoped it could be reported to the senate Thursday.

Writes Letter to Wallace.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed his views in a letter to Vice President Henry A. Wallace. He declared the measure "pre-supposes congressional responsibility for the operations of executive agencies" whereas "an agency head is responsible for the success or failure of his program." He said appointment of officers who determine policy "has generally been subject to senate confirmation," but policy determination "is not synonymous with the exercise of administrative discretion."

He also argued it would "turn the clock back" on the merit system, "lay all of us open to the charge that we are playing politics," and adversely affect recruitment for key government positions.

He conceded that mistakes had been made under the present system, but said corrective steps were being taken.

McKellar Cites Constitution.

In his countering statement McKellar said that "the Constitution had provided how officers and employés shall be appointed, and I believe the constitutional way is right and that we must uphold it."

He said that 10 of the most important policy determining officials of the government have not been confirmed by the senate.

McKellar listed James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director; Harry Hopkins, special assistant to the President; Nelson Rockefeller, coördinator of inter-American affairs; E. R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator; William M. Jeffers, rubber director; James M. Landis, director of civilian defense; Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information; Donald Nelson, war production board chairman; Paul V. McNutt, man power director, and Wallace in his capacity as chairman of the board of economic warfare.

Both McKellar and Van Nuys disagreed with Mr. Roosevelt's contention that the senate would not have time to weigh the qualifications of the 33,000 persons who would be affected by the bill

McKellar said he hoped the committee would amend the bill to reduce the confirmation level to $3,800.

NAME 9 KILLED IN KANSAS CRASH OF ARMY BOMBER

Kearney, Neb., Feb. 20 (AP).—Names of nine men who died in the crash of an army bomber near Hutchinson, Kas., yesterday were announced tonight by the public relations officer at the Kearney air base, who said there were no survivors.

James A. Farrell, Marseilles, Ill.

Two Die in Texas Crash.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 20 (AP).—First Lieut. Oscar L. Cantrell Jr. of Lansdowne, Pa., and 2d Lieut. John N. Gessinger of Rochester, Minn., were killed yesterday in the crash of an army bomber, Biggs field officers announced today. Other crewmen parachuted to safety.

Seattle Toll Reaches 30.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 20 (AP).—The death toll in Thursday's crash of a four-motored bombing plane into the Frye & Company packing plant reached 30 today. Nick Vaschenko, a plant employé, died of burns in a hospital. Another employé, John Huddleston, was added to the list of missing. Firemen still were fighting the blaze started by the crash.

Cabinet Wedding

[Acme Telephoto.]

Ensign Jean V. Pickart and his bride, the former Ann Louise Wickard, after wedding yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Miss Ann Louise Wickard, daughter of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and Mrs. Wickard, was married this afternoon to Ensign Jean Vincent Pickart, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pickart of Gary, Ind. The ceremony was held in the Wickards' apartment. Guests included Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, and cabinet members and their wives. The bride will resume her studies at Purdue university following her honeymoon.

Iceland Starts Gasoline Ration of 3 Gallons a Week

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Feb. 20 (AP).—Iceland began to ration gasoline today at the rate of three gallons a week for private motorists. Since motor vehicles and horses are almost the only means of transportation here, the situation is regarded as serious. Officials said they hoped to increase the ration during the summer.

COURT UPHOLDS VOTING RIGHTS OF JAPS BORN IN U. S.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 20 [Special].—The 9th federal Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld a lower court decision confirming citizenship rights of American born Japanese.

Speaking in behalf of the seven judges of the court, Senior Judge Curtis D. Wilbur announced the decision from the bench without hearing argument by opposing counsel. Instituted by an organization named the Native Sons of the Golden West, the action specifically sought to strike from the voting lists the names of 70,000 evacuated native born Japanese.

U. S. Webb, former state attorney general, argued the case for the Native Sons. He told the court that in his opinion the United States Supreme court had "erroneously decided" the Wong Kim case in 1898.

This case, which upheld the citizenship of a Chinese born in this country, has been accepted as also applying to Japanese born here.

"Are you asking this court to overrule a decision of the Supreme court?" inquired Judge Wilbur.

"I'm asking the court, as God gives it light and power, to give a correct judgment according to law," Webb replied.

The court listened to argument on a case challenging the constitutionality of an executive order by President Roosevelt and subsequent proclamations by Lt. Gen. John L. De Witt, western defense commander, authorizing the evacuation of west coast Japanese.

Judge William Denman asked Edward J. Ennis, special assistant attorney general, whether there was a single case from Pearl Harbor to the evacuation wherein one of the 70,000 American born Japanese has been "found by a competent authority to be a menace."

Ennis replied that he knew of none, but said "incalculable damage" could have been done in the event of an attempted invasion if "even a few hundred" had been hostile.

A Street in Kharkov After Russians Captured the City

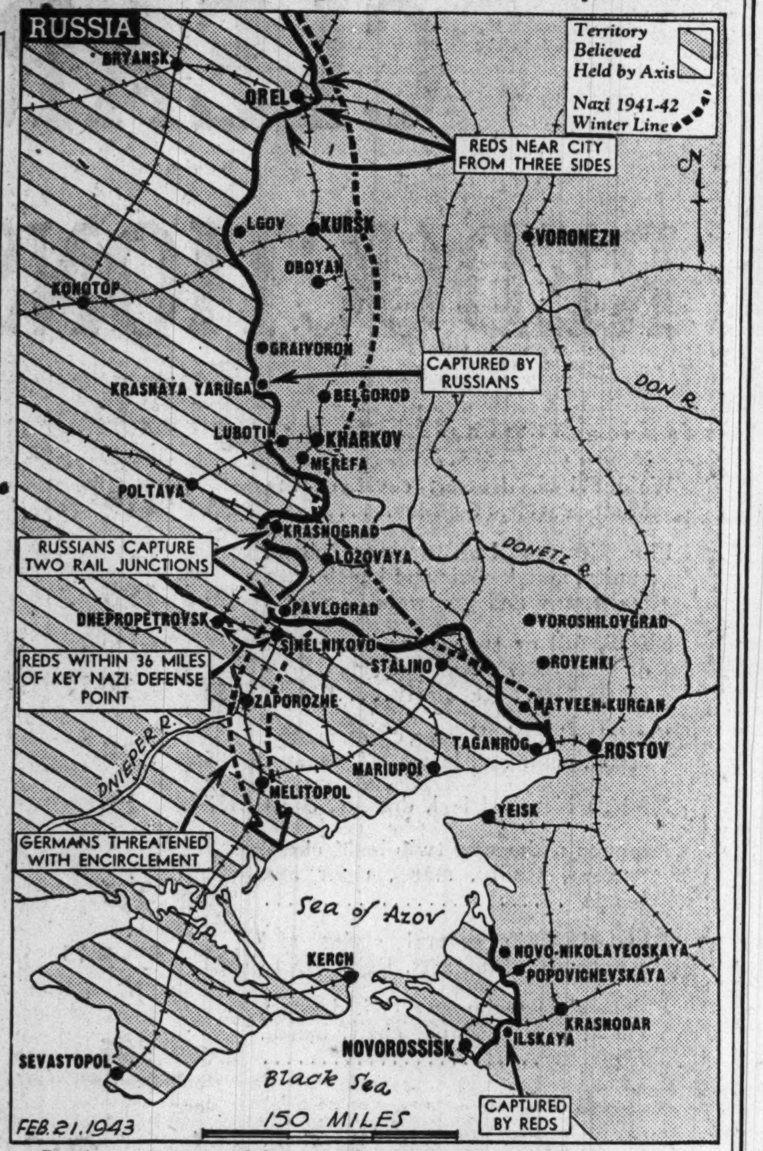
Rubble litters this street in Kharkov, says the Moscow caption, after Russian troops had driven Nazi invaders from the city.



Captions on map explain latest developments in the Russian counter-offensive in the central and southern sectors. (Story on page 1.)

Texan's Crew Wrecks Four of Foe's.

then braked to a stop, but we kept going at about 14 miles an hour, firing steadily as we pulled away. We hit one tank three times before discovering that it was a Mark VI. I saw the last shell burst against him, but don't know whether he was disabled. However, he didn't fire any more.

"As another Mark IV. came up to him we hit it at the same range with one shot. It went thru the turret and the tank broke into flame like a flower.

Gun Jams and Nazis Attack.

"Another Mark IV. approached the burned tank—which was stupid because we had only to bring over our gun a hair—and he flamed up with our first shot. Then our gun momentarily jammed as the five remaining Mark IV.'s really opened up on us.

"We could actually see the shells coming along close to the ground like a ricocheting stone in water.

"One shell fragment came right down the tube of our gun, but caused no serious injury among our crew. Another shell went thru the bogie wheels and under the tank, tearing out the other side like a rabbit. Another hit our turret, but didn't penetrate. Then a shell struck our suspension system.

"Each shell hitting sounded like a giant anvil or tremendous bell. It made your ears ring. As soon as our gun was unjammed, we began firing again, but another shell mashed the bottom of our left rear gas tank and flaming gasoline spurted over the back of our tank, its tracks, and on the ground about us.

Escape on Foot.

"I shouted to my boys: 'Now is the time to git.' We boiled out of there like peas from a hot pod before the tank had stopped running. We dodged behind the tank and kept it between us and the Germans. After walking a couple of miles we fixed up a half-track we found abandoned, picked up a soldier with a broken hip near by, loaded him in, and drove on.

"We came to another tank which some of our fellows were about to destroy because of engine trouble. We put it back in shape. Our crew got in and we picked up our convoy of half-tracks and jeeps and came on home.

"I hated like hell to lose that tank of mine. They even burned up the Lone Star state flag flying from my antenna."

Gunner Bayer, 21, of La Porte, Ind., said "I still have a score to settle with those birds and I am going back to get some more."

Just Drove 'Zigzaggy.'

The other members of the tank crew included Sergt. Mirjenwark, 28, driver, of Ottawa, Kas., who said "I just drove a bit zigzaggy when they let go at us;" Pvt. Earl Agle, 24, gun loader from Paragould, Ark., and Warrant Officer O. W. Coley, 33, battalion radio officer, from Lewood, W. Va.

"We were almost out of ammunition any way, but I sure would like to have sent the rest of it at them," said Agle.

"Col. Hightower saved at least 300 men and much of our equipment because the German tanks had already opened up on our column and their armor was too heavy for anything we had," said Tech. Sergt. Harry E. Pursley, 25, of Akron, O., who was in one of the half tracks.

"Another thing—he knocked those tanks out with high explosive ammunition, because he was out of armor piercing stuff. That in itself is one for the books."

"All our men would gladly follow Col. Hightower thru hell and high water—and that's putting it mildly," said Pvt. Harry M. Bennett, 20, of Johnson City, N. Y.

We need a number of men for permanent positions as "mechanical tabulating equipment mechanics"—officially defined by Selective Service headquarters as an essential occupation.

WE are a large, well-established manufacturer of office machines and equipment. Our entire production is going to war manufacturers and government bureaus. We urgently need men who are mechanically minded—not necessarily with mechanical experience—to keep these essential office machines operating at top speed in war plants and government offices. We teach you everything you need to know about the machines, and we pay you a salary while you are learning. The positions are permanent, with excellent opportunities for advancement.

YOU are a man with a knack for mechanical work, even though you may not be using that knack at present. You are a high-school graduate and U. S. citizen. The armed forces have passed you by, and will continue to do so. You are not doing war work now. You are ambitious, loyal, a good worker, eager to get ahead.

YOU AND WE should get together. Write us a brief confidential letter, telling us about yourself. Give us also your age and phone number. Write today if possible.

Address A D 425, Tribune

P.S. Do you have a friend who should know about this opportunity? We'd appreciate your calling him about it—and so would he!

NAZIS LACK AIR POWER TO HELP SUBS, BRITISH SAY

Ministry Lists Falling Off in Attacks on Ports.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A drastic shortage of German aircraft explains the inability of the Nazis to support their U-boat campaign from the air, the British air ministry reported today.

Attacks on allied shipping by planes were "negligible" according to the air ministry which said team work of enemy flyers and submarine crews was no longer a factor in the battle of the seas.

Raids on Ports Lessen.

The luftwaffe, harassed in western and eastern skies, is unable to continue effective attacks on British ports, the ministry said. Only six times last year was any British port bombed by as many as ten planes. Yet the Nazis described such actions as "heavy," saying "waves of bombers were used," the ministry pointed out.

In contrast, the air ministry pointed out that in the 12 previous months Hitler's airmen hammered British ports 342 times, often with large formations. As attacks have dwindled, millions of tons of supplies have poured in to the British Isles.

Striking Hard at Axis.

On the other side the ministry declared that allied attacks on enemy shipping and ports were steadily expanding.

In the three months ending Jan. 31, 24 axis Mediterranean ports were attacked on more than 250 occasions. In the nine months ending last September more than 300 axis vessels are known to have been sunk or seriously damaged by allied aircraft.

One enemy port has been hit by more than 2,000 tons of bombs in a month.

ACCUSE NAZIS IN BRAZIL OF PLOT TO BOMB SHIPS

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Feb. 20 (AP).—A plan to blow up British ships at Port Santos with time bombs was uncovered during a roundup of axis spies, police declared today. Hans Ulrich Uebele, son of the German consul at Santos, and Hendrick Beinrouth, consulate secretary, plotted with Niels Christensen, espionage ringleader and the German admiralty at Hamburg agreed to pay $10,000 for each ship sunk, the police said.

Police quoted Beinrouth as saying seamen abroad the British ships Pardo, Delane, and Andalucia Star had agreed to place time bombs for high pay, but that the German embassy at Rio de Janeiro issued orders against the plan. The German embassy at Rio closed with severing of relations by Brazil Jan. 28, 1942.

KNUTSON URGES MORATORIUM ON PAYING '42 TAXES

Asks Move to Let U. S. Get on Pay as You Go Basis.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—A moratorium in payment of 1942 income taxes to enable wage earners to go on a pay as you go basis at once and start paying 1943 taxes out of current earnings was proposed today by Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], ranking minority member of the house ways and means committee.

Knutson announced his plan as a special subcommittee of the ways and means group met to survey the wreckage of the four pay as you go plans rejected yesterday and to begin writing an entirely new bill that will be acceptable to the administration and congress.

Meanwhile, the controversy over proposed changes in tax collecting machinery was believed headed for a compromise calling for postponement of at least part of one year's taxes to permit up to date collections without a drastic increase in the present unprecedented tax load.

Would Put Off Forgiveness.

Knutson, member of the subcommittee, served notice he will introduce his plan next week. It would make taxes collected this year apply against current income and would leave the question of canceling all or part of the 1942 taxes to be discussed when the committee considers raising the 16 billion dollars in new revenue requested by President Roosevelt for the next fiscal year.

Knutson refused to say so, but it was considered that the theory of his plan is to make collections on 1942 taxes apply against the 16 billions, thus offsetting a need for a raise in present rates, greatest in United States history.

It would be up to the full committee to determine later how long the 1942 payments are to be postponed and over what period they would be spread to lighten the impact of doubled up collections.

That the committee would swing to postponement of back collections was thought probable after members yesterday broke up in a stalemate and turned over to a five man subcommittee the job of writing new legislation.

Ruml Backers Hopeful.

Two of the four plans rejected, proposed originally by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, and a third, proposed by Rep. Willis Robertson [D., Va.], called for partial doubling up of 1942 and 1943 obligations in reaching a current basis.

The other plan, offered by Rep. Frank Carlson [R., Kas.] was a modification of the Ruml plan. The latter is understood to have received the largest number of supporting votes. Persons advocating complete forgiveness of one year's taxes for every one in putting the new system into operation regarded this as encouraging.

The only positive action of the full committee was an endorsement of the principle of collections at the source to be combined with a new current payment plan.

The plan is not expected to be in operation before July 1, and taxpayers have been warned they must file their returns and pay at least the first quarterly instalment of their taxes by March 15.

Police Make Three Arrests in 3 Raids on Handbooks

A police squad under Capt. Thomas J. Duffy raided three handbooks yesterday, chased 19 bettors away from charts, and arrested three men. Lazar Marcus, 36 years old, was arrested as keeper of an alleged handbook at 24 North Wells street; Samuel Cohen, 26, at another at 201 West Washington street, and Milton Waldman, 38, at the third, 186 North Clark street.

Tells of Warfare

MRS. VICENTE LIM.

Reports of guerrilla warfare against the Japanese in the Philippine islands were strengthened yesterday by Mrs. Vicente Lim, wife of Brig. Gen. Lim of the Philippine army. Gen. Lim served as Gen. MacArthur's "right hand man" in the battle of the islands and was imprisoned by the enemy after the fall of Corregidor.

Mrs. Lim, who was visiting in the United States at the outbreak of the war, declared that bands of Filipinos, with their American allies, still uncaptured, work day and night to study the movements and equipment of the Japanese. Her information, she reported, was received via the "bamboo line," the islands' underground information system.

Reconnaissance of the guerrilla bands will be used to aid the allies when they are ready to strike against the Japanese, Mrs. Lim said.

Mrs. Lim visited with Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Frost in Chicago yesterday. Mr. Frost, a friend of Gen. Lim, Gen. MacArthur, and President Quezon of the Philippines, had completed architectural plans for a new capital city for the islands shortly before the outbreak of the war.

BARBIROLLI WINS APOLOGY; STAYS WITH ORCHESTRA

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—John Barbirolli isn't mad any more, and New York's Philharmonic orchestra still has him as conductor.

Barbirolli, angered because Mishel Piastro, his concert master, was quoted in a newspaper as saying "the management's mistakes consisted of such things as engaging John Barbirolli, a conductor of comparative youth and inexperience," demanded and got a press conference today so Piastro could make a flat denial.

Piastro, one of 14 members of the orchestra whose contract has not been renewed, saved tomorrow's concert by not only making the flat denial but adding: "I consider John Barbirolli one of the greatest musical conductors of today."

FIGHT JAPANESE TILL END, QUEZON TELLS FILIPINOS

Liberation Sure, Says Islands' President.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines told his countrymen today their liberation from the Japanese was "certain" and urged them to continue all possible resistance to the invaders.

Jap Promise Means Nothing.

In a message broadcast by office of war information facilities to the islands on the first anniversary of his departure from Corregidor, Quezon said President Roosevelt already has recognized the Philippines "as possessed of the attributes of full nationhood."

"The only thing lacking is the formal establishment of the Philippine republic," he said. "This cannot happen until our country is liberated from the invader."

Japanese promises to grant independence to the islands "mean less than nothing," Quezon declared. Tokio, he continued, would grant the islands "independence" in name, but in reality would establish in the islands a puppet state—"a government without rights, without powers, without authority."

"After the tragic end of Korea's independence, in utter disregard of a solemn pledge to respect it, it would be worse than folly to rely on any promise made by the Japanese government," he said.

"Have Faith in America."

Japanese propaganda from the start of the war has been aimed at persuading Filipinos that Japan was their friend and that America was not to be trusted, Quezon said. The commonwealth's answer to that has been "to fight to the bitter end," he added.

"Do not despair, for your liberation is certain," he said. "It may take time, but it will come. Meanwhile, don't let the Japanese fool you. Use your wits and beat them at their own game. Above all, you must continue to have faith in America, which has kept faith with every nation, and especially with us."

WEINER FIGURES U.S. CAN EXIST ON 28.2% LESS FOOD

It's 'Bedrock' for Civilians in a Long War.

[Copyright: 1943: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Life in the United States, when and if total war requires civilians to sacrifice all except absolute essentials, will be a drab affair, according to the estimates which the office of civilian supply in the war production board has prepared for the information of James M. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization.

In such an eventuality, for instance, food and clothing would be rationed, the former at the rate of 71.8 per cent of 1941 consumption and the latter at 64 per cent Only 54.9 per cent of the beverages, 75.2 per cent of the tobacco, 29.3 per cent of the books and other permanent printed matter would be produced.

Sports to Be Curtailed.

Professional baseball and football games would be halved in number compared with previous years but motion picture theaters would be permitted to operate with only a slight curtailment.

Government experts who worked on the report are emphatic that the living scale they outline is one which states merely bedrock needs of the people and sets up the limits below which losses in efficiency and morale of the population would begin to detract from winning the war.

"In making the estimates," Joseph L. Weiner, director of the office of civilian supply, wrote Byrnes, "We have assumed the conditions of a long war. Over short periods of time or under siege, of course, further contraction would be made. Contraction to the bedrock level would constitute a severe change in present standards of living and, in our estimation, would bring these down to the lowest levels consistent with the most efficient use of the economy as a whole in a long war."

Report Asked by Byrnes.

The report grew out of a request sent to the OCS last fall after Byrnes was named economic stabilization director.

Government officials say the survey affords a fairly detailed picture of our possible future existence. There would be rationing on a scale much broader than has been conceived at present, rigid control of the manufacture of many articles now considered essentials, elimination of practically all semi-luxuries. Production of watches, silverware, and paper facial tissues would be halted entirely. A limit of 60 degrees would be set on home heating temperatures and fuel consumption would be curtailed accordingly.

With reference to alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages, the report included a table in which consumer requirements of distilled spirits are set forth as 1 per cent of 1941 dollar volume and beer and wine are listed at 65 per cent of the same year's consumption. Beer and wine, the report said, have been found to have a value in sustaining morale of both civilians and fighting men.

Tobacco Curtailed.

The table outlined minimum civilian requirements for tobacco and smoking supplies at 85 per cent of 1939 consumption. A footnote stated:

"The minimum requirements for tobacco products and [nonalcoholic] beverages from the standpoint of physical necessity or the maintenance of health is zero. However, experience has indicated that substantial quantities of these products should be made available to the civilian population for the maintenance of morale.

"Requirements for tobacco are set at 85 per cent of consumption in 1939. This quantity is considerably lower than the consumption in 1941 and 1942. It is believed that the reduction can be made successfully thru prohibition of use to young people and rationing of supplies to adults."

R. O. T. C. CADETS ARE GUESTS OF COL. M'CORMICK

Officers Also Attend Air Theater Program.

Six hundred R. O. T. C. students who were awarded Chicago Tribune medals for outstanding records in military work were guests last night of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publish of THE TRIBUNE, at the Chicago Theater of the Air program broadcast over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

High army and navy officers also were present. They included Rear Adm. A. C. Read, chief of the naval air technical training command; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Sneed of the army air forces technical command; Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, adjutant general of Illinois and chief of staff of the Illinois reserve militia; Col. John F. Davis, chief of staff, representing Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding general of the 6th service command; Capt. H. L. Kalen, representing Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district; Lt. Col. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago public schools.

Traces Military Tactics.

Col. McCormick traced military tactics thru early American history in a brief address. He told of large military victories scored by early American communities.

Revolutionary war soldiers, he said, were strong family people who had strong family discipline, contrasted with European soldiers who had only army discipline. The military discipline, he said, was less necessary then than it is today.

Pioneers in America, he said, knew much about firearms because guns were part of their daily lives. But as time passed, the pioneer qualities grew less and less, until today the citizen is no longer armed.

Pointing to the career of a distinguished trans-oceanic aviator in the audience, he told the young R. O. T. C. guests three methods of locating the north star to orient direction.

"Red Mill" Presented.

"If this is of any good to you in the glory that is to come to you," he said, "I will feel I have been blessed to be here."

Following the radio program, which featured a presentation of Victor Herbert's "Red Mill," starring Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas, several of the military officers gave brief addresses. Several movies were also shown.

WOLL TO CONFER WITH BIDDLE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, said yesterday before he departed for Washington that he would confer with Atty. Gen. Francis J. Biddle on "30 matters—nothing important." It was reported around the federal building, however, he was making the trip to obtain counsel concerning future investigations of violations of office of price administration regulations.

Several of the matters, he disclosed, related to "technical points" raised by the appeal of Hans Max Haupt, Otto R. Wergin, and Walter O. Froehling, convicted of treason and sentenced to death. Woll declined to discuss the other matters.

Because of numerous conferences he held with OPA officials, with federal bureau of investigation agents sitting in, it was reported that Woll and Biddle were scheduled to debate the appointment of FBI agents to supplant OPA investigators in enforcement cases. It was pointed out that the OPA staff remained in the background recently as Woll and his assistant, Maurice Walsh, conducted the inquiry into the theft of gasoline rationing books from the OPA headquarters, which resulted in the arrest of two policemen.

Globe Girdling Drydock Bill Signed by Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—A measure to provide a globe girdling system of floating drydocks to repair ships of this nation and its allies was signed into law today by President Roosevelt. The measure authorizes 210 million dollars for the work.

F. D. R.'s Negro Valet Joins Navy; Now at Great Lakes

George Clinton Fields, Negro valet to President Roosevelt for the last 10 years, is in training as an apprentice seaman at Great Lakes Naval training station, it was disclosed yesterday by station officials. Fields accompanied the President when he toured the station last September and decided then to join the navy, he said. He enlisted from Washington and arrived at the station last week. His home is in New York.

RETIRED MASON DIES OF FALL.

STREET CAR MAN KILLED BY AUTO; DRIVER ARRESTED

As he stood at the rear of a street car, replacing the trolley wheel on the overhead wire, in front of 4621 Indiana avenue, William J. Bruhn, 51 years old, 2755 Lincoln avenue, the conductor, was struck and fatally injured yesterday by an automobile. He died in Chicago hospital. The automobile was driven by William Wilson, 52, a Negro, 248 East 38th street, who was charged with reckless driving.

Arthur Miller Slaughter, 55 years old, 2524 South Austin boulevard, Cicero, was killed by a hit and run motorist in front of 5811 Cermak road.

Henry Beckler, 12 years old, 10456 Indiana avenue, was killed when he was struck by a Chicago Surface lines bus at Lafayette avenue and East 103d street, after he dropped from a truck on which he had been riding. The bus driver, Paul Payne, was not held.

Robert Carroll, 5 years old, 4024 Lexington street was fatally injured when he was struck by a truck in front of 732 South Pulaski road. He died in the Garfield Park hospital. The driver of the truck was John Hedes, 17, of 423 North Leamington avenue.

Four persons were injured, none seriously, and 50 passengers of a South Suburban Safeways bus were shaken up when the bus and an automobile collided at 81st street and South Park way yesterday. Glen Garvin, 30, a student at the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, driver of the car, received minor injuries. He was charged with reckless driving, and released on $125 bond. Eraldo Luzl, 24, 15407 South Ashland avenue, driver of the bus, escaped injury.

Up to 3 p. m. yesterday 75 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 63 were killed in Chicago, where 1,855 were injured in traffic accidents.

GIRL AWARDED $10,000 DAMAGES.

A Lake county Circuit court jury yesterday awarded Lena Santello, 15 years old, of Highwood, $10,000 damages against the Skokie Valley Laundry and Dry Cleaning company of Highwood, for burns she suffered while operating a pressing machine in the laundry.

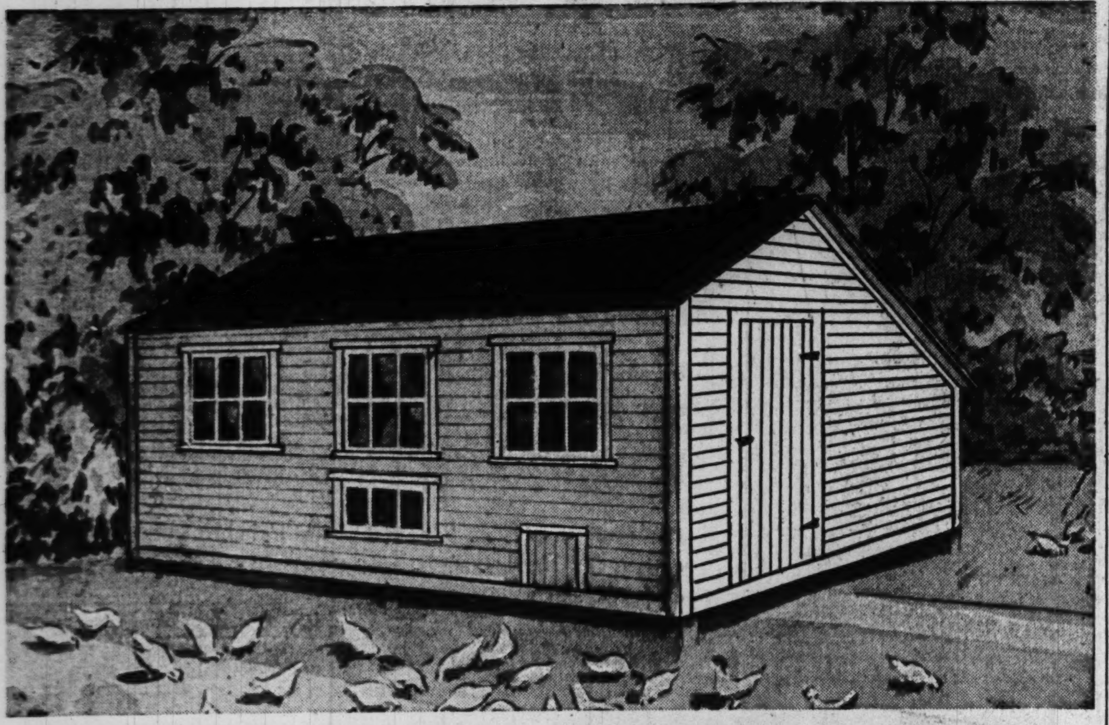
HINES PREFAB PORTABLE CHICKEN HOUSES



PREFABRICATED DESIGN ENDORSED BY A FAMOUS BREEDER AS IDEAL FOR CHICAGO TERRITORY

In response to the many requests for information on chicken houses, and the wide interest in chicken raising, Hines has enlisted the aid of Mr. Raymond T. Smith of Golf, Illinois—one of the nation's most noted authorities on poultry husbandry. Poultry breeding is more than a business with Mr. Smith, and through this lifetime hobby he has won international fame with his Superfine White Plymouth Rocks—consistent winners at leading poultry shows.

The poultry house, in the illustration above, is a design endorsed and used by Mr. Smith, and it incorporates not only the results of his wide experience but also the studies of several leading agricultural authorities. It provides the best protection for poultry both summer and winter, and is correctly designed to take care of the all important ventilation problem effectively and inexpensively.

LOW IN FIRST COST—LOW IN UPKEEP

This chicken house is constructed of quality materials by reliable, independent contractors at a price which is consistent with its use. It is devoid of fancy frills, and is stream-lined to conserve materials and labor needed in the war effort, so that those who want to increase the nation's meat and egg supply may do so at a minimum of expense and a maximum of satisfaction. With this house you can raise chickens with little work, as it is easy to keep clean and is constructed to exclude vermin.

You should allow 4 square feet of floor space for every hen, and Hines has arranged for several sizes to take care of small and medium sized flocks of chickens. The house can be constructed on your own property, or you can purchase the house in prefabricated sections so that you may put the house together yourself. Favorable financing is available too with up to three years to pay on easy monthly terms. For further information on sizes, specifications and cost, see your nearest Hines yard.

Proudly we hail-

It is with pride that we, the employees of the Illinois Gear & Machine Company, hail the Army-Navy "E" flag flying from the flag staff over the plant.

Joyous, with the implications this award brings, we are humble; knowing that our efforts are but little compared to those of the men in the fighting forces on the high seas, in the trenches and in the air.

Too, we recognize that this award carries the implied challenge that we redouble our production efforts in order to secure the bi-annual star awarded for continued proficiency in the production of war materiel. This we are pledged to do.

Illinois gears have gone to war. Let us hope that soon they will be available again to peace-time industry.

HOUSEWIVES PUT IN CANNED FOODS BEFORE 'FREEZE'

Ration Book Registration to Start Tuesday.

Chicago housewives participated in a last minute buying rush yesterday in anticipation of last midnight's suspension of sales of all processed foods until March 1. On Tuesday they will start their second rationing registration, going to elementary schools on Tuesday thru Friday between the hours of 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. in alphabestical order as follows:

Tuesday a. m.	A thru B
Tuesday p. m.	C thru E
Wednesday a. m.	F thru H
Wednesday p. m.	I thru L
Thursday a. m.	M thru N
Thursday p. m.	O thru R
Friday a. m.	S
Friday p. m.	T thru Z

Registration in the suburbs will follow the same general pattern, altho the days and hours vary in different localities.

It was estimated that about 9,000 elementary school teachers, 6,000 teachers and students at junior colleges, and many volunteers would be registrars for the approximately 3,500,000 Chicagoans.

Two Classes of Coupons.

Residents of loop hotels, previously registered at the city hall, will go to 228 North La Salle street. The new book will have blue coupons for processed food; red for meat. The latter will not be needed until meat rationing becomes effective at an unannounced date. The blue coupons will be valid for canned and frozen vegetables, soups, juices, tomato catsup and chili sauce March 1.

Yesterday's shoppers, who were bidding farewell to the era of carefree can opener cooking for the duration, also provided an index to the city's eating habits. Grocers in northwest and southwest neighborhoods reported it looked as if their customers were going to take rationing with plenty of catsup on it.

West siders bought all kinds of canned fruits and vegetables. Customers were waiting outside the doors of a big loop grocery every day last week, and yesterday's shoppers concentrated on tomatoes, beans, peas and dried fruits. Peas, corn, and soups, in order, were north side favorites.

OPA Records Heavy Purchases.

Buying was described as part "regular Saturday" shopping as well as storing by one north side storekeeper, who said buying had been at a peak all week.

A serious side to the shopping came when Michael F. Mulcahy, area office of price administration director, announced last night that a large staff of his investigators have been recording hundreds of excessive canned goods purchases since the first of the year. These will be compared with consumer's declarations during registration.

He said, "Our men have gone to all groceries for information on any unusual purchases of canned goods, and where they have found any, they have recorded on affidavits the amounts and names of the purchasers.

"Any one who doesn't make full declaration at registration this week will be violating section 35A of United States criminal code," he continued, "and will be subject to 10 years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000."

Cases already on record include a north shore family that bought 730 cans of soups, 336 cans of fruits, 48 cans of figs, and 112 cans of vegetables since the rationing was announced. A suburban family purchased 936 cans of processed foods on Jan. 7. A south side family has a record of buying 696 cans since Christmas, and an Oak Parker's marketing forays have included 956 cans of fruits, juices, and vegetables. These purchases are not violations, Mulcahy said, but will become so if not declared.

In applying for the new ration books, housewives will be required to file consumer declarations listing all commercially processed canned goods on hand today in excess of five cans per person. Home canned goods and commercial goods under eight ounces do not count. Housewives should not count the maid or the boarders.

Grocers will not go out of business for the freeze period, incidentally. They will sell fresh foods, staples, and packaged foods not affected by the ration order.

MAJ. RUTH STREETER.

HARK TO A MAJOR OF MARINES: WE WANT MORE GIRLS

Don't Get Wrong Idea —She's Ruth Streeter.

Maj. Ruth Cheney Streeter, 47 years old, director of the United States marine corps' women's reserve, arrived yesterday to survey Chicago from a strictly military angle. Her aim is to learn how many Chicagoland women can be recruited for the 36 jobs the women marines have to do.

These jobs are of two general types: Office work at procurement centers and at posts and stations, and ground crew duties for the marine aviation corps.

The mother of two navy ensigns, a soldier, and a daughter in school, Maj. Streeter wears the gold leaves of her rank on straight, broad shoulders and says: "When your children grow up you either have to retire gracefully to the shelf or outrank them!"

Seeks 19,000 Women.

Her blue eyes are earnest and proud, however, as she talks of the 18,000 enlisted women and 1,000 officers authorized for the corps. "Every woman who signs up," she says, "releases one more marine for work that only men can do." She will elaborate on that message to women in a broadcast over the blue network at 2 p. m. today. She will leave tonight for Omaha, Neb.

Maj. Streeter comes to the marine corps after years of health and welfare work. Army air men know her as the joint donor, with her mother, of the "Cheney Award" for flyers which commemorates her brother, Lt. William H. Cheney, who was killed in an aerial collision in World War I. Maj. Streeter herself learned to fly in 1940, holds a commercial pilot's license and has more than 300 hours in the air.

Chicago Office Now Open.

The women's reserve corps of the marines, created only this month, opened a Chicago office in room 2050 Board of Trade building last Monday. Hours are 8:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. every week day. Enlisted women must be 20 to 36 years old; officers, 20 to 50.. The enlisted women will receive preliminary training at Hunter college, New York, and officers at Smith and Mount Holyoke. Two to four months of specialists' training at navy or marine schools will follow.

The women marines wear uniforms of forestry green. There are two smart slash pockets and two welt pockets in the single breasted jacket. The cap has a rounded peak and is a slightly modified officers' style with a scarlet cord across the front. The double breasted overcoat is worn with a scarlet scarf [necktie]. Plain pumps with medium heels are regulation footwear. What women marines wear under their uniforms, however, is strictly their own business. Regulations stop at the top layer.

WOMAN SWALLOWS POISON.

Mrs. Maxine Bejellquist, 24 years old, 10039 South Troy street, was recovering yesterday in Little Company of Mary hospital from the effects of poisoning. Police said she told them she swallowed poison while despondent after a family quarrel.

Decalogue Society Holds Annual Patriotic Dinner

The Decalogue Society of Lawyers held its eighth annual patriotic dinner last night in the Palmer House. Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], the principal speaker, devoted most of his speech to an attack on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Morris K. Levinson was the chairman of the meeting. Mrs. Edward Chayes dedicated a war service flag.

WHERE THE INFLATION COMES FROM.

The causes of the inflation which we are experiencing fall into two groups: pre-war causes, war causes.

Altho Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate for office in 1932 viewed government deficits with the greatest alarm, and altho in June, 1933, he lectured governments of the world represented at the London economic conference on the necessity for "balanced budgets and living within their means," he soon adopted deficits purposefully. Over the radio he invited people to send in suggestions for spending money. Four years later Secretary Morgenthau, speaking in New York, stated that "we deliberately used an unbalanced budget during the past four years." He fixed the deficits down to June 30, 1937, at 14 billions of dollars. The inflation of prices was a determined peace time policy of Mr. Roosevelt. He called it reflation.

The 14 billion dollars of reflationary money remained in circulation because never after Mr. Morgenthau spoke was any reduction made. The reflation continued after 1937, and by the time that the rearmament program was launched in June, 1940, the 14 billion dollar deficit had been increased to 21 billions.

The government also inflated because of what it did to gold. In early 1933 the gold in the country amounted to 4 billion dollars. By June, 1940, this had been increased to 20 billions. The increase partly resulted from increasing the price of gold from $20 to $35 an ounce, the government taking the profit on the advance by requiring all gold to be turned in to the government at $20. Our gold stock also increased rapidly because of the incentive the higher price gave to gold mining all over the world.

The peace time inflated currency was with us when this war broke out.

We have inflation due to the war causes. So far the debt has been increased from 43 billions to 113 billions since preparations for war started the middle of 1940. Much of this 70 billion increase was unavoidable, but some was not. Sen. Byrd and his committee on reduction of nonessential expenditures have repeatedly pointed out that two billion dollars can be eliminated from the budget without impeding the war effort. If superfluous expenditures had been eliminated, borrowings would have been six billions less than they were in the last three years. Every effort to cut out the excess has been resisted by the President. If he is successful in continuing for another couple of years the expenditures which have been denounced in congress as wasteful, the total wasted in this way will amount to 10 billion dollars. That would pay for all the airplanes we will produce this year.

Even one as close to the President as Secretary Morgenthau has declared that peace time activities of the federal government ought to be severely curtailed. But the secretary of the treasury's own activities are not above criticism. For Marriner C. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, appearing before a senate committee Wednesday, declared that "a very bad job of war financing is being done," because too much of the funds is being borrowed from the banks, the most inflationary of all methods of borrowing. And every one except Economic Stabilization Director Byrnes recognizes the inflationary effects of the order to work 48 hours a week, with penalty rates for overtime.

Sixteen billion dollars of World war inflation and six billions introduced under President Hoover were already outstanding when Mr. Roosevelt took office. He promptly doubled the whole thing, calling it reflation. Present plans call for spending as much every three months as was spent last time in the whole war. There must be no stinting in necessary war spending, but pre-war fads must not be tolerated. Economy in nonessentials, forbearance in pushing social objectives now, and more skillful management of the war financing will keep the inflation within limits.

OFFICE OF PROPAGANDA AND OBFUSCATION.

Hardly had the office of war information announced that it was taking over all informational services of the department of agriculture than farm groups registered their distrust of this mushrooming government propaganda agency. Agricultural statistics and market reports are of the utmost importance, and it was clear that no one was prepared to accept on credit what the OWI might choose to hand out, or had confidence that it would not withhold vital information.

Spokesmen for the Pure Milk association, the Illinois Agriculture association, and the American Farm Bureau federation, as well as the Board of Trade, were all of one mind on the dangers inherent in giving a politically controled and politically motivated agency complete power over all information affecting an important part of our economy. They knew the OWI's record. It is not one that inspires confidence.

This agency, which now exercises control over all information relating to 25 offices and departments of government, has its prototype in Dr. Goebbels' ministry of propaganda and national enlightenment. The propaganda has been self-evident; the enlightenment might be such for intelligences of the standards of the Kallikaks. The OWI has stealthily extended its province over more and more of the information that normally makes it possible for the people to understand and to judge the policies and activities of their government, and with its latest grab it has hinted at a plan which, if permitted to go unchallenged, would be ominous in the extreme to the freedom of the press.

That plan is to seek to force enterprising reporters, who obtain information beyond that which the OWI chooses to give them in its canned releases, to submit their stories to the agency. The test, in the words of an OWI functionary, is that any story must "aid the war effort"—a standard that permits an unlimited interpretation of where the sphere of the war starts or stops, and what would aid or hinder it.

The plain intention of this proposition would be to kill or censor any news that proved politically embarrassing. It is unnecessary to say that restrictions such as those evidently contemplated would constitute a restraint prior to publication and, by controling news at the source, would establish a censorship of the most vicious kind. Censorship is not the function of the OWI but of the office of censorship, and even its exercise of this function is limited strictly to information directly related to the war and has no effect upon purely domestic news.

Newspapers and magazines must defend themselves with the utmost vigilance and resolution against this newest unconstitutional threat to their freedom. The best defense will be to refuse to handle any OWI handout.

WHAT AMERICA MIGHT DO FOR GREAT BRITAIN.

Below is published an editorial from THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 28, 1880. It may be interesting to the present day reader of THE TRIBUNE as indicating that we did not run into anything particularly new in 1916-'17 or in 1939-'41. The belief that America ought to be doing something it wasn't doing and was charged with a divine responsibility to pick up burdens within the jurisdiction of other people wasn't born yesterday. Possibly the Statue of Liberty was a misconception of the mandatory rôle of the United States, or at least a symbol of only a part of it. It might have been the statue of a copper on a world beat.

In a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE we reprinted an article from the London Spectator setting forth as an English grievance the extraordinary statement that the United States, tho exceedingly powerful and rich, "is doing nothing for the world." In the course of this article the Spectator said:

"The economic condition of the Union is marvelous, and a just source of pride to its people, but Americans must not forget that much of their brimming prosperity is purchased at a heavy moral price. They do less for the world involving self-sacrifice, deliberately do less, than any great people in it, unless it be the Germans, who may fairly plead that their gigantic armaments, if they produce unrest, still save Europe from the ambition alike of Gaul and Slav. The American Union is rich beyond compare, first, because it inherited the richest estate in the world, and secondly, because it spends so little of the national fortune on either army or navy, because it refuses to maintain order in any Asiatic dependency, because it looks on the struggles of the old world with the half amused glance of an indifferent spectator. It has the strongest, the freest, and the most prosperous people within its borders; but no nation in bonds looks upward to the great republic for aid, no struggling people turns to her fleet with longing, no perishing race so much as hopes that the western rifle will drive away the oppressor. One American shell would liberate the Armenians, but it will not be fired. The world may die of despair for all the Americans care. The most generous individually of races will collectively strike no blow for foreign freedom, send no fleet, issue even no command. We know of no great service she has done to mankind, except in offering the distressed a home—and that repays her. Yet, with her necessary disinterestedness, and her magnificent resources, and her detached policy, the Union might often be the best of arbiters, might arrest a war, and hurry on a work of mercy to mankind like the erasure of the sultanate. She, however, does nothing, even on her own continent, where state after state is rotting down or falling back from civilization, unaided, unguided, and uncontroled by the mighty people who claim to be distinctively "the Americans," and who endlessly accumulate the strength they use politically only for themselves. The Union does not even insist on order in Mexico, and allows wars to go on in the southern continent which she could stop with a word. It will not, we believe, always be so. We do not conceive it possible for so great a state to remain isolated, as if in another planet; but up to today America has sought and gained her own happiness by indifference to that of the inhabitants of the remainder of the world."

In other words, because the United States is rich and powerful the Spectator would have it pause in its great work of feeding, sheltering, and educating the refugee oppressed of all nations, and start out, like another Don Quixote, upon a crusade for the settlement of political questions at issue between nations, to pull down this people and build up that, to get into all sorts of entangling alliances, and to reform everything that needs it. And so confident is the Spectator of our abilities in this direction that it believes one shell from an American gun would liberate the oppressed Armenian Christians from the brutal Turk, secure Greece her coveted territory, hurl the Sick Man of Europe from his tottering throne, and pull Chile and Peru apart, thereby saving the value of their bonds which are held in England.

Well, suppose we acted on the Spectator's suggestion and became the chief intimidating, intermeddling power in the world; suppose that by fleets and armies we forced ourselves upon the European powers, entered into alliances with and against them, engaged in foreign wars of liberation upon the great principle of philanthropy! How would the Spectator relish it if the first power we took in hand to reform were Great Britain herself. For the first impulse of Americans would be to compel her to cease the persecution of weaker peoples. Our program would probably be something like this: [1] We should say to Great Britain, "Cease your starvation and robbery of the Irish. Give them a chance to live. Cease compelling us to support the victims of your infamous feudal land laws." [2] Stop forcing opium on China, the most brutalizing and debasing of all traffic. [3] We should next drive Great Britain off from American soil and American waters, liberate the Canadas, and hoist the Stars and Stripes upon the dominion territory, regarding England as an alien who has no business over here. [4 We should probably expel her from the West Indies and set up independent governments there under our protection. [5] We should seize the Bermudas in retaliation for her having made them the base for blockade runners, supplying the rebels with aid and comfort during the War of the Rebellion. [6] Deeming the English navy too strong for international safety and comfort, we should probably enter into an alliance with France and Germany to cut it down to reasonable limits. [7] Having done these things, we should then compel her to do her Christian duty by India, and instantly carry out the promises she made to Greece four years ago, and then commence a compulsory missionary work in England to reform her feudal land laws and redress the grievances of her people at home. And after the British government had had a sufficient taste of this kind of intermeddling reform, how long would it be before she would think it best for us to stick to our "Washington policy" of "avoiding entangling alliances" with other nations and minding our own business? There is no danger that the United States will ever do otherwise, but we merely throw out these hints to show England what our first great works of international reform would probably be. The Americans are doing well now by minding their own business, and in the future as in the past they are likely to stick to it.

ABOARD A NEW BATTLESHIP

BY HAMILTON FARON.

ABOARD A NEW U. S. BATTLESHIP AT SEA, [Delayed]—(AP).—Shorn of her paint and polish, rusted and rugged, one of the mightiest of United States battleships pushed thru the North Atlantic today in battle practice prior to joining the fleet.

"She's a beauty and she's tough," agreed officers and men aboard the heavily armed battlewagon. Slowly and steadily she nosed thru the heavy seas, keeping her speed down to only a fraction of what she could accomplish.

"We have to match our speed to those fellows," said the executive officer, pointing to accompanying destroyers. Just what speed this battleship could attain under orders for "full speed ahead" cannot be disclosed.

But her armament is the big point of pride among the officers and men. Literally, guns jut out from every available foot of space on her decks. Nine 16 inch guns form the main battery, capable of throwing shells far beyond the horizon. For secondary offense and anti-aircraft work there are 10 turrets mounting 2 five inch guns each.

Above, beside, beneath those heavy guns are scores of others—the deadly 40 mm. Bofors, high velocity rapid fire anti-aircraft guns, and machine guns of all types. Mechanical devices simplify firing of all but the machine guns.

• • •

Their efficacy was shown today when the big battlewagon made firing runs on a comparatively tiny target hardly visible on the horizon. After the fire the target was towed close. Huge holes had been torn by shells which passed thru its 40 foot length.

Then again the battle practice raged in inky blackness. Star shells whistled out to light the target area. Searchlights probed the darkness, but met a blank wall of mist miles away. Only once did they find a rift permitting a brief glimpse of the target thru binoculars.

The concussion thruout the firing period lifted men from their feet and hurled them to the deck. Newspaper correspondents experienced the full force of the blast from 16 inchers about 60 feet away. They lurched against the bridge rail or against the bulkheads.

Spectacular as the day firing had been, however, it was the night runs on the target that provided sheer beauty. Viewed from a director station—a control point for direction and fire of five inchers—it appeared to be a continuous panorama of flames and rockets.

The director itself was a major interest. There nearly a dozen men operate instruments which locate targets and keep the guns trained upon them. There, too, are the searchlights handled by remote control.

• • •

Two catapults to send out aerial spotters also are aboard the big craft, one of the new battleships of 35,000 tons displacement. Previous ships of the class are the North Carolina, Alabama, Washington, Massachusetts, South Dakota, and Indiana. Statistics for the class list a water line length of 680 feet, beam of 108 feet, and rated horse power of 115,000.

Just when this battleship will join the fleet is not definite. But she's been a fast ship from the beginning. In a matter of months after she was launched she was put into commission—compared with the year or so ordinarily required.

Deep within the ship four massive shafts from as many engines drive the four big propellers. Each engine alone could keep her under way. Fuel oil provides power below all decks and along the lower bulkheads she is lined with oil tanks.

The crew itself is astonishing. Originally the battleship was designed for 1,500 men. Now she has aboard 2,000 officers and men. Most of the crew consists of youngsters in years. But many are veterans, have fought in the Pacific, know the battle zones of the Atlantic.

• • •

A casting of accounts of the supply office showed consumption of seven tons of food a day on this battlewagon. Topping the list of foodstuffs were 17,000 pounds of beef consumed by the crew in a recent month.

Coffee? As much as any man wants and any time he wants it. To fill that order 5,385 pounds were used in the one month. Supplemental beverages accounted for 60 pounds of tea and 275 gallons of cocoa.

Sweetening for the coffee—and for pies, cakes, cereals—required 13,740 pounds of sugar. In addition sweet craving seamen bought 71,868 candy bars in a single month.

Other major items in the supply purchases are bacon, 2,054 pounds; ham, 2,052 pounds; pork, 4,500 pounds; chicken, 2,600 pounds; veal, 5,000 pounds; turkey, 3,900 pounds; milk, 1,331 gallons fresh, 1,810 pounds powdered, and 8,241 pounds evaporated; potatoes, 36,881 pounds; turnips, carrots, other fresh vegetables, 35,085 pounds.

Those foodstuffs with fruit and fruit juices and green vegetables, when available, go into three full meals a day for every man aboard. In addition men standing night watches receive extra lunches of sandwiches and coffee at their posts.

It costs about $1,000 a day to feed the men of this battleship.

THE DEBT LIMIT.

[New York Times.]

In 1941 congress raised the legal public debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000. In 1942 it raised it again to $125,000,000,000. Now the treasury has asked congress to raise it to $210,000,000,000. This is one inevitable consequence of the war which we are fighting to preserve our freedom.

The only purpose in having a statutory debt limit is to act as a warning signal. It is the financial equivalent of a red light ahead. If we are going to keep moving the danger signal itself, however, every time we get close to it, what is the point in retaining it at all?

Probably the best answer is that a statutory debt limit at least serves to remind us that the tremendous growth of our national debt presents a grave problem. It is not a problem that is within our control today except to a very moderate extent. It is, and must remain, subordinate to the problem of national survival. When a man's house is on fire he cannot stop to worry about the mortgage. But because the national debt is today necessarily a subordinate problem, it does not follow, as a few confused commentators seem to think, that it has ceased to be a serious problem. It is, on the contrary, a problem of growing gravity, and all the expensive post-war planning schemes that are now being so facilely discussed will have to take it into account.

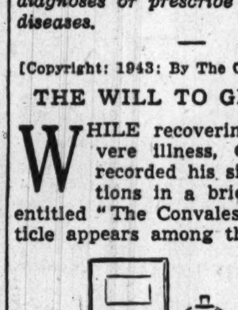
THE WILL TO GET WELL.

WHILE recovering from a severe illness, Charles Lamb recorded his sickbed meditations in a brief dissertation entitled "The Convalescent." The article appears among the "Essays of Elia." Probably no more vivid picture of restlessness, born of doubts and discomforts, has been penned.



He relates that his mind was dominated by the single thought, "Will I get well?" Everything was crowded out of life except himself. He was lord of the household, the acme of selfishness. He marveled at his lack of concern for others. The plight of a friend who was confronted with ruin interested him not at all. His whole nature, as he put it, was "wrapped in the callous hide of suffering."

He indulged in unlimited self-pity, with each thought turning inward. He tolerated his nurse because he could fire at her his feverish and irascible complaints. The daily visits of his physician brought little cheer because he spent most of his time wondering what uneasy couch the good man would next stand beside. A glow of satisfaction, however, came with the inquiries of friends. He was flattered. Furthermore, he acknowledged subtle satisfaction in playing the rôle of despot.

To learn the reaction of nurses, I persuaded a skilled member of the profession to give me her frank impressions. A woman of considerable education and culture, she had adopted the vocation not alone because it offered a livelihood but as a means of accomplishment. Her conclusions may be condensed as follows:

"Yes, there are odd ones among the ill, but I am constantly impressed with the bravery and philosophy exhibited by many persons. Only last week I completed a case that demonstrated almost every worthy attribute. A woman of 43 had undergone a hazardous surgical procedure. I was with her a week before she made the trip to the operating room. She went with a smile and came back with almost the same attitude. Somehow or other I felt that she was buoying up my spirits whereas I should have been supporting her.

"Necessary aftercare involved the administration of various solutions directly into a vein. All these procedures were accepted with wholehearted coöperation. Then, too, she was so appreciative. I can say frankly that, altho she had one of the best surgeons in the world, recovery would have been in doubt had she surrendered to mental qualms and fears to the exclusion of hope for the return of health."

To my query, "Is this a typical example?" she replied, "I have recently reviewed my last one hundred charges. Only two gave me any real trouble. Ninety per cent could be compared faithfully to this courageous woman who came thru with flying colors. I am sure that, in some instances, if relatives and friends were as well poised as the invalids, our difficulties would be lessened considerably."

No, we cannot overlook the emotional side of recovery. Every one about the patient will need to reflect understanding, interest, and confidence.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 8, part 2.

1. A cold chisel is primarily intended for cutting which of these? Wood Concrete Metal Coal.
2. Which one of these games is never played on ice? Hockey Curling Shinny Cricket.
3. Which of these Biblical characters lost his life because he got a haircut? David Saul Samson Jonathan.
4. Which of these Biblical characters lost his life because he didn't get a haircut? Absalom Joab Asahel Haman.
5. Which one of these Biblical characters lost his life because he didn't get a shave? Stephen Amasa Ahab Naboth.
6. You are to answer the questions below with the appropriate abbreviations of states. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.
    [a] Which state is a father? ....
    [b] Which state is a doctor? ....
    [c] Which state is sick? ....

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

BURYING SOME WISHFUL THOUGHTS.

Eldora, Ia., Feb. 8.—The rather wishful thinking now prevalent is leaving some opinions unchallenged which, in the long run, will not be consistent with the maintenance of our self-respect as a people.

One such opinion is that at the end of World War I. we turned our back on the world and by so doing caused World War II. If we are to attain any permanent gains in the present post-war period it cannot be based on any such approach. The atmosphere must be cleared at least to the extent of keeping the record straight.

Can any one maintain that the assassination of an Austrian prince at Sarajevo in any way concerned the United States? That such an incident should throw an entire continent into war cannot be disassociated by one jot or tittle from an age old attitude and strife unique to that continent itself. That attitude and strife are as foreign to us as is the very fact of our being a nation. Indeed we came into being on this continent largely in protest to that very attitude and strife.

The only justification for our being in World War I. was that the development of that war invaded our rights. Certainly there was no reason at the end of that war for us to become a part of that type of life from which we had fled. The peace which was satisfactory to the European powers was based on the same old attitudes and not on what Woodrow Wilson wanted. It was no time for us to become a part of European politics until those powers would be really ready to bury the hatchet. This they were not ready to do.

One question can be asked which really clarifies the entire picture. If we had joined the proposed league would that have prevented the withdrawal therefrom by Italy, Japan, and Germany? When one now sees the real objectives of these nations the answer is inescapable. The rape of Ethiopia was a part of Italian policy, the pillaging of Poland and the Czechs was integrated in Germanic aims, and the massacre of Manchuria was the main object of Japan's militarists. These constitute the proximate cause of this war.

But we did not turn our back on the world We initiated or joined every anti-war and peace proposal. Witness the reduction of armament conference, the renunciation of war treaty, the world court, and all of the other steps of the past 25 years. The Dawes commission stabilized the financial structure of Germany; the Smith commission did the same for Austria; our investors loaned funds to farmers of Germany for their rehabilitation. We took the responsibility to feed and clothe a Europe starving and naked. In other words, we tried to do everything we could to placate a family quarrel without marrying into the family. To countenance an opinion that such conduct can be used as an argument to brand us as a cause of the present war is to ignore the facts and can serve no useful purpose in the solution of the present problem.

When we get to the peace table and the smoke has cleared away a few simple principles will still be present. One of them is, that when we deal with a criminal, we deal directly by placing him in a position where he cannot repeat or continue his offense. We do not try to interfere with the daily life of the rest of the community. Criminal nations must be similarly dealt with, but that does not empower the victors to allocate the rest of the world or dictate their habits of life. This principle or some variation of it is the foundation upon which we must build. A close adherence to this fundamental will carry us further than to become involved in remaking the world.

DEAN W. PEISEN.

THE CARBONDALE UNIVERSITY.

Carbondale, Ill., Feb. 15.—While your editorial in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE entitled "University in Egypt" is unusually moderate in tone, it does nevertheless betray the fundamental ignorance of the problems of southern Illinois that usually accompanies any upstate discussion of this section of the state. To answer three of the points which were particularly stressed in this editorial, let me point out that almost one-fourth of our student body [more than 400] were commuting daily up till the advent of rationing, and a not inconsiderable number still do so.

You ignore the fact that the Chicago area has two full fledged universities as well as parts of another [the University of Illinois medical school], plus dozens of technical and professional schools, junior colleges, and private four year institutions—all within a very short radius—not to mention nearby Notre Dame and Purdue. Ours is the only accredited four year college in this entire section. Do you still contend that the Chicago area has better claim to a state university than southern Illinois? Of course we'd be glad to have a finely endowed private university. Failing that we're hoping the state will recognize our rightful need.

You state that it takes years to build an adequate staff and facilities for a university. Granted! And that is why we want to get started now, when the initial stages will cost the state practically nothing. What university ever got under way as a "first rater," anyway? Harvard? The University of Chicago? Certainly not the University of Illinois, in spite of its present day greatness. We at least have a better start than most!

LAKE ERIE IS NOW TOMATO BOUILLON.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 6 carried an item reporting the lend-lease administration as dumping 3,000 gallons of tomato puree, presumably defective, or spoiled, into the waters of Lake Erie. The item was brief and seemed to recognize only the waste of the tomato puree. However, another and very important principle is involved; namely, the thoughtless, wholly unnecessary, and wholly unjustifiable pollution of Lake Erie resulting from this act.

When a governmental agency shows no more appreciation for elemental decency, and by its own voluntary act contributes to the already serious pollution of public waters there is little wonder that we have difficulty with industries and municipalities in inducing them to give proper treatment to their wastes before their effluent is discharged into public waters.

THE HOPKINS' BOARD.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—I understand that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins board and room at the White House and I am wondering about the amount which they will report for income taxes.

Mr. Hopkins is paid by the government and I do not classify him as a domestic servant whose keep must be reported by his employer. A spokesman for the internal revenue department has pointed out that the return must be based on the value of the quarters. The minimum which the government would consider reasonable is a dollar a day. What the board and room are worth would have to be determined according to what the employé would expect to pay for similar accommodations in the same neighborhood.

It may be argued that Mr. Hopkins is on duty 24 hours a day, and that the value of his board and lodging is not taxable. I do not think that this exemption applies to Mrs. Hopkins. This will be a difficult problem for the experts.

GLAMOR GIRLS AT WAR.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—It amuses me to witness the drive being instituted to increase the enrollment of WAACs and WAVES by telling how "romance and glamor" have drifted into the lives of WAVES. The hope of gaining these attributes certainly prompts 90 per cent of the girls to enlist in either of these services.

Will some one tell me why it is necessary for a girl to go thru a special training program, and to be outfitted with special uniforms styled by Mainbocher at great expense to the country, when this same work could be done by qualified girls who have passed a civil service test and who are living near bases, camps, and posts, and who could board at home and wear civilian clothes at a much smaller expense to the government?

Thousands of boys stationed in this country for as much as two years are anxious to get into the thick of things and get this war over. Why should it be necessary, then, to send WAACs to North Africa ahead of them? IMAY B. WRONG.

THIEVES IN VICTORY GARDENS.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—We are urged to make Victory gardens, but after our hard work we find our gardens are looted and tramped over. Last year, even in the daytime, about 10 boys came into our garden thru the rear gate and helped themselves to everything. When caught in the act of stealing they were nasty in their expressions. Their parents do not scold them for stealing this produce. What shall we do about it?

READ YOUR LEASE.

Chicago, Feb. 13. [Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it possible to break the lease on a flat located in a building which is overrun with rats? The condition has been reported to the agent, and the latter has employed exterminators three times in two years. However, this has not been sufficient to rid the building of vermin. I must be certain of a release before I move; therefore I shall appreciate knowing whether I may move.

M. C.

Landlords are under no general obligation to clean or repair, or to make alterations, or to exterminate vermin. If the tenant desires such service, he should see that appropriate wording is in the lease. A refusal to furnish previous services might be treated as a rent increase under the recent ceiling regulations.

"In the absence of fraud or concealment by the lessor of the condition of the property at the date of the lease, there is no implied warranty that the premises are tenantable or even reasonably suitable for occupation, and the rule of caveat emptor applies. The exclusion of an implied covenant as to the condition of the premises is especially applicable when the lessee inspects them before executing the lease, or where the true condition of the rented premises can be readily observed; where the lessor conceals defects in the premises which the lessee could not have discovered by reason able diligence, it constitutes fraud; and where the lessee is compelled to remove from the premises by reason of such defects, he can recover from the lessor the rent paid in advance and the loss occasioned by such removal." FIND THOUSANDS IN U.S. JOBS COULD BE SENT TO WAR

F. D. R.'s Own Probers Ask Weeding Out.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—A special committee named by President Roosevelt reported today that thousands of able bodied men at government desks can be released to the army and navy if deferments are strictly limited to holders of essential jobs and if needless and overlapping positions are eliminated.

The committee, composed of Paul Bellamy, editor of the Cleveland [O.] Plain Dealer, chairman; Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Ordway Tead, member of the New York City board of higher education, was appointed last Dec. 15 to formulate a policy on draft deferment of federal employés.

President Roosevelt probably will issue an order soon embodying the report's main features.

Would Eye Need for Work.

The committee concluded that work clearly essential to the war or necessary to maintaining indispensable civilian government services should be the best test for deferment.

The group reported that the federal service "is not a draft evaders' paradise" as has been charged, and recommended that each federal agency set up a committee to determine deferment requests for a few key positions. These requests would receive periodic review by a group named by the war man power chairman.

The committee said that federal departments have been slow to plan for substituting women and others for draft age employés and added that a "rigorous application" of the new procedure "will result in the release of additional thousands" of workers to the fighting forces, without specifying the exact number. It added:

"If this is further accompanied by a resolute effort by the agencies themselves to prevent overlapping of functions and to suspend those activities unnecessary to the war effort, additions to the uniformed services will be greater still."

Hold Deferments Few.

The committee said that less than 2 per cent of government employés have been deferred on occupational grounds, while 26 per cent of draft age employés have entered the army or navy.

The committee reported a "tremendous turnover" in federal personnel, adding that 2 million persons were hired last year in order to increase the staff by 1 million. The committee said this turnover "is a serious reflection upon the adequacy of the personnel and management policy of the federal government."

The investigators proposed that a "certificate of honorable deferment for essential war employment" be issued workers in private and public employment who are deferred on an employer's request.

Chief Stewardess

LUCILLE SCHROEDER.

Miss Lucille Schroeder, a veteran of five years of flying, yesterday was named chief stewardess for the eastern division of United Air Lines. Miss Schroeder has flown a million miles over the Chicago-New York City and Chicago-Denver section of the air lines' route since 1938. She is a graduate of the nursing school of American hospital. She succeeds Miss Bernice Caldwell, who resigned to be married.

RATION PERMIT RULE LIFTED FOR TIRE RECAPPING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—A rationing certificate no longer is required to have passenger car and light truck tires recapped with reclaimed rubber.

The action, approved by Rubber Director William M. Jeffers, is designed to reduce the demand for replacement tires. Recapping requires approximately half as much reclaimed rubber as a new "war tire." Recapping of large commercial vehicle tires still is governed by rationing restrictions.

The order makes no change in the rationing of replacement tires, including used and recapped casings.

USE OF NEUTRALS TO FEED EUROPE URGED BY HOOVER

Success of Greek Relief Program Described.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Herbert Hoover today urged authorizing neutral governments to spread food relief among German occupied democracies on the same basis as it is distributed in Greece.

Amount Termed Inadequate.

Hoover said food had been moving thru the axis blockade to Greece for more than nine months and was distributed under supervision of the neutral governments.

"The amount is inadequate but it is saving thousands of Greek lives," he said. "Our government now certifies that the operation is successful and that the Germans receive no advantage from it.

"The Swedes have idle ships that they will not risk in belligerent service. They are, however, ready to charter them for use in humanitarian service.

"Thus the question of depleting allied shipping does not arise. There is ample food in South America which cannot be transported by the allies and therefore there need be no deprival of food to the allies, including the United States."

Most Are Able to Pay.

Hoover said most of the occupied democracies could pay for the food.

"It is not, therefore, a drain upon the American taxpayer," he said.

"This service is long overdue. Every report is an appeal to not only the front of human decency, but it is an appeal to the self-interest of the united nations.

"The rations these people receive are pitiful. Starvation is rife. With their vitality lowered, disease is claiming the children and the weak in thousands. The modern pestilence which first comes with famine is tuberculosis.

Immediate Action Held Imperative.

"Reports show whole districts in which 35 per cent of the children react to tuberculosis tests and in some districts as high as 60 per cent. If the child life of these democracies is to be saved, it must be saved now.

"It is a hollow promise that these people will receive food after the war is over. It means little to a mother who sets her table only to watch her children wilt.

"If we want the foundation of free men to survive in Europe, it must survive in these democracies. And it will not survive in bitter, frustrated, physically distorted, or dead children."

YOU CAN'T RATION
A CHILD ON WEAR OR GROWTH

. . but you can buy quality shoes to care for both!

We've been in the children's shoe business for a long time, selling good shoes and fitting them right. It's the kind of experience that counts for a lot these days. You can be sure of shoes that are large enough to last for the normal growth period, but not so large that they'll injure the foot. And they're of a quality that will make one or two re-solings worth while. You can't ration a child on wear or growth, but you can ease the situation by buying wisely! P. S.—Be sure to bring your ration book! Young People's Shoes—Fourth Floor. Also in Evanston, Oak Park, Lake Forest

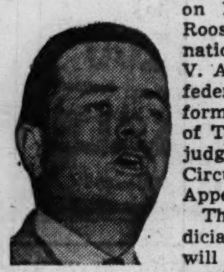
ANOTHER 'FLYNN CASE' IN SENATE; NOW ITS ALLRED

Nomination as Judge Faces Sharp Contest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Battle lines are being drawn in the senate on President Roosevelt's nomination of James V. Allred, former federal judge and former governor of Texas, to be a judge of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.



James V. Allred.

The senate judiciary committee will consider the nomination during the week. It is widely expected that the nomination will be the center of a controversy which may surpass in intensity the fight over the White House nomination of Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn as minister to Australia and ambassador at large in the southwest Pacific.

Chairman Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.] of the senate judiciary committee disclosed he has received a formal protest from the Louisiana Bar association against the Allred nomination. Van Nuys said the nomination was protested in a telegram from Lexoux R. Provosty, president of the association.

Senators who led the fight against Flynn, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, and forced withdrawal of his name, are preparing to contest Allred's nomination to the last ditch in defense of the American judiciary system.

Quit Bench to Aid Purge.

Opposition to the Allred appointment is based on the ground that it is clearly a White House payment of a political favor. Allred resigned from the federal District court in Texas, to which he was appointed because of his support of the New Deal as governor of Texas, to play a prominent part in the attempted purge of Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel, pre-Pearl Harbor noninterventionist.

Running against O'Daniel for senator, he was decisively defeated by the voters. Last week Mr. Roosevelt handed him a second reward for services done the New Deal—a promotion to a higher federal court.

"Reward" Predicted.

During the recent Texas senatorial campaign it was widely understood Allred had doffed his judicial robes at the bidding of the White House and generally assumed that he would reap a reward not from the electorate but from the President. At the time it was known that there would soon be a vacancy on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. It was widely suspected that Allred would be no ordinary lame duck, but would gather a handsome reward.

Allred's original appointment to the bench occasioned widespread unfavorable comment. The President announced it from the rear platform of his special train which was proceeding across Texas in 1938. At the time of the announcement, Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] was standing at the President's side. The senator's face was a study in astonishment.

Neither he nor the late Sen. Morris Sheppard had been consulted on the appointment. Allred did not reside in the district where the new judgeship was created. It was generally assumed that it was made by Mr. Roosevelt with a view to impress politicians in the party organization.

O'Daniel Ignored.

The President ignored O'Daniel in his latest nomination of Allred for the court. It could not be learned whether Connally was consulted.

In 1938, Mr. Roosevelt had not trouble in securing Allred's confirmation. Now even the most ardent New Deal senators expect it will be the center of a sharp battle which may end unfavorably for the administration.

At O'Daniel's office it was learned the senator has received thousands of wires from outraged Texans protesting against playing politics with the federal judiciary. O'Daniel is expected to play a prominent part in the battle against the confirmation of Allred:

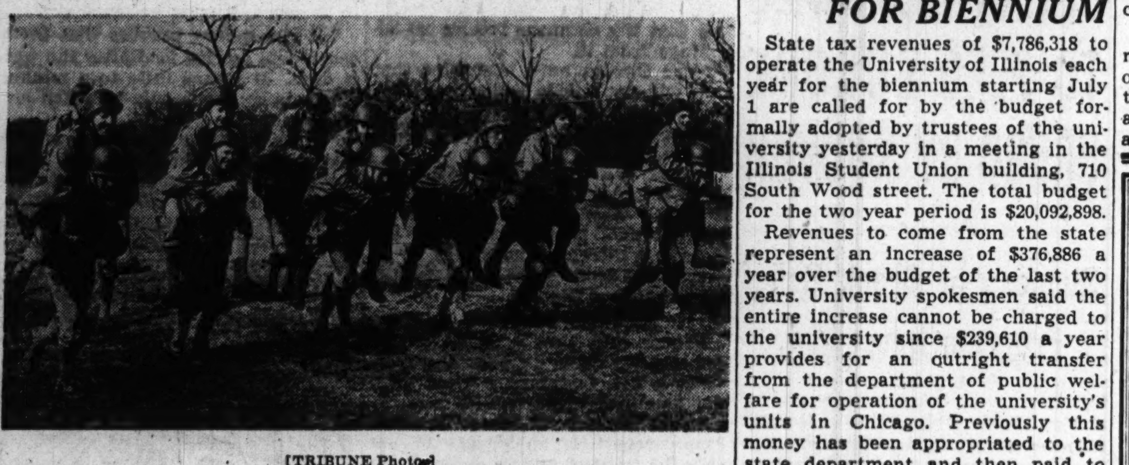
Make Them Tough at Fort Sheridan



[TRIBUNE Photo]

Six Part Test

One hundred twenty coast artillerymen went thru a six part "final examination" in physical toughening yesterday before Brig. Gen. Olin H. Longino, new commanding general at Fort Sheridan, to demonstrate how they are being hardened to meet the rigors of modern warfare.'

The toughening process, which was instituted by Brig. Gen. LaRhett L. Stuart, is being taught to all coast artillerymen at the fort under auspices of the anti-aircraft artillery training center. An even stiffer physical training program, including street and woods fighting, hand to hand combat, judo, and barbed wire fighting, will be added as the men become more hardened.

Yesterday's program included for each soldier: 33 pushups from prone position; 11 burpees—prone to squat to attention—in 20 seconds; a 300 yard run at top speed with a 45 second time limit; carrying another soldier 75 yards in 20 seconds; a zig-zag course test of 70 yards in 30 seconds, and a four mile hike.

ANGRY EDITORS FORCE OWI TO LIFT NEWS BAN

California Protests Deluge Capital.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20 [Special]. —Lifting of the 24 hour ban on news gathering from federal agency offices here was ordered today by the office of war information in Washington after a strong protest by Los Angeles newspapers over the summary action of the local OWI chief, Howard Langley.

The press gag was ordered Friday by Langley, who commanded that all news be cleared thru his office.

California editors, incensed at this action when taxpayers are clamoring for authentic news concerning the food supply, price controls, and rationing in which they are vitally interested, lost no time in registering vigorous complaints.

Protests Flood Capital.

In less than an hour after Langley's action telegrams began deluging Washington. Editors demanded that the arbitrary order be rescinded without delay, and asked why such a ban was ordered in the first place.

Langley, in withdrawing his order, said he had been directed by his superiors to conduct "business as usual." Thus the public was assured of continued spot news coverage by newspaper reporters.

"Under the interpretation of regulation No. 5 as received in this office today from Washington, any representatives of the press and radio will be free to interview all government agencies," Langley stated.

"In other words, the matter is back where it was before the misunderstanding arose. I am very happy the situation has cleared."

Gag Rule Abolished.

Langley was asked if information obtained by interviews could be printed without being subject to his gag rule order of Friday.

"Yes," he replied. "We have always had a fine working agreement here on dispensing news and we just want to continue along that same route."

Langley, a former sports publicity agent, clamped down on news Friday without warning. Reporters, who for months have been reporting the involved war agency news, embracing the OPA, war man power commission, office of defense transportation, and other alphabetical units, were then barred from scheduled press conferences.

Daylight Air Raid Test Catches N. Y. Shoppers

New York, Feb. 20 [Special].—This city's streets were cleared of Saturday afternoon shopping throngs in a 20 minute air raid drill today, the first daylight practice under the new army signals. The huge throngs were herded inside buildings by thousands of air raid wardens and police. Sidewalks in the midtown district were jammed from building to curb within one minute of the all clear signal.

U. S. Plans No Rationing of Clothes, OPA Aid Insists

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Luther Reid, director of rationing information for the office of price administration, asserted today that the government had no plans whatever to ration clothing. He said, "Make that as emphatic as you can. Any reports to the contrary are absolutely untrue. Not only do we not contemplate rationing clothing, but even if we wanted to, there is no machinery in existence to do it."

VOTE $20,092,898 ILLINI BUDGET FOR BIENNIUM

State tax revenues of $7,786,318 to operate the University of Illinois each year for the biennium starting July 1 are called for by the budget formally adopted by trustees of the university yesterday in a meeting in the Illinois Student Union building, 710 South Wood street. The total budget for the two year period is $20,092,898.

Revenues to come from the state represent an increase of $376,886 a year over the budget of the last two years. University spokesmen said the entire increase cannot be charged to the university since $239,610 a year provides for an outright transfer from the department of public welfare for operation of the university's units in Chicago. Previously this money has been appropriated to the state department and then paid to the university.

Of the remaining income, $2,260,131 annually comes from federal grants and operation of university residence halls, student union, and activities like the sale of surplus produce from the university farms. Such income is spent for the operation of these facilities.

The only planned capital improvement for the biennium is erection of laboratory and service buildings at the proposed University of Illinois airport. A sum of $500,000 has been alloted for this purpose.

HERE'S THE MAN TO BEAT THE BOSSES

ARTHUR F. ALBERT
Anti-Machine Candidate for Mayor
PRIMARY Tuesday, February 23rd

HERE'S WHAT CHICAGO NEWSPAPERS SAY OF ALBERT

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

"Alderman Albert, we think, has earned the confidence of independent, thinking men and women. He has been in the council for three terms and his mettle has been thoroughly shown. From the first he has proved that he had courage, initiative, and alert regard for good government. He has been the outstanding fighter in the council against the regime of profligate waste, incompetency, political corruption and misgovernment which have made our municipal affairs an international scandal. He has never flinched or wavered in this fight for the city and the interests of its citizens."

Prof. Charles E. Merriam, University of Chicago

"Alderman Albert's ten years in the City Council have given him excellent training for the office of mayor of Chicago. His views of what should and can be done for Chicago are based on long practical contact with all the big municipal questions of concern to the people of this city. Throughout his experience he has shown the very highest qualities of integrity, courage and common sense. He has been the city's strongest battler against organized crime, against waste of taxpayers' money, against graft and spoils of every kind. The more his record is studied the better it looks. Alderman Albert is a young man, but Chicago is a young city and this is a young man's town. He is at least old enough to know how to stand up for the people's interests."

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki on Feb. 7, 1939, said

"All that is needed to defeat the most powerful political machine and all the money, muscle, and pressure of the Bosses, is for the whole people to turn out at the polls."

CHICAGO HERALD AMERICAN

"Alderman Albert has taken the position that the mayoralty is not involved in a nonpartisan election for aldermen this spring and he proposes to run on his record of exposing crooks in and about the City Hall. We commend Alderman Albert for his courageous stand; his record in the city council stands out away ahead of 80 per cent of the fifty aldermen and he is entitled to re-election without opposition. He is a young battler of the type that the city needs."

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

"For nearly a decade Alderman Albert has been a member of the city council. Throughout that period he has been conspicuous for his devotion to the public interest and for his courage in combating the evil actions of spoilsmen in office. Alderman Albert's constructive ability has been demonstrated convincingly by his council work, notably in the sound and effective methods employed by him in bringing about the preparation of a plan for downtown subways which has met with general approval. His exposure of corrupt conditions in the management of the city's police pension fund may be mentioned also as an example of his courage, his thoroughness, and his determination to right ill conditions.

"That forceful young man, in the opinion of the Daily News, is entitled to the support of voters of his party who appreciate faithful service. There would be nothing experimental about choosing him for a responsible office, since he has demonstrated his mettle convincingly under many trying circumstances."

COURT ENJOINS FARMER DOING OWN BUTCHERING

OPA Charges Violation of Quota Regulations.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 20 [Special].—A permanent injunction was entered in United States District court today by Judge Charles A. Dewey restraining William Pratt, dairy and hog farmer living near Runnells, Ia., from further violations of meat slaughtering regulations.

The complaint was filed by Donald D. Holdoegel, chief counsel in the Iowa OPA office, charging Pratt with violation of restriction No. 1, which prohibits delivery of dressed carcasses of cattle, sheep, lambs, and swine, and any edible part or trimming thereof, by any slaughterer who does not have a quota based on 1941 slaughtering. The OPA claimed that Pratt did no slaughtering in 1941.

Some from Own Farm.

According to OPA investigators, Pratt, a former employé of a packing company in Des Moines, had since Dec. 2, 1942, slaughtered and sold about 195 head of cattle, some from his farm but the majority purchased for slaughter at Prairie City.

The complaint also charged Pratt with selling beef carcasses which had not been examined and graded by the United States department of agriculture, "violating revised maximum price regulation No. 169."

Charge Improper Handling.

Investigators alleged that Pratt sold the beef to Des Moines markets and that it was delivered by truck. They asserted the beef would be killed one day and delivered the next and that the slaughter house had no cooling facilities.

The OPA issued a statement saying that the court action had stopped immediately the slaughtering operations of the defendant. It is estimated that more than 97,000 pounds of meat had been sold by Pratt.

"Such diversion from the army and navy will be stopped by this action," the OPA statement said.

FORMER CHICAGO RAIL WORKER HAILS 100TH BIRTHDAY TOMORROW

Peter Dechmann.

Peter Dechmann, like the rest of the nation, tomorrow will recall the birthday of George Washington, the first President. But he'll have something extra to think about on this Feb. 22. It will be his 100th birthday.

Mr. Dechmann was born in Prussia, was in the German army that waged war on France in 1870 and came to Chicago with his parents in 1882. He worked for many years for the Chicago and North Western railroad and after his retirement was employed at the Lincoln park zoo. Since quitting work altogether 24 years ago he has lived with a daughter, Mrs. Peter Kolf, at 455 Claim street, Aurora.

He has two other daughters, both of whom live in Chicago; four grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

FEED SHORTAGE PERILS INCREASE IN FARM OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The government's war time meat, milk, and poultry production programs—already best by serious labor shortages and other problems—today faced threats of a bottleneck in actual and artificial feed supply shortages.

Reports reaching the agriculture department indicated that dairymen, poultrymen and cattle and hog feeders who must buy feed are hard put to get sufficient supplies to maintain operations.

The shortage seemed to be developing principally in the east, the midwestern dairy belt and some sections of the Rocky mountain and west coast—areas which normally depend upon the middlewestern corn belt for feeds.

Protein Feeds Lacking.

Chief crisis prevailed in high protein feeds—such as cake and meal produced from soybeans, cottonseed, and peanuts—and from meat scraps and fish. Maximum feeding results can be obtained from corn and other coarse grains only when mixed in rations containing protein feeds.

An official who asked that he not be quoted by name said there were actual shortages in some of the protein feeds, particularly those produced from meat scraps and fish. In the case of others—especially those made from soybeans and cottonseed—the shortages were partially artificial, he said.

He said many of those who own protein feeds, or uncrushed soybeans and cottonseed, were holding them for possible higher prices, believing that congress will force the administration to revise farm prices upward.

Corn Being Withheld.

This same situation was, said to exist in the case of corn. Consequently, many farmers and others owning corn decline to sell. Some prefer to hold for possible higher prices, while others are saving the corn for their own future livestock needs. It is worth more as hog feed than on the market now, because hogs have been allowed to advance to higher price levels, relatively speaking, than has corn.

Until this week, the agriculture department was in a position to plug up some of the feed shortages from its own stocks of wheat. Congress, after a bitter fight with the administration, last July granted the department authority to sell 125 million bushels of government-owned wheat for feed at prices competitive with corn. That stock ran out last week.

Secretary Claude Wickard yesterday asked congress to allow him to sell 100 million additional bushels of wheat at feed grain prices, but members of the farm bloc, insisting that such prices tended to hold both wheat and corn at levels below those to which growers of the two crops are entitled, announced plans to oppose the request.

SEIZE EX-CONVICT FOR QUESTIONING IN CAREY KILLING

Capt. William J. Drury of Town Hall police yesterday announced the arrest of Henry Vaughn, an ex-convict, for questioning in the slaying of Estelle Carey, dice girl and former sweetheart of Nick Dean, gangster and underworld character. Capt. Drury termed Vaughn's arrest as "important," but said that no identification has been made by witnesses. Vaughn has served time in Atlanta, Leavenworth, Joliet, and Montana prisons, Capt. Drury said. He was arrested at 4506 Drexel boulevard. Miss Carey was beaten, stabbed, and burned to death Feb. 2 in her apartment at 512 Addison street. Two fur coats were missing from the apartment.

PLOWS UP CORN TO SAVE BONUS ON CROP FAILURE

Austin, Tex., Feb. 20 (AP).—Texas' rancher governor, Coke R. Stevenson, said today the acute shortage of protein feeds endangering the war meat supply from the southwest could be solved if the farmers were "turned loose."

The best he could learn from telephone conversations with officials in Washington, D. C., he said, was that "they can not decide which bureau it is that is holding up the release of needed feedstuffs."

Stevenson said many farmers were writing him suggesting that if it were not for restrictions on planting they could solve the problem themselves.

Forced to Plow Up Corn.

He cited a letter from a farmer who was in danger of losing his peanut bonus because he had inadvertently planted too much corn.

"This farmer said they made him plow up 73 acres of corn to plant peanuts that he know would not mature," Stevenson asserted, adding:

"Sure enough he plowed up his corn, planted the peanuts, and the peanuts didn't produce. If they had let him alone, there would have been just another 73 acres of corn."

Stevenson's comment today followed testimony before a state senate committee that Texas will lose half its lamb and kid crop, and much of its calf crop, if concentrated feeds such as soybean meal are not made available in three weeks.

Beans Held Off Market.

The committee was told that one bottleneck is that large supplies of soybeans are being held off the market because the government promised midwestern farmers a bonus if they would not sell their beans until spring.

At San Antonio Richard Klappenbach Jr., rancher, added that "thousands of sheep, goats, and cattle will die in this section of the state" if feeds are not released.

"The ranchers need someone handling their problems who understands their needs," he declared.

4 DEPUTIES HUNT 4 ASSAILANTS OF FATHER AND SON

Four deputy sheriffs of the Homewood county highway police were assigned yesterday to the search for four thugs who last Wednesday slugged Richard Blackhall, 64 years old, militant anti-vice crusader, and his son, Jack, 16 years old, in the garage at the rear of their home at 1328 Sunnyside avenue, Chicago Heights.

Lt. Earl McLean said two suspects had been seized, but were released when the boy failed to identify them. Young Blackhall visited the bureau of identification but was unable to recognize pictures of any of the assailants. The condition of the elder Blackhall, an active foe of vice and gambling in the suburb, prevented his taking any part in the case. The two were beaten unconscious by men carrying blackjacks.

EX-TREASURER GETS 1-15 YEARS IN FUNDS THEFT

Paxton, Ill., Feb. 20 (AP).—John E. Crammond, former Ford county treasurer, was sentenced today to 1 to 15 years in the state penitentiary on conviction of embezzling $32,000 in county funds while in office.

Circuit Judge Frank Bevan denied Crammond's plea for probation. The probation officer, Harry Riehl, told the court that Crammond had gambled over a period of three or four years in an effort to make up shortages. Judge Bevan said he could not analyze the mind of a man who for three years was a Sunday school superintendent and at the same time "was gambling with money taken in a breach of confidence to his community."

Crammond disappeared Dec. 7, the day he was to turn over his office to his successor, H. W. Keefe.

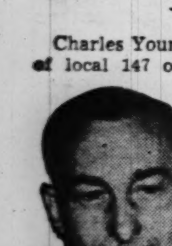
PAINTERS' AGENT SUES FOR $60,000 IN DUAL SHOOTING

Estate of Wife's Alleged Slayer a Defendant.



Chas. Youngblood.

Charles Youngblood, business agent of local 147 of the Painters' union, filed four lawsuits yesterday asking damages totaling $60,000 from the estate of Arthur W. Wallace, slain secretary-treasurer of the Painters' district council, whom he accused of wounding him and killing his wife, Loretta, last July 17.

The shooting occurred in the Youngblood flat at 2227 Monroe street. Before she died Mrs. Youngblood gasped "Artie Wallace shot me." Youngblood who said Wallace was drunk and started the fight, was exonerated by a coroner's jury which failed to place blame for the death of his wife.

Invokes Dram Shop Act.

Two of the lawsuits were filed in Circuit court under the dram shop act and named Mrs. Edna Wallace, executor of her husband's estate, and Dominik Rosati, owner of a tavern at 2801 5th avenue, as defendants. The suits alleged that Wallace became intoxicated while drinking in the tavern the night of the shooting.

In one of these actions, filed by Attorneys Emmet F. Byrne and William L. Kelley, Youngblood, who was wounded in the arm, made a claim of $10,000 damages for the death of his wife, and $20,000 damages for his wound.

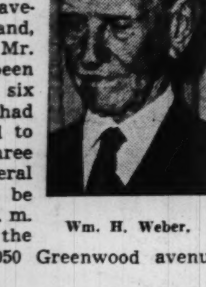
In tort actions filed in Superior court, Youngblood asked similar judgments against the Wallace estate.

Discount Drunken Brawl Theory.

The police expressed doubt after hearing Youngblood's story that a drunken craze on Wallace's part was the only cause of the affray, but no other explanation was obtained. Wallace refused to talk before he died of a wound in the abdomen.

Youngblood, an ex-convict, who was befriended by Wallace after he was released from prison, and his wife, were ambushed in gangland style in 1939 and severly wounded. The attack was attributed by police to a renewal of strife in the painters' union.

WEBER, COUNTY G. O. P. LEADER 50 YEARS, DIES



Wm. H. Weber.

William H. [Uncle Billy] Weber, 86 years old, a Cook county employé and member of the Republican county committee for 50 years, died in his home, 12956 Greenwood avenue, Blue Island, yesterday. WHC Head Warns of Housing Crisis

MAYOR SUPPORTS DEMAND FOR NEW QUOTA OF HOMES

Builders Wait Hopefully for NHA Action.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Waldemar Weichbrodt.

Metropolitan Chicago will face the most severe housing crisis in its history unless the government immediately grants this area an additional quota for war homes and work is started in time to provide living quarters when new war plants are completed this spring and summer, warned Waldemar Weichbrodt, director of the Chicago war housing center yesterday.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly joined the WHC head in a demand for a housing quota for Chicago. He said: "The position of Chicago as the outstanding war production center of the nation makes it exceedingly important that adequate housing be provided for all war workers. Government housing officials must give the same consideration to Chicago as to other cities where large housing quotas have been granted even tho their vacancies exceeded those of Chicago."

Meanwhile, Chicago builders were waiting for the issuance shortly of a new housing quota for the metropolitan area by the national housing agency. The NHA in turn has delayed action pending reports by the war man power commission and the office of defense transportation on labor and transportation in the Chicago area.

Builders Expect Quota.

The WMC in Washington has listed Chicago among areas in which general labor shortages may be expected after six months. This would mean, it was said, an influx of workers and a resultant need of more homes. Chicago builders think this Washington report presages issuance soon of a war housing quota here by NHA.

"Chicago will require more housing just to take care of its present residents, to say nothing of any additional workers who may be expected to migrate here," Weichbrodt said. "Chicago's population has increased at least 80,000, or about 23,000 families, since the census of 1940.

"To accommodate these 23,000 families only 11,000 new dwelling units have been built. Moreover, demolitions since 1940, plus structures unfit for human habitation which should be torn down, completely offset those 11,000 new accommodations, so that actually there has been no net addition to our housing supply.

May Face Housing Crisis.

"Unless the government grants the Chicago area an additional housing quota of substantial proportions and construction is started immediately, housing will not be available for the workers when the new plants are completed this spring and summer and metropolitan Chicago will face its greatest housing crisis.

Reports from over 200 division and community chairmen of the WHC thruout the metropolitan area indicate an ever tightening housing situation, Weichbrodt said. Even if no additional war workers were attracted to this district, Chicago still would need more housing.

Uses Plan Commission Data.

Based on information released to WHC by H. Evert Kincaid, acting executive director of the Chicago plan commission, new facilities would be needed within Chicago proper to replace an estimated minimum of 5,200 dwelling units which become unfit for human occupancy every year, Weichbrodt asserted.

"Vacancies have been absorbed so rapidly that, if continued, there should be absolutely no usable vacant residential units here in a short time," he said. "Today there are only 12,000 vacant units of every description, according to current census bureau figures.

2,000 Units Unfit for Use.

"Two thousand are unfit for occupancy and 2,000 more are for sale and not for rent. That leaves only 8,000 that might be available or less than 1 per cent of Chicago's total housing supply. The census report states further that about 4,800 of these 8,000 lack such important facilities as private baths, kitchens, etc.

"Even the remaining 3,200 include large apartments in the highest price rental brackets and informally converted light housekeeping rooms in larger apartments that are otherwise occupied. In addition, most of the vacant units are on the near north side or close in rooming house areas and very few are available near our large new war plants."

Realtor Calls OPA Sales Rule More Red Tape

Burt R. Kiely.

If the so-called "liberalization" of office of price administration regulations affecting home sales, issued during the week, is an indication of the kind of adjustments real estate can expect from OPA, property owners will have to appeal to congress, Burt R. Kiely, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, said yesterday.

The new OPA regulations provide that a 90 day waiting period may be waived in the sale of homes provided equivalent accommodations are available into which the tenant can move without hardship or loss. In "special hardship" cases the OPA may issue a certificate of eviction, but the OPA director must consider such factors as the tenant's place of work, place of worship, and where his children go to school.

Merely More Red Tape.

"This is merely an addition to an already ridiculous amount of red tape," Kiely charged. "It means that the administrator, whose detailed paper work already is of mountainous proportions, must find out where the tenant works, goes to church, and where his children go to school. To get this information about every tenant in a house that is sold would cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

"If the OPA doesn't have the authority to make any more effective move than this amendment indicates, congress certainly has. The new congress has evidenced a genuine interest in this problem and a tendency to do something about it. It's up to the people who own property to make their elected representatives in the government realize how discriminatory some of the regulations affecting real property are."

Plan Curb to OPA.

A bill recently was introduced in the house by Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, Kiely said, to stop OPA interference with residential sales. It is now in committee. In presenting it, Wolcott said that "neither congress nor the banking and currency committee ever intended to give OPA power to regulate the sale of real property."

TRIBUNE TOWER WILL BE TOURED BY ARCHITECTS

Architects will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday evening, on a tour of the newspaper plant while in full operation. Members of the Illinois Society of Architects will hold their monthly meeting with a buffet dinner at the Medinah club. Charles Collins, conductor of "A Line O'Type or Two," will be the guest.

They will view a sound motion picture "Trees to Tribunes" followed by a journey thru the plant conducted by architect Leo Weissenborn.

The visitors then will listen to "The Northerners" in the W-G-N studio or view the firmament thru the flying buttresses on the 25th floor of the Tribune Tower and listen to a discourse by Richard E. Schmidt, astronomer-architect.

WORK IS PUSHED ON LARGE GARY HOUSING PROJECT

With 20 residential units finished and occupied, E. C. Mahoney, Chicago area builder, is rushing work on the remaining 44 homes in his Junedale housing project in Gary, he announced yesterday. Ten will be completed and ready for occupancy this week-end, he said. Final decorating will be finished within two weeks in 27 homes. The remaining seven are being plastered and trimmed, with the entire 64 unit development expected to be finished during March.

Located on Jefferson street, between 49th and 51st avenues, the project includes 20 duplex buildings containing 40 four room units, and 24 four room bungalows. Half of the duplex units and half of the single family homes are for rent at $39.50 per month, with a purchase option. The other half of the duplex homes are for sale at $4,750 and the remaining half of the bungalows sell for $4,950.

All the homes have been financed under title 6 of the federal housing administration thru Dovenmuehle, Inc., of Chicago. The duplex houses have $4,000 mortgages with monthly payments of $29 and the bungalows have $4,250 loans, with $30 payments. The renting and sales are being handled by the Jack Lazerwitz Real Estate company, 115 Fifth avenue, Gary.

NEW LEGISLATIVE SERVICE STARTED BY REALTY BOARD

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday announced a new service for real estate trade association executives, the giving by the board of information on legislation affecting real estate introduced in congress.

The service will include reports on important measures introduced in congress affecting real estate, rent control, taxation, social security, and housing; brief digests of each bill; complete texts of significant bills; copies of other bills requested by subscribers if feasible; issuance of the digest at least twice a month, with special issues or reports on important developments; reports of progress on each bill; membership lists, on request, of congressional committees.

The new service will cost $25 annually, Downie said.

13 FLAT BUILDING SOLD.

The 13 flat building at 6933 Indiana avenue was sold by the American National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, trustee, to Benjamin F. Fohrman for $24,500 cash thru Bills Realty, Inc.

WAR AIDS DEFEND FUEL OIL RATION, BUT ADMIT EVILS

OPA Bungling Assailed Before Legislators.

Midwest fuel oil rationing was defended yesterday as essential for winning the war, but the "unpalatable" enforcement methods of the office of price administration in Washington—particularly as run by Leon Henderson, recently ousted as administrator—were denounced at the hearing of the joint legislative committee headed by State Sen. Earle Benjamin Searcy [R., Springfield] in the Blackstone hotel.

Developments at the hearing included:

1. Wirt Franklin, petroleum administrator for war in district 2, comprising 15 midwestern states; Ernest L. Hughes, chief of his fuel oil section, and C. W. Johnson, director of marketing for that office, explained the necessity for fuel oil rationing, but washed their hands of its administration. They not only cited the tremendous war demands for oil but said a false ceiling put on the price of crude oil by OPA Oct. 1, 1941, already has sharply retarded production and may do so to the danger point—if it hasn't done so already—within a short time.

Tells Fears of Regimentation.

2. Sen. Searcy suggested that "some of the confused state of mind" over fuel rationing in Illinois "may be due to the suspicion that such measures as these are aimed at permanent regimentation of the people instead of helping to win the war." Government representatives disclaimed any such idea.

3. Frank E. Spencer, president of the Burning Oil Distributors association, told the committee he would furnish it with a copy of ration order No. 11, the "book" devised by Henderson during his dictatorship of OPA, and its 36 amendments. He said the members must have it to "appreciate" how "multitudinous and complicated" it is.

4. Several consumers and dealers again recited "iniquities" of the rationing system and said there are thousands of complaints despite OPA denials.

Two Legislators Clash.

5. Rep. Nicholas Hubbard [D., Mount Pulaski] sharply told Dale Larish, regional fuel oil representative of OPA, that he believed the officials of that bureau were "simply smoothing over" the facts and were unwilling to face them. Chided by Rep. George Garry Noonan [D., Chicago] for not clearing such rebukes thru Chairman Searcy, Hubbard turned on Noonan and growled: "The difference between you and me is that I'm not told what I can do by any political machine!"

Franklin, a practical oil man for many years, explained how the nation's oil reserves are being rapidly depleted. He cited figures of the American Petroleum institute to show that stocks in Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky alone have in the last year fallen from 4,340,000 barrels to 2,630,000 barrels. For the nation, he said, the reserves are off 20 million barrels.

Using Reserves Much Faster.

"We are using our reserves three times as fast as we're now able to make new discoveries," he continued, referring to the manner in which the OPA ceiling has discouraged drilling for new oil.

"The OPA ceiling price simply isn't adequate to encourage those who want to take a chance on finding new wells. I have long advocated an increase of 50 cents a barrel in the price of crude. When OPA froze the price in October, 1941, the price was subnormal. We've fought hard to get an increase but we've not been able to get it."

Increase Fuel Oil Output.

Franklin explained there already has been a change in the formula by which the government has asked the refiners to produce more fuel oils and less gasoline from each barrel of crude. Bernard L. Majewski, member of the district 2 petroleum industry committee, had told the committee such a change would mean more fuel oil and better and more equitable returns for the oil companies and make it possible for midwest rationing to be dropped entirely. But Franklin said:

"A recent directive asked the petroleum companies to cut their gasoline production to 75 per cent of what they were then making.

"But war consumption will increase more rapidly this year than last year. Even if we do increase the recovery of oils, we won't have the difference for nonessential or civilian purposes."

Indictment Talk Causes Flurry.

Hughes caused a flurry when he said he "deplored" a division of opinion which seemed somewhat bitter about the necessity of rationing. "Before this is over," he asserted, "there may be an indictment against some for retarding the winning of the war."

Later, however, he admitted the fuel oil rationing order had been "unpalatable" and said he was going to Washington Monday to seek modifications which would make it more acceptable.

The committee adjourned after the session until the night of March 1 in Springfield.

How to Make a Victory Garden

BY BEN MARKLAND.

After the war gardener has selected the site for his plot, he should determine which vegetables to plant, the amount of space between rows, what crops will be included in the second planting, and other details that can be charted on a rough sketch.

The kinds of vegetables to be grown, and the varieties of those vegetables, naturally vary according to the preferences of the family. In any case, however, the gardener should make a scale diagram of his plot and decide early the vegetable varieties he will have. After this is done, he can order seeds, make plans for using starter sets and cold frames, if this is necessary, and place with his florist an advance order for tomato plants and other vegetables to be started from stock.

Rules for Plotting Garden.

In an advance sketch of the garden, these general rules should be followed:

1. If the garden plot is very long and narrow, the rows should run the length of the garden to save planting space and make cultivation easier.

2. If the garden is on sloping ground, the rows should run diagonally to the slope to prevent seeds and plant foods from being washed downhill.

3. If the rows run east and west, place the tall crops, such as tomatoes and corn, at the north side of the plot so they won't shade the low growing crops. An exception to this rule is leaf lettuce or head lettuce planted for midsummer use. Lettuce planted in early spring does best in the open, but hot weather plantings of lettuce do best when shaded by three or four rows of sweet corn or other tall crops.

Plan Second Plantings.

4. In your sketch, consider the advantages of second plantings of quick maturing vegetables to follow such early crops as lettuce, spinach, turnips, peas, and onions. Crops that may be planted in midseason include late varieties of turnips, collards, beets, and cabbage.

5. Allow plenty of room between rows; overcrowding hurts productivity.

Specific help on planning the garden will be contained in later articles in this series. Especially helpful will be the sketches of the two sample gardens to be planted on The Tribune farm at Wheaton. One of these will be a typical city plot, 25x30 feet, with all work except plowing to be done by hand. The other will be a typical farmer's garden, 100x200 feet, with power machinery and horses to be used in the plowing and cultivating.

Singer Found Dead

Elsie Houston, who committed suicide yesterday in New York apartment.

Dies on Eve of Capital Appearance.

New York, Feb. 20 [Special].—Elsie Houston, olive skinned Latin soprano who brought chills to night club patrons with voodoo songs she learned in her native Brazil, was found dead today in her Park avenue apartment, where she had committed suicide on the eve of an appearance before official circles in Washington, D. C.

Her body, fully clothed except for shoes, was found lying on a bed. On a table were two notes in French and an empty vial which had held a sleeping potion.

Upset, Says Note.

One was addressed to a sister, Maria Pedrosa, Washington, and the other to a friend, Marcel Courbon, who found the body when he went to the apartment at 4:30 p. m.

Police Detective William Chaplain reported the singer said in the notes that she was terribly upset and asked, "Please don't let any one know about this."

Washington reports tonight said she was to have sung on a Pan-American union program in the capital tomorrow and to have been a guest at a Brazilian embassy reception.

The 40 year old singer, who had appeared at Town Hall and the Museum of Modern Art, was born in Rio De Janeiro.

Student in Germany.

She attended school in Switzerland, studied singing in Germany under Lilli Lehmann, appeared in Paris night clubs, and married a French newspaperman.

While in Brazil she became an initiate in the black magic of the witch doctors, descendants of slaves brought over from Africa. She participated in their candombles—seven days and nights of weird singing and dancing in which the gods are believed to possess the bodies of the cultists.

Friends who muttered then that no good could come of such dabbling in the black arts had their own ideas about her death.

MOTHER IS SHOT DEAD IN BATTLE TO SAVE 2 SONS

But Boys Are Arrested as Deserters from Army.

Lexington, N. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—A 51 year old mother, Mrs. Miley Ann Owens, was shot to death today battling officers who came here to arrest her two sons, charged with desertion. A deputy sheriff also was wounded in the shooting.

Sheriff Raymond Bowers said his deputies went to the Owens home, 14 miles north of here, with warrants for Carl T. L. Owens and Ellis W. Owens, whose arrest had been asked by Fort Bragg army authorities.

Armed with Shotgun.

The officers, he said, parleyed with Mrs. Owens and her husband, James M. Owens, then started to force an entrance. Mrs. Owens, he related, faced them at the front door with a shotgun.

The sheriff said an effort was made to disarm Mrs. Owens and in the ensuing struggle, in which her husband joined, an officers pistol was discharged, killing Mrs. Owens and wounding Deputy Tom Kimel in the hip.

Sons Fight with Clubs.

Bowers said that the sons, armed with clubs, came from their rooms during the struggle and attacked the deputies. They were taken in custody and lodged in jail here.

The sheriff said the Owens boys were declared delinquent by their draft board in November, later entered the army, and were posted as deserters when they refused to report back to camp after getting their first furloughs.

200 CHAMPIONS READY FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

NAVY APPROVES SPORTS FOR COLLEGE TRAINEES

SAILORS BEAT IRISH, 60 TO 56, IN OVERTIME

De Paul Wins Over Kentucky, 53-44.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Francis Curran's long shot dropped thru the net as the gun sounded to end the second half last night in the Stadium. The goal reprieved the Notre Dame basketball team, tying the score at 53 to 53, but Great Lakes' Bluejackets, beaten a year ago on this same floor, rallied to win in the five minute overtime, 60 to 56.

Fifteen thousand, a record crowd for this season for Stadium double headers, watched a battle of thrills. The score was tied three times in the first half, which ended 27 to 26 in favor of the Irish, and the lead changed five times in the second half.

In the overtime, Great Lakes scored first on George Hamburg's field goal, but lost the advantage when Curran hit his fourth field goal of the game immediately after Notre Dame's Charles Butler had marked up a point on Buster Miller's foul.

Glamack Gets Vital Goal.

But Notre Dame's 56 to 55 advantage lasted only a few seconds. Big George Glamack grabbed a rebound to score. Eddie Riska, onetime Notre Dame star, then added a point and with this lever the Sailors held on, with George Sobek, another Notre Dame graduate, getting a goal just as the contest ended.

It would be sentimentally satisfying to write that Notre Dame won. These boys, beaten only once before this year and universally regarded as one of the great teams in Irish history, were playing to win for their coach, who died suddenly last Wednesday. They had come from his last rites yesterday morning to the Stadium and they played because they knew George Keogan, who would have completed his 20th year at the university this season, would have wished it.

Anderson Is Hot.

Great Lakes, however, deserved its victory, never losing poise in the face of the Irish rally which whittled a 45 to 39 lead. When their hot shot scorers missed repeatedly others stepped into the breach. Forrest Anderson, for example, got five consecutive field goals in the second half.

Then came Wilbur Shumacher with five consecutive points to carry Great Lakes' attack. The Irish met this splurge with Curran's inspirational play. He got four points when Great Lakes led, 45 to 39, and then Bob Rensberger took aim from 25 feet out and dropped in the goal that tied the score. Bill Davis matched this long shot for a Notre Dame lead. Twice the score changed and then Schumacher and Anderson built up a 52 to 49 margin which became 53 to 50 on free throws by Sobek and Notre Dame's Tom Brennan.

Curran Goes to Work.

Then Curran took over. He got a free throw. Notre Dame then declined a foul, took the ball out of bounds, and Curran made a shot from the corner. The gun sounded as the ball was in the air. It struck the rim, bounced once, and came down thru the net.

In the first game of the night, De Paul university whipped the University of Kentucky, 53 to 44. The Demons had a 15 to 2 lead after 10 minutes of the first half against the team which had been Notre Dame's only conqueror this season until Great Lakes turned the trick.

Mikan Gets 18 Points.

At the half, the Demons had dazzled the Kentuckians for a 30 to 16 lead and built this to 37 to 18 early in the second half. With 11 minutes left, De Paul was in front, 44 to 26. At the finish, big George Mikan of the Demons, playing the best game of his career, had 18 points. Lineups:

Official Ruling Assures Team Competition

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 [Special].—The vast navy college training program, announced today by the navy, will give a lift to hard-pressed college athletics. In the final paragraph of an 1,800 word announcement outlining in detail the project which will start on July 1, the navy said its students will be allowed to participate in varsity competition.

The athletic go sign, however, was tempered with the stipulation that the trainees may engage in varsity sports only if they do not interfere with prescribed hours or courses of study.

Among middle western schools, Northwestern and Notre Dame have large naval training programs which will ease their man power worry over athletes.

Late last week, the army, in announcing a similar training program in the nation's colleges and universities, barred its students from varsity athletics on the ground they would be too busy with their required duties. This was a blow to the universities which had expected the army students would be available for competition.

Academic Training First.

The navy statement today emphasized that while military activities would be subordinated to academic training in the naval college program there would be required physical drills, swimming and settingup exercises which would absorb much time. It seemed obvious that no exceptions would be made to any of these requirements, without a major change in policy, to permit students to play on college football or other teams. And since all physically fit men in colleges will be in uniform, the service policies will control athletics.

A total of 334 colleges and universities have been selected by joint army-navy action for services classes. The exact number of naval classes to be organized, a spokesman said, will depend on the number of officer candidates. Schools for these classes will be chosen from the 334 as need arises and that over-all total may be increased if it is not sufficient.

Will Dray Pay of Seamen.

Rated as apprentice seamen the students will be in uniform and draw the pay of seamen. They will be subject to naval discipline. Those who do not make the grade academically will be assigned to other duty, probably at sea.

After the first class, beginning July 1, a second group of students will start their studies Nov. 1 and a third group March 1, 1944. The potential officers—who will be trained for the marine corps and coast guard as well as the navy—will be chosen by selection boards composed of one naval officer, a representative of the public and an educator. There will be at least one board in each state.

Entrance examinations may be taken by high or prep school graduates 17 to 20 years old as of next July 1 or college students in the same age group who do not meet the technical requirements of a high school diploma. Application forms will be distributed thruout high schools and colleges.

Enlisted Men Eligible.

Many students also will be drawn from the present enlisted ranks of the navy, marine corps and coast guard. Each applicant already in the service must apply thru his commanding officer.

Students may choose the branch of service they would like to be in and also the college they would like to attend. The navy will honor these choices where possible, but will not be bound by them.

The average student officer, trained for general duties, will go to college for a year and four months, his course being organized into four terms of 16 weeks each. Special students—medical, dental engineering, and similar officer candidates—will be given courses varying from 6 to 12 terms in length.

Students under 18 years of age when they enlist will be placed on inactive duty until they are assigned to colleges. Those who are over the selective service minimum of 18 will be inducted under regular selective service procedure, enlisted in the navy's V-12 reserve, as the college group is designated, and then put on inactive duty until assigned to college.

GRIFFITH, WILSON ELATED.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western conference, and Kenneth [Tug] Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university, enthusiastically received news of the navy's approval of participation of college trainees in college athletics.

"I am very happy to hear the announcement," said Maj. Griffith. "I had hoped navy officials would continue their fine athletic program and allow their men and service teams to compete with colleges."

Wilson greeted the announcement with "that's great news," and added, "it guarantees the continuation of intercollegiate sport. It is heartening to find that the navy recognizes the rôle competitive athletics has played in preparing men for combat service. We shall do everything possible to encourage young men to avail themselves of our athletic facilities, whether or not they are sufficiently skilled for varsity competition."

GOLDEN GLOVERS—AT EASE AND AT WORK

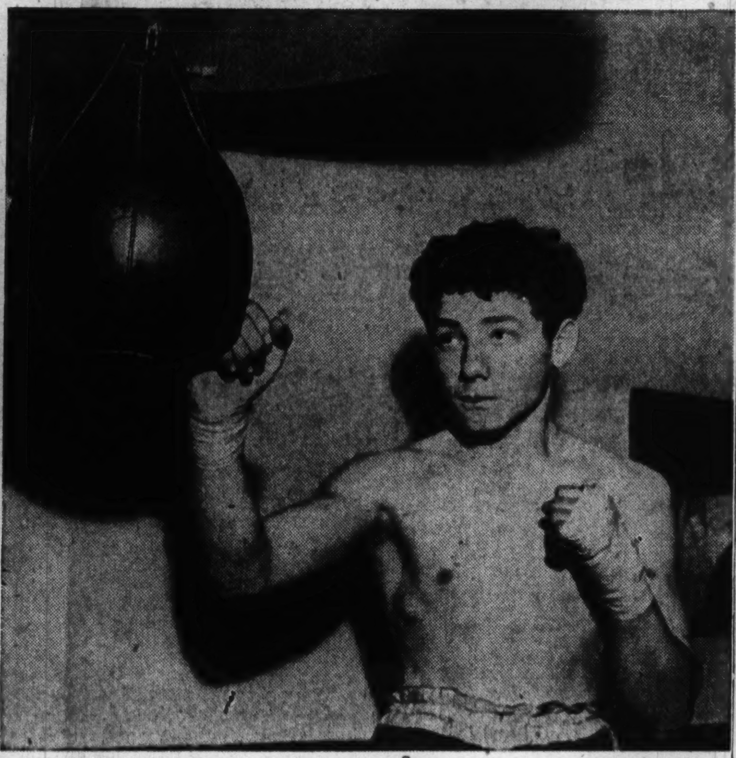
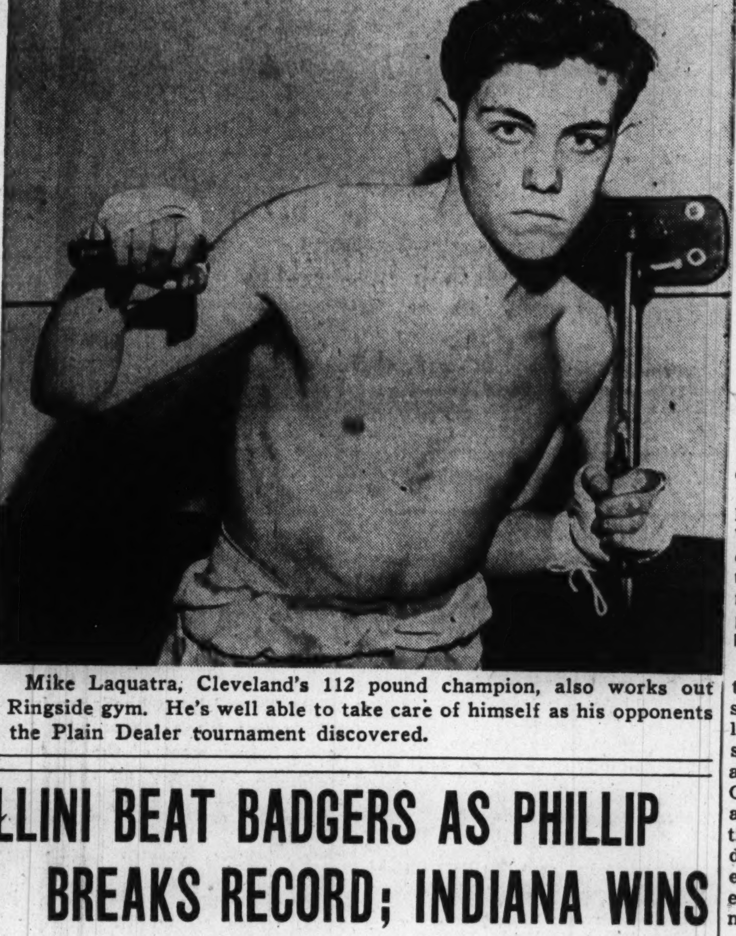
Dicker relaxes as he awaits the Tournament of Champions which opens in the Stadium tomorrow, continuing thru Wednesday.



Tony Janiro, 16 year old featherweight, who won the Cleveland Plain Dealer tournament title and the right to compete in Chicago, works out in Ringside gym in the loop.

Paul Spica (left), coach of the St. Louis team, and Ed Posage, heavyweight, play a friendly game of rummy in their Medinah club headquarters. Posage anticipates plenty of action starting tomorrow, and hopes to return to Chicago for the semi-finals and finals of the Golden Gloves tournament March 5.



Mike Laquatra, Cleveland's 112 pound champion, also works out in Ringside gym. He's well able to take care of himself as his opponents in the Plain Dealer tournament discovered.

Wildcats Win Over Maroons; Move to Third

The Northwestern university Wildcats coasted into third place in the Big Ten standings with a 63 to 29 victory over Chicago in the Midway fieldhouse last night. Chicago put up its usual stand in the early minutes of the contest, but in 12 minutes before half time Chicago made one basket while Northwestern climbed from a 10 to 9 trailing spot to a 33 to 12 lead at the end of the period. Otto Graham led the scoring with 12 baskets and a free throw for 25 points.

It was Chicago's 37th straight Big Ten defeat and the sixth this season.

Maroons Lead for While.

The Wildcats had six points before Chicago got started, but the Maroons scored three baskets and a free throw in two minutes and led momentarily at 10 to 9. Then Graham made three field goals in a row, and he and his mates scored five more baskets in a row. Hank Ellman then made Chicago's lone basket of the 13 minutes before the Wildcats continued their spree.

Trailing by 21 points at the start of the second half, the Maroons hung on for a time but later the Northwestern second team scored two points for every one Chicago made in the last 10 minutes. Lineup:

ILLINI BEAT BADGERS AS PHILLIP BREAKS RECORD; INDIANA WINS

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 20 [Special].—Andy Phillip established a new Western conference 12 game individual scoring record tonight as he made 10 field goals and 2 free throws to lead Illinois' basketball team to a 50 to 26 victory over Wisconsin. It was the 10th victory in as many conference starts for the Illini, who need only to beat Northwestern and Chicago to clinch their second straight title.

The 22 point spree gave Phillip 199 points for 10 games, 11 more than the record by Illinois' Chuck Carney as a sophomore in 1920 and 15 more than the modern 12 game mark set by Jewell Young of Purdue in 1938. Carney's record was made under rules which permitted one player to try all free throws awarded his team.

Illini Break Team Record.

Illinois ran its total for the season to 577 points, beating the conference record for 12 games, set in 1941 when Wisconsin made 536 points. It was the 25th straight home court victory for the Illini in collegiate competition.

Displaying their most flawless performance of the season, the Illini outshot and outfought the Badgers, who knocked Indiana out of a first place share last Monday.

Kotz Is Held Scoreless.

Johnny Kotz, Wisconsin's high scoring forward who led the conference with 242 points in 15 games last season, was held scoreless for the first time in his three year career by Jack Smiley. Kotz played slightly more than half the game.

Phillip was aided considerably by Capt. Art Mathisen, who scored 17 points and was mainly responsible for Illinois' big advantage at the backboards.

The Illini took a 3 to 2 lead after two and a half minutes and were never in trouble. They led 24 to 9 at half time and held a 30 point lead for several minutes late in the second half.

Bob Sullivan, who scored 11 points, was high for the Badgers, who made only 10 field goals.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 20 [Special].—Indiana's basketball team outscored Minnesota 17 to 1 during the first five minutes of the second half to overtake the Gophers and register their 17th victory of the season here tonight. The final score was 51 to 39 for the Hoosiers' 10th victory in Big Ten play.

It wasn't until the opening of the last period that Indiana looked like the team which had lost only to Wisconsin this season, but when the Hoosiers started, they almost ran the Gophers out of the fieldhouse.

Gophers Lead at Half.

Hitting exactly 50 per cent of their shots from the floor, the Gophers blazed into a 28 to 16 half time lead. Dave Ruliffson, Dick Burk, and Kenny Exel shot the Gophers into a 6 to 0 lead at the outset, and the Minnesota margin was 19 to 7 with 10 minutes gone.

The Hoosiers started with the toss of the ball for the last half. Forward Johnny Logan connected on two quick shots. After that Reuben Epps hit a free throw for the only score Minnesota got until the Hoosiers had tied the count at 29 to 29 on Capt. Irvin Swanson's basket.

After Epp's free throw, Hamilton scored a free throw and Minnesota lost Burk on his fourth personal. Ward Williams hit two baskets and Swanson sank two long ones, his second tying the score. Then he was fouled and his perfect toss put the Hoosiers ahead.

Five Speedy Minutes.

All of this action was wrapped up in five minutes, and it was the story of the ball game. For from that point on, Indiana's regulars kept increasing the margin while Minnesota lost two more players, Exel and Epp, on fouls. Lineup:

16TH ANNUAL TOURNAMENT TO OPEN TOMORROW IN STADIUM

Nation's Best Arrive for Three Nights of Battling.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Tournament of Champions—one of the most aptly named events in all amateur sport—opens tomorrow night in the Stadium. It continues on Tuesday and reaches its climax and conclusion on Wednesday. It is rightly named because each boxer who participates is a genuine champion—the best fighter of his weight in his own section of the country.

Four of the invading teams—Cleveland, St. Louis, Memphis, and Oklahoma City—already have arrived. All day today the others will be coming in from such widely separated points as Columbus, O., and Omaha, Neb.; Minneapolis, Minn., and Fort Worth, Tex. By the time of the first bout tomorrow a field of 200 will be on hand, ready to launch three consecutive nights of spectacularly fast action.

Chicago Never Shut Out.

Against this army of fighters from 24 out of town centers, Chicago will send its eight champions. The competing on a numerical par with representatives of all the other cities, the local boys face the responsibility of keeping up this city's record of never having been shut out in the contest for Golden Gloves championships.

Last year Chicago won only one title—the heavyweight—which was taken by Hubert Hood. In 1941, two of the local contenders—Harold Dade and Hezzie Williams—took titles. The best year Chicago has had in recent seasons was 1940, when three of this city's representatives—Cornelius Young, Savior Canadeo and Harold Dade—went all the way to championships.

They Have What It Takes.

The squad which will carry on this time is composed of eight rugged fighters and clever boxers. Ranging from flyweight to heavyweight, it consists of George Adams, Dick Roche, Bertrand White, Tim Dalton, Jimmy Hunt, Bill Johnson, Reedy Evans and Walter Moore. In winning their city championships, these boys showed that they have what it takes to shift for themselves in the speedy company they'll encounter during the battles in the Stadium.

Fans who gather in the big arena tomorrow night will find two rings set up. This will assure fast and brilliant action. Thru hour after hour of spectacular fighting there won't be a single lull in the program. Golden Gloves shows are noted for the pace at which they move—starting on time and stepping right along without delay. This is made possible by an exceptionally efficient group of referees, judges, timers, clerks, and announcers.

Three Champions to Return.

Many strong fighters from previous tournaments are back again. Three of last year's champions will be bidding for further honors. These are Morris Corona and Tom Attra, both of the Fort Worth team, and Jack Graves of Minneapolis. Attra will defend his light heavyweight title. Corona, who was lightweight champion last year, and Graves, who was king of the 118 pounders, have both moved up to the next heaviest class this time.

Cleveland, which annually has one of the strongest teams in the tournament, is confident of continued success. Its roster includes two National A. A. U. champions—Leroy Jackson and Samson Powell—and the veteran Golden Glove performer, Chuck Hunter.

Milwaukee's Forrest Gee, who attracted considerable attention by his impressive boxing in last year's tournament, is back again in quest of a title. He lost a close decision in last season's semi-finals.

Oklahoman Is Back.

Oklahoma City's Proctor Heinold, who went to the finals last year before losing to Sammy Derrico of

Syracuse Five Beaten, 50-48 By Marquette

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 20 [Special].—After leading most of the way, once by 13 points, the Marquette university basketball team was hard pressed to edge out Syracuse university, 50 to 48, tonight.

The Hilltoppers enjoyed 11 to 4 and 17 to 10 leads in the first half before Syracuse tied it, 25 to 25, but the local team went on to a 31 to 25 half time advantage. Continuing its pace in the second half, Marquette once was ahead, 43 to 30, at which stage it lost Center Ray Kuffel on fouls. The Orangemen rallied, but weren't quite able to catch up. Lineup:

DODDS WINS 1ST RACE OF SEASON IN BAXTER MILE

Runs Away from Field in New York A. C. Games.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student, looked like the Dodds of 1942 tonight as he scored his first victory of the indoor track season with a 4:08.8 performance in taking the Baxter mile at the New York A. C. games in Madison Square Garden before 10,000.

Beaten in the Millrose games by Indiana's Earl Mitchell and in the Boston A. A. meet by New York university's Frank Dixon, the bespectacled theologian took the lead early in the race and held it to the end. He hit the quarter mile pole in 62.7 seconds, ran the second in 59.7, the third in 62.5, and the final 440 in 63.9 to finish 15 yards in front of Dartmouth's Don Burnham.

Short Wins 500.

Burnham got up in the final strides to take second place from Dixon with fourth going to Jim Rafferty of the New York A. C. Mitchell, fading before the terrific pace, dropped far back and was last in the field of five.

Hugh Short, Georgetown's quarter miler, bowed out of intercollegiate competition by taking the Buermeyer 500 yard run for his third straight victory over the boards this season. Short, who enters service next week, took the lead at the start, set a 50.4 second pace to the quarter mile pole, and then pulled away to win by 10 yards from Jimmy Herbert of New York's Grand Street Boys' club in 58 seconds. The time was nine-tenths of a second off the world record set by Colgate's Al Diebolt last year.

Rice Wins Again.

Gregory Rice, America's greatest distance runner, racked up his 59th successive victory in winning the two miles from Oliver Hunter of Notre Dame in 8:58.5. The race was strictly a Rice-Hunter duel with Greg setting all the pace and Hunter keeping within five yards until the last lap.

Then Rice cut loose with his famous sprint, crossing the finish line with 20 yards to spare. His time of 8:58.5 was the fastest two miles of the season.

Michigan State Beats Illinois in Track, 62-42

East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20 [Special].—Michigan State's track team tonight came thru with a 62 to 42 victory over a previously undefeated University of Illinois squad.

The Spartans swept the 75 yard dash and the 75 yard low hurdles. The Spartans also took eight first places against four for Illinois. Illinois showed its greatest strength in the distance events with three of its four individual victories. A total of seven new meet records were established and wto were tied.

Hugh Davis, Spartan Negro dash man, led the individual performers by capturing the broad jump and the 75 yard dash. Herb Matter of Illinois, who scored eight points in three events, was second.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Seib, Illinois; Scott, Michigan State, second; Dunn, Illinois, third. Time, 4:19.

75 YARD DASH—Won by Davis, Michigan State; Bodoh, Michigan State, second; McCarthy, Michigan State, third.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Fraser, Michigan State; Kelley, Illinois, second; Kaulitz, Michigan State, third. Time, :50.8.

75 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Dodge, Michigan State; Carrier, Michigan State, second; Buschman, Michigan State, third. Time, :9.7.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Dunn, Illinois; Page, Michigan State, second; Gladding, Illinois, third. Time, 9:38.5.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Milne, Michigan State; Matter, Illinois, second; tie for third between Crane and Christianson, Illinois. Height, 6 feet 3⅝ inches.

POLE VAULT—Won by Wonch, Michigan State; tie for second between Matter and Crane, Illinois. Height, 13 feet.

75 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Abbott, Illinois; Carrier, Michigan State, second; McCarthy, Michigan State, third. Time, :8.9.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Michigan State by forfeit.

MICHIGAN STATE IS BEATEN, 43-31, BY CAMP GRANT

Camp Grant, Ill., Feb. 20 (AP).—Trailing, 17 to 16, at the half, Camp Grant's soldiers overcame Michigan State's defensive tactics tonight to win their 30th basketball victory in 32 games, 43 to 31.

With the soldiers' top scorer of the season, Don Blanken, effectively held to three points by the guarding of Al Peppler, Michigan State swung into the lead at the rest period after the count had been tied twice in the first period.

At the start of the final half, Stan Szukala poured in two quick baskets to send Camp Grant into a 20 to 17 lead and the warriors were never headed thereafter. With nine minutes to play Michigan State had trimmed the score to 29 to 26, but Szukala and center Ernest Herbrechtsmeier began hitting to shove Camp Grant into a decisive win.

Dan Pjesky, Michigan State guard, and Mickey Rottner, soldier guard, split scoring honors with 10 points apiece. Lineup:

Second to Go: Ohio State Five Wins, 46 to 44

Columbus, O., Feb. 20 [Special].—Dick Shrider, substitute forward, made a field goal tonight in the final second of play to give Ohio State a 46 to 44 victory over the Michigan basketball team. With little more than a minute to go, Shrider had tied the game at 44-44 with a free throw. It was the Buckeyes' third victory in eight Big Ten games and Michigan's seventh loss in nine. Lineup:

PURDUE, 49; IOWA, 35

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 20 [Special].—Purdue's basketball team defeated Iowa here tonight, 49 to 35, to pull up to a .500 rating in the Big Ten race with five triumphs against the same number of defeats.

Purdue's victory largely was due to the accurate shooting of Ed Ehlers, sophomore guard, and Jack Kennedy, sophomore center. Ehlers picked up eight field goals and added three free throws for high point honors of the evening with 21. Kennedy scored six baskets.

Capt. Ben Trickey of the Iowa led the Hawkeyes with six field goals and one free throw.

There was little to choose between the two quintets in the first half when Purdue was hard pressed to earn a 22 to 19 margin.

SOLDIER'S MEDAL IS AWARDED TO MICHIGAN STAR

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Lt. Elmer J. Gedeon of MacDill field, a former University of Michigan athlete and major league baseball player, has been awarded the soldier's medal for the rescue of a fellow crew member trapped in the burning wreckage of an army bomber.

Lt. Gedeon was navigator of the bomber which crashed in a takeoff from the municipal airport at Raleigh, N. C., last August.

Presentation of the medal to the Cleveland, O., flyer was made by Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, commanding general of the 3d air force.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Feb. 20 (AP).—The fourth try proved successful tonight as the Cape Girardeau Teachers downed Carbondale Teachers, 52 to 48.

MICHIGAN BEATS OHIO STATE IN SWIMMING MEET

Five Western Conference Records Broken.

Columbus, O., Feb. 20 (AP).—Michigan's swimming team defeated Ohio State, 43½ to 40½, here today for its second victory over the Buckeyes this season. Five Big Ten records were bettered as Ohio State sought vainly to avenge its 52 to 38 defeat at Ann Arbor last month.

Keo Nakama, Ohio State sophomore from Hawaii, was the only double winner. Nakama led Capt. John Patten of Michigan by a stroke to win the 220 yard free style event in 2:12.7 and better the conference mark of 2:13.6 set by Haynie of Michigan in 1938. The Hawaiian took the 440 yard free style in 4:52.2, finishing some six feet ahead of Watt Stewart of Michigan.

Jim Counsilman, Buckeye star who last week broke two world marks and equalled another, took the 200 yard breast stroke in 2:22.1, to better the 2:23.9 record set by Kasley of Michigan in 1936.

Relay Teams Make Records.

Michigan relay teams bettered the other records. The 300 yard medley team of Holliday, Levy, and Kivi was victorious in 2:54.3, shading the 2:56.8 record set by Ohio State in 1939, and the 400 yard free style squad of Church, Freis, Holliday, and Patten, won in 3:30.4 to better the 3:32.4 record set by Michigan in 1940.

Harry Holliday, Michigan sophomore, besides competing in both relay events, distanced Ohio Capt. Mark Folansbee to win the 150 yard back stroke in 1:33.3 and better the conference mark of 1:36.8. Summaries:

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Michigan [Holliday, Levy, Kivi]. Time, 2:54.3 [betters Big Ten record of 2:56.8 set by Ohio State, 1939].

Illinois Mat Team Defeats Purdue, 16-12

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 20 [Special].—Illinois' wrestling team won its third straight Big Ten meet today by defeating Purdue, 1942 Western conference champion, 16 to 12.

The Illini led, 16 to 3, after the 155 pound bout, but decisions by Velmar Davis, 165; Warren Eviston, 175, and Frank Ruggieri, heavyweight, narrowed the gap. Ruggieri, 214 pound Big Ten champion, dealt Alex Agase, Illinois captain his first defeat of the season, Agase spotted Ruggieri 30 pounds.

Falls by Ed Bernardoni, 121, and John Bartley, 128, provided the victory. Bernardoni was wrestling his last match before entering the army air corps next week. Other Illini winners were Roland Rayburn, 145, and Kirk Perry, 155. A fourth Purdue victor was Dan Nettesheim, 136. Summaries:

128 POUNDS—Bartley, Illinois, pinned Sowards, Purdue, leg scissors and head lock. Time, 5:45.

BADGER MATMEN WIN

Bill Ivy, Northwestern's star heavyweight wrestler, won his third straight victory of the season yesterday, but his mates did not fare as well, and the Wildcats were beaten by Wisconsin, 18 to 16, in Patten gymnasium. Each team won four first places.

Ivy pinned Russ Hedges of the Badgers with a half nelson in 8:34 seconds. Two of Wisconsin's victories were by falls. Bob Witt threw Bob Hedges in the 135 pound class and George Shampo pinned Pete Andrews in the 175 pound division. Summaries:

121 POUNDS—Weber, Northwestern, threw Madigan, Wisconsin. Time, 3:40.

175 POUNDS—Shampo, Wisconsin, threw Andrews, Northwestern. Time, 2:12.

Hawks, Leafs Meet Tonight on Stadium Ice

Games Tonight

Montreal Canadiens at New York Rangers.

Boston Bruins at Detroit Red Wings.

Toronto Maple Leafs at Chicago.

The Blackhawks, properly shod for the occasion, will glide around on the Chicago Stadium ice tonight with the idea of keeping alive their hopes to survive as National Hockey league eligibles for the Stanley cup playoffs. Opposing them will be another hopeful—the Toronto Maple Leafs—who are custodians of the historic mug emblematic of the world title, but who also have skated on thin ice thus far in the race.

At the moment, the Hawks are in fifth place, having dropped a notch last night when the Montreal Canadiens defeated the New York Rangers, 6 to 1.

Hawks Have Seven Road Games.

The Hawks' struggle to skate their way into the cup play is further complicated by the schedule. They have been strangely feeble as tourists this season, skimming off most of their victory cream on home ice, and 7 of their 11 games still to be played will be staged en route. Three of these are booked for this week—at Boston Tuesday, New York Thursday, and Toronto Saturday. They'll be back on the Stadium ice next Sunday against the Bruins.

Four of the league's point getters will mix tonight. Lorne Carr, Toronto right wing, has been fighting Bill Cowley, Boston's ace, for the league leadership for the last two months and Billy Taylor has been among the six leaders almost from the drop of the first disc back in November.

Max and Doug Tied for Second.

The Hawks' Bentleys—Max and Doug—were tied for second place in the standings after last Thursday's game. The brothers have accounted for 54 points apiece. Turk Broda holds a slight lead over Bert Gardiner in the matter of being scored on to date.

Dr. H. F. Meacham, Blackhawks' physician, will make a decision this morning in the case of Bill Thoms, who was injured in the Hawks-Canadiens' game last Thursday, as to whether the right wing of hockey's higest scoring line would be able to play tonight. If Thoms is not available, the line again will become a family affair with a Bentley manning every post. The other lines will remain unchanged.

Cully Dahlstrom, too, is ailing and may not be able to take the ice tonight.

ST. LOUIS TEAM LEADS BOWLIUM MEET WITH 3,832

The Budweisers of St. Louis, Mo., took the lead in the Bowlium's second annual five man bowling classic last night as they compiled a four game score of 3,832 pins to pace the field of 28 teams which competed in the first squad. The Missourians averaged 958 for their four games.

The first ten teams of the first squad:

Smalley Liquors of Milwaukee, 3,818; Chapin & Gore of Chicago, 3,807; Heil Quality Products of Milwaukee, 3,796; Wegner Builders of Milwaukee, 3,783; Vogle Brothers of Forest Park, 3,746; Curtiss Baby Ruth of Chicago, 3,692; Employers Mutual of Milwaukee, 3,654; Sunkist Pies of Chicago, 3,652; Broadway Hardware of Chicago, 3,646.

MAROON FENCERS BEAT N. U. FOR 3D IN ROW, 16 TO 11

The University of Chicago's fencing team maintained its undefeated status by scoring its third straight Big Ten dual meet victory, 16 to 11, over Northwestern in the west stand at Stagg field yesterday afternoon. Two Maroon fencers were undefeated—Bob O'Donnell, who swept his epee opponents, and Carl Dragstadt, who won his three saber bouts and also scored an epee victory. Price Kirkpatrick of Northwestern, was undefeated in the foils competition.

Northwestern took an early lead on a 5 to 4 victory in foils, but Chicago captured the sabre, 5 to 4, and the epee bouts, 7 to 2. Summaries:

BIG 10 FRESHMAN BAN EXPECTED TO BE LIFTED TODAY

Representatives to Open Meeting This Morning.

Western conference faculty representatives and athletic directors will gather in Chicago today in a special meeting to lift the freshman rule for the second time in the history of the Big Ten. The same action was taken in the first World war.

The faculty men, who possess the power of altering the eligibility rules, will open the day's dual session this morning in the University club, and the directors will follow with an afternoon meeting in the Sherman hotel to discuss spring schedules and make additional plans for the regular gathering March 5 and 6 at the time of the Big Ten indoor track meet at the University of Chicago.

Notre Dame Invited.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the conference, also has extended a special invitation to the Rev. John Cavanaugh, vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the athletic board, to send a representative. In view of the fact the Irish eligibility rules are identical with those of the Big Ten, Notre Dame also is expected to waive the freshman rule.

If the present plans are followed the freshmen will become eligible for spring sports and will maintain that status for the duration.

When the conference officials gathered for their winter meeting Dec. 2, 1942, they expressed themselves in favor of abrogating the freshman rule, but decided to defer action on it until the exigencies of war necessitated it. The recent calling to active duty of the enlisted student reserves prompted today's meeting.

Passage Expected.

There is some known opposition among the faculty men to rescinding the rule that will allow the freshmen to compete on varsity teams, but it is believed a sufficient number favor it to comprise the majority vote of 6 of the 10 members to pass the proposal.

Prof. Ralph W. Aigler of Michigan, chairman of the committee, will preside at today's faculty meeting. Other representatives expected to attend are: Prof. Thomas E. French, Ohio State; Prof. Frank E. Richart, Illinois; Dean Aaron J. Brumbaugh, Chicago; Prof. Lee Norvelle, Indiana; Dr. Karl E. Leib, Iowa; Prof. Henry Rottschaefer, Northwestern; Prof. J. A. Estey, Purdue, and Dr. W. F. Lorenz, Wisconsin.

Service Funds Get $10,160 from Badgers

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20 [Special].—Athletic Director Harry Stuhldreher announced today that the University of Wisconsin was contributing $10,160.68 to the army and navy relief fund in accordance with a Western conference suggestion of last spring that a share of the receipts of 1942 games be given to the funds.

Stuhldreher revealed that the athletic board had approved the contribution, which represents Wisconsin's total net share of the two football games—Camp Grant at Madison and the Great Lakes Naval Training station at Soldiers' field, Chicago. The Badgers, incidentally, won both games defeating Camp Grant, 7 to 0, and Great Lakes, 13 to 7.

The Badger athletic director explained that Wisconsin's contribution was limited to the total amount of the university's share of the gate receipts from these two games because, under state law, the university as a department of the state government, cannot legally appropriate funds for any purpose. This privilege is reserved to the state legislature only.

"We are very happy here at Wisconsin that we can make this contribution to such a worthy cause," Stuhldreher said. "We participated in the Big 10 agreement to turn over what monies we could to the army-navy relief fund from our 1942 football receipts. We are contributing as much as it is legally possible for us to do, and we are very glad to be able to make this contribution at this time."

WOMEN'S A. A. U. SWIM MEET TO BE HELD IN MEDINAH

The Medinah Club of Chicago will be the site of the National A. A. U. women's senior swimming and diving tournament on April 9, 10, and 11. Walter Schleuter, Medinah athletic director, made the announcement after receiving acceptance of his bid from Mrs. Elsie Vietz Jennings, chairman of the association's committee.

Entry of at least 75, including Gloria Callen of the New York Women's Swimming association and 11 other defending title holders, is expected.

The Medinah club will enter a strong team, among the candidates being Dorothy Ziegler, 17 year old Lake View High school student, who won the national junior diving championship in the Medinah pool last month.

Defer Meeting of State Race Track Operators

A meeting of all Illinois race track operators, scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed, Maj. Ednyfed Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board announced yesterday. The meeting, called to determine the status of those tracks not affected by regulations of the office of defense transportation, probably will be held early in March.

ROOM FOR SAILOR SWIMMERS

This is the world's largest indoor swimming pool, dedicated at Great Lakes Naval Training station Friday. General view shows 1,500 recruits around tank which is 165 feet long and 75 feet wide. The pool accommodates 700 sailors for each swimming period. Cy Nelson of Chicago, one of the station's 50 swimming instructors, stands on diving board.

Sports in Service

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Camp Grant.

LOU WOODS, professional middleweight of Detroit, made his first appearance as a soldier boxer at this camp by outpointing Bud Benoit, pro fighter from New York, in an added feature on the Service Men's Amateur Boxing league card in the Service club here Thursday. . . . Benoit represented 87th Street Naval Training school, which was beaten by Camp Grant in the league match, 6 bouts to 2. . . . It was the khaki clad fighters' second match of the week in league competition. . . . They held Fort Custer to a 4 to 4 draw at Fort Custer on Monday. . . . As a result of these achievements against 87th street and Fort Custer, the team went into a tie for the leadership of the circuit with Navy Pier. . . . Camp Grant now has a record of seven triumphs and four draws as against one defeat, while the Pier has scored seven victories and three deadlocks while suffering one setback. . . . The men were seconded by Sergt. Georgie Toy, Golden Gloves graduate, and Ike Bernstein, Illinois Athletic commission inspector, who is helping coach the Camp Grant battlers. . . . Lt. Col. Frank A. Bush, camp special service officer, has completed plans to conduct an open basketball tournament for unit teams. . . . The event is to open Wednesday with 14 teams vieing for the championship. . . . The 26th battalion outfit has been installed the pre-tourney favorite. . . . Seven Camp Grant Warrior basketball players have registered more than 100 points to date. . . . These are Don Blanken, 291; Mickey Rottner, 253; Ray Adams, 208; Stan Szukala, 176; George Hogan, 166; Ernest Herbrechtsmeier, 161, and Joe Frivaldsky, 105.

Lt. Col. Frank A. Bush.

Great Lakes.

CHIEF Specialist Robert Antonacci, rough and tumble instructor at this establishment and former intercollegiate wrestling champion while attending Indiana, and Miss Mary Brown of Waukegan will be married March 6. . . . Marvin Asher of 3847 West 15th street, Chicago, last week defeated William Tomczyk, Boston, and Billy Sutton, Kansas City, Mo., to capture the ping-pong championship of the 21st and 23d regiments. . . . The Great Lakes quintet will meet Marquette on the station Wednesday, and Minnesota in Minneapolis Saturday. . . . The Gophers were one of five teams to beat the sailor players last season. . . . Baseball and football, in addition to basketball, are the only teams permitted to engage in off the station competition, but it is likely boxing may be included in the select group soon. . . . Lt. Comm. J. Russell Cook, athletic officer here, recently said the men now are receiving a three months' training course, sufficient to enable them to compete in outside boxing matches if the previous order barring this item is rescinded in Washington. . . . Previously recruits were given only three weeks' training. . . . Recruit boxers from the 8th and 10th regiments battled to a draw, 3 bouts to 3, in a recent tournament in drill hall 800 before 2,500 spectators. . . . Winners included Ford Wilder, Batesville, Ind., and Paul Zubac, Detroit heavyweight. . . . The 23d regiment beat the 21st on another fight card. . . . Gene Watson, Chicago welterweight, knocked out Rex Hall, Boone, Ia. . . . Louis Potilechio, 3842 West 15th street, Chicago, was awarded a decision over his brother Dan in a wrestling match.

Fort Sheridan.

FRANK McELYEA, 6 foot 4 inch center on this fort's basketball team, helped his team beat Joliet Junior college in Joliet last Monday by scoring 12 points despite the fact his duties on that day included a 19 mile hike. . . . Ed Bogdanski of Chicago, the quintet's leading scorer, missed the train, got lost, and finally arrived in Joliet at half time. . . . He contributed eight points in Fort Sheridan's 60 to 47 victory. . . . The game was played under the direction of Maj. Elbert M. Hartom, the fort's special services officer. . . . Fans were surprised when Fort Sheridan's squad snapped Camp Grant's string of 24 victories on Feb. 13, but the achievement did not excite Maj. Hartom. . . . As far back as Jan. 20 he had predicted his squad would score an upset. . . . Of the players who started the season on the Fort Sheridan delegation, only two, Bogdanski and Don Lee, were in the lineup against Camp Grant. . . . Newcomers included Bob Sewartz, Erv Dusak, Pat Hagiawara, and McElyea.

Navy Pier.

CHIEF PETTY OFFICER JOE WALKER, Pier boxing coach, has been behind his brother Mickey in the former world welterweight and middleweight champion's bouts in large arenas in various parts of the United States, but he will be making his debut as a second in Chicago Stadium tomorrow. . . . On that occasion Joe will handle Dick Roche when the Pier representative tries his luck against the best bantamweight fighters in the vast Golden Gloves territory in the Tournament of Champions in the huge west side arena. The famous Mickey will come to Chicago to serve as godfather to Joe's child, which is expected to arrive next month. . . . Joe, who is 33 years old, prepped at St. Benedict's in Newark and matriculated at Fordham university. . . . Before joining the service, Ensign Howard M. Paul, press relations officer in the athletic department, wrote publicity for Milwaukee newspapers. . . . He was graduated from Marquette university. . . . Machinist Mate Louis Gheta, fight trainer at this station, once was a member of the boxing team at Forsteihi High school in Dearborn, Mich. . . . Gheta, who is 25 years old, has been in the navy five years. . . . Former Chief Petty Officer Jack Smith, who for the last 10 months has been in charge of the wrestling and jujitsu classes here, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the marines.

Joe Walker.

Chanute Field.

LT. JOSEPH SCHOENBERGER recently became a physical training officer at this army air forces technical training command school. . . . Lt. Schoenberger, who is a former professional light heavyweight boxer from St. Louis named Joey Parks, will supervise classes in jujitsu. . . . John Lee wrote a brilliant finish to a high scoring cage career by counting 32 points in his last game before being transferred to another station a few days ago. . . . Members of the Sports Arena staff have adopted a chick as their mascot. . . . This black and white speckled bird was turned over to the enlisted personnel by Maj. E. F. Resek, special services officer. . . . The stage is set for a combination boxing and basketball program Thursday.

WILLIAM D. COX BUYS PHILS FROM NATIONAL LEAGUE

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 20 (AP).—Husky 33 year old William D. [Bill] Cox, New York lumberman, purchased the last place Phils from the National league today. The price was not disclosed, but unofficial estimates placed it in the neighborhood of $230,000.

Thus Cox, who in grammar school days used to watch the New York Yankees play in the Polo grounds, realized a boyhood ambition of owning a major league baseball club, and the league solved what its president, Ford Frick, termed the Philadelphia problem.

Frick Makes Statement.

The transaction in which Cox and his syndicate of 10 unnamed associates purchased the club took place in the Phils' downtown office. Frick called reporters into the office where on Thursday the league had formally taken over the club from Gerry Nugent and read the following statement:

"The National league has today signed a memorandum of agreement with William D. Cox and his associates for the purchase of the Philadelphia National league club. This agreement will turn the club over to Cox and his associates March 3.

"Mr. Cox and his associates have given assurance to the league of their ability to finance and conduct the club in a manner to make it a source of pride both to the league and the fans of Philadelphia."

To Open Office Soon.

While Cox, former Yale university catcher, sat beside him, Frick continued: "I believe we have solved the Philadelphia problem. He is not a miracle man. I don't want any one to think the Phils will get into the world series this year. We all know it will take years to build the club up."

Cox declared he would get to work first thing Monday morning cleaning up some loose ends in his New York office and return to Philadelphia Tuesday or Wednesday.

"First thing we've got to do," he said "is to arrange for a spring training site. I haven't read any of the correspondence, but I understand there are several offers since the plan to train at Swarthmore college was abandoned. Neither do we plan to sell any players."

Lobert May Be Coach.

Cox said he would disclose the names of his 10 associates sometime next week. At that time he also plans to announce his selection of a business manager and possibly his field manager.

In this connection he mentioned the name of Bill Dickey, catcher of the New York Yankees, Frank [Lefty] O'Doul, manager of the San Francisco Seals, and Pepper Martin, manager of the Rochester Red Wings. He indicated Hans Lobert, who managed the Phils last year, had been offered a coaching job, but added "I haven't talked with Lobert yet."

PHILS HIS PROBLEM

ARMY CALLS 66 RESERVES FROM NORTH CENTRAL

North Central college's entire quota of army enlisted reserve corps men has been ordered to active duty Saturday at Fort Sheridan. Of the 66 reserve members, 5 are on the basketball team which plays its last game of the season here Friday against Illinois Wesleyan.

Eddie Grau, starting forward, Glenn Mast, starting guard, and Charles Faust, Frank Novatny, and Arthur Ontko, are the E. R. C. men on the basketball team. One starting guard, Dick Smith, has received his notice from the air corps and will not play Friday. The other two men on the starting lineup, Jim Bates, in the navy V-1, and Tom Wedsworth, a pre-ministerial student, are not affected.

Only 3 of the original 14 members on North Central's swimming team have not been called for service. Altho Coach Warrick has made no definite plans, the meet scheduled with Illinois Wesleyan in Bloomington may have to be canceled.

Track will go on as scheduled unless naval reserve members are called. the track team has been affected by the draft, but some of its outstanding members, co-captains Paul Stark and Jack Preston, I. C. C. champions, are in the naval reserve,

HOLD FOILS MEET TODAY.

A novice men's foils meet will be held in the University of Chicago gymnasium at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

EVERY CAR OWNER

Can Have His

TIRES RECAPPED

No Rationing Certificate Required

EVERY ONE of the 27,000,000 passenger cars in the United States is an essential part of America's transportation system. To keep these cars in service and at the same time to conserve the nation's precious reserve supply of rubber, the government now permits every car owner to have his tires recapped without securing a rationing certificate. The object of this new order is to encourage car owners to have their tires recapped before they are unfit for further use. This is the best way to conserve America's greatest rubber stock pile—the tires that are now on the nation's cars.

FOR LONGEST MILEAGE

And Guaranteed Quality

INSIST UPON

Firestone

Factory-Controlled Recapping

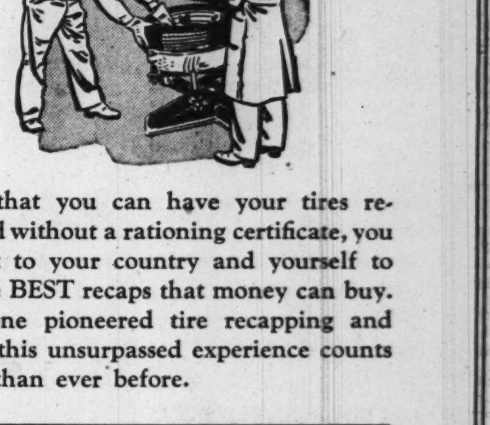
★ Uniform High-Quality Materials and Workmanship Because the Firestone Method of Recapping is Factory-Controlled.

★ Better Service Because Firestone has the largest nation-wide system of recapping in America.



Now that you can have your tires recapped without a rationing certificate, you owe it to your country and yourself to get the BEST recaps that money can buy. Firestone pioneered tire recapping and today this unsurpassed experience counts more than ever before.

HERE'S ALL YOU HAVE TO DO!

Drive in and have your tires inspected by our experienced tire specialists. They will tell you whether or not your tires need recapping. If they do, our men will make all the necessary arrangements. That's all you have to do. Easy, isn't it? So why delay?

BAY MEADOWS FANS ARRIVE, ONE WAY OR ANOTHER

Stage Coach, Street Cars, Feet Take 'Em to Races.

San Mateo, Cal., Feb. 20 (AP).—Horse racing opened at Bay Meadows today in a war tempered setting that saw part of the 6,750 fans reach the track by street car, horse drawn vehicle, bicycle, and on foot.

Rubber Administrator William Jeffers' admonition that automobiles must not be used to reach the track, approximately 20 miles from San Francisco, was rigidly observed by Bay Meadows officials who blocked off the general parking area. But many automobiles were parked along a nearby highway within easy walking distance.

Street cars were crowded from early morning with riders scrambling for seats and standing room as vigorously as customers at a department store bargain counter.

Stage Coach Hauls Fans.

Not only San Francisco and the smaller cities closer to the track were represented. A mid-morning trolley carried John Babaco and Don Gazzera, who had left Sacramento at 6 o'clock this morning.

At San Mateo proper, hundreds of fans waited for horse drawn accommodations provided by Bay Meadows to haul them to the track, a mile and a half distant.

Among the antiquated rolling stock acquired for the purpose was a Wells Fargo overland mail coach, originally used in the gold rush days of '49. Hundreds of fans footed the distance in a bunion derby unparalleled in California racing.

William P. Kyne, general manager of Bay Meadows, said the crowd was approximately one-third off from normal times, nearly 7,000 as against 10,000 on the Oct. 3 opening day of the 1942 fall meeting.

Mutuel Play Good.

The pari-mutuel handle exceeded expectations, the total being $226,818, compared to the last opening day figure of $303,000.

Liquid Lunch, 3 year old filly, won today's feature race, the six furlongs inaugural purse. Time for the race was 1:11 4-5. Iron Barge and Super Justice, runing as an entry of H. N. Isenberg, Riverside, Cal., finished second and third, respectively.

Officials Up in Air as Prep Fives Battle

New Trier and Oak Park High schools of the Suburban league played under the crow's nest form of officiating last night in Winnetka with the home team emerging the winner, 46 to 37, before a capacity crowd of 3,500. It was a nonleague game.

For the first time in Chicagoland the spectators were able to watch the officials work from platforms suspended over the baskets. Infractions of rules were announced by the officials thru a public address system.

Four Officials Work.

In all there were four officials, two on the floor on the sidelines and two in the crow's nests. The floor officials appeared on the court only to toss the ball on a held ball.

The play was speeded with neither team taking any time outs. Both teams employed a fast breaking offense, rushing the ball towards the opponent's goal as soon as receiving control.

New Trier Rallies.

Both coaches substituted freely and New Trier had to come from behind to win. In a previous league game New Trier handed Oak Park one of its three league defeats, 32 to 31. Lineup:

FORT WAYNE FIVE WINS FIRST OF PLAYOFFS, 49-37

Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 20 [Special].—The Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons tonight won their 17th game in their last 19 starts, defeating the Chicago Studebakers, 49 to 37, in the first of a three game National Basketball league ployoff series.

The Hoosiers, champions of the pro circuit, led thruout. Bobby McDermott, Zollner guard who captured the individual scoring crown during the regular season with 304 points in 22 games, paced the point getters again tonight with 16 points.

The second game of the series will be played Monday night in Chicago at the Du Sable High school gym.

REDSKINS WIN, 50-38.

Sheboygan, Wis., Feb. 20 [Special].—The Sheboygan Redskins defeated the Oshkosh All-Stars, 50 to 38, tonight in the first game of the playoff series in the National Basketball league. Dancker of Sheboygan led the scoring with 13 points.

CAMPION GETS 28-23 REVENGE ON MT. CARMEL

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Feb. 20 [Special].—Campion academy defeated Mount Carmel High school of Chicago, 28 to 23, here tonight to avenge a defeat a week ago. Campion forged ahead in the first part of the game and led 16 to 12 at the half. Lineup:

Joliet College Defeats Pier in Overtime, 50-48

George Wilcox, a substitute guard, scored a basket in the last 50 seconds of an overtime period to give the Joliet junior college quintet a 50 to 48 victory over Navy Pier in the Joliet High school gymnasium last night. The score at regulation time wes, 48 to 48. Navy Pier led at the intermission, 22 to 19.

Hold Services for Notre Dame Basket Coach

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 20 [Special].—Funeral services were held today for George Keogan, Notre Dame basketball coach, who died last Wednesday. Services were held in Sacred Heart church on the Notre Dame campus. The Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, celebrated the solemn funeral mass. Frank Leahy, Notre Dame head football coach, came from Florida to join with others in last tribute to Keogan. Members of the basketball team were pall bearers.

Burial was in Highland cemetery, near the plot holding the body of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's famous football coach. Rockne was athletic director in 1923, and signed Keogan to his first contract at Notre Dame.

EDDLEMAN GETS 26; ILLINI FROSH TRIM CHARLESTON

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 20 [Special].—Dwight Eddleman scored 26 points today as the Illinois freshmen basketball team defeated Charleston Teachers, Illinois Intercollegiate conference leader, 54 to 44. Behind, 22 to 19, at half time, the winners, sparked by Eddleman and 6 foot 7 inch Fred Green took the lead midway thru the second half. Green scored 14 points, while Larry Walker and Andy Sullivan made 12 and 10, respectively, for Charleston. It was the second defeat for Charleston at the hands of the Illini frosh, who won, 54 to 35, last week. Lineup:

Jerry Glynn Is Named Pro at Park Ridge

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jerry Glynn.

Prof. Jerry Glynn, the handsome, silver haired Irishman who is reckoned one of the most astute teachers of women golfers in the game, is going to change classrooms. The switch was made known yesterday with the announcement by the Park Ridge Country club that it has signed Glynn as club professional for the 1943 season. Glenn will open school in the Park Ridge shop on April 1. He succeeds the veteran Jim Wilson, who will devote all of his time to the Old Southern club in Gulfport, Miss., where he has been stationed for many winters.

Glynn is a native of Chicago's south side and had his first contact with golf when 10 years old, when the game was recommended by doctors as a curative measure for a paralyzed left arm, sustained in a shooting accident. Later, he studied the fundamentals of club making in Klee's Jackson Park shop. Next he hired out as an assistant to Alex Taylor at Ravisloe.

Veteran of World War.

The first World war interrupted the Glynn career at this point, and he became one of the youngest pros in the country to enlist, serving on motor transport duty, including 18 months in France and seven more with the army of occupation in Germany.

After the war, Jerry returned to Ravisloe for a spell, then became head pro at the Danville, Ill., Country club, where he was the first to introduce group instruction for children 20 years ago. He then took a teaching post at Olympia Fields for two years, spent another three at Barrington, and returned to Olympia for six more seasons before going to Knollwood, where he has been stationed for the last six summers.

It was during his tenure at Olympia Fields that he began to concentrate on teaching women players. His prize product of that era was June Beebe [now Mrs. Philip T. Atwood], who won several Western championships and was a perennial contender in the National.

Develops Unique Method.

In recent years, Prof. Glynn developed a unique method of spring training for tournament golfers, in which a number of leading players have assembled for tutelage by Glynn in April and May. How well they have done in competition is reflected by the work of such pupils as Mrs. Lucille Robinson Mann, Mary Agnes Wall, Phyllis Otto, Ann Casey, Mrs. Ivy Mae Pilcher McDonald, Mrs. Charles Dennehy, and Nancy Johnson. All have indicated that they'll be on hand when the professor rings his school bell in the spring.

Jerry is the father of three sons, the oldest of whom, Jerry Jr., recently was sworn into the naval aviation reserve. Son Jerry, aged 17, assisted his dad at Knollwood last summer.

FISHERMAN ASKS WASHINGTON TO SET HIM STRAIGHT

Wants Line on Status of Angling and Sports.

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Outdoorman, here's a letter for you to read. It's about fishing and hunting and it's addressed to Charles E. Jackson, working for Uncle Sam in the office of coördinator of fisheries.

In a recent letter to us, Jackson wrote that the national plan to promote the utilization of millions of pounds of food fish that could be caught by sports fishermen in 1943 has been "slowed down." The idea is [as discussed in this column weeks ago] to fish for food in 1943, and thus add a tremendous tonnage of game fish to our food supply. Here's our reply to Mr. Jackson:

Fish Catch Astounding.

Dear Mr. Jackson: You have written me that if figures were available for every state on the amount of food fish caught each year by sports fishermen, the totals would astound us. You are right, because the few surveys made show that anglers bring home hundreds of millions of pounds each year. You yourself [an advocate of the plan to "fish for food" in 1943 and thus add to our dwindling food supplies] have stated that salt water anglers along could bring in between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 pounds of game fish—if the boys were given any kind of a chance to work their tackle and distribute their catches.

Mr. Jackson, is Washington aware of the economic value of the food that both fishermen and hunters could and should be asked to take from the outdoors in 1943? Do the powers that be realize that fishing and hunting are the only sports that put food on the table?

Follows All Sports.

I don't want you to get me wrong on this sports business. I am an ardent baseball fan and go to as many games as I can every year. I am keen about football and attend several games every fall. [On Saturdays in October and November when I'm hunting ducks down the river I take a portable radio into my blind so I can hear the broadcasts of the best games.]

You have asked the boys down east which contributes the largest amount of hot groceries to the pantry shelves and the dining room tables: a two dollar bet at the mutuel window or $2 spent for a fishing license so a fellow can get a darned good meal by catching a mess of croppies, bluegills, bass or catfish? Meat is scarce. They're asking us to raise more garden vegetables, practice meatless days, conserve our foods. All of us are glad to coöperate. But when they start dealing the cards around in 1943 I wish you'd remind 'em about the million of pounds of food that fishermen, duck hunters, deer hunters and other sportsmen could put on the tables this year if they got just a slight nod of encouragement.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

MOST OF Hyde Park Majors' scoring took place in the Mann Novelties-Du Bouchett match in which the Manns won a pair. The league's high man was Du Bouchetts' Ed Guthmann with 641. . . . Atlas Pragers ran their string to 14 games and increased their lead to 11 games by taking three from the Schneiders in the Pla-Mor Major. Barney Grogan [644] and Charlie Gordon [642] did the best solo shooting. . . . Chicago's most unusual league? It's made up of 24 teams, each composed of four men and a girl, from Republic Tool & Drill company. It shoots at Dearborn-Jackson at 1:30 Saturday mornings. . . . The Joe Gills will shoot for their sixth victory of the season in the week's Sunday sweepstakes, to be rolled tonight at Kaadland, 3249 North Ashland avenue. The lineup—with several post entries probable:

7 p. m.—Schlitz, Budweisers, U. S. Beers, Ambrosias, Nonebetters, Mineralites.
9:15—Monarchs, Washingtons, Thompsons, Primas, Gills, Fox De Luxe, Keeleys, Schambergers.

The Unity Statics won the President's cup in the Svithiod league's annual tournament in Lawrence bowl with 2,766. It was their second victory in three years. . . . Monarchs are leading in Gold Coast's handicap tournament with 3,042 and their captain, Bill Flesch, and Harry Ledene Jr., are pacing the doubles field with 1,344. F. Testo's 694 is high in the singles and A. Keslinke's 1,932 in the all events.

Alan Jones of Primas Rolls 705 and Team Wins Three.

V for Victory means just that in the Stack & Ryan Commercial league. The team so named won two from the Rostenkowskis and tied the losers for the league lead. . . . And in the Stack & Ryan Major, the Primas clipped Meister Brau for three, led by Alan Jones' 705, and moved to within a game of the league leading Meisters. . . . First place Gills vs. second place Mineralites will be the feature match in the Windy City Major tomorrow—and the 25 cent admission charge, which even bowlers will pay, is earmarked for Red Cross and U. S. O. Other matches:

Tomans vs. Nonebetters, Aces vs. Budweisers, Vogels vs. Sopers, Meister vs. Bee-Vac, Furmans vs. O'Keefes, Reichmans vs. Cascade, Kralovecs vs. Samuels.

Witt Hanley's 1,050 topped the team single game scores and Leo Berg's 652 was high solo series in Kaadland's Class Hick league. . . . Edelweiss took the odd game from the Hunters, consequently the records of the two top teams in the Greater Chicago Traveling league are: Edelweiss, 41-28; Hunters, 40-29. . . . Entries in the Craftsmen's 19th Annual National tournament—it's for Masons only—close at midnight next Sunday. The event is to run five week-ends starting March 13 at Legion alleys, 7550 Cottage Grove avenue. Math Luecker, 1738 Addison street, is secretary.

Lillian Koehler Shoots 674 Series in Mixed League.

High score in two Sunday night mixed leagues was Lillian Koehler's 674 on games of 219, 210, 245 at Pla-Mor. Men's high in the same league was Robert Elliott's 642. And in Glen Eagles' Mixed league at Evergreen Towers, Ducky Holmes was high with 672. Pearl Algar's 553 was top women's score. . . .

Cole Lenzi's sixth annual individual sweep takes place next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Lenzi center on Route 66, two miles south of La Grange. It is a four games across eight alleys event. The estimated prize list is $405, based on 225 entries. . . . Gold Crown Beers, runnersup in the North End Traveling league, with a one game advantage over the Keeleys, meet the Keeleys tomorrow night at 7 p. m. on the Kaadland alleys. Other matches:

Stack & Ryan Bowl vs. Schambergers at North Town, 7 p. m.; Hunters vs. Budweisers at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Pepsi-Colas vs. Baby Ruths at Monte Carlo, 7 p. m.; Chapin & Gore vs. Pogues at DeLuxe, 7 p. m.

Unique match of the week: Grandmothers [who are members of the Original Lawrence Bowl Ladies' league] vs. unmarried girls, at Lawrence Bowl next Friday. . . . The executive board of the Chicago Women's Bowling association meets at 1:30 this afternoon in the Morrison hotel. Proposed changes in the constitution will be taken up. All presidents of sanctioned leagues are asked to attend. . . . Individual star of the week in a women's league was Kay Freitag, who rolled 213, 240, 213—666 in the Congress Ladies' classic. Other women's scores:

EVERGREEN TOWERS—Isabelle Erxleben, 574; Jean Skworch, 570; Myrtle Piper, 559; Florence Geary, 538. STEVENSON'S—Grace Leiferman, 555; Flo Waterman, 568 and 529; Gladys Sines, 531; Evalin Ogden, 538; Gerda Johnson, 526. Auto Company Takes a Short Cut

Shown here is a new rivet sorting machine developed by the Fisher Body division of General Motors. Thousands of aluminum bolts used on a war job are put thru revolving cylinders of the type shown, which sort them as to size. Thousands of rivets which otherwise would be lost are retrieved by this production short cut.

History Finds Pan-American Indians First to Use Rubber

[This is the first of a series of articles on the history of rubber. Others will appear in this department of The Sunday Tribune.]

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—When Christopher Columbus discovered the western hemisphere in 1492 he saw Indians playing with a ball made of rubber. This is an unauthenticated report, but it is undisputed that the pre-Columbus residents of tropical North, South, and Central America were using rubber centuries before it was used in Europe, Asia, or Africa.

Rubber bearing plants are indigenous of tropical and subtropical Africa, Asia, East Indies, and Madagascar. Rubber, however, was not put to use until long after the explorers of the western hemisphere discovered it employed by the redskins of Pan-America.

Columbus, in his reports of his voyages, makes no mention of rubber. However, he is frequently accredited as the discoverer of rubber owing to the writings of Herrera, chronicler for Philip II. of Spain, who in 1601 to 1605, in narrating Columbus' voyages, said the natives in this new world played games with a ball "made of the gum of a tree" which, "altho heavy, would fly and bound better than those filled with wind in Spain."

Cortez's Secretary Mentions Rubber.

Martyre, secretary to the conqueror, Hernando Cortez, writing in 1511, related that the Aztecs played a game with a ball "made of the juice of a certain herb" which, upon "being stricken upon the ground but softly," . . . would rebound "incredibly into the air."

These first reports of sport on the western hemisphere have been verified by modern archaeological excavations in Yucatan, Honduras, and Arizona. It is definitely established that the tribes of tropical and semi-tropical North, South, and Central America, while lacking in intercommunication, nevertheless had in common the enjoyment and also the utilization of rubber.

The recreational use is the most romantic in that these aboriginal games probably were the forerunners of soccer, tennis, handball, and other contests in which a ball is rebounded among players. Excavations have uncovered walled courts designed for these contests.

Made Use of Latex.

Practical uses also were made of the gummy vegetable milk now known as latex. The Amazonian Indians made shoes and jars. They smeared the gum on their feet as protection against cuts and bruises. They smeared it on their bodies to retain ornamental feathers. They made syringes, water guns, to squirt at each other at parties.

In Mexico the Aztecs made shields of rubber. They also waterproofed fabric with the gum, but it is uncertain whether this development came before or after their contact with Europeans. They made a shoe with a lopsided sole to make the step of court jesters wobble.

Europe, upon receiving these reports, gave them little mind. The monarchs were engrossed in territorial expansions and in a hunt for gold and silver.

de la Condamine a Good Reporter.

It was not until more than a century later that Europe was impressed by the reports of rubber in America. Charles Marie de la Condamine awakened the white race to its first interest in this material. He landed here in 1736 to measure an arc of the meridian on the equator for the Paris Academy of Science. After performing this geodetic assignment between the ranges of the Andes he detoured to explore the Amazon, returning to Europe in 1745.

Condamine wrote prolifically and factually. He was a good reporter. He told of the Indians extracting milk from the hevea tree and of their using this milk to waterproof fabrics just as wax was being used in Europe for this purpose. He also reported on cinchona, the source of quinine. All in all, his trip contributed to man's knowledge of the shape and size of the earth, his knowledge of a most utilitarian agricultural product, and his knowledge of a drug that would make the tropics penetrable by white races.

Rubber Is Exported to Portugal.

In the next half century, stimulated by Condamine's writing, rubber was exported to Portugal, its chemical properties were being explored by scientists, and the latex was also discovered in trees, vines, and shrubs of Madagascar, Mauritius, Penang, Sumatra, and India. In 1759 King Joseph of Portugal had received a pair of rubber shoes and a rubber impregnated raincoat from the western hemisphere.

Portugal closed the Amazon to trade, but it was opened after King John VI. fled to Brazil in 1808 to escape Napoleon. In 1820 the first rubber shoes from Brazil arrived in America. By 1850 these imports had increased to 300,000 pairs a year. In 1860 exports of rubber had reached 2,670 tons a year; in 1900 it was 30,000 tons.

Peak Year Produces 83,000 Tons.

The peak year for wild rubber was 1910 with a production of 83,000 tons, half from the Amazon, a fourth from Africa, and most of the rest from Mexico. About that time British and Dutch plantings in the western Pacific began to come in and by 1934, with a world production of 1,019,000 tons, only 1.4 per cent was from Brazil, Africa, and all other wild rubber sources.

This is skidding over much history of revived interest in view of the current concern with a rubber shortage. The details, including some of the blackest chapters in history of the unscrupulous scramble for rubber, will be detailed in subsequent articles.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

"DEATH ISLANDS"—IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—I wish to make a suggestion to the safety engineers and also to Mayor Kelly regarding the unlighted safety islands. A better name for them would be death islands.

We very frequently travel from far north to the south side along Western avenue and have yet to find these menaces satisfactorily lit. The top lights and the reflectors are never cleaned or bulbs replaced.

It would seem that a time when the leaders of our city are ostensibly interested in saving metals and rubber for the war that a very important saving would be the one of lives. Also the saving of our automobiles from the junk piles due to their piling up against the unlit islands which I believe are so unlit to save electricity and a few bulbs.

A motorist recently, not a minute before I got to the scene of the accident, claimed to have been unable to see the island before he was 10 feet from it. And in this I will bear him out.

A little less blatting about what to do when the enemy strikes here and a little more good down to earth common sense action for the protection of the lives of the people that pay the salaries of the so-called engineers and the leaders of this city would go far toward furthering the war.

MRS. B. MONAGHAN.

MAYOR KELLY MAKES U-TURN.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—About 1:35 p. m., Mayor Kelly, attended by his bodyguard, emerged from the La Salle street entrance of the city hall, entered his official limousine, which was waiting at the curb, facing north, and then, the chauffeur made a U-turn in the middle of the block, which, I understand, is strictly forbidden, and drove off in a southerly direction.

Why is it, that the mayor can with impunity violate the traffic rules, not only under the eyes of the traffic policeman stationed in front of the entrance to the city hall, but actually with his active cooperation, as the policeman raised his hand and stopped northbound traffic to allow the mayor's limousine to make the U-turn. Anybody know the answer?

COMMON CITIZEN.

REPORTS SHAKEDOWN.

Mundelein, Ill., Feb. 2.—My husband was returning home from work and driving north on state road 45 north of La Grange when he was stopped by two policemen. They insisted he was driving 55 miles an hour and wanted him to pay them $25. When he told them he had no money with him but would give them a check, they weren't interested. [They would have to sign their names to cash a check.] After threatening him with taking his "C" sticker and driver's license they insisted they would get him out of it if he would give them $10, $5, or even $1.

My husband related this experience at the plant where he works and found two other men had been stopped in the same manner by the two policemen. One was taken for $6 and the other for $1.

I hope you will publish this so other people who work hard and try to make an honest and decent living will not be robbed by highway police.

WHAT PRICE PATRIOTISM?

Chicago, Jan. 9.—What price patriotism? I made a trip to Oak Park to the store to get some material for a Red Cross unit. The weather was bad and all signs were covered with snow. I parked on Lake street, not knowing it was wrong, because I didn't see any signs and there were cars parked all along the block. When I came out of the store an officer was tying a ticket on my car. When I told him I didn't know that it was wrong, he told me to tell it to the judge. So it cost me two dollars to be a good samaritan.

CHAIRMAN FRANKLIN PARK PLAYGROUND RED CROSS UNIT.

WARNS PUPILS TO WALK WITH CARE ON RURAL ROADS

Since more children are walking greater distances to and from school in rural areas, due to government restrictions on school bus use, there must be daily emphasis on safety education in classrooms if traffic deaths and injuries involving children are to be kept down, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said yesterday.

"The recent order of the office of defense transportation that school officials are to furnish school bus service only for students who would have to walk two miles to a school, or more than a mile and a half to a school bus trunk route, means that many more children will be exposed to traffic hazards," he declared. "Even tho there may be fewer passenger cars on rural highways, commercial trucks, army vehicles, and essential private cars still make up heavy traffic volumes on many roads during the hours children are going to and from school.

Other Factors Enter Picture.

"While the war imposed 35 miles per hour speed limit will make it easier to avoid accidents, provided the driver sees the walker soon enough to stop, other factors enter the picture. Many drivers are unfamiliar with the roads they now traverse. They do not know the locations of schools.

"Self-protection by children walking where there are no sidewalks on rural highways must be stressed today more than ever before. Such proved rules as walking on the left facing traffic, looking both ways before crossing, waiting until the way is clear before crossing, and not playing in the roadway must be made habit on the part of each child."

If alternative routes to school are possible teachers and parents should coöperate in choosing the safest way. Once this route has been selected it should be followed every day.

Shortest Route Not Always Safest.

Among the factors which should be considered in picking the safest route are the amount and speed of traffic on the various roads, the number of roads or highways to be crossed, and the protection afforded by any signals or guards along the way.

In many cases, Mr. Hayes explained, the shortest route will not be the safest route, and a longer way should be taken even if it is considerably less convenient.

In order to accustom the youngest children to walk carefully along this safest route, parents are advised to walk with them a few times or to have some responsible adult or older child guide them at first.

Re-study Safety Patrol Setup.

It is recommended that rural schools also re-study their safety patrol setup to assure that this valuable protective force is being used as effectively as possible. Perhaps additional patrol members should be appointed to accompany and guard groups of children as they walk single file on the highway to and from school.

Members of the patrol also can be stationed at intersections in the vicinity of the school. Many schools in rural districts have limited patrol activities to playground supervision and to preserving order inside the schoolroom. Now, however, the patrol members are needed for the protection of the other children. They are capable of assuming a great deal of responsibility and should be given an opportunity to show what they can do.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Automobile owners are advised by Stewart W. Munroe, general sales manager of the Chrysler division Chrysler corporation, to give special attention to their cars' electrical equipment because of the limited amount of driving the cars get under gasoline rationing.

"It is obvious," says Munroe, "that when cars are driven as little and at as low speeds as present conditions require, the battery in many cases is not being adequately charged. Automobiles were designed for much more frequent operation than now is possible and their electrical equipment cannot be as efficient under current emergency conditions.

"The principal source of trouble results from the fact that the battery cannot be charged when the car is driven at slow speeds and over short distances. Not only is the use of the car insufficient to keep the charge up to requirements, but some deterioration of the battery is inevitable unless it gets plenty of service.

"In addition to battery charging, there should be periodical checkups of all electrical equipment. Among the items that should be inspected are the regulator, wiring, horn, lights and so on. The generator should be looked over."

H. W. Shepard, branch manager of the Cadillac division of General Motors, has been appointed chairman for the automobile division of the American Red Cross war fund drive for the area. He recently took over as Cadillac's branch manager when Victor C. P. Dreiske resigned to join the navy. William C. Stanlik, vice-president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, announces that the automobile quota will be $25,000.

Harry J. Klinger, general manager of the Pontiac division of General Motors, reports that the Pontiac ordinance school has been selected by the army ordinance department to be the first complete anti-aircraft and artillery mechanics school in the country. Pontiac Motor, which is a large manufacturer of anti-aircraft weapons, has been teaching maintenance and repair of the 20 mm. and 40 mm. guns it manufactures. Under the expanded program instruction on heavier weapons will be given. Verne L. Murray will continue as director of the expanded school.

GILLIES, FORMER CARD, CASTS VOTE FOR PRO GAME

Suggests Players Work in War Plants.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

A fellow who played in professional football's dark ages came out yesterday with a solid vote for continuation of the sport thru the dark days of war.

Not only did large Fred Gillies urge its continuation, but he said the war presents the game with a challenge it must accept.

The professional football player of 1943, the way the one-time Cornell university and Chicago Cardinal star tackle sees it, will spend his time like this:

At least five eight hour days each week in a war plant.

Pratcice football at night under the lights.

Play on Sunday.

He Heads Steel Company.

"They can do it," said the gigantic fellow who closed a brilliant career in 1928 with the Cardinals. The same fellow who 11 years ago climbed out of the wreckage of a plane which had plummeted Eddie Stinson to his death in Jackson park. The same fellow who today is general superintendent o fthe Inland Steel company, and who is proud of his connection with the Chicago Bears as a dollar a year man.

Gillies isn't asking the pro football player of 1943 to do anything new. He's been thru the rigorous program he suggests and today big Fred is a man of immense proportions and apparently none the worse for an athletic background which until war came along would have been regarded as extraordinary.

He Knows What It's Like.

"I can remember those days back in 1920 when the Chicago Cardinals practiced in the evening at 55th and Racine," said Gillies yesterday. "We ran thru signals under the light of the cluster of lamps. I'll never forget the bump I got on my nose when Paddy Driscoll popped me with his knee. But we had lots of fun. In those days I worked a combination night-day shift from 12 to 14 hours a day. But we always were ready when game time rolled around on Sunday.

"Now we're right back in that same spot as far as professional football is concerned. As I see it, the problem is very simple. If there are enough professional football players who aren't in the army or the navy, let's have the game go on. I'm sure the people want it to continue as long as the concentration on the war doesn't suffer."

These are the surface reactions of a man who has been a football player and who today, as general superintendent of the Inland Steel company at Hammond, has many more pressing problems than what's going to happen to the game.

Fans Want Their Football.

But to Gillies, football goes much deeper.

"In my plant," he said, "there are hundreds of pro football fans. The boys are constahtly asking me if the Bears are going to play next year. I've seen over and over the inspirational value of football to the kids. Even lads who have never seen the Bears or Cards play know the names of the players and on the corner lots set them up as their heroes."

Gillies believes the 10 teams of the National Football league can find enough talent—married fellows with children or other dependents—to carry on in 1943. He is just as sure that war plant jobs can be found for all, which will give them a double barreled value in war time—as actual producers of war implements and as agents of morale.

In Navy During Last War.

Fred left Cornell in 1917 and was commissioned an ensign in naval aviation. He patroled the North sea, looking fror subs. After the war he returned to Chicago and went to work for the Illinois Steel company. In 1919 he played with the Fort Wayne Friars and when that team collapsed he joined the Hammond team, which boasted such future pro greats as George Halas, Hugh Blacklock, and Driscoll. In 1920 he became a charter member of the Chicago Cardinals.

In conclusion Gillies said:

"Football is a game of physique, brawn, and brains. I'd really hate to see it fade out during war time. I know by experience that football players profit by their background, whether in war or peace time pursuits. I'm sure that in this emergency they'll welcome a rigorous schedule that will keep them busy as war workers during the week and on Sundays in the thick of the battle on the football field."

THEY'LL BID HIGH FOR GOLDEN GLOVES IN TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS TOMORROW

When the boys start swinging for Golden Gloves in the Tournament of Champions tomorrow night in the Stadium's two rings, this team will be carrying the hopes of Oklahoma City, Okla., and its environs that some of them will return to the finals on March 5. They are, left to right: Front row—Barry Darby, 112 pounds; Jeep O'Neal, 126 pounds; Proctor Heinold, 118 pounds; Billy Tiger, 135 pounds. Back row—Ben Evans, 147 pounds; Bruce Williams, 160 pounds; Lt. Charley Gelbert, former St. Louis Cardinals shortstop, now stationed at the naval training school at Norman, Okla., who made the awards; Floyd Aldridge, light heavyweight, and Gene Gosney, heavyweight. Darby, O'Neal, Tiger, and Aldridge are members of the 18th field artillery.

DRASTIC CUTS IN HARVARD SPORTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 20 (AP).—Harvard university announced drastically curtailed intercollegiate athletic schedules tonight under which it is possible that some sports may be eliminated entirely, and participation in all leagues will be discontinued.

"All such organizations as freshman and junior varsity teams will be eliminated," university officials said in a statement.

"The varsity competition during the coming spring term will be primarily contests with nearby colleges and service teams and will force the withdrawal from some previously arranged commitments.

"An effort will be made to continue varsity competition in a modified form in certain sports, but only those games will be played which are justified by war time travel conditions."

Statements, similar in tone, are expected from Yale and Princeton universities in the near future. Today's action came 72 hours after the presidents of the schools announced jointly that because of war time conditions they believed that the "continued maintenance of 'athletics as usual' at these three institutions is no longer feasible."

Harvard's curtailment will be for the duration "beginning with the coming spring season in April."

All Breed Dog Show Canceled by Kennel Club

The annual all-breed dog show of the International Kennel club will not be held this year. The executive committee of the club said yesterday, dut to unexpected recent pressure of the war effort, it has been decided to cancel this year's show, which has been held in the International amphitheater on the south side. The club had reserved March 27 and 28 as the dates for the 1943 show.

SEVEN 1ST ROUND GAMES IN A. A. U. TOURNEY TODAY

10 p. m.—Dr. Goss' Collegians vs. Lustig's Billiards.

GOLDEN GLOVERS READY FOR THREE NIGHTS OF ACTION

Cleveland, hopes to go all the way this time. He made a particularly strong finish in his fight with Derrico, but the Cleveland boy had taken enough points in the first two rounds to win the decision.

Many of the centers have strengthened and freshened their material this year by drawing on army camps, thereby getting boxers from all parts of the country. Nashville, for instance, has seven soldiers on its squad of eight. In the Chicago area, Camp Grant is sending a team which will represent it in all eight weight classes.

In the course of three nights of fighting, the big field of 200 will be reduced to 32—four in each weight division. These 32 will return to the Stadium on March 5 for the semifinals and finals.

GOLDEN GLOVES CENTERS

The field for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, which opens tomorrow in the Stadium, was drawn from 24 out of town centers where newspapers or army officials coöperated with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the formation of teams. Together with Chicago's representatives, these squads make up a total of 200 contestants. The centers sending teams follow:

ST. BARBARA AND VISITATION WIN IN WEBER MEET

St. Barbara and Visitation advanced into the final round of the Weber High school grammar school basketball tournament yesterday with victories over St. Cyril and St. Hedwig Orphanage, respectively. St. Barbara won, 20 to 10, while Visitation was forced into an overtime before winning, 15 to 13.

Frank Wadelski of St. Hedwig tied the regulation game up with a basket in the last 18 seconds of play and then Tommy Hayden dropped in the winning points in the final eight seconds of play for Visitation. Visitation recently won the Queen of Angels grammar school tournament.

St. Barbara and Visitation will meet for the tournament championship tomorrow evening at 8:30 and St. Cyril and St. Hedwig Orphanage will meet one hour earlier in the consolation game. The games will be played in Weber gym, 1521 West Haddon street.

Eureka Quintet Wins from Wheaton, 64 to 52

Eureka, Ill., Feb. 20 (AP).—Eureka college won a 64 to 52 basketball victory over Wheaton college tonight, despite a burst of scoring by Wheaton's Dave Paynter, who accounted for 25 points. After the half, when Eureka led 32 to 27, the visitors once drew up to a 55 to 52 deficit. Warren Collier of Eureka led his team with 18 points.

HAMMOND WINS INDIANA SWIM MEET BY POINT

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 20 [Special].—Hammond High this afternoon retained its state high school swimming championship by outscoring South Bend Central in the final event, the free style relay.

Hammond scored 37 points, Central 36 and Lew Wallace of Gary 33. Shortridge of Indianapolis finished fourth with 26.

Other scores were: Horace Mann, Gary, 7; Wiley, Terre Haute, 6; Washington, East Chicago, 5; Froebel, Gary, 4; Whiting, 2.

Central accounted for firsts in three of the six individual events and won the 150 yard medley relay, but Hammond's balanced strength was the decisive factor.

Paul Nelson of Central won the 100 yard back stroke in 1:09, clipping almost a second off the previous mark. Summaries:

50 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Gumla, Hammond; Mushinsky, Lew Wallace, second; Malangoni, Washington, third; Muncy, Wiley, fourth; Garwood, Lew Wallace, fifth. Time—:25.9.

100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Borough, South Bend; Apathy, Hammond, second; Davis, Shortridge, third; Huerta, Froebel, fourth; Olney, Washington, fifth. Time—1:15.7.

Wrestler George Zaharias Fails to Pass Army Exam

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20 (AP).—Muscular George Zaharias is a husky wrestler—yet he failed to pass the army's physical examination. Zaharias, husband of Babe Didrikson, was turned down because of injuries received in wrestling matches—and high blood pressure.

Slovaks Meet Vikings Today in Cup Game

BY OFFSIDE.

With a decided change in the weather conditions, the long deferred second round national open cup match between the Slovaks and Vikings, again is scheduled for today in the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue.

The continued postponements have moved the Illinois Soccer commission to request the national body in New York to refrain from scheduling any important cup matches during the winter months. How this request will be received is mainly up to the Chicago clubs which compete, for refusal to try for national honors will have a big bearing on the national committee's decision.

The Slovaks and Vikings will have no lineup changes for today's match. However, fans will see Weck Henney in action for the first time for over a year. He will be back at full back for the Vikings.

Referee Jack Maher has been instructed to see that this game is finished as the winner meets Sparta in the next round.

The Sparta Reserves, who defeated the Italian A. C. two weeks ago, oppose the Sparta regulars in a warmup game starting at 12:30. The starting lineups:

AIRCRAFT PARTS MAKER REPORTS LARGER PROFITS

Grain Processor Shows Decline for Year.

Net income of United Aircraft Products, Inc., Dayton, O., increased to $1,505,889 in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 from $496,970 in the 11 months ended Nov. 30, 1941, the company's annual report disclosed yesterday. In 1941 the company changed from a calendar year basis to a fiscal year ending Nov. 30. Earnings per common share, after preferred dividend requirements, were $5.72 and $1.85 in the respective periods.

The company provided $3,822,101 for federal income and excess profits taxes in 1942, after deducting a post-war refund of $176,691, against taxes of $1,063,444 for the 11 month period of 1941.

Staley Profit Decreases.

The A. E. Staley Manufacturing company, Decatur, Ill., grain processor, announced that 1942 profits were $1,910,422 against $1,978,008 the preceding year. Net sales rose to $60,037,984 from $36,190,287 a year ago.

The company's federal income and excess profits taxes were the largest in its history, totaling $6,925,000, against $1,994,000 the year before. President A. E. Staley Jr. told stockholders that new production records were made last year by both the corn and soy bean divisions. The company ground 20.59 per cent more bushels of corn than in 1941, and 79.87 per cent more than its average for the years 1931-'40. The quantity of soy beans processed was 33.61 per cent more than in 1941, and 236.38 per cent above the 10 year average.

Artloom corporation, Philadelphia, Pa., carpet manufacturer, had net income of $143,799, or 57 cents a share, in 1942, compared with $179,829, or 74 cents a share in 1941. Federal and state income and excess profits taxes totaled $513,767 compared with $405,000 in 1941.

$1 SHIP TO SHORE WIRELESS RATE FAVORED BY FCC

Terms Higher Great Lakes Charges Unjust.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The federal communications commission adopted tentatively today a report which would fix a maximum rate of $1 for three minutes for the radio link in radiotelephone service to ships on the Great Lakes and some navigable rivers.

The commission's proposed report termed unjust and unreasonable any charges which exceed the present area 1 rates. Illinois and Michigan Bell Telephone companies and the American Telephone and Telegraph company have filed tariffs using a three area system with rates which would run from $1.50 in area 1 to $4.50 in area 3.

Plans Uniform Charges.

The present tariffs in area 1 are $1 for the first three minutes or fraction thereof, with 30 cents for each additional minute and a 25 per cent report charge. The FFC proposes to apply this schedule to the entire area served by stations WAY at Lake Bluff, Ill., and WFR, WFS and WFV at Detroit and Port Huron, Mich.

The radio link charge is in addition to the charge for the telephone service from the land point to the radio station.

Raps "Rebate" to Vessels.

The commission proposes to require the telephone companies to refund, with 5 per cent annual interest, sums collected for radio link service in excess of the $1 maximum since it ordered an investigation March 24, 1942.

The proposed report also would abolish the practice of alloting to the vessel on which the radiotelephone call originates or is received one-third of the charge for the radio link service. The FCC said the practice was unjust and unreasonable and constituted "a refund, remittance, rebate, or offset" of a portion of the radio link charges.

Progressive Miners Join Demand for $2 Pay Raise

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Progressive Mine Workers of America today joined the general miner demand for an increase of $2 a day in the basic wage of $7 at their state scale convention, and announced that negotiations for the boost would begin here March 2 with representatives of the Illinois Coal Producers association.

BOARD OF TRADE HALTS SOY BEAN FUTURE MARKET

Forced by Wickard Sale Restriction.

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade at a special meeting yesterday halted further trading in soy beans and ordered settlement of all outstanding contracts on or before next Wednesday.

The action was taken, directors said, as a result of the order issued Feb. 17 by the department of agriculture prohibiting all persons except processors, manufacturers, and seed dealers from purchasing or accepting delivery of soy beans of the 1942 crop.

Uncompleted contracts in bean futures totaled 194,000 bushels, directors said. The board ordered them closed at $1.82¼ for May contracts, $1.84 for July, and $1.82½ for October.

Nullifies Price Law Provision.

The executive committee of the exchange in a formal statement said the action was taken as a patriotic compliance with the federal order, altho the directors were of the opinion that it nullifies the specific order of congress as expressed in the emergency price control act prohibiting the government from stopping trading in agricultural products for future delivery.

Brokers said the department of agriculture order was intended to compel farmers to dispose of beans now held on farms at $1.66 a bushel. This price for cash beans will become effective Feb. 27.

The announcement said that the order was designed to prevent speculation in beans. Farmers, it is understood, have been expressing dissatisfaction with the current price of beans and have been holding for higher prices.

Production Rise Is Rapid.

The rise of soy bean production in the United States is regarded by agricultural authorities as a modern miracle. Less than 20 years ago production was so small that the department of agriculture failed to include soy beans in its annual crop report. In 1942 the crop was 210 million bushels, or double the nation's estimated processing capacity of that year, and well in excess of the total yield of China and Corea, previously the world's principal producers.

Trading in soy bean futures on the Board of Trade started Oct. 5, 1936, and operations expanded rapidly until in 1941 sales of futures aggregated 994 million bushels, or about one-sixth of the business transacted on the exchange in that year. The government originally offered to purchase the entire 1942 crop at a minimum price of $1.60 a bushel to the farmer. It entered into contracts with processors and placed ceiling prices on bean oil and meal. This resulted in trading in futures becoming very small in the last few months.

Wheat Sets New Highs.

Grain markets were mostly higher yesterday. Buying attributed to mills caused a rally of about 1 cent in wheat after an early dip and all deliveries reached new seasonal highs, closing ¼ to ½ cent higher. Reports that large quanities of wheat and flour had been shipped to Russia in January had a bolstering effect.

Corn futures held near or at ceiling levels with trading almost at a standstill. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Rye after breaking early on reports that there had been no shipments of this grain to Russia in January, rallied with wheat and closed ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher.

Prices of October Eggs Touch 41 Cents a Dozen

October egg futures yesterday soared 0.60 cent a dozen to 41 cents, top price for a shell egg future on the Chicago Mercantile exchange since 1929, before reacting to close with a net gain of 0.30 cent. The March delivery in fresh graded firsts, the only other active egg future, advanced 0.25 cent to a new 23 year high of 37 cents asked. Demand for egg futures has increased since the government's recent disclosures of permanent egg powder prices and higher cash prices.

WPB Limits 'Permit Free' Construction Jobs to $200

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The WPB today reduced to $200 the amount of construction which can be done on individual projects without specific permission by industries which it classed as "not essential to the war program." The limitation applies also to private dwellings and commercial structures. Owners of industrial establishments have been permitted to carry on construction up to $5,000 in a year.

Potato Trade Disrupted by OPA and Army

A breakdown in the distribution system for potatoes, threatening to force small jobbers out of business, and development of illegal market practices were reported yesterday by traders in the South Water street market.

The department of agriculture reported that "the market was confused." Dealers said it was chaotic. They blamed office of price administration ceilings and heavy potato buying by the army in producing areas. Dealers emphasized, however, that there was no shortage of potatoes.

Normal Practices Disrupted.

The situation resulted from a disruption of normal trade practices, dealers asserted. This disruption became pronounced this week.

Car lot distributors, who buy potatoes in the country and ship to market, are having difficulty in obtaining supplies, it was said. The spread between present farm prices and OPA ceilings in wholesale centers was described in some quarters as too narrow.

Competing with car lot distributors in country buying are the large jobbers. They sell directly to retail outlets, and are thus able to bid up farm prices and reduce the supply available to the car lot distributors, it was said.

Illegal Trade Reported.

Reported as an example of illegal trading was this: One buyer was said to have bet a producer $200 that he could not finish loading a car with potatoes. The car was nearly loaded when the bet was made and was completely loaded shortly thereafter.

The buyer then paid the ceiling price for the potatoes and the $200 he had "lost" on his "bet."

The army was reportedly competing with buyers at shipping points. Army buyers were reported to have tied up nearly all the crop in Idaho, a major producing state.

AWARD MACKAY DIRECT ALGERIA TO U. S. CIRCUIT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The federal communications commission today granted special temporary authority to McKay Radio and Telegraph company to operate a radio telegraph circuit between the United States and Algeria for three months.

Applications of RCA Communications, Inc., and Press Wireless, Inc., were denied.

Two conditions imposed on Mackay are [1] that charging of the same rate as formerly applied for indirect service be subject to downward revision and [2] that a broadcast control channel be provided daily from noon to 2 p. m. and 9:30 to 11:30 p. m. Greenwich time [seven hours ahead of Chicago war time] "for facilitating transmission of program material from Algeria to the United States."

ILLINOIS YIELDS 8.4 PER CENT OF 1942 U. S. TAXES

Federal income and internal revenue taxes paid in Illinois in 1942 totaled $1,096,148,026, or 8.4 per cent of the national total, altho the state has only 5.98 per cent of population, the Illinois Manufacturers' association reported yesterday. The amount collected was 79.9 per cent more than in 1941, and was exceeded only in New York and Pennsylvania.

Slash Federal Pay Roll, State Industry Asks

A resolution urging the government to reduce the number of its civilian employés for the dual purpose of increasing man power for war production and trimming the cost of government was sent yesterday to Illinois congressmen and various economy committees in Washington by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. The resolution termed "indefensible" the retention of unnecessary government employés and the failure to effectively utilize the services of remaining workers.

The resolution said estimated expenditures for war production of about 100 billion dollars this year—more than the total spent during all of the first world war—will impose a crushing tax burden and will require great sacrifices by all classes of taxpayers.

Demands Corresponding Sacrifice.

"Illinois industry is, of course, prepared to assume its fair share of this enormous tax load and make all other sacrifices which the war program entails," the resolution said. "Illinois industry is justified, however, in expecting a corresponding attitude of sacrifice on the part of public officials and governmental agencies.

"Congressional authorities, engaged in the study of governmental expenditures, state that a reduction of at least 2 billion dollars per year could be made in federal expenditures for nonmilitary purposes and that one out of every three civilian employés of the federal government could be eliminated without impairing adequate governmental service."

Hiring 3,000 More Daily.

The association estimated there are about 3 million civilians on federal government pay rolls, more than 300 per cent more than were employed during World War I., and said that civilian employés are being added to federal pay rolls at the rate of more than 3,000 a day. This is in addition to state, county, and municipal pay rolls, which have an additional 3 million employés, the association said.

The resolution was transmitted to the committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.]; to subcommittees on appropriations, and to the house small business committee.

FOOD INDUSTRY TO USE 'ADS' TO AID GOVERNMENT

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Food manufacturers spending more than 100 million dollars annually on advertising have agreed voluntarily to convert a large amount of this volume to an explanation of government food problems this year, Gardner Cowles Jr., office of war information director of domestic operations, announced today.

"The government thinks that the food question needs a strong advertising campaign behind it," said Cowles, "and since the government has no advertising appropriation for the cause, we have asked the food advertisers to devote a substantial portion of their space to the campaign. We feel that the public looks to the advertiser as an authority on food and will coöperate in the messages set forth."

Temporary Ceiling Prices on Ducks Extended by OPA

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Temporary ceiling prices on ducks, scheduled to expire today, will continue in effect until a permanent ceiling has been worked out, the OPA announced. Present ceilings are based on the seller's highest prices in the period Sept. 28 to Oct. 2, 1942.

COURT GIVES PULLMAN TEMPORARY FARE HIKE AUTHORITY IN ILLINOIS

The Illinois commerce commission was ordered by the Superior court yesterday not to interfere with collection of increased Pullman rates in Illinois, beginning Tuesday. The Pullman company had been denied authority by the commission to collect 10 per cent increases in sleeping, parlor, club, and lounge car rates.

The company's schedule, to go into effect Feb. 23 under protection of the temporary injunction issued by Judge John J. Lupe, will require travelers to save their ticket stubs pending final ruling on the question of a permanent injunction.

Judge Lupe ordered the amount of the increase impounded, pending final disposition of the case. Hearing of the permanent injunction suit has not been set.

BUILDING GROUP GETS NEW PLAN FOR BOND BUYING

A new and simplified pay roll deduction plan for the purchase of war bonds has been presented to the building and construction industry. The plan is the result of a meeting called in the Commonwealth Edison company assembly room by the United States treasury in coöperation with the employer-labor management committee of the industry.

H. O. Walther, vice president of the Bell Savings and Loan association, explained that under this plan any employer in the building industry who does not have a pay roll deduction plan may send to Bell Savings the names of his employés and the amount of deductions authorized, together with a check for the weekly or monthly payments of the group. When the accumulations are sufficient, bonds will be mailed direct to the employé by franked mail. Bell will handle these accounts without charge.

NEW SYNTHETIC RUBBER IS MADE BY PAINT PLANT

The rubber substitute, called "kempol," is not suitable for tires or products requiring abrasive resistance, but will be useful where tensile strength is not important, he said. Its main use would be as an application for tapes, adhesive, and fabric coatings.

The product was developed from drying oils used in paint manufacture. Experiments are being continued.

Bank Clearings Increase to 463.2 Million Dollars

Bank clearings in Chicago last week were $463,200,000, compared with $346,500,000 in the preceding week of five business days, and $405,200,000 in the corresponding 1942 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report follows:

Set Rental Quiz in Gary Region for Thursday

An inquiry into the rent situation in Lake county, Indiana—particularly in Gary, East Chicago, Whiting, and Hammond—will be initiated Thursday as the result of hundreds of complaints of rent ceiling violations from that section, regional office of price administration enforcement officials announced yesterday.

John Maloney, regional investigator for the OPA, has headed a staff of government rent agents who have been checking some complaints from the Lake county area secretly, and their data has prompted the public inquiry, the regional office said.

Warns Landlords in Area.

Maloney is in Gary preparing for the hearing which will determine whether landlords are wilfully violating rent ceilings, and will ask for legal action in any cases where such legal action in any cases in which it is necessary, John F. Manierre, regional enforcement attorney said.

Manierre said that today's announcement of an inquiry should be taken as a warning by landlords. He urged that any landlord who is aware that his present rents are above those charged for the same property or quarters in March, 1942, make a refund to his tenant at once and get a receipt from the tenant for the amount of the refund. Such cases will be treated with leniency, he said, but warned that all others will be prosecuted.

Also Survey Sparta, Rantoul.

The regional rent office also announced that investigations of rent ceiling violations are being made by OPA investigators in Rantoul, Ill., and Sparta, Wis., where crowded housing facilities have resulted from heavy concentrations of war plant and government employés.

PRICES OF MEAT ANIMALS AGAIN RISE FOR WEEK

Prices of meat animals in federally inspected channels continued to rise last week, Chicago stock yards buyers paid an average of $15.60 a hundred pounds for steers, hogs and lambs, the highest since March, 1920. The price was $12.35 in the corresponding week of 1942, $9.95 in 1941, and $8.00 in 1940.

A two way trend developed in the cattle trade late in the week, with best steers and yearlings closing 25 cents higher and others 25 cents lower than a week earlier. Heifers finished steady, and cows were steady to 25 cents higher. Calves rose 25 to 50 cents. Final sales of hogs were 5 to 20 cents higher. Lambs closed 25 cents higher.

The few hogs marketed yesterday sold steady with Friday at $15.55 and down. No top grade loads arrived.

Duluth Company to Build Eight Small Cargo Ships

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The maritime commission awarded contracts today for construction of 14 small cargo vessels. Barnes-Duluth Shipbuilding corporation, Duluth, Minn., will build eight, and Ingalls Shipbuilding corporation, Decatur, Ala., six. The base price is $950,000 a vessel.

STOCKS SMASH FORWARD AGAIN IN HEAVY TRADE

Close Spotty Week with Net Gain.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The stock market today finished a spotty week with a brisk rally that carried leading rails and industrials up fractions to about three points, many to peaks for the last year or longer. Trading was heavy.

The revival came in the final hour when short covering appeared along with reinstatement of commitments by traders who believed the reaction of the preceding two days had put the list in a healthier technical position after its long climb from the lows of last April. Notable was the fact that today's upswing was led by prime stocks instead of the recently fast moving low priced issues.

Trading Rate Quickens.

Many customers stood aside because of the forthcoming two day holiday, but others turned to the buying side on the belief there may be a decided change for the better in the African war news before Tuesday.

Hesitancy was marked at the start of the two hour trading day, but activity quickened, and the volume of 619,820 shares was the second largest for a Saturday since Dec. 27, 1941.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.4 of a point to 44.9 and for the week showed a net gain of 0.1.

Stocks reaching new highs included American Telephone, up 3⅛; Union Pacific, Wabash prferred, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Postal Telegraph preferred, and United States Rubber.

CHICAGO PRICES ADVANCE.

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 25,000 shares. Of 85 issues traded, 57 were higher, 15 lower, and 13 unchanged. Nine stocks set new 1942-'43 highs. Among the volume leaders were Central and South West Utilities, Williams Oil-O-Matic, Raytheon preferred, Chicago corporation, and Commonwealth Edison.

In the half hour after New York close Aviation corporation and Commonwealth Edison gained ⅛, Butler Brothers declined ⅛, and Radio corporation was down ½.

RAILS DOMINATE BONDS.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Trading interest again centered largely on rail loans in today's bond market, and prices in this division reached new highs for 1942-'43.

Demand was especially brisk for the obligations of the Baltimore and Ohio, Frisco, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, and Southern Railway.

BELL AIRCRAFT USE OF A. W. O. L. SYSTEM CUTS ABSENTEEISM

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Bell Aircraft corporation "A. W. O. L." system to combat absenteeism has resulted in a reduction of 30 per cent from peak absences the month before the plan became operative Jan. 22, H. H. Munsey, chairman of Bell's labor management committee, reported today.

"An even greater decrease has been accomplished in so far as unexplained or needless absences are concerned," he added. "There will always be sickness and other legitimate reasons for absence by a small percentage of our workers, but we are winning the fight to reduce the kind of absence which helps the axis."

Bell labels as "A. W. O. L." those workers who fail to obtain permission for being absent. An "A. W. O. L." card replaces their usual time cards and approval from the foreman or department head is necessary before the time card can be returned. Workers desiring time off must get permission at least one day in advance. Absentees must explain their absence, and those who are sick must bring a doctor's certificate when they return.

Aids of F. D. R. Deny Seeking Nelson's Scalp

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The White House branded as "absolutely untrue" reports that President Franklin D. Roosevelt's chief advisers—Harry Hopkins, Samuel I. Rosenman, and James F. Byrnes—were urging him to oust Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board.

The report was denied by Acting White House Secretary William D. Hassett. It was assumed that Hassett spoke for the three advisers mentioned and the President.

"I am authorized to state that published statements that Justice Byrnes, Judge Rosenman, and Harry Hopkins have urged the President to remove Mr. Donald Nelson are absolutely untrue."

Rumor Blames Advisers.

It had been reported that the three had thrown their weight with military leaders, who are opposed to Nelson because of the sweeping program of "production scheduling" inaugurated by him during the week. This program is to be directed by Charles E. Wilson, former president of the General Electric company and now vice chairman of WPB.

Nelson ousted Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York investment banker, who was regarded as the champion of the service branches, from the vice chairmanship. This brought Nelson's feud with the military high command into the open.

It was reported that the military high command would like to see Nelson replaced by Bernard Baruch, capitalist and long-time mentor of the New Deal. Baruch was boss of war production during the World war and is known to entertain hopes of being made a member of a super war cabinet, if one is ever named, in charge of production.

Baruch Bought Hopkins Feast.

Baruch is friendly to all three of the White House advisers. He recently footed the bill for a $40 a plate caviar to champagne dinner at which Mrs. Louise Macy Hopkins, wife of the lend-lease expediter, made her bow to official Washington society.

Rosenman is a long time friend of the President and is known as a ghost writer of Presidential speeches. Byrnes, former justice of the Supreme court, is director of economic stabilization.

Many observers here discounted the reports that Nelson would be ousted because President Roosevelt has never fired any one from his official family. However, there has been considerable dissatisfaction with Nelson's administration of his office and his resignation has been rumored for months.

Nelson Denies Rift.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, said today he considered differences between the WPB and the military services "only minor." Speaking at Baltimore, Nelson pleaded for national unity. He said: "Sometimes these things are magnified. To me these difference of opinion are only minor differences of method. When you get strong men you get differences of method. Don't believe the rumors of rift. On my part they are not true."

ILLINOIS BANKS JOIN BATTLE ON NEW U. S. CREDIT

The executive committee of the Illinois Bankers association urged the Illinois congressional delegation yesterday to give its full support to efforts being made by the American Bankers association to eliminate department of agriculture activities to extend "subsidized and socialized credit for agricultural purposes." The state association said the emergency which made necessary certain assistance to supplement the ability of banks to extend credit to farmers has passed.

Country banks resent the attempt to revive the Regional Agricultural Credit corporation with a fund of 225 million dollars, the association said, because the banks are able and willing to extend any necessary credit.

"In our opinion, the farmers are beginning to realize that these gratuitous handouts put them under obligations which will sooner or later socialize every farmer in the country and make him subject to the exactions of burocracy," the association declared.

ILLINOIS COAL PRICE INCREASE GRANTED BY OPA

Costs of 6 Day Week to Be Covered.

The office of price administration yesterday authorized increases in prices of Illinois and western Kentucky coal at the mines by 12.3 cents and 13.6 cents a ton, respectively, to cover increased operating costs. The increases, effective immediately, will be charged at the mines by operators and will be passed on to consumers.

Fred J. Holdsworth.

The increases were authorized largely to pay higher labor costs as a result of miners going on the six day week. The basic rate for the five day week was $7 a day. Under the six day agreement they will be paid time and a half for the added day, boosting their wages to $45.50 a week.

Price Rises to Vary.

Fred J. Holdsworth, president of the Chicago Coal Merchants association, said that with the increases granted yesterday and those granted several weeks ago by the OPA for coal from other fields, the over-all price increases for coal in the Chicago area will range from 5 cents to 25 cents a ton, depending on price and size, and mine location.

War demands caused the operators to step up production in the various fields to supply industry. This in turn resulted in the six day week. About 21,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America will work the six day week in Illinois under an agreement signed Feb. 11 with the Illinois Coal Operators association.

Expect 20 Per Cent Gain.

The Illinois fields in 1942 produced about 63½ million tons of coal, and the six day week is expected to increase their output by about 20 per cent.

Fred S. Wilkey, secretary of the Illinois operators, said that almost all mines in the state are now working under the new agreement which makes the six day week voluntary. Miners are not penalized for not working the extra day.

"I don't know of a single case in which the miners have turned us down," Wilkey said.

WOOL PURCHASE BY U.S. PLANNED, GROWERS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—A plan for government purchase of the 1943 wool clip will be worked out by the department of agriculture, Assistant Secretary Grover Hill told several hundred growers at a hearing on the proposal today.

A committee representing producers and wool trade interests will be named to work with the department on the plan, Hill said.

Growers urged that the government take over the clip for the war and two years thereafter and that wool be allowed to move in the regular channels.

CLEANERS FACE HARD PROBLEM IN MAN POWER

Delivery Service Reduced, Volume Maintained.

War time restrictions and the loss of man power to higher paying war plants and the draft have forced the cleaning industry to curtail certain services, industry spokesmen said yesterday, but the volume of business has been maintained or increased in most cases. However, with the spring rush to come, the industry will face its first big test in the next 90 days, they asserted.

Man power is the industry's first concern. Many of the companies are turning more to women and older workers, altho the inexperience of many new workers has retarded output.

Deliveries Are Curtailed.

Hampering service is the office of defense transportation restriction of deliveries to one trip daily as a gasoline and tire saving measure. Many companies which formerly gave much faster service now are not able to return clothes for four or five days. At first the public reacted unfavorably, it was said, but has come to accept curtailed service as being here for the duration.

These problems have come at a time when the volume of cleaning business generally has increased, thus aggravating the industry's troubles, spokesmen said. One company said its business during the last four months, ordinarily a slack period in the year, has shown a substantial increase.

Reach Saturation Point.

To add to the problems, said Frank Fisher, president of the Chicago Cleaning and Dye Plant Owners' association, the ODT has asked further curtailment of deliveries without a lessening of service. He asserted that the industry has reached the "saturation" point in this respect, having gone further than ODT had requested, and added that the approaching rush season will increase delivery problems.

T. M. Becker, president of another company, said the industry should be able to "pull thru" the war without many "casualties" if the man power situation does not become more acute. He said the public was doing a "very good job" of coöperating during trying times.

"What the industry can accomplish under the pressure of the rush season will be shown soon," said I. Bernstein, general manager of a cleaning firm. "We have been able to keep up with volume despite restrictions, but the big test is yet to come."

AVAILABLE PRINTING EXECUTIVE

With practical knowledge of sales and production such as few men acquire, I am seeking a substantial connection with a financially sound house that has large flat bed equipment and other facilities for handling considerable additional volume. With my services I offer the good will of a printing business long established that for years has operated at a profit. I am a competent manager, salesman, estimator, also know how to buy to advantage. I can bring immediate business plus ability and knowledge that can only be had after years of experience selling and producing printing of all kinds.

VICTORY MODELS.

One war development which is causing concern is the introduction of so-called "Victory" models in certain industries, and the promise that more industries will be affected if the war continues for many more months.

Concern is felt not because the consumer will have only one model, at most, to choose from instead of the accustomed variety of makes and models, but because of the fear that valuable trade and brand names, built up by years of intensive advertising, promotion, and good service, will become forgotten.

Victory models are simplified and uniform products which take the place of private brands. Under such a government sponsored plan only a few concerns will continue to manufacture the limited number of items for which materials are available, while other concerns are converted to war production. Because it would be inequitable to permit a few manufacturers to continue in business while others make war goods, private brand names and models are abolished in a concentrated industry and the nameless Victory model takes their place.

Experience has proved that big plants are more readily convertible to war work than small plants, but this does not assure that the smaller units will be chosen to continue in their regular lines. Transportation, for example, might be the deciding factor in a particular industry.

Altho government officials directly concerned with achieving concentration of industry are avowedly attempting to avoid harmful consequences to individual concerns, they admit that the "fruits of past enterprise are threatened and some will be lost." They acknowledge that concentration is a departure from the spirit of the anti-trust laws and that there is a possibility that monopolies will be fostered. But, these officials declare, a choice must be made between evils, and concentration of industry is a lesser evil than less than maximum war production.

The automobile industry, which is not producing so much as a Victory model passenger car for civilian use, may be presumed to be in even worse straits than a concentrated industry insofar as the retention of good will is concerned. The automobile makers, however, are taking no chance on being forgotten but are keeping their names constantly before the public by advertising their war activities. Earnings from war work enable the big automobile companies to continue advertising and promotion schedules. Smaller concerns in other fields may not be in a position to follow this example unless they, too, obtain substantial war orders.

PERMANENCY

RADIO RESEARCH

EXPANSION of largest marketing research organization [employing over 700 salaried individuals] has created several openings in its field staff.

Our nation-wide marketing research work provides a management service for manufacturers of essential consumer goods and offers both stability and advancement during and after the war.

Field positions are permanent and start with a salary of $172.50 per month. Continued expansion affords unusual opportunities to increase earnings substantially in supervisory and management work. Both merit and length of service determine advancement, and all positions are based on salary only.

These positions mean location away from Chicago, with COMPLETE moving expenses borne by our company

At present a car is essential, but further rationing of tires and gas will NOT affect our field operations. Automobile operating costs are covered by a fixed monthly allowance plus mileage. In addition to the car allowance, full travel expenses are paid.

Capacity to organize, handle details, and accept unusual responsibility with extremely limited supervision is essential. Mechanical aptitude or technical training, or knowledge of radio is helpful. While our field work does NOT entail selling, it does require the ability to meet all types of people easily. Consideration for a position in our field staff is also based upon character, integrity, and sound business background.

The several successful applicants will be sent to our own training school for a two month intensive course in our radio research methods. FULL SALARY is paid during training.

Please let us have a complete outline of your business experience, education, technical training, marital and draft status, age, religion. Please include your telephone number. Desirable ages are 25 to 40.

These positions mean long hours and hard work, but offer security, advancement, and PERMANENT association with an outstanding organization.

Address B E 333, Tribune.

PLANT EXECUTIVES OR FOREMEN

A national business engineering firm needs several men over 30 years of age having specific comprehensive experience in the creation and application of plant layout, production, and factory management, time and motion study, methods, standards, wage incentives, etc.

Must have engineering degree or equivalent in practical experience. Give complete abstract of business history plus full personal data, such as age, college attended, number of dependents, how soon available, etc. Give your phone number. Enclose a recent small snapshot of yourself.

Must be a United States citizen. Must be willing to travel extensively and stand investigation for bond which will be furnished.

Starting rate substantial with quick advancement for qualified men to executive positions paying $6,000 per year and up. Our business is unaffected by priorities, is rapidly expanding, and offers an opportunity for the right man to enter professional work now and be securely established with a sound income after the war. If you are in a non-essential business, or one hampered by material shortage, this is your opportunity.

Address B A 283, Tribune

PLANT SUPERINTENDENT

To take complete charge of factory for a mechanical spring manufacturing and stamping company. This requires a man of administrative ability with wide experience in shop supervision. Must have job shop, tool making and production experience. Permanent position assured with high salary to capable man. For interview full details should be given which will be held confidential.

Address S 380, Tribune

LOAN MANAGER

Increased earnings and a permanent connection is offered to a trained and successful man who has been managing a Personal Loan Office. To qualify the applicant must have had experience in small loan operations, passing on credit, collecting installment accounts and directing office personnel. He must be willing to accept a transfer to another city. He must be draft exempt or past thirty-eight years of age. Present expansion plans assure permanency and opportunity for advancement. Not a duration job. Give complete business history when responding. Information will be held confidential, pending a personal interview. Write to F. Bert Baer, Executive Vice President, Aetna Finance Company, 1029 N. Grand-blvd., St. Louis, Mo.

HOUSEHOLD FINANCE CORPORATION.

MONEY for Income Taxes
$25 for 30 Days Costs Only 75c
Higher taxes and larger pay roll deductions may make it difficult for you to meet the March 15 deadline this year. If so, get the cash you need from Commonwealth. By repaying in monthly instalments tailored to your individual needs, you are relieved of the burden and inconvenience caused by large lump sum payments, like taxes. The cost is based on a monthly rate of 3% on balances of $150 or less and 2¼% on that part of the unpaid balance over $150, and is, as illustrated above, quite moderate for short-term loans. Get any amount from $10 to $300.

FREE INCOME TAX BOOKLET: Written especially for the taxpayer in the low and medium income brackets, this pamphlet suggests numerous ways to reduce your taxes. It may save you money. For your copy, call in person at any Commonwealth office.

SEE 10 CENT FARE AS BLOCK TO CITY TRANSIT MERGER

Officials Still Oppose the Raise to 8 Cents.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Announced policies of the city administration toward car fares have had an important bearing on the status of the proposed 179 million dollar consolidation of the surface and elevated lines, which must have the approval of the Illinois commerce commission.

The city "does not approve any increases in rates of fare." This statement appears in the record of the unification case in a communication from the council committee on local transportation. It is qualified further . . . "If the commission sees fit to grant such increases in fares its orders should definitely provide for and assure to the car riding public, who pay the bill, substantial improvement in service."

Attacks 8 Cent Fare.

In another case now before the commission the request of the surface lines to make its present 8 cent temporary fare permanent, the city is acting in conformity with its announced policies. It is opposing the request and has attacked the bookkeeping methods and the claimed valuation of the properties of the surface lines.

This rate case was opened last summer but in conformity with the wishes of the city, was laid over until testimony had been finished in the unification case. The latter record was completed several weeks ago and was analyzed by two commission examiners, Fred Kleinman and Leslie E. Salter, in a critical report. The report now is being studied by the commission, whose decision is expected shortly. The rate case is on again.

On Friday the city's traction attorney, William H. Sexton, demanded that all the records bearing on the retirement and replacement of property by the surface lines be brought into the hearing room. Company attorneys said that this would require three trucks and Sexton compromised for a half dozen large books.

Infer Replacements Lacking.

He and his associates made it plain they were seeking to show that many retirements of property have not been replaced and that 8 or 9 million dollars should be lopped off the company's capital account. The object is to knock down the lines' rate base and force a return to the 7 cent fare.

The Kleinman-Salter report related that the city had consistently refused to grant any franchise except to a unified company [altho the bus company was left out, as a competitor] and that this was inconsistent with its opposition to fare increases and its demands for compensation, or a split of profits. In the words of the report:

"It appears that while advocating and insisting upon a huge corporate merger of the mass transportation agencies of Chicago as a condition precedent to the granting of a franchise, lack of which has been the reason for the 15 year receivership of the surface lines, and while insisting on expenditure of 102 millions in improvements, the city of Chicago has refused to commit itself to a policy of increased fares, clearly necessary to the . . . entire financial feasibility of the plan. . . .

Drive a Hard Bargain.

"Thruout the years, in all financial negotiations, the position of the city has been to ask for more than could be obtained. . . . It is, of course, the duty of a city to drive as hard a bargain as it can in the interest of the public; nevertheless the realities of the situation must receive serious consideration."

The realities, as described by the examiners, include an all over fare of at least 10 cents if the unification plan is to succeed. They also include turning over to the new company a 19 million dollar renewal and depreciation fund, built up by the surface lines for actual physical improvements and unexpended largely because of the city's insistence on the grandiose unification.

This fund, the examiners found in the terms of the plan and the city ordinance embodying it, could be used for lawyers' fees and other reorganization expense, cash payments to old company bondholders who would not take a trade of new company paper, for bond interest if the new company did not prosper at the start, and for working capital.

This summary handling of the renewal fund and the city's demands for both low fares and compensation were among the factors impelling the examiners to hold that the plan was so unsound it should be scrapped.

PLAN DIETICIAN COURSES AS AID FOR RED CROSS

A training program for volunteer dietician aids for consideration by the Red Cross was outlined at the midwinter board meeting of the American Dietetic association in the Drake hotel yesterday. The program includes between 40 and 50 hours of training in hospital food service, and if adopted by the Red Cross would be given in coöperation with qualified dieticians.

Two refresher courses for trained dieticians also were suggested by the association. One would train school lunchroom managers and teachers to instruct mothers for assistance in mass feeding programs. The other would provide extra training for dieticians who wish to enter the field of industrial feeding.

Both courses would be given with the assistance of the state associations of the American Dietetic association. Miss Frances MacKinnon of St. Louis, Mo., is president of the association.

CLAIM NAZIS SHOOT PRIEST.

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Belgian circles here reported today that the Rev. Father Emmanuel De Neckere, 44 years old, had been shot by German forces of occupation on a charge of "spying and helping the allies."

Enough of Marriage

LANA TURNER.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 20 (AP). — Screen actress Lana Turner said today that she does not intend to marry again.

"I had hoped that it would not be necessary for me to make a statement at this time," she said. "However, because of recent events and speculation as to my plans, I can only say that I have no intention of remarrying."

Her marriage to Stephen Crane was annulled recently.

An expectant mother by her marriage to Crane, Miss Turner said she will not return to the screen until after the birth of her baby.

BACK SALES TAX COLLECTION GAIN TOLD BY BARRETT

Cites $656,312 Given Up Earlier.

Collection of $656,312.34 in delinquent sales tax accounts given up by the department of finance as desperate claims and uncollectible was reported by Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett in a letter to Gov. Dwight H. Green made public yesterday.

These collections, made during the first two years of Barrett's administration of the attorney general's office, were claimed to be an all time record for delinquent sales tax collections. The letter said $345,796.97 of this amount was collected by the Chicago office and $310,515.37 by the Springfield office.

Gives Inheritance Tax Figure.

Barrett's letter also disclosed that $9,813,271.58 in inheritance taxes were assessed, bringing the combined assessments and collections by the two divisions of his office to $10,469,583.92.

Barrett said that during an eight month period in 1941 collections increased 1,068 per cent over those during his predecessor's last year in office. The Springfield division, he said, broke another record with average monthly collections for 1942 of 189 per cent more than the monthly average collections during the first year of his administration.

Terms Record Gratifying.

"This record is very gratifying to me because they were accounts that were given up by the department of finance," Barrett said. "Prior to the time these cases were turned over to me, the department of finance had tried every means at its disposal, with the exception of the courts, to collect these claims. The amount collected represents a substantial benefit to the state."

The money collected was that procured by merchants thru the 2 per cent retailers' occupational tax which they failed to turn over to the department of finance.

The attorney general's letter said $5,946,052.21 in inheritance taxes were collected in Cook county, $816,540.44 in Lake, $294,544.31 in Kane, $258,849.47 in Fulton, and $247,947.07 in Du Page. Five other downstate counties which totaled well over $100,000 each were La Salle, Macon, Peoria, Rock Island, and Sangamon.

KLEIBER CANCELS CITY SYMPHONY SERIES CONTRACT

Erich Kleiber, thru his management, the National Concert and Artists corporation of New York, yesterday canceled his engagement to conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in four concerts at Orchestra hall this week, giving as his reason the orchestra's recent appointment of Désiré Defauw as musical director and conductor for next season.

The telegram read: "Kleiber refuses coming to Chicago now since you made your announcement regarding Defauw." Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the orchestra, said the concerts will be taken over by Hans Lange, associate conductor.

Defauw, 57 year old director of "Concert Symphoniques" in Montreal, was appointed director of the Chicago orchestra Feb. 11, succeeding the late Dr. Frederick Stock. He will take over his new duties in the fall season.

LIFT SPEED LIMIT FOR TRUCKS BUSY WITH WAR WORK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—Motor carriers making emergency deliveries for the army, navy, maritime commission, and war shipping administration will be permitted to exceed the 35 mile an hour speed limit for a 60 day trial period beginning March 1.

In announcing this tonight Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, said he had been advised that the 35 mile limit was delaying some shipments of war supplies.

Trucks must carry certificates of exemption and display pennants indicating they are engaged in emergency service.

LIBRARY TO USE 15% OF BUDGET FOR NEW BOOKS

Commended for Progress in Improvements.

The accomplishments of the Chicago Public library in the three years since a $10,000 survey of its operations with 600 pages of recommendations was made in 1939 are impressive tho some changes remain to be carried out.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Lowell Martin, former assistant librarian now on the staff of the graduate library school of the University of Chicago. He has spent several months' appraising improvements against the 1939 recommendations.

This year the library probably will use 15 per cent of its total budget for book purchases as recommended in the survey, instead of the 11 per cent spent on books in 1941, he notes.

Two New Branches Built.

Altho no specific building program for branch libraries has been drawn up as recommended, the library has built two new branches since the survey, and has established two subbranches and planned three others for the immediate future.

On the debit side the library has not established a modern executive budget as recommended by the report, it was pointed out. The report said the library continues to use the makeshift process of last year's budget with a few obvious changes, described as a costly and inefficient method compared to modern expenditure analysis used by large businesses.

Another failure to comply with the survey recommendations cited is a lag in civil service examinations for library personnel. A case where three classes of employés waited 26 months from the time of examination to posting of eligible lists was noted.

Summary of Progress.

The seven over-all recommendations of the survey and their present status in library affairs as noted by Martin's appraisal are listed. The report itself has been presented to Joseph B. Fleming, president of the library board, and will be printed for further use. Fleming said the report confirms the board's desire to make all feasible improvements. The recommendations and progress:

1. Recommended increased income. At the time it was stated the library should have an annual income of $2,400,000 instead of its pegged levy of $2,000,000 set by the state legislature. Since then this has been raised $250,000, or nearly to the full goal.

2. Recommended administrative reorganization. Since the survey the library affairs have been concentrated in the hands of a chief librarian and administrative assistants for each of three divisions have been named.

Salary Increases Granted.

3. Better library personnel. While some of the civil service restrictions criticized [such as resident requirements] have not been changed, an increase in salaries for the entire staff has been granted. The war has made staff improvements difficult for the present, it was asserted.

4. Recommended more adequate book purchases. The library has set aside 13 per cent of this year's budget for new books, and an additional 2 per cent probably will be taken from the building fund for book purchases. This meets the survey's suggested 15 per cent for books.

5. Recommended more dynamic services. The library now has a full time publicity department which has promoted the various facilities of the library thru displays, new releases, radio releases and other publicity channels.

6. Building program. A branch building program meeting expectations of the survey proposal had been carried out until the war halted building. Two branches have been completed and three subbranches set up. No over all building program has been drawn, however, and no alterations made in the main building.

7. Coöperation of private and public libraries. Several moves to weld the Newberry, Crerar, and public libraries have been made. The metropolitan library council is supporting a plan to house all three in one building. Consolidation with the Municipal Reference library has not been attempted, however.

30,313 OF ALIENS IN DISTRICT MADE CITIZENS IN 1942

Fred J. Schlotfeldt, Chicago district director of immigration and naturalization, reported yesterday that 30,313 aliens became citizens in the district during 1942. The total was twice that of pre-war years, except 1941, when a record 45,521 took the oath of citizenship.

The 1941 record resulted from a rush of applicants to complete naturalization proceedings started years before, then forgotten by those who had obtained their first papers, Schlotfeldt said. He attributed the volume of applicants last year to the fact that as aliens they were barred from employment in war plants and from some governmental benefits.

The war reduced the number of German and Italian aliens naturalized in the district. During 1942 only 379 persons of German nationality were admitted, against 5,922 in the preceding year. Italians who became citizens numbered 499, contrasted to 4,215 naturalized in 1941.

Reports from subdistrict offices in northern Illinois, northern Indiana, eastern Iowa, and southern Wisconsin showed that Poles predominated in the new citizens, with 7,182 being sworn. British subjects totaled 5,342, including 1,807 Canadians and 1,385 Irishmen.

Son Gone to War, Hoffman to Pinch-Hit in $50,000 Suit

St. Joseph, Mich., Feb. 20 (AP).—Because his lawyer son, Leo, was called into the military before the case came to trial, Rep. Clare Hoffman, [R., Mich.] will substitute for him next week to argue a $50,000 auto damage suit in Berrien county Circuit court.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

G. J. writes: "In January I rented a farm of 30 acres and moved onto it. Today I received a notice from my draft board that I passed the blood test I took in December and I'm classified 1A. What goes on here? I thought farmers and farm help were not to be drafted. My draft board tells me I'm to be inducted March 1. I spent more than $75 moving out here."

ANSWER: To be deferred as an agricultural worker, "the registrant must have regularly been engaged in an agricultural occupation or endeavor or whose principal occupation consists of employment in connection with the production or harvesting of any agricultural commodity as long as he is so employed." In other words, unless you have been a farmer for a long time and are producing more than the required number of essential units set up by selective service in your state, you cannot be deferred.

D. H. C. writes: "Our organization [Veterans of Foreign Wars] could use some assistance from doctors, dentists, and optometrists as several of our posts report there are not sufficient of these professional men available who can contribute a little time to our program of helping men qualify for the army air corps. We would appreciate hearing from any of these men who could give a little time each week for the purpose."

ANSWER: This organization is doing marvelous work in helping young men qualify for the air corps, and since they make no charge for their assistance, they have no funds to pay for the services of professional men.

If you care to volunteer, write or call Veterans of Foreign Wars, 180 West Washington street, Chicago.

F. M. asks: "Are meat cutters and grocery clerks classed as 'essential' by the WMC and entitled to deferment? I will be 38 in the early fall. Would I be subject to induction under the present selective service procedures?"

ANSWER: The jobs you mention would not be considered essential in the sense of entitling one to deferment. A registrant is subject to induction and acceptance by the army until he is actually 38 years of age.

J. M. asks: "What is a 'power of attorney' and what does it do? How can one most easily make one out at army camps?"

ANSWER: Power of attorney is the written delegation of authority for some one to act in your stead in the performance of such legal, administrative or business transactions, etc., as are authorized by you thru the instrument. The judge advocate's office at your camp, or a licensed attorney in service will be able to help you out. A very complete form of power of attorney can be found in Charles R. Hutchinson's Personal Finance and Management for the Army Officer.

CLEARS CHICAGO OF OLD STIGMA AS 'WINDY CITY'

Librarian Rex Finds 18 Cities Gustier.

Frederick Rex, municipal reference librarian, added 1942 weather figures yesterday to his statistical evidence that Chicago, from the standpoint of climate, is a pretty good place to live.

His annual survey covered weather records of 33 representative American cities, including the nation's 25 largest, and showed that Chicago compares with the rest of them as follows:

WIND: Chicago really isn't the Windy City by a wide margin. In 18 of the 33 cities, the wind velocity reached 32 miles an hour on more days than in Chicago. Buffalo, N. Y., was the windiest city of them all, with a velocity of 32 miles an hour 97 days, compared with Chicago's 8 days.

Speaking of Temperatures.

COLD WEATHER: Nine other cities had more subfreezing days than Chicago, which had 107, and the temperature dropped below zero more days in three of the cities than in Chicago, with 10 days of subzero cold.

HEAT: Fourteen of the cities had more days with a maximum temperature of 90 degrees or higher than did Chicago, with 15 days. Three of the cities had a higher 1942 maximum than Chicago, where the top was 100 degrees.

MEAN MONTHLY TEMPERATURE: Chicago was 28th highest, with an average of 50 degrees.

Many Have Rainy Days.

PRECIPITATION: Chicago received 35.66 inches of rain, which placed it 23d from the top of the list. The city had 130 days with at least .01 of an inch of rain, to rank 8th in this category, and had at least a trace of snow 65 days, to rank 8th. Ten cities had more days with thunderstorms than Chicago, with 48.

SUNSHINE: Chicago had 43 days without sunshine, to rank 18th; 78 clear days, to rank 26th; 106 partly cloudy days, to rank 19th; 181 cloudy days, to rank 9th; 12 days with dense fog, to rank 14th.

DEVIL DOGS? YOU BET! SO MARINES SIGN THEM UP!

The Dobermann Pinscher club of America has launched a campaign to procure dogs which will be trained for service with the marine corps. The first Dobermanns recruited in Chicagoland were presented yesterday to Lt. Col. Chester L. Fordney by R. V. Henderson, secretary-treasurer of the Dobermann Pinscher club. They will be shipped to a marine base for training. The campaign to get Dobermanns in Chicagoland is in charge of Henderson and Melvin Bailey, regional director of the club in this area. Only pure bred Dobermanns between 1 and 5 years of age are wanted, said Henderson.

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL TO HIS GENERALS: BY ALONZO CHAPPEL

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL TO HIS OFFICERS, which took place in New York just before he resigned his commission in 1783, is one of the briefest and yet most beloved chapters in American history. The following account of this simple but profoundly moving episode is from Chief Justice Marshall's "Life of Washington:"

THIS affecting interview took place on the 4th of December. At noon, the principal officers of the army assembled at Fraunces' tavern; soon after which their beloved commander entered the room. His emotions were too strong to be concealed. Filling a glass, he turned to them and said: "With a heart full of love and gratitude, I now take leave of you; I most devoutly wish that your latter days may be as prosperous and happy as your former ones have been glorious and honorable."

Having drunk, he added, "I cannot come to each of you to take my leave, but shall be obliged to you if each of you will come and take me by the hand."

General Knox, being nearest, turned to him. Incapable of utterance, Washington grasped his hand and embraced him. In the same affectionate manner, he took leave of each succeeding officer. In every eye was the tear of dignified sensibility; and not a word was articulated to interrupt the majestic silence and the tenderness of the scene.

Leaving the room, he passed thru the corps of light infantry and walked to Whitehall, where a barge waited to convey him to Powles' hook (Paulus Hook). The whole company followed in mute and solemn procession, with dejected countenances, testifying feelings of delicious melancholy, which no language can describe. Having entered the barge, he turned to the company and, waving his hat, bade them a silent adieu. They paid him the same affectionate compliment, and after the barge had left them, returned in the same solemn manner to the place where they had assembled.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH JOE?

LOOK at him, poor fellow! He'd like to produce more than ever, but he just can't get going. And is it any wonder when we consider how Joe—and millions of the rest of us—live these war days? Swing shifts, long hours, many habits of sleeping and eating changed around. Especially the eating. Hurry-up meals, improperly balanced, often lead to lack of "bulk" in the diet.

WHAT HAS "BULK" TO DO WITH IT?

IT may be the whole secret of Joe's trouble—and yours—because lack of "bulk" is a common cause of constipation. And the thing to do is to get at its cause and correct it. Not merely to take a purge or cathartic, which can give only temporary relief, but to get more "bulk" in the diet by eating regularly that crisp, delicious breakfast cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

DOES ALL-BRAN REALLY WORK?

LIKE a charm—and a mighty pleasant one at that—against this common kind of constipation. For this crunchy, nut-sweet cereal goes straight to the cause of the trouble and licks the daylights out of it! If you suffer from this common evil these war days, why not give ALL-BRAN a trial? You'll find it at your grocer's. Eat it often and drink plenty of water.

Have tempting, tasty KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for breakfast tomorrow morning—and every morning!

GETS OUT MORE DIRT

"Those 'soapy-rich' suds make clothes-washing easy!"

says Mrs. Walter Beller, of 133-08 134th Street, South Ozone Park, N.Y.

OH CHILDREN! HOW YOU'VE DIRTIED YOUR CLOTHES KEEPING HOUSE. WELL, THANK GOODNESS FOR THIS NEW RINSO! I'D NEVER GET YOUR CLOTHES CLEAN WITHOUT IT!

Twins Jean and Joan love to bake and mother encourages it. But this time they took her by surprise.

SORRY I GOT MY SHIRT SO DIRTY, DEAR
DON'T WORRY. I'LL GET OUT THAT GREASE AND GRIME IN NO TIME WITH THE NEW RINSO. IT CERTAINLY DOES A JOB ON DIRT AND YET IT'S SO SAFE!

Walter Beller keeps the car shining. He's handy around the house, too . . . does painting and repairs himself.

YOU SHOULD SEE THE WASH I DID TODAY! AND EVERYTHING CAME OUT SO CLEAN AND WHITE WITH THE NEW RINSO THAT EVEN THE NEIGHBORS PRAISED IT!

All the Bellers enjoy family games. There's hot rivalry over Monopoly on evenings when home work is done.

LOOK WALTER, SEE HOW SNOWY-WHITE THIS SHIRT IS AFTER ONLY 5 MINUTES RUN IN THE WASHER! RINSO SAVES BOTH THE WASHER AND THE CLOTHES!

Mrs. Beller takes pride in keeping her family looking well-dressed. She makes lots of the girls' clothes.

Jean

"It's fun to do dishes for Mummie — with Rinso. It takes the grease right off and the glasses sparkle like everything."

Joan

"Yes — and Mother says Rinso makes her linens last longer, too. That's why she won't do her washing with anything else."

* * *

Ruth and Walter Beller have been married for 21 years. The twins take after their father, being quite tall. They're just 11 years old and still love dolls, as all girls do. Mrs. Beller believes girls should learn home-making and hers can sew as well as cook.

FEEL LIKE A MILLION Tomorrow

TAKE PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA Tonight

WANT TO START the day with a smile instead of a frown? Then don't let your stomach go sour during the night because your dinner disagreed with you—or you overindulged at a gay party. Take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at bedtime. It does more than merely neutralize excess stomach acidity—it finishes the job by acting as a very gentle laxative. Helps you to wake up "feeling like a million". Read the directions on package and take as directed thereon or as prescribed by your physician.

ONE-TWO ACTION

1 NEUTRALIZES EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS—and does it almost quicker than it takes to tell. Relieves that uneasy feeling of discomfort almost immediately.

2 ACTS AS MILD LAXATIVE. Gentle—does not upset the system and leave you feeling "all wrung out". Take any time—does not act with embarrassing urgency.

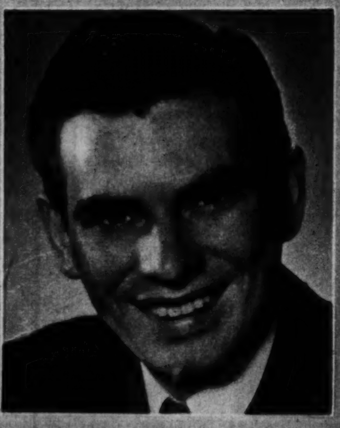
ALBUM OF THE AIR

Constance Crowder

Constance Crowder is the Mother Moynihan of "Painted Dreams," radio's oldest continuous daytime dramatic serial, broadcast over W-G-N Mondays thru Fridays at 1:15 p. m. CWT. She attended the University of Chicago, where she was a scholarship student; studied acting in New York; has worked for many years in stock, vaudeville, and radio; took over her present role in "Painted Dreams" in 1940.

Mary Killen

Mary Killen, cast as 6 year old Lynn, is 10 years old and in the sixth grade at the Robert Morris school. She is heard in "Guiding Light" and "Hot Copy" as well as "Painted Dreams," also models and works in commercial movies. More, she is a singer; she appeared last year in the children's chorus of the Civic Opera company production of "Faust."



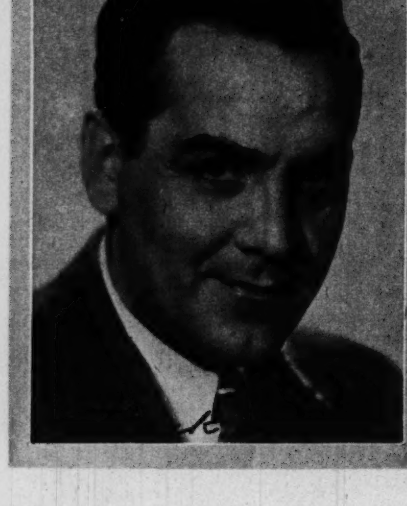
Nelson Olmsted, who plays John Stuart, was born in Minneapolis, grew up in Texas; attended a prep school and the University of Texas, where, in campus productions, he developed a yearning for the stage. In 1934 he began working in radio at Austin, Tex.; in 1939 he conceived the idea for the "World's Greatest Stories" program, in which he now is heard from Chicago.

Kay Chase, for the last nine years the author of "Painted Dreams," writes some 80,000 words a month. She spends a day planning and outlining scripts for a week, writing in minute longhand; during the succeeding five days she types the complete scripts on an ancient, battered typewriter from which all her scripts have clattered. Born in Chicago, Kay brought her talent and her treasured typewriter to the W-G-N continuity department immediately after her graduation from Northwestern university, where she was an honor student and editor of a campus literary magazine. Soon afterward, she was given "Painted Dreams."

Alice Hill has played the role of Alice Stuart in "Painted Dreams" for 10 years. She came to W-G-N from the Goodman theater, where she had studied for a year; previously she had been educated in California public schools and the University of Southern California. She worked in radio first in 1932, in occasional parts on various Chicago stations; in the fall of that year she won the role of Alice Stuart. Other programs on which Miss Hill has appeared are "Your Friendly Neighbor," "Wife vs. Secretary," "Helen Trent," "Easy Aces," and "Betty and Bob." She is a talented mimic, and has appeared in many productions doubling the voices of Garbo and Dietrich of the films.

Sarajane Wells

Sarajane Wells, who has the role of Melody Collier in "Painted Dreams," was born at Owensboro, Ky.; attended Senn High school, Chicago; studied drama at Northwestern university; began her stage career in 1919, playing child parts with a stock company; was a member of a professional little theater group while at Senn; worked with the Evanston Players Guild, winning a trophy for stellar performances two years in succession. Her radio career dates from 1931; her debut in "Painted Dreams" was recent.



←

Frank Dane, who is Bill Riley before the microphone, was born in Denmark in 1905; came to the United States with his parents when he was 12 years old; shortly afterward was given a juvenile role in a road show; played in stock until 1927; since, has been in radio.

Dick Holland, the 16 year old who is heard as Karl Becker, is a veteran of half a dozen movies. He has resided in Chicago, New York, and Toronto, Canada.

Considering that a piny puppet of the name of Charlie McCarthy is presently one of the nation's top-flight comics, it is hard to realize that it has been only a few years since ventriloquism went down in vaudeville for the third time and Edgar Bergen administered artificial respiration. McCarthy's alter ego was born Edgar Bergren in Chicago on Feb. 16, 1903. Charlie took form as a babe in the wood while Edgar was a sophomore at Lake View High school and attended Northwestern university with Bergen, who was graduated from the Evanston institution in 1925. For his first theater engagement, which was down on South Clark street, Bergen was paid $5.25. The most recent report at hand lists his income from a year of radio alone at $282,000.00. Beyond this Edgar has a handsome return from films and a tidy sum from sundry Charlie McCarthy commercial products. Mortimer Snerd, the bucolic termite tidbit whose likeness also is reproduced here, is of recent origin. Currently Edgar, Charlie, and Mortimer devote much of their time to entertainment of service men; last fall they flew 8,000 miles on a tour of Alaska and the Aleutians.

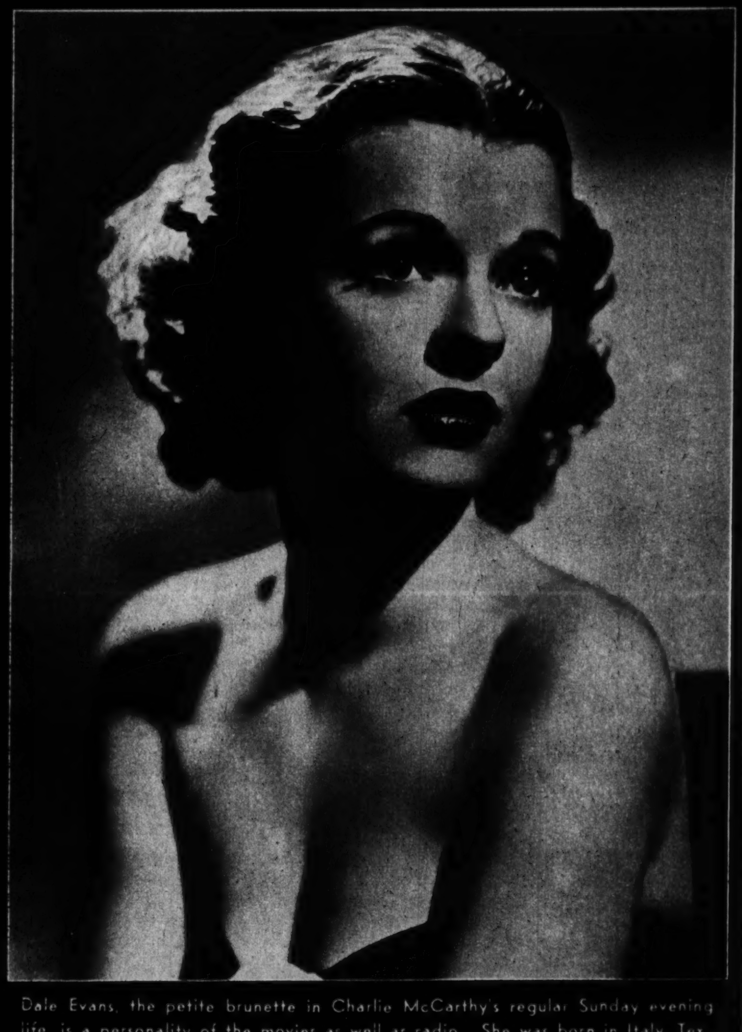
Ray Noble, band leader and stooge of the Bergen-McCarthy show, is the son of an English surgeon. He took a degree from Cambridge, planning to become a composer; thereafter began working as a clerk by day and playing in small bands by night. Then, working with an English radio station, he established a reputation with his recordings that resulted in an invitation to come to America in 1933. He joined Bergen and company last year.



Dale Evans, the petite brunette in Charlie McCarthy's regular Sunday evening life, is a personality of the movies as well as radio. She was born in Italy, Tex., 25 years ago; worked as stenographer for an insurance company in Dallas; came to Chicago some five years ago as soloist with Anson Weeks' band; sang over W-G-N and other Chicago stations for two and a half years before her contract took her to Hollywood. She plays the piano and writes songs, several of which she has sung over the air. She is a self-taught singer, but went to instructors to learn to dance.

This is the fourth of a series of pages presenting stars, supporting players, and craftsmen of popular radio programs. Portraits of other radio personalities will be reproduced in this section next week.

Don Ameche of Kenosha broke into acting accidentally. That happened at Madison, Wis., when he substituted for the leading man of a stock company who had been injured in an automobile accident. It led Don, then a student at Wisconsin, into stock, a season on Broadway, radio, and the movies, in that order. Early in his radio career, which now has stretched into 14 years, he became the leading man of the perennial "First Nighter"; he took over as master of ceremonies on the Bergen-McCarthy program in 1937.

Make MARCH military mail month

It's mail they want ...let's give them plenty!

"Uncle Bill is an air raid spotter"..."Young Don came home with his first black eye"... "Your collie has pups"...

Not very important things, perhaps, alongside the newspaper headlines. But put them in a letter to your man in service and they're the stuff that helps win wars. You should see the cheer they bring—the extra fight they put in a lad's heart.

Military authorities place the need for letters second only to the need for food. They're the fighting man's lifelines to home. Refreshing as a family gab-fest or a stroll through the old neighborhood. They are proof that the folks are not forgetting.

That's why soldiers have risked their lives to pick up the regiment's mail. And today V-Mail to the armed forces abroad takes precedence over everything except official government business.

Make your letters simple and natural. Write just as you'd talk. And above all—don't wait until something "big" happens. Everything you say is important. Dash off a letter now—or anytime you can squeeze 10 minutes into a crowded day.

Let's make March a Military Mail Month. Let's keep on mailing to our fighters!

PLAY SAFE! DO YOUR WRITING WITH PARKER QUINK

Each V-Mail letter is photographed down to about 1/20 its size for shipment, then enlarged to about 1/4 the size of the original letter. It is this "miniature" which reaches your service man.

"Micro-film Black" Quink photographs perfectly . . . contains pen-protecting solv-x.

FOR REGULAR MAIL—brilliant, fast-drying Parker Quink is the only brand of ink containing solv-x. Solv-x gives pens vital protection now when repair parts may soon be impossible to obtain. Solv-x cleans your pen as it writes—flushes away sediment and gum left by inferior writing fluids. It prevents the corrosion of metal and the deterioration of rubber inevitable with highly acid inks. Parker Quink is ideal for steel pens, too.

HOW TO WRITE A LETTER to your soldier, sailor or marine

1. Write or print address plainly. Spell out state.
2. Use a pen and a good ink, such as Parker Quink.
3. In the upper left hand corner of the envelope, place your own name, address, town and state. In V-Mail, this should be written in the panel provided for that purpose.
4. Mail to a man in the service should always be addressed exactly as per the address given in the last letter received from him.
5. Within the continental U. S., the address normally includes: name, rank, serial number, branch of service, unit or organization, camp name and state.
7. For V-Mail, get U. S.-approved forms at any stationery counter. Parker's "Micro-film Black" Quink for V-Mail photographs perfectly.

Collection of Kisses

KISSES ARE a collector's item to S. Clay Campbell. Head of the makeup department at Columbia studios, Campbell has kept a lip imprint—or, as he calls it, lipograph—of every feminine star he has made up in nearly 20 years in Hollywood. On this page are reproduced 19 of them.

Campbell's unusual hobby started one day when he was assigned to make up Olivia De Havilland for a picture. He took an imprint of her lips so as to have a record for the next day. The idea seemed practical, and he followed it with other feminine players. He reads various characteristics into the lipographs of the stars. Some examples: Rita Hayworth, intoxicating; Ann Sheridan, glamorous; Janet Blair, petulant; Claire Trevor, inviting; Olivia De Havilland, angelic.

Campbell, who values his collection at more than $2,500, is the son of Stuart Campbell, a Chicago merchant. After attending boarding school at Toronto, Ont., he found his way to Hollywood and a job in a waxworks. Besides modeling wax figures, he was required to make up their faces.

This work led to the films, but Campbell still utilizes his waxworks technique by making masks of difficult characterizations before actually applying makeup to movie stars.

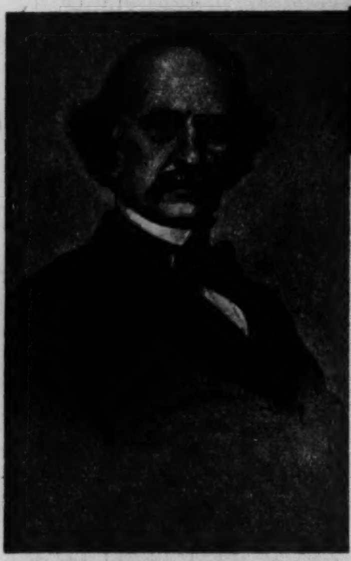
Chicago Surgeons Who Blazed New Trails



DANIEL BRAINARD, founder of Rush Medical college.

By IRVING S. CUTTER, M. D.

SURGERY in Chicago began with the coming of the explorers. The first surgeon to flash across the horizon remains a mystery. His name is unknown. History records, however, that when the Saint of the Wilderness, Marquette, was ill somewhere on the low-lying isthmus a little to the east of what is now Western avenue near the Chicago river, a trader-surgeon trudged 50 miles in the teeth of a January northeaster to do what he could for his patient. With unkempt hair and beard, equipped with fur cap, peltry coat, and heavy boots, he was unmindful of the inconveniences of travel. He spent two days ministering to the distinguished invalid and performed his mission of mercy without thought of recompense.

No physician accompanied La Salle. When grievously wounded by the ferocious Iroquois Indians, he was nursed back to health and strength by a companion priest. In 1675 we hear of Louis Moreau, who had been "bred" to surgery. He combined fur trading with the art of medicine. In 1682 Jean Michel aided the scattered inhabitants in their battles against disease. He bound up wounds, set broken bones, and performed numerous minor operations.

Curiously enough, a fair sprinkling of doctors were among the earliest settlers. After arrival, because of the scarcity of money, some were obliged to eke out a living by turning to whatever offered. Many became Indian agents, while others dabbled in furs, in agriculture, or in trade. Dressings and medicines were hard to obtain and makeshift instruments were the rule.

• • •

In the 19th century the struggle for control of the Chicago portage (from the Chicago river to the Des Plaines) forced the establishment of Fort Dearborn. Altho a fur trader, Du Pin, dabbled in medicine, the first regular army surgeon was William C. Smith. Records disclose that he accompanied the troops of Capt. John Whistler, grandfather of the famous artist, James McNeill Whistler. The expedition was led by Lt. James S. Swearingen and made the journey overland from Fort Wayne, Detroit. Arriving at the mouth of the Chicago river in the summer of 1803, the troops began the erection of the new post which was named in honor of Maj. Gen. Henry Dearborn, a New Hampshire practitioner, who was secretary of war under Thomas Jefferson. Dr. Smith became the chief medical officer of the garrison, but in addition he served the Indian tribes, chance wayfarers, and travelers.

The second surgeon of Fort Dearborn was John Cooper (1786-1863) whose grandfather had died with Wolfe at Quebec. A graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York, Dr. Cooper journeyed west by way of Albany and Buffalo and spent 17 days sailing on the brig Adams en route to his new assignment on the shore of Lake Michigan. From his letters we get a picture of life at the stockade where the dullness of isolation was lightened by fishing, hunting, and athletic contests with the natives.

The first of Fort Dearborn's surgeons to sacrifice his life was Isaac Van Voorhis (1790-1812). He perished during the ill-fated retreat of the garrison which followed the abandonment of the fort pursuant to orders from the panicky Gen. Hull, who commanded at Detroit. He was among the 53 victims of this cruel order. His prophetic vision of the future greatness of Chicago is set forth in a letter which he wrote from his lonely station in October, 1811: "In my solitary walks, I contemplate what a great and powerful republic will yet arise in this new world. Here, I say, will be the seat of millions yet unborn; here the asylum of oppressed millions yet to come."

EDMUND ANDREWS, one of the founders of Northwestern university medical school.

When the fort was rebuilt in 1816, John Gale, a hero of the War of 1812, came to supplement the penknife surgery of the pioneers. Subsequently he had an eventful history. In 1820 while stationed at Fort Atkinson, 12 miles above Omaha on the Missouri river, he married a comely Indian maiden. His daughter became the wife of Joe La Flesche. One of his granddaughters, Susette, married Thomas H. Tibbles and became a noted lecturer on the rights of the Indians. His grandson, Francis, became a distinguished ethnologist. Another granddaughter, Susan, studied medicine, graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia, and acted for many years as physician to the Winnebago and the Omaha tribes. Dr. Gale died of Asiatic cholera at Fort Armstrong (Rock Island, Ill.) in 1830. A memorial tablet marks the site of the old military cemetery where he rests.

Gale was succeeded by other men experienced in the Indian wars, among them Clement Alexander Finley (1797-1879) who later became surgeon general of the United States army. The ninth surgeon at Fort Dearborn, Elijah Dewey Harmon (1782-1869), is called the "Father of Medicine" in Chicago. In 1832 he performed the first major operation in the history of the village. A French-Canadian, carrying mail on horseback from Green Bay (Fort Howard), arrived with his feet badly frozen. Dr. Harmon performed the necessary amputation. East 11th street was once called Harmon court in honor of this valiant son of Hippocrates.

Dr. Philip Maxwell (1799-1859) was the 11th and last surgeon of the fort, participating in its abandonment, Dec. 29, 1836. Later he served for a time as city physician. He was associated with Dr. Brockholst McVickar and attended the meetings preliminary to the organization of the Chicago Medical society in 1850.

RALPH NELSON ISHAM, pioneer in tracheotomy.

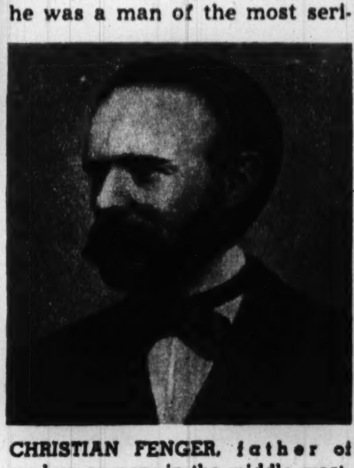
One bright September morning in 1835 a seedy-looking gentleman mounted on an Indian pony rode up Dearborn street to the office of Judge Caton opposite the Tremont House. Had he come as a stranger and announced himself penniless, he might not have been so well received. But Judge Caton had known him in Rome, N. Y. The newcomer was Daniel Brainard, destined to put this community on the medical map and to be the founder of Rush Medical college. Born in 1812 in Oneida county, New York, he took his M. D. at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the western district of New York, and received a post-graduate degree from Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia (1834). Swept along by the westward trend of empire, he found a foothold here. Happily, he became connected with the city's then leading surgeon, Josiah Cosmore Goodhue (1794-1847). Together they performed the second major surgical procedure in the growing city. Blessed with a passion for teaching, Dr. Brainard spent his remarkable energies in establishing a medical school, nursing the infant to a vigorous maturity. He exhibited rare talent in choosing faculty members, most of whom later achieved national, even international, fame. Among these were Nathan Smith Davis, the elder Austin Flint, Edmund Andrews, and James Van Zandt Blaney.

Medical education for women owes its beginning in Chicago to William H. Byford (1817-1890). Despite a sparse preliminary training he became one of America's foremost gynecologists. He acquired the ability to write and his textbooks and articles were read widely. On general topics he was well informed and accurate. In 1857 he occupied the chair of diseases of women and children in Rush. Two years later he joined Dr. N. S. Davis and others in founding the Chicago Medical college, later Northwestern university medical school. He helped plan what later became Northwestern university woman's medical school.

James Blaney (1820-1874), simultaneously with Sir James Y. Simpson, discovered chloroform. The distinction of having been the first to administer an anesthetic west of the Alleghanies belongs to Charles Harvey Quinlan, an early Chicago dentist and later physician. Dr. Brainard, in amputating a finger, invited Dr. Quinlan to administer ether, which he did with most satisfactory results.

• • •

One of the most brilliant figures in the professional and social circles was Moses Gunn (1822-1887) who succeeded Dr. Brainard as professor of surgery at Rush. A tall, striking figure with flowing hair, he was given to almost too tasteful costumes, but nobody doubted that he was a man of the most serious purposes and perfectly genuine. Among his important contributions may be mentioned his research on dislocations. He discovered and identified all the obstacles to cure and devised a method of restoring the useless limb by reversing the force which produced it originally. His work preceded that of Bigelow of Boston by 14 years, but did not become well publicized. However, Hamilton, in "Fractures and Dislocations" gives prior credit to Gunn.



CHRISTIAN FENGER, father of modern surgery in the middle west.

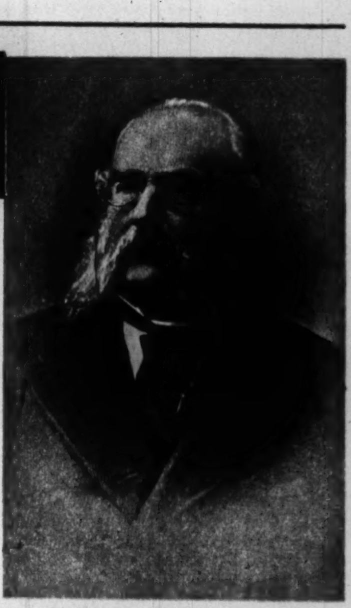
One of the founders of Northwestern university medical school and, for nearly half a century, chief surgeon at Mercy hospital was Dr. Edmund Andrews (1824-1904). Grandson of a minute man of the Revolution, and son of a Vermont Congregational minister, Dr. Andrews was educated at the University of Michigan. Sandwiched between his academic and medical studies he served an apprenticeship to Dr. Zina Pitcher, a surgeon of the War of 1812. At the beginning of the Civil war he was appointed surgeon at Camp Douglas by Gov. Yates. He later became major and surgeon of the 1st Illinois light artillery, stationed in Tennessee and Mississippi. During his military career he originated the idea of keeping systematic records of army cases. His reports to the surgeon general were models of their kind and set a standard for the collection of data concerning illness and disease.

He was the first professional man to employ antiseptics in Chicago, and published extensive statistics on the relative risk of various types of anesthetics. An investigator of high order, he was the first to utilize a mixture of oxygen and nitrous oxide for that purpose. Only a few years ago the American Society of Anesthetists issued a medal in recognition of this discovery. A highly versatile man, Dr. Andrews was a geologist of note and was one of the founders of the Chicago Academy of Sciences.



MOSES GUNN, brilliant successor to Dr. Brainard.

By performing a tracheotomy for quinsy on the son of our leading Presbyterian minister, Dr. Ralph Nelson Isham (1831-1904) made his professional debut. Altho this locally unheard of measure was violently opposed by many pious people as a direct interference with the will of Providence, Dr. Isham's successful handling of the case gave him immediate prestige. During the Civil war he became a contract surgeon and helped to organize the United States sanitary commission. He was surgeon in chief of the Marine hospital until the late '70s. He was one of the founders of Northwestern university medical school.

For a quarter of a century Chicago was the home of the Danish surgeon, Christian Fenger (1840-1902), by common consent the father of modern surgery in the middle west. He practiced in the "good old days" of horses and buggies and streets labeled "no bottom," of kitchen table operations with the aid of kerosene lamps or flaring gas lights, of badly sterilized catgut, of graniteware pitchers and slop pails. Before his American career, Dr. Fenger had served in the Schleswig-Holstein and Franco-Prussian wars and under the khedive of Egypt. In Chicago, in the spring of 1878, he secured a place as physician to Cook County hospital and began to give lectures and demonstrations in pathologic anatomy, a science hitherto unknown to the members of the faculty. Later, as surgeon, he introduced Lister's antiseptic methods. He was also professor of surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Northwestern, and Rush. He was inspiration personified and, as Dr. Frank Billings wrote, "he exerted an influence in scientific medicine unequaled by any other individual." He taught the true principles of research and exemplified what he taught. Among distinguished pupils of his were Frank Billings, J. B. Murphy, Nicholas Senn, William J. and Charles Mayo, Lewis L. McArthur, and Ludvig Hektoen. Week after week for several years the famous Mayo brothers, turnabout, made the trip to Chicago on Wednesday night in order to attend Fenger's Thursday clinic. "He gave me more mental indigestion than any man I ever knew," said William Mayo. The Dane was blunt in speech and manner; unconventional and careless in dress. His speech came haltingly in a thick mumble but he turned out beautiful English phrases. When he swore in English he was amused, when he swore in German he was irritated, but when he swore in Danish he was mad!

Dr. Fenger was noted for his exploration of brain abscesses and their relief. His technic was deliberate but thoro, and his attendant comments were colorful and forceful, especially when the patient disappointed him and died. In 1900, on his 60th birthday, he was given a testimonial banquet by 500 physicians. The Fenger Memorial association perpetuates his memory.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

"For Whom the Bell Tolls," with Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman, is last of the extravagant pictures.

SPLURGE GIVES WAY TO TRIED AND TRUE

(Copyright: 1943: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

NO ONE will gainsay that in the era that stopped short with a jolt a year ago Hollywood, tho no more than the rest of the country, was extravagant. But it got something for what it paid out. A Versailles staircase in a comedy did cost lots of cash, but audiences got an eyeful, and that staircase caused lots of talk. So did putting three or six high-priced stars in a picture when one would have been enough. Or sending a cast the size of a regiment half across the continent when low-priced sets built on the lot would have done just as well as the location—and without tickets and hotel bills to boot.

• • •

Looking back upon it, it was a squandering era, when funds were cast about lavishly and all things were done with a prodigal hand.

But was it really a wasteful era? Extravagance, or a reputation for it, after all, was an asset in movies. It helped build up fabulous renown for glamor, got movies into the news—Hollywood got the next largest space in the newspapers after New York, Washington, London, and Paris—and set every one's tongue wagging. It was shrewdly contrived but brought in heavy gravy. It added to the gayety of nations.

Then there was something else to put on the good side of the ledger. Hollywood always spent dough in developing ideas and backing inventions. It would take a chance in grubstaking with a million or two some camera, lens, chromatic film, or some technical idea that required the spending of a fortune in research.

In short, Hollywood built up the movies and paid the bill out of its own coffers.

Many major industries are either frozen or have gone over into something else, but Hollywood keeps right on experimenting.

It experiments on what it can get along with at the least possible expense. It isn't plunging any more. It has closed up its carriage trade department and gone in for the tried and true wares that the largest possible number of customers will like.

Some quite good Spanish war novels have emerged of late, but only one, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," was filmed. True, this was a lap-over from the big spending age, but the tale was unique in its mass appeal. Nobody, because of the cost involved, would think of making it now and of sending two separate units into the High Sierras, one in winter, one in summer, headed by Gary Cooper, Ingrid Bergman, and Producer-Director Sam Wood.

"Lady in the Dark" is costing a whale of a lot of money—$285,000 for the stage play and another couple of millions to make the film. But the play enjoyed a two-year run on the stage, so it's a safe gamble. It's being done in color, and with Mitchell Leisen directing, and Ginger Rogers, Ray Milland, Jon Hall, and Warner Baxter, it has a ready-made audience.

The best seller and the Broadway hit will continue to be the backbone of our 1943 product. In either case the public has already been jolted into recognition of the virtues of the piece, which, having faced a critical audience and emerged successfully, has saved the movie makers much guesswork. Glance down the list of novels and plays which will reach the screen: "Hostages," about the Czecho-Slovak underground movement; "Let's Face It," Broadway hit, with Bob Hope and Betty Hutton; "Frenchman's Creek," starring Joan Fontaine and Arturo De Cordova; "And Now Tomorrow," Rachel Field's best seller; "Botany Bay," about the colonization of Australia, by Nordhoff and Hall; remake of "Merton of the Movies."

• • •

To try to include the stories dealing with such war personalities as Churchill, Mikhailovitch, Gen. Mark Clark and other heroes would take too much space.

O. Henry once referred to "The Cloister and the Hearth"—which, mysteriously, never was done in films—as "the best non-seller of the year." That would apply to "Jane Eyre," which Twentieth will make with Orson Welles and Joan Fontaine. It was a good quip, but "Jane Eyre," like the other, has had such a prodigious success that in a hundred years it has sold well into the millions.

Warners' studio picked on a drama about the Brontës. Few have been more widely read or liked than Charlotte, who wrote "Jane Eyre"; Emily, who wrote "Wuthering Heights," and Ann, who wrote "The Tenant of Wildfell Hall." So Warners combined their personal dramas in "Devotion," starring Olivia De Havilland, Ida Lupino, and Nancy Coleman. They're also doing "Old Acquaintance," a Broadway hit now, with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins—a duo that could put over any psychological spellbinder.

Then we have "Dixie," glorifying the minstrel show. It is interesting to recall that Lincoln, on attending a theater at the close of the Civil war, when the battle song of the beaten Confederacy was sung, rose and called out, "Play it again!"

It was 83 years ago that Daniel Decatur Emmett wrote that unofficial national song of the United States, and now Bing Crosby will try to make a little history with it.

Metro's turning out "Girl Crazy," New York musical, with Rooney and Garland; "Best Foot Forward," to star Lucille Ball, Billy Gaxton, and Harry James; Eve Curie's story of her mother, "Madame Curie," with Greer Garson; "Keeper of the Flame," with Hepburn and Tracy (altho some call it "Keeper of the B's"); "Cabin in the Sky"; "The Human Comedy," with Rooney; "Du Barry Was a Lady," with Red Skelton and Lucille Ball. The list of similar properties owned by Metro goes on and on, from Oscar Wilde to Pearl Buck.

Showmanship is counting more and more in Hollywood today, when films will have to succeed mostly on the strength of the story. Hundreds of players have really gone into the war, so the story has got to be doubly good to assure that fans will enter the theater to see comparative unknowns on the screen. Take Twentieth Century casting Jennifer Jones in "The Song of Bernadette." They also paid $300,000 for Steinbeck's "The Moon Is Down" (which failed on Broadway, by the way) and gave it no more lustrous names than Able Actors Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Henry Travers, and Doris Bowden, and risked an equal payment for Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark," still to be cast.

• • •

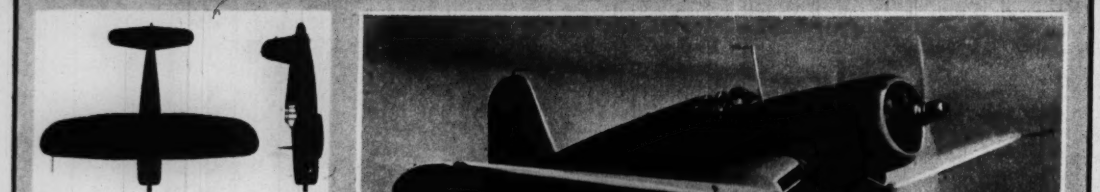
The same studio has invested in many Saturday Evening Post stories, and also made a recent deal with David Selznick for "The Keys of the Kingdom," "Candle in the Wind," Rose Franken's "Claudia," and the New York musical, "Something for the Boys." It's even gone back to O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magi" for screen material.

We should have added at Warners "Arsenic and Old Lace," with Cary Grant, Priscilla Lane, and the New York cast; Lillian Hellman's "Watch on the Rhine," with Bette Davis and Paul Lukas; "The Corn Is Green," the Ethel Barrymore hit, and Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army," to be filmed with an army cast and Ginger Rogers.

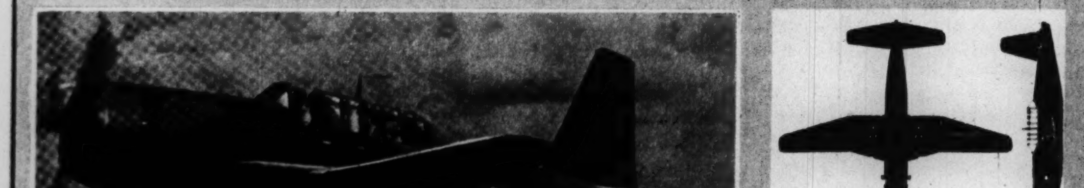
RKO and Columbia have "Higher and Higher"; "The Fallen Sparrow," to star Maureen O'Hara and John Garfield; Nancy Hale's "The Prodigal Women"; Hart and Kaufman's "The American Way"; Gilbert Miller's "Heart of a City"; "The Commandos," to be released as "Attack by Night," with Merle Oberon and Brian Aherne; and the Ina Claire vehicle, "Yankee Fable," to be done as "Generals Need Beds."

It reminds us of the dry remark of the late Frank Bacon, who acted in obscurity for 40 years, then found himself suddenly famous in "Lightnin'." "Sure," he said, "you're a great actor if you happen to find a good play!" No truer words were ever spoken.

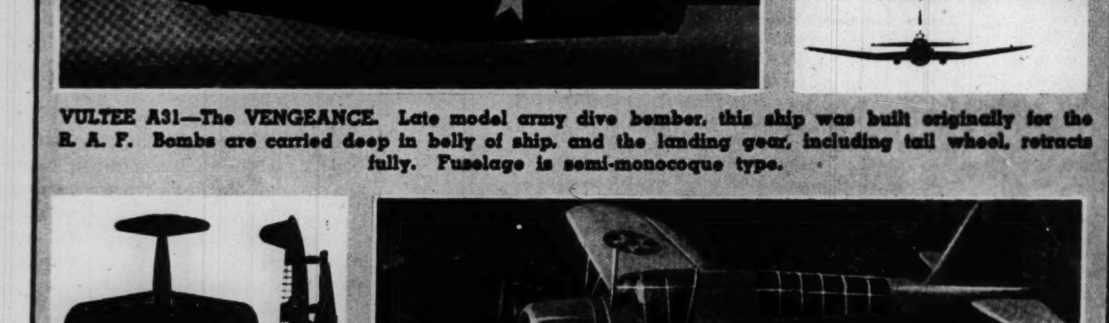
Fighting Planes of the Army and Navy



VOUGHT-SIKORSKY F4U1—The CORSAIR. Said to match in fighting ability any plane in the world, land or carrier based, this new navy carrier fighter has a 2,000-horsepower double-row Pratt & Whitney Wasp engine that gives it 400-mile-an-hour speed. Heavily armed.



VULTEE A31—The VENGEANCE. Late model army dive bomber, this ship was built originally for the R. A. F. Bombs are carried deep in belly of ship, and the landing gear, including tail wheel, retracts fully. Fuselage is semi-monocoque type.



VOUGHT-SIKORSKY OS2U3—The KINGFISHER. Many of these comparatively slow (171 miles an hour) seaplanes have proved effective in the navy's fight against submarines. It is an all-metal ship except for fabric covering on movable control surfaces and after portion of wings.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

"GO NAVY," the song written by Ensign Ralph Kent, a Northwestern university product, during his training period at the United States naval reserve midshipmen's school at Notre Dame, Ind., and subsequently adopted as the official song of the school, provided an appropriate theme for the final week on the campus of the first graduating class of 1,100 men. That portion of the navy which is now using about half the facilities of the University of Notre Dame was going at a fast clip that week.

On Tuesday, Jan. 26, the boys received their duty orders. On Wednesday night they had their graduation hop, Annapolis style, at the Palais Royale in South Bend.. On Thursday morning they donned their new uniforms, marched into the huge drill hall, and received their commissions in what must undoubtedly have been one of the most streamlined commencement exercises on record. It consumed a little less than one hour. On Thursday afternoon there were small informal weddings galore in South Bend churches and Notre Dame chapels. By Friday all 1,100, who had come from 46 states, had vanished in all directions. By the following Monday morning more than 1,200 V-7 men had moved in to follow in their footsteps.

Prior to Oct. 5, 1942, the navy had made use of Notre Dame as an indoctrination center for apprentice seamen, who took their midshipmen's training elsewhere. The 1,100 who were graduated last month were the first class to receive their entire four-month course of training there. They were the first to use the enormous midshipmen's school drill hall and the new classroom building, both of which were constructed within 90 days.

The drill hall, built entirely of wood, is so vast that on graduation day there was room and to spare for the 1,100 in the class, their thousands of proud relatives and friends, and the representatives of Notre Dame university who had come to wish their "alumni" godspeed. On the stage were the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of Notre Dame, delivering a brief message of hail and farewell from the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, Notre Dame's president, who was ill; Capt. H. P. Burnett, commanding officer of the school, and Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, who delivered the graduation address and presented the diplomas and commissions to honor students and regimental and battalion staffs. The Rev. Charles T. Baillie, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of South Bend, pronounced the benediction.

"An' you can be a better cook just by doin' two simple things. (1) Get Spry. (2) Use Spry receipts, startin' with this tasty meat-stretcher. It's one you'll make over an' over, it's so good.

Success EASY with Spry receipts!

"Just follow directions exactly an' measure accurately—that's all. If you can measure you can bake! Perfect results come as easy as that. So save an' use every Spry receipt you find in the ads. They're tested, easy, an' sure to bring compliments.

Use Spry in your own receipts, too

"See what wonderful cakes, what tender, flaky pastry an' crisp, digestible fried foods. An' Spry's a joy to use, creamy-soft, always ready for instant mixin', never stiff an' hard. For remember, ladies, you don't have to keep purer Spry in the refrigerator. It stays fresh right on the kitchen shelf.

"Because of War conditions you may be findin' it hard always to get Spry. But wait a day or two if your grocer's out of it. Ask him to save you a jar when it comes in. Keep shopping for it. Make every effort to get Spry, folks, for it's worth it!"

Try my Baked Stuffed Choplets

1 pound ground beef, lamb or mutton
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup milk

Combine meat, seasonings, egg, bread crumbs and milk. Form meat into 6 patties shaped like chops. Make stuffing.

Stuffing

2 tablespoons onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons Spry
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sage
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup celery, chopped
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
2 tablespoons water

Fry onion very lightly in hot Spry. Remove onion. Place Choplets in pan and sear under side only. Turn Choplets before putting on stuffing. Combine remaining ingredients with onion. Mix thoroughly and place on top of Choplets. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Serves 6.

To prepare baked potatoes use six medium potatoes, scrubbed, dried and rubbed with Spry. Put in oven ahead of Choplets so potatoes can bake for an hour.

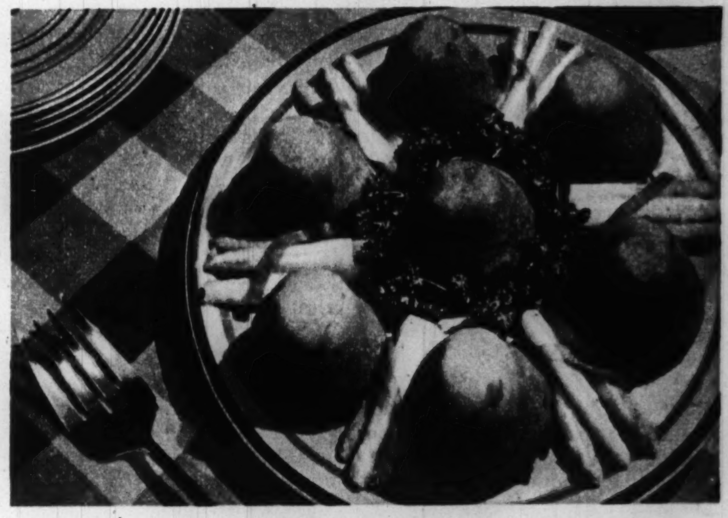
Potatoes Again? You'd Be Surprised!

It's All in How You Do It

By MARY MEADE

Oysters are rather scarce; but probably you can find enough to make this wonderful chowder.



Potato croquettes are fun when they have centers of chopped meat or pieces of cheese.

POTATO croquettes taste best when they're made with freshly cooked potatoes, but leftover mashed "spuds" also may be used. It's fun to make surprises of them by shaping the potato mixture around a center of cooked chopped meat, a piece of cheese, or a strip of bacon curled into a roll and cooked.

SURPRISE CROQUETTES

(Serves six)

6 russet potatoes
½ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons margarine
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon grated onion
Cheese or meat
1 egg
Fine dry cracker crumbs

Wash potatoes and steam them in their skins until tender. Remove skins, mash, and add hot milk, margarine, salt and pepper to taste, and parsley and onion. Shape into croquettes around pieces of cheese or tiny balls of cooked chopped meat. Roll in crumbs, then dip into beaten egg which has been diluted with a teaspoon of water. Roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 380 degrees until brown. Serve at once.

Save on frying fat by cooking croquettes in a small, heavy saucepan instead of the usual large kettle.

With the croquettes serve asparagus or green beans, apple and celery salad, hot biscuits, milk, and baked custard.

This has been a poor year for oysters, unfortunately, but some markets do seem to have plenty of them, even tho they are smaller than usual. These oysters are better for chowders and stews than for eating on the half-shell, for the most part. If you find them at your market at not too dear a price, try this excellent chowder for a nutritious and easily prepared luncheon:

OYSTER CHOWDER

(Serves six)

1 quart oysters
1 cup finely chopped carrots
1½ cups finely chopped celery
3 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Drain oysters and save liquor. Cook finely chopped carrots and celery in small amount of salted water until tender. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk, and cook until sauce boils and thickens, stirring constantly. Add oysters and liquid and cook two minutes, or until edges of oysters curl. Add carrots and celery and liquid in which they were cooked. Season and heat thoroly. Serve at once.

With the oyster chowder serve a grapefruit and chicory salad, applesauce cake, and tea or coffee.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

CURRIED EGGS IN FRIED RICE RING

(Serves six)

Rice ring

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup uncooked rice
2 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

Cook rice slowly in butter or margarine until golden brown. Stir frequently. Add water, cover tightly, and cook slowly until tender, about 20 minutes. Remove cover and stir in salt. Turn into ring mold or custard cups to shape.

Curried eggs

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons minced onion
¼ cup flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water
6 hard-cooked eggs

Melt butter or margarine and cook onion in it slowly for five minutes. Stir in flour to a smooth paste. Add salt and curry powder. Add milk and water and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add sliced eggs and serve in center of ring mold. A cooked green vegetable may be served around the ring.—MRS. V. L. COX, 1752 North Shore avenue, Chicago.

KERN'S "MUSIC IN THE AIR"

"Music in the Air" will be broadcast Saturday, Feb. 27, from 8 to 9 p. m. (C. W. T.), on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas.

JEROME KERN, whose "Show Boat" is one of the greatest operettas of all time, developed his talents as a composer by beginning his musical career as a staff musician and arranger, "dressing up" the works of foreign composers for production in America. In this work Kern learned what America wanted and learned to translate America into the European style that had been developed for all operettas.

Kern's "Music in the Air," which will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air Saturday, Feb. 27, is an example of the development that resulted from this knowledge of American musical tastes. The operetta follows the conventional theme of the European light opera. The story by Oscar Hammerstein is even European in content, being based in the Bavarian Alps. But the composition is distinctly American. "Show Boat," of course, is an even better example of Kern's ability to capture America in music.

Last year Kern won an Academy award for his tune "The Last Time I Saw Paris." Introduced first on the radio and then in a motion picture, the tune was to Americans symbolic in both music and expression of the French nation before the invasion. To Frenchmen, however, it was merely another American tune.

• • •

Kern was born in New York City, Jan. 27, 1885. After studying piano at the New York College of Music he went abroad to study in Germany. Returning to his native city, he became an arranger, spending most of his time rewriting foreign scores for American presentation. Soon came scores under his own name, and since his first success, "The Red Petticoat," in 1912, he has been one of this country's best and most prolific composers in light opera and allied fields. Among his successes were "The Girl from Utah," "Very Good Eddie," "Sally," "Sunny," "The Cat and the Fiddle," "Roberta," and "Show Boat." Since "Music in the Air" and "Roberta," both produced in 1933, Kern has been writing musical scores in Hollywood except for the recent "Very Warm for May."

"Music in the Air" was first presented at the Forty-fourth Street theater in New York on Sept. 4, 1933. The cast was a notable one, including Reinald Werrenrath, who, however, had a minor rôle. Others in the cast included Walter Slezak, Ann Barrie, Gladys Baxter, and Donald Brian.

The plot of the operetta is built around the story of the daughter of a music teacher, with a pleasing voice, good enough for the village choir. She leaves her home in the Bavarian Alps and travels to Munich to try to enter the theater. In Munich the girl sees the seamy side of the stage, and after she has tried out her wings, but found them not strong enough to sustain her, she goes back contentedly to her village and to Karl, her sweetheart.

Outstanding Kern tunes in the operetta are "Melodies of May," "I've Told Every Little Star," "One More Dance," "Frieda," "Night Flies By," "When Spring Is in the Air," and "The Song Is You."

In writing music that was American and yet sounded Bavarian to the average listener Kern was a forerunner of the Tin Pan Alley rhumba and samba composers who produce South American music that sounds Latin to North American listeners but may not be understood by our South American neighbors. Kern, however, understood the music and the peoples of the countries he included in his music. He knew French musical expression, for example, when he wrote "The Last Time I Saw Paris," but he knew that to make a French tune a success in America the expression would have to be gained with trick effects rather than by an actual copy of French style.

Shortly after Kern wrote "The Last Time I Saw Paris" he visited Chicago to discuss plans for the W-G-N $10,500 Great American Operetta quest.

JAPS GIVE US THE WORKS!

(THIS IS ANOTHER ARTICLE IN A SERIES GIVING AN EYEWITNESS ACCOUNT OF AMERICANS FIGHTING IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS)

The author, left, with marine officers and men on Guadalcanal

Guadalcanal.

WHEN YOU ask any one familiar with the story of Guadalcanal whether he remembers the Sunday there's no doubt what day is meant. It was Oct. 25, 1942, when the Japs, seemingly in a black fury because of the failure of all previous attacks, began a series of wild land pushes and threw over the island every plane they could possibly put into the air.

We sat in darkness the night before and listened to the Jap land artillery shelling the airport, while a heavy tropical downpour aided the enemy by turning the fighter strip into an impossible morass. Early Sunday morning we were awakened by heavy gunfire from the southeastern front, where silent marines, with machine gun triggers tensed, strained their eyes toward the jungle. There were stirrings and cautious noises, then a sudden burst of weird singing and spine-chilling shouts of "Blood for the emperor!" as the Japs began cutting the wire with no attempt at concealment.

The first wave of attackers was beaten back with cold steel, because the marines had been ordered not to use their machine guns in hopes a marine outpost 1,500 yards ahead of the lines could return in safety without danger from our own guns. But the outpost was trapped until morning, and the Jap thrust was so savage that even point-blank machine gun fire couldn't prevent an eventual break-thru.

• • •

Seesaw fighting lasted until 8 o'clock—a late hour for Jap warriors still to be about—and weary marines, with the welcome help of army reënforcements, smashed nine or ten waves and then with a whirlwind counter-charge cleaned out the Japs who held a salient in the center of our lines. Lt. Col. Lewis B. Puller of Middlesex county, Virginia, said more than 400 Jap bodies were counted, including 20 to 30 officers, and that it was his opinion they were spurred on by orders to take the American positions regardless of cost.

As the day's land battle ebbed the first Jap planes appeared—several Zeros acting as watchdogs for a bimotored Mitsubishi reconnaissance plane taking photographs of the air field. They picked a wise time for their mission, since the night-long rain soaking into the fighter field had left it temporarily unusable.

So they played around over the field with only anti-aircraft fire to dodge, and finally the big plane grew overconfident. It suddenly wheeled low across the field to get what must have been excellent photos, and at the same time spattered the runway with machine gun fire. It was just beginning to climb for altitude at the north end of the field when fire from our anti-aircraft guns ripped into a vital spot. The dying plane fought its way a few hundred yards farther, then exploded at treetop level, scattering débris over a wide area.

We sped to the scene in a jeep, and while examining the still burning ruins, and trying not to look at what was left of the crew, were forced to sprint for shelter with dozens of others when an angry Jap Zero flashed along the beach to strafe. At the same time three Jap warships steamed into the harbor with guns blazing and sank a seagoing "million dollar" tug and a smaller tug that used to be a west coast fishing schooner. Land guns hit one Jap ship, and all three hastily withdrew.

By ROBERT CROMIE

By now our planes had struggled into the air from the muddy field, and dogfights flared all over the sky, with blazing planes and white chutes tumbling earthward. When the whirlwind scramble seemed about to die down a new flock of Zeros came from nowhere, and then 16 speeding bombers—like silver birds—passed briefly overhead, dropping their loads blindly when our fighters began blasting them.

It seemed impossible for anything else to happen, but we'd forgotten the Jap artillery, which, seemingly sensing that no one was missing them, sent a few shells sighing overhead to explode on the air field. Then there was a brief lull—time for a cigaret before the third act curtain—and the sky was again dotted with Jap aircraft.

While the planes wove swift and deadly patterns high above the shouting and cursing watchers, cheering when a Zero burst into flames, groaning when a Grumman seemed about to be shot down, anti-aircraft gunners waited calmly for a clear shot at Rising Sun targets and saved several of our planes by shooing Zeros off their tails.

The aerial struggle was exactly like a mad variety show where there's no telling what's coming next. From a terrific height four sleek Jap planes suddenly nosed into power dives and hurtled incredibly toward the air field. Every gun within range opened up on them, but still they flashed down—one, then another and another and another—pulling out low over the field, while marines and newsmen clustered on a nearby hill watched fascinated. We saw the bombs continue their plunge briefly, then there were dust clouds and smoke and the thud of the explosion.

Somehow all four of the daring raiders escaped, one passing directly overhead thru a stream of machine gun bullets that seemed uncomfortably close. With their departure the firing ceased and the day seemed more like the Sabbath, except for nine enemy planes that still soared hawklike overhead. Finally they made off also, and that ended Jap aerial activity for the day—and, indeed, marked the end to date of any daylight attacks of comparable strength. But our bombers went out at dusk to cripple and turn back a Jap task force, with the help of Flying Fortresses from another base.

During the day our planes bombed and strafed the Jap lines, and Jap artillery pounded our positions near the Matanikau, where the Japs also made a minor attack during the early morning.

Before daylight the next morning the Japs struck again on the eastern front and managed to bend the army line, which promptly snapped back into position, leaving no Japs able to hold their gains except the dead, some 400 of whom were sprawled in the undergrowth a few hours later. At the same time on the western front the Japs clawed at a ridge held by marines. While nimble little men wearing spurs like linemen's climbers ran up trees from which they poured fire into our positions, others, aided in the ascent by split-toed shoes, managed to work their way up a steep slope, carrying a number of machine guns.

Finally the Japs managed to gain a foothold on the ridge and forced the marines back a few yards. Then both forces fired at each other, threw grenades, and shouted unprintable epithets from a distance of perhaps 50 feet apart. It seemed briefly that the Japs might be able to hold the ridge long enough to enable a really formidable force to join them. But a fierce counter-attack led by Maj. Odell Conoley, Amarillo, Tex., during which, he says, "I thought I had five minutes to live," pushed them back to the edge of the ridge and down over.

• • •

Meanwhile Platoon Sergt. Mitchell Paige, on a nearby ridge, had his hands full holding it nearly unaided against a similar attack. Paige, slightly wounded, fired a heavy machine gun until it was knocked out by a bullet, then borrowed another gun from a nearby unit and fired that, moving it from place to place in the darkness so the Japs couldn't locate him. A few Japs reached the top of Paige's ridge, too, but he organized a counter-charge in the morning when aid arrived and the enemy was killed or driven off. So many dead Japs were found in this area in the morning that the corpses were covered with earth blasted from the clifftops to solve the burial problem.

Having hacked at both fronts and failed, the Japs seemed to lose stomach for their work.

FATIGUE IS A FOE!

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"VITALITY for Victory" is the title of a sprightly little U. S. O. booklet simply and expertly worked out by a group of health education and recreation leaders called together by Miss Florence Williams, director of health, education, and recreation of the U. S. O. division of the Y. W. C. A.

While the booklet first stepped forth as a beauty thru health recreation program for war workers, its lessons for foiling fatigue have become guideposts for Y. W. C. A. girls in U. S. O. centers the country over, not to mention the permanent "Y" centers. Whether on the factory line or home front, the rules are easy enough for any girl to follow if she wants to be chipper and limber, sparkling-eyed, and totally glowing, and maintain a fatigueless 100 per cent output.

Lesson one, the go-ahead green light, is to check with your physician. Find out where the middle of the road is for you in work and in play.

Strengthen right. Don't be goatlike and rush headlong into body building, giving your all, but work up gradually for flexibility and long-term endurance.

Exercise right. What kind? When? How much? How often? Your doctor's advice belongs here. But the "often" and "when" may be something like this: Daily, after work or early evening, but never sooner than an hour after eating.

Relax. Going limp all over isn't the only thing that does it! Do a cat stretch if your back aches. Wiggle your toes, then put your stockinged feet up on a table while you lean back in your easy chair. Grand for aching feet. Hold out your arms, shake your hands, then snap your fingers, and while you snap move your arms as if drawing a big "C." Good for aching hands. Close your peepers, cover them with blinders, then lie flat. This eases eye strain or headache.

Do you stand at work? Be straight and streamlined, not a scrawly "S." Roomy low-heeled shoes are tried and true foils for fatigue. Shift your weight from one leg to the other. Sit down and park your feet on another chair or leg rest. Soak your feet in hot water.

But if you sit at work be firm and upright astern. Don't swoop like a hawk over the edges of your chair. Foil fatigue by rising sometimes; shrug your shoulders as if you didn't care two hoots; nod your head yes, then shake no.

Be a Solomon in the wisdom of your eating. Every day choose foods for health, amply allowed by the "ration book." Don't choke down a meal as if you'd miss the bus, but eat as deliberately and slowly as if you were attending the banquet of the year.

Keep clean. Daintiness is not rationed; it's mighty important in foiling fatigue. A bath a day helps you feel gay. So don fresh clothes from the skin out. Wash your face before putting on fresh makeup. Be routine and punctual about cleaning your teeth, hair, and nails. Use a deodorant.

All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl. So play and play some more. A walk on your own time can be a game. Hike around and see the town by moonlight. Join a star-gazing club or "dawn patrol" if your job permits. Play games, dance, find a hobby, whether it's making hooked rugs or collecting stamps, reading, finger painting, or ship whittling.

"Good night; sleep well." Important, that, lassies. Plenty of sleep on a flat, firm bed in a well ventilated room is last but not least of the lessons for foiling fatigue.

HERE'S HOW MY BLOUSE WILL LOOK IN 1944! SPARKLING BRIGHT A WHOLE EXTRA SEASON!

Save your colors in wartime! Get up to

TWICE THE WEAR

with twice-safe Ivory Flakes!

1944

MAKE THIS YOUR RULE for rayons, wools, mixtures—the nice colored things you care about: Suds 'em and save 'em with twice-safe Ivory Flakes. Avoid hot water, strong washday soap, rough handling, long, hard pounding in the washer, which may halve the life of precious washables. Get twice the wear from good colored things like this blouse—trust gentle Ivory Flakes care. Only Ivory Flakes give you baby-mild Ivory in the safe flake form!

RED-AND-GOLD PAISLEY rayon blouse by Joan Kenley . . . A wartime wonder! Sunny and bright after 20 test-washings with Ivory Flakes. Coax twice the wear from lovely rayons. Wash quickly in lukewarm Ivory Flakes suds.

LONGER STOCKING WEAR!→ One pair of Van Raalte's wartime rayons gave 346 hours of actual wear—washed with lukewarm Ivory Flakes suds after every wearing. BUT . . . rayons are weaker when wet. Handle carefully! Dry at least 24 hours before wearing. It's Ivory Flakes care to keep 'em wearing!

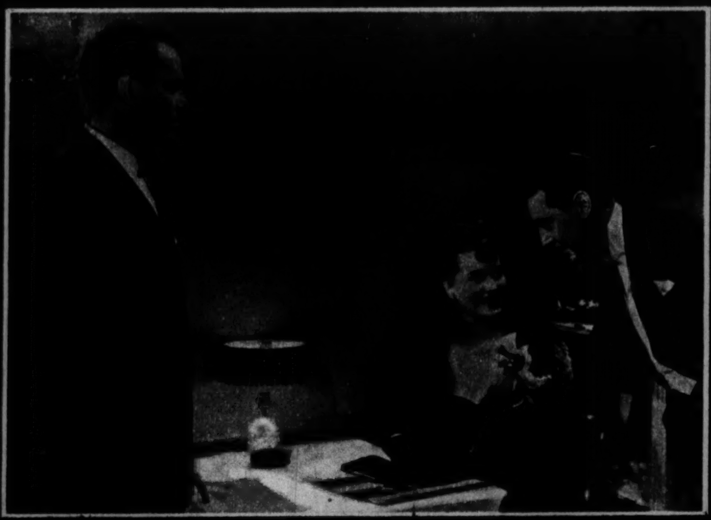
1 Shy, introspective Corp. Colin Spence (Henry Fonda) gets mail from home after he and other members of the British patrol in Libya return from capturing some Italian prisoners. It sets him thinking about recent events, when he was a promising writer.



2 He remembers how his friend Tommy Benedict (Reginald Gardiner) blithely took over Valentine Finch (Maureen O'Hara) when he discovered she and Colin really weren't engaged.

3 He remembers . . . . but a sergeant's voice brings him back to the present, and soon he's out on patrol. German planes attack them, and they lose all but six men.

5 The sergeant's words are prophetic, and Spence is left to take three other survivors back. Days later, exhausted and thirsty, they sight an oasis.

6 Waiting for nightfall before he approaches it, Spence day dreams again remembering the time he and Valentine were together and he couldn't get up nerve to propose.

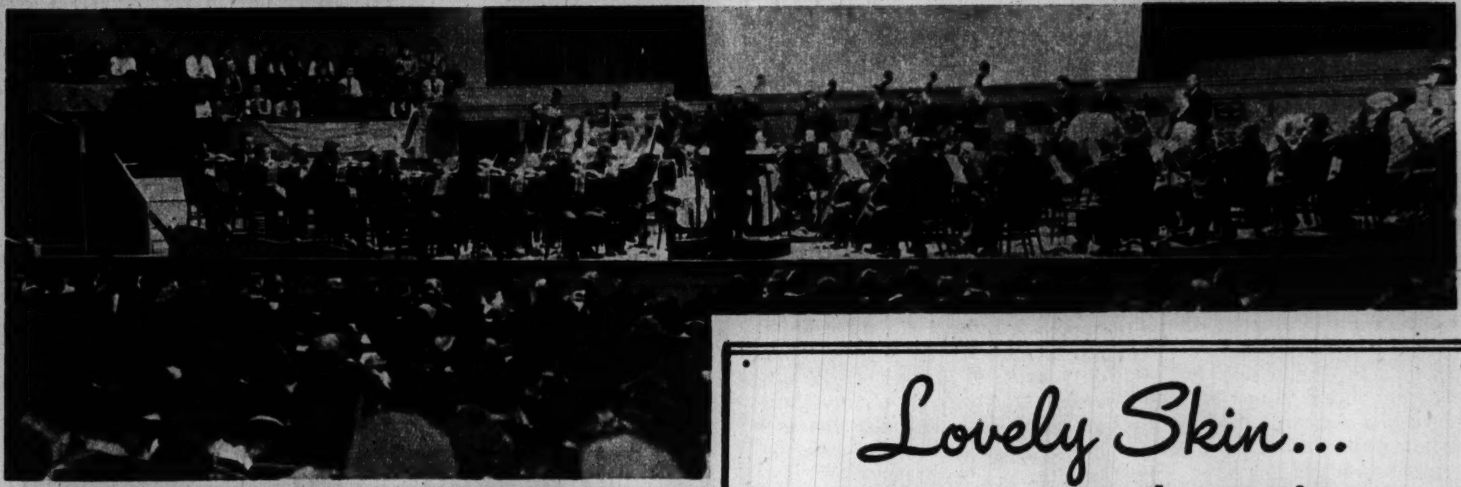
7 He remembers, too, her impulsive kiss when he left for war. But he had felt sure she really would marry Tommy.

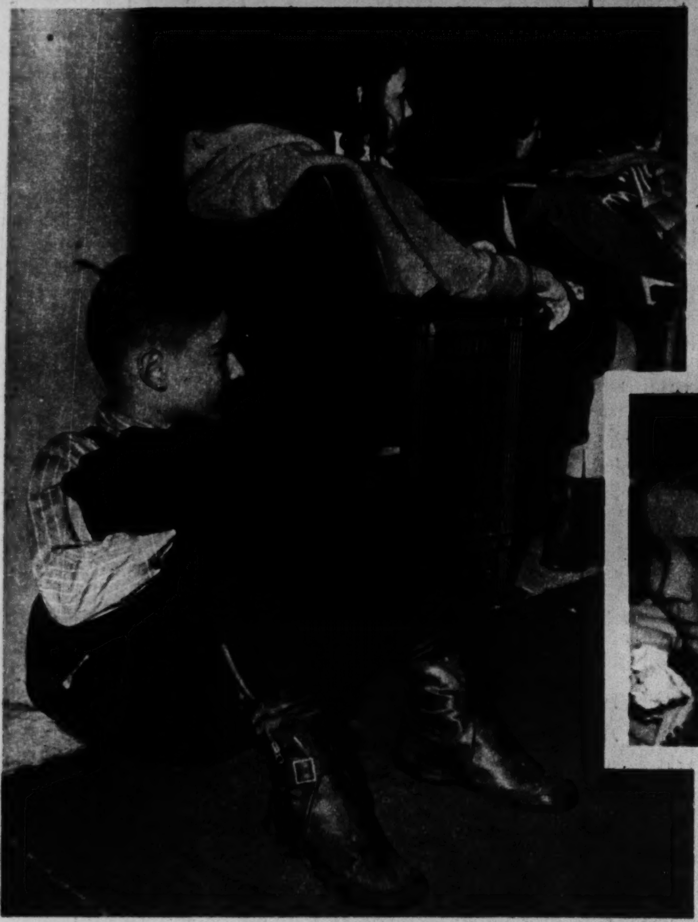
8 That night a Nazi plane drops parachutists. Reconnoitering, Spence, overcoming his fear when he seems to hear the sergeant urge him on, plans and executes a successful attack.

9 Wounded, a hero, and now a lieutenant, Spence goes back to claim Valentine. He has found himself, and as he greets her he seems to hear the immortal sergeant say, "Nice going, lad!" (THE END)

Children's Concert

At right: This is the way the stage looks at Orchestra hall when the Chicago Symphony orchestra plays one of its young people's concerts and Hans Lange explains a point to his audience of more than 2,500 youngsters. Now in their 24th season, these concerts make up the oldest series for children in this country. They are divided into two groups of six concerts each, played Wednesday afternoons starting at 3:45.





All seats gone, but he doesn't mind, so long as he can lean against an Orchestra hall post.

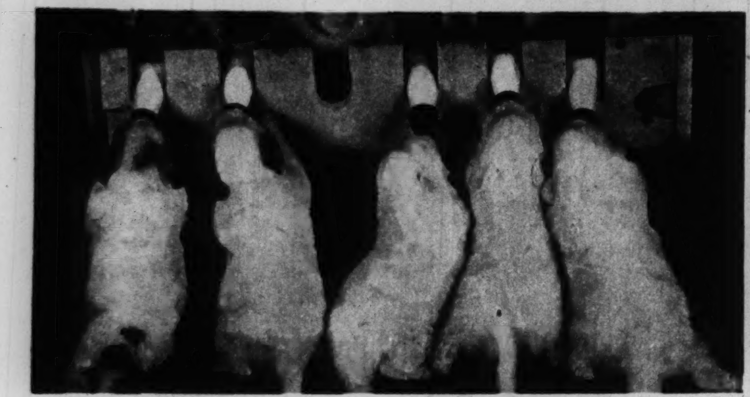
MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER



There were too many of these Great Pyrenees puppies in their litter, so this solution to the feeding problem was worked out. The puppies are owned by Mrs. C. T. Harris, Honeoye Falls, N. Y.

WHEN A FAMILY that never has owned a dog begins a shopping trip for a puppy it's quite natural for the group to be a little puzzled about what to look for.

Scottish terrier puppy, owned by Charles Glover, only 10 weeks old when photographed.

Shopping for a puppy is not much different from the purchase of any merchandise in some respects: you have to know what you want, and you ought to know how to examine the object of your purchase. We asked several experienced dog breeders and a veterinarian to combine their suggestions on what to look for in a new puppy. Here are their suggestions:

In the first place, never pick out a puppy that has a cough. If the little fellow has a nose which is discharging mucus he's not for you. (This warning goes double if both eyes and nose are not normal.) The chances are the dog has distemper.

Look for a puppy that is not dull and listless. Such a pup may be appealing, but pass him up and choose one that is bold, full of life, and wants to play with you right on the spot.

(The veterinarian suggests that the buyer ask the kennelman to take the temperature of the puppy. If it's over 102 degrees something is wrong.)

Look for a puppy that has straight legs with no enlarged joints. (If the legs are crooked and joints oversize, chances are the pup has rickets.)

Look at the puppy's teeth. Any young dog's teeth should be white and the gums pink and firm. In buying a dog that is past the puppy stage and has his second set of teeth, discoloration of his teeth may mean he has had distemper.

Look at the stomach of the puppy. If it looks abnormally distended, ask the seller if the pup has been wormed. A pup with a big stomach may have just eaten a large meal, but commonly it means improper feeding or worms.

Take the pup from the kennel yard, advises the veterinarian, and test it for deafness. The idea is to stand back of the dog and make some noise to attract its attention. If it doesn't notice noises it probably is deaf.

Ask the kennelman if the pup has been inoculated against distemper. If he says yes, and you are dealing with a reputable breeder of dogs, you can take his word for it. That's one of the advantages of buying a dog from a breeder or kennelman who has been in business a long time, knows dogs, and is reliable.

Don't ask the seller to give you a guarantee on how beautiful the pup will look when it is grown up. If you want perfection, buy a mature dog and expect to pay the price that such an animal commands.

Remember that it is hard to tell what the health of the puppy will be. He may be a sturdy one by inheritance, but only time will give you the answer. However, if you buy from a reliable kennel your chances of getting a sound dog are excellent.

We look on a dog as a long-term investment in service, companionship, and devotion. If you pay $25 (for example) for a puppy, and he lives 12 years, that's a basic cost of only about $2 a year for a magnificent companion.

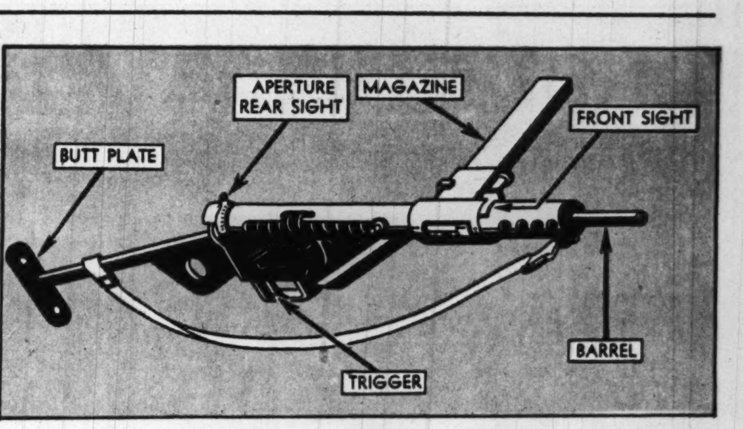
Submachine Guns at a Low Cost



Diagrammatic drawing of the Sten gun.

WITH THE COSTS of war going up and up, the British and Australians have found one way, at least, of reducing necessary expenses. They are turning out simply constructed but efficient submachine guns at a cost undreamed of before the war.

These guns are the British Sten and the Australian Owen and Austen. Pictures reproduced on this page show the simplicity of the two first named weapons.

The Sten submachine gun was invented by Col. R. V. Shepherd, a British arms expert, and a Mr. Turpin, a draftsman. For several months after the weapons were put into production the inventors were known simply as S. and T., which gave rise to the nicknames "Colonel Slap" and "Mr. Tickle."

Weighing 6 pounds 10 ounces in the model illustrated in the accompanying drawing, the Sten gun is 30 inches long. It has a single metallic rod for a stock, at the end of which is a buttplate. Another model of the gun, shown here in a reproduction of a photograph, has a skeleton metal stock. The foresight of the weapon is of the inverted V type and the rear sight is of the aperture type. The barrel, as is the case in all similar weapons, is rifled. The box type magazine, which fits horizontally to the left side of the chamber mechanism, holds 32 cartridges. The rate of automatic fire is 500 rounds a minute.

Writing in the London Daily Mail, Lt. Col. T. A. Lowe, a British army officer, describes the Sten as a weapon admirably fitted for arming tank crews and home guards.

"The Sten fits into small spaces," writes Col. Lowe, "Hitherto our tank crews have only been armed with revolvers because of lack of space inside the tanks. The Sten solves a tank problem. Armed with it, the crews can still fight their way to safety should anything untoward put the tank out of action. . . .

"I saw targets ripped to pieces at 30 yards range by men (with Sten guns) who had never held the gun in their hands before.

"The weapon replaces nothing except perhaps the Tommy gun (Thompson submachine gun) and the revolver, but neither was satisfactory because of the ammunition problem. Time is required to load both, but with the Sten you carry your magazines in your pockets and bang them into the gun as required. The metal cools as the change is being made, otherwise the Sten would get too hot to handle. Stoppages are easy to rectify. A good, hearty bang seems to do the trick."

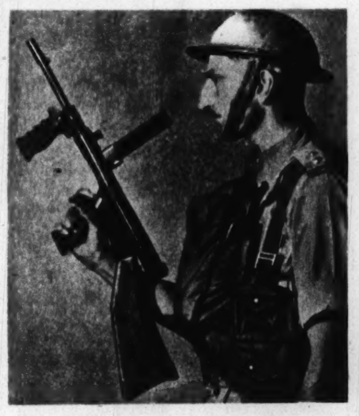
Another model of the Sten gun, with skeleton metal stock.

• • •

According to Col. Lowe, the Sten gun has fewer than 60 parts and is produced in quantities for about 50 shillings (about $10) apiece. Other information on the subject places the number of parts at only 48, and puts the cost when it is produced in great numbers (as it is) at less than $8 apiece.

The mechanism of the Sten resembles somewhat that of the German Schmeisser submachine gun. The basic principle of both weapons follows that of a gun invented as far back as 1904. The German gun, however, has more than 100 parts.

The Owen submachine gun of Australia, also shown in an accompanying illustration, is said to cost less than $10 as it is produced in large quantities. Invented by Evelyn Owen, an Australian soldier, it weighs 10½ pounds, and is so constructed that its barrel may be replaced by an extra barrel when it becomes too hot from firing. The magazine, which holds 30 rounds, is placed in a slot at the top of the chamber. The rate of automatic fire is between 500 and 600 rounds a minute, and the accuracy at short range is satisfactory for the purpose for which the weapon is intended.



The lightweight Owen gun.

Stock and handle grips of the Owen gun are of wood and resemble those of the Thompson gun, altho, because of the cheap construction, they have not the refined lines or fine finish of the latter. Like the Thompson gun, the Owen is operated by recoil and is provided with a compensator to lessen recoil and counteract the tendency of the muzzle of the weapon to rise in automatic fire. Information on the Sten gun does not mention whether it is operated by recoil or by gas, but since it has so few parts and is so simply constructed it would appear that it is recoil operated.

The Austen submachine gun is said to be the most economical in construction of the three weapons described in this article. It can be turned out in quantities at $5.50 to $6.50 apiece, and it requires only 10 man hours to produce a finished weapon.

Its weight is about 9 pounds, and its rate of automatic fire is between 500 and 600 shots a minute. Many of the ideas incorporated in the Austen gun were borrowed from the Bergmann submachine gun, a weapon carried by German paratroopers. One of these German weapons was captured in Crete and its parts were sent back to Australia, where they were studied by experts in developing the new and cheaper gun upon the same lines. The name Austen suggests that it might be a contraction of Australian Sten. In the absence of confirmation of this, however, it should be regarded as a conjecture.

All three of the guns, the Sten, Owen, and Austen, take a 9 mm. (caliber .35433) cartridge of the type used in so-called automatic pistols. The term submachine gun, it should be explained, is applied to full automatic weapons that take pistol cartridges instead of rifle cartridges.

The characteristics of the 9 mm. cartridge used in these guns have not been made public. A typical 9 mm. pistol cartridge (such as used in the Luger pistol) has a bullet weighing 125 grains. The muzzle velocity, when the pistol is the weapon used, is 1,040 feet a second. In a submachine gun, with a longer barrel, the muzzle velocity would be slightly greater. The 9 mm. bullet has a greater muzzle velocity than that of the .45 caliber cartridge used in the Colt service pistol and the Thompson submachine gun, but its shocking force is considerably less. The .45 caliber bullet, weighing 230 grains, in other words, carries a heavier wallop and will stop a man more quickly, everything else equal.

The pre-war list price of the Thompson submachine gun, according to the manufacturer's catalog, was $200 to $225 (the latter was for a gun with a compensator). In mass production for military uses, the cost of the Thompson gun no doubt is far below the catalog retail figure. Nevertheless it cannot approach the amazingly low cost of the simpler and cruder weapons herein described.

SURGEONS

clans, James B. Herrick, has this to say of Fenger:

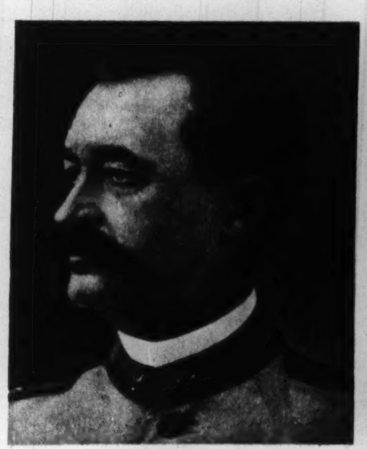
"It was my privilege, as it was Harry Favill's, to help Frank Billings care for him in those last trying days in which the beauty of his character and of his home life was revealed with a sacredness that makes me even now keep silent about it. Today after these 40 years, at the mention of his name, my heart still responds with a quickened beat. Again I see before me the simple man—always the gentleman—with his kindly smile and cordial greeting. Again I realize that he was beloved not alone because he was wise or learned or superhuman, but because as Lord Tweedsmuir said of another, he was greater than any of his achievements. In fact his personality was in itself his greatest achievement."

Dr. Charles Theodore Parkes (1842-'91), private soldier and officer in the Civil war, succeeded Dr. Gunn as professor of surgery at Rush. In addition, he was elected president of various societies and was associated with many hospitals. In the entire Mississippi valley one could not find a man of more brilliant or lovable personality. Dr. Gunn, himself, said of Dr. Parkes, "I know of no one in whose hands I would sooner trust my life, my reputation, and my property." A pioneer investigator in the field of abdominal surgery, he was the first to advocate uniting severed intestines, and his success in handling gunshot wounds of the abdomen astounded the medical profession and the world. Conspicuous also in surgery of the gall bladder, then in its infancy, he worked out and described an operation for the removal of stone from the common bile duct.

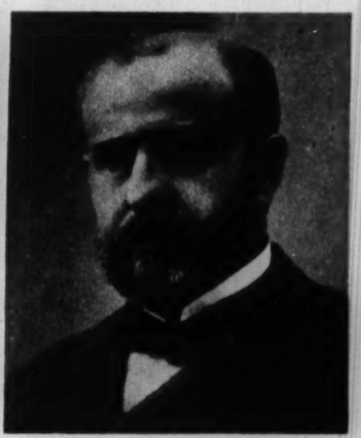
Few could equal him as a teacher. He was the ideal of student and practitioner alike, because of the clear, concise way in which he gave them exactly what they needed. Practically all of the younger surgeons of the middle and western states attended his clinics at Rush. A man of unusual physical strength, he is said to have bodily removed a pushing student from the front row and deposited him in the rear. The most famous of his many writings, that on gunshot wounds of the small intestine, is still sound. Kind and generous, he treated the poor free of charge and frequently paid their hospital bills. When he died at 48 he was one of the dozen leading surgeons of America.

• • •

Another of Chicago's gifts to the nation was a man of eminence, Nicholas Senn (1844-1908). Born in Switzerland, he graduated from Northwestern and later studied in Munich where he won a cum laude degree in 1878. He eventually succeeded Dr. Parkes at Rush. Night after night he carried out his original investigations in a laboratory which he built under the sidewalk. Altho microscopy and surgical pathology were new sciences, he made them working tools. Fenger, J. B. Murphy, and Senn formed the celebrated triumvirate of scientific genius in the west. Senn was particularly noted for calling attention to animal experimentation, to the importance of microscopic diagnosis and to advances in surgical technique, especially in disease of the intestines and bones. A tireless worker, he frequently wrote far into the wee hours, and his books, monographs, and contributions to scientific periodicals number legion.



Nicholas Senn



Fernand Henrotin

Naturally of a retiring disposition, his amphitheater lectures — nevertheless — were delivered in a stentorian voice. Oratory was mingled with pathos when describing a hopeless condition. He retained his flair for military surgery thruout his life and served at the front in the war with Spain. He loved travel and roamed the world from Siberia to the Argentine, observing conditions of medical and hygienic interest. Many of his books on travel are embellished with verse and quotations. His numerous manuscripts fill a large wall case in the Senn collection of the John Crerar library. His books form the nucleus of that notable collection. He gave liberally to medical education and many a school and hospital owes much to Nicholas Senn.

Henrotin hospital perpetuates the memory of Dr. Ferdinand Henrotin (1847-1906), for 38 years a distinguished figure in the professional life of Chicago. This skilled surgeon was born in Brussels, a son of a Belgian army officer, later Belgian consul in Chicago. Dr. Henrotin was both student and teacher at Rush, served as surgeon to the Chicago police department, the fire department, and the 1st brigade of the Illinois National Guard. His special leaning was toward operative gynecology and all of his scientific work pertains to this field. He helped to found Chicago Policlinic and was its professor of gynecology until his death.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

SOMETIMES you can get better pictures by breaking the rules than by following them. One of the first things the camera owner learns is to stand with his back to the sun, and this is a wise procedure to follow for average snapshots. However, there are times when fine pictures can be taken by disregarding this rule and shooting directly toward the light source.

Objects that you see when looking toward the sun appear to be outlined brightly. In pictures they stand out sharply and have almost a third-dimensional effect. Backlighting of this sort puts a pleasing halo about a portrait subject's hair. It can be used as effectively indoors as out.

There is one precaution to be observed in taking backlighted pictures. Always protect the lens from direct rays of the sun, or of your flood lamps in indoor pictures. Otherwise your shots may be spoiled by flare and fog. If you use a lens shade and plan your composition so that something in the picture will be between the lens and the light source you will have no trouble of this sort.

• • •

Objects in a backlighted picture often appear as silhouettes. This is an aid to composition in landscapes and scenics, as it hides the small details in objects and makes them appear as large masses. In portraiture, however, it is not so satisfactory.

When you are using backlighting for outdoor portraits you can avoid this silhouette effect by having your subject hold a reflector in such a way that it will throw light back into the face. A piece of cardboard, newspaper, or white cloth will do. Study the setup with your eyes squinted down to narrow slits and you will be able to tell whether the shadows on the face have been lighted sufficiently.

A similar method can be used in lighting indoor portraits, with the main light behind the subject. It is generally more convenient to use a second flood lamp in place of the reflector, however, as it can be moved back and forth easily to control the amount of light falling on the face.

Sometimes it is possible to include the main light source within the picture area, without resorting to some sort of tricks to shield the lens from it. You can take a picture of a subject seated in a chair beneath a bridge lamp, using the lamp as the main light source, as long as you have it turned at an angle that does not reveal the bare bulb to the lens.

For a picture like this replace the regular bulb in the lamp with a flood lamp and use a second flood lamp near the camera to fill in the shadows. In arranging the lights make certain that most of the light that strikes the subject comes from the bridge lamp. Use the fill-in only to keep the shadows from going entirely black.

• • •

A shot taken in this manner will show natural lighting and is likely to have good composition. With the subject brightly lighted by the nearby lamp, he will stand out against the background. If the lamp shade is overexposed it can be "burned in" slightly in enlarging.

A somewhat similar technique can be used to show a group of persons seated about a campfire or an open fireplace. Here the trick is to conceal your flood lamp in the fireplace or to use a flash bulb on an extension and place it in front of the fire. Carefully pose one member of the group in a position that will shield the lens from the direct light of the bulb. Very realistic fire pictures can be taken in this manner.

Don't feel that you must always follow the rules in taking pictures. There are times when breaking them will produce far better results than you can get by adhering to the old formulas. The trick is to recognize these occasions and take advantage of them when they appear.

Keep an eye open for chances to use backlighting. When the sun is low and shadows are long, look for scenes you can shoot against the light. Plan your pictures to place some object between the sun and your camera lens. You may find that you can get one of your most outstanding pictures by breaking the rule that says to shoot with the sun at your back.

Private Fay on Parade!

This is another report from William C. Fay, on leave from the Tribune sports department, about his life in the army.

THE SERGEANT of song and fable, the unshaven, hell-for-leather semi-illiterate, is pretty much of an anachronism in the American army. The sergeants of 1943 were bank clerks, business men, filling station operators, and factory workers two years ago. Many of them go on to officer candidate school and become spick and span officers.

Of course a few of the old army caricatures remain. We had one in our outfit for a few weeks. He spelled wheel without the "h." He spelled cigaret without an "a." He was profane, but he employed his adjectives so interchangeably and to such a variety of subjects that they lost most of their blasphemous content. He knew his machine guns backward, forward, and sideways. He could strip one while most of us were still fumbling with the backplate. And when he yelled, "Ten—SHUN!" spines zoomed to the vertical, stomachs went in, chests popped out.

He was a stocky man with a slight paunch and a square, dented face. He was 32 years old and boasted he had spent only four of them in a schoolroom. He was uncomfortable behind a desk, because his arithmetic was little better than his spelling.

I remember the morning he had so much trouble accounting for all the men. So many were on furlough, in the hospital, on detail, etc. The sergeant counted until sweat beaded his forehead, but never once hit our full strength of 190 men. The closest he came was 187, achieving that figure twice, and hitting also 183, 182, and 186.

Finally the captain said: "Easy does it, Joe. You'll find all your boys yet."

"Maybe," I suggested from my telephone orderly post, "somebody should tell sergeant about the parable of the Good Shepherd."

The sergeant gave me a look pregnant with K. P. In his book a private did not crack wise to a sergeant. "I don't need any of them parables to count with," he growled.

• • •

Maybe if I had explained what a parable was I might not have gotten K. P. the following day. Sergeant Joe in innumerable ways was a mean old skunk. But we were half sorry to see him leave. He taught us discipline.

JAPS GIVE US THE WORKS!

Tho they tried again two mornings later, the attack lacked punch and was dealt with without difficulty.

Meanwhile the navy had again knocked out a Jap task force heading our way the morning of the 26th, to add further to the burden of Jap disappointment. The Japs had two carriers severely damaged, as well as a battleship and two cruisers, and they lost 115 planes for sure and probably 46 more. We lost a carrier and the destroyer Porter. Another phase in the knock-down-and-drag-out battle for Guadalcanal had been won by America.

The marines had taken all the Japs could give—the Nipponese equivalent of the works—and, as usual with the marines, the situation was well in hand. All lines on Guadalcanal still held. The air field still was in one piece. With the help of the navy, the supply lines still were open for business.

Even the mail situation was brighter, with jeeps piled high with canvas sacks of letters dashing from the postoffice to various unit headquarters, where they were sorted and distributed to grinning men. After a long drouth, during which most men got no letters whatever, it wasn't uncommon for a man to get 30, 40, or 50 letters in a single day. For a time the marines even forgot their favorite query, "When do we get out of this place?"

With Americans holding a decided edge in artillery and the Japs undoubtedly demoralized by the failure to accomplish anything despite the expenditure of thousands of men, scores of planes, and many ships during their brief push—Sunday alone having cost them 20 Zeros and at least nine bombers—it was an excellent time for the marines to take the offensive. After careful preparations by Major General Vandegrift and his staff, the following Sunday was chosen for the start of a simultaneous advance on the eastern and western fronts.

All day Saturday trucks and men headed in both directions, with fresh men relieving those who had been in the line during the Jap push. Engineers were ready with pontoon bridges to throw across the Matanikau, communications men prepared to carry lines wherever needed, and reserve stocks of ammunition and food moved close to the front.

Finally all was in readiness, men and supplies in position, and nothing left to do but wait for the dawn. With the darkness Jap artillery fired uneasily, as tho sensing that something was up, and we replied. A Jap patrol tried to cross the river to investigate the day's movements, but our machine guns voted against them, and finally the rain began to fall and every one slumbered but the sentries and perhaps the Japs.

Next Sunday—The battle of Matanikau.

Are You Sure You're to the Manners Born?

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

Girls appreciate flowers—but a boy should use judgment in what he gets.

GOOD manners still count. And sometimes it's a fellow's forgetfulness that earns him the gentle brush-off before he even gets to the hand-holding stage. He may be the essence of smoothness, broad and tall, and just skip some of the little things that make for a more pleasant date. A few forgotten "thank you, ma'ams" or "and who goes in the revolving door first?" may make your date want to slip you a copy of Emily Post and a cancellation of next week's date all at one time.

She probably doesn't want a Sir Walter Raleigh in a zoot suit who will strip off his jive jacket to help her straddle a puddle. She just wants a date who will make with the courtesy in little ways. Something so simple as skirting the bumper and coming round to open the car door for her (if you still do drive occasionally) is enough to keep her happy.

Having dinner for two in a restaurant is a definite art. So for art's sake—why not do the thing right. Show her you weren't brought up in a bean-pot. Presume that you have helped your date remove her coat and she is now at work with the eye on the menu. Of course, there is no need to shove in the stool in a hamburger stand but in polite society a help with the chair is still polite.

In ordering dinner the accepted method is that in which the girl explains her preferences to her date—who in turn repeats both orders, his and hers, to the waiter. This eliminates all cross-table wig-wagging and is the surest way to avoid invariably ending up with hot dogs and chocolate milk-shakes for two.

If you want to jingle out more than a 10 per cent tip for the waiter, that's all right too, but if you try to play the big dealer by leaving more your date—who doesn't know how much the bill was anyway—probably won't be impressed and the waiter will think that you just counted your change wrong.

Corsages don't usually follow in the courtesy category, but sometimes what a girl thinks of a fellow when she opens a corsage box isn't always pink and white politeness either. The "rose by any other name" theory doesn't always work in selecting flowers for a girl's formal. Usually the fellow tries tactfully to find out whether his date is wearing gingham check or stiff black moire and makes his floral selection accordingly.

But often something goes wrong. It may be the color. Any flower is a lovely thing but pink sweet peas just don't look right on a red sequin jacket and you can't feel completely glamorous in satin and yellow cowslips. Often the weight of a well-wired and bowed corsage is too heavy for a sheer evening dress. Perhaps your date would have been ecstatic over a single flower to pin in her hair but she would carry the corsage piggy-back rather than leave it home and hurt your feelings.

Girls like and appreciate flowers—it's really a treat to get them—but a thoughtful job of selection gets the best results when you wend your way to the greenhouse.

And another way in which boys' enthusiasm may overstep the bounds of happy etiquet is in letter writing. Give a man a pen that will write and there is no holding him. Cole Porter's lyrics on paper and put on a stamp. Sometimes fellows forget that others besides his girl and the mailman may see that letter he wrote. A little amorous chitchat can make a girl happy or miserable, depending on whether she is reading the letter in private or whether a younger brother is requoting from the note he found in her dressing-table drawer.

Most girls don't like even their letter-loving public, and tho most mothers wouldn't bother to open the mail, there can still be embarrassing exteriors such as stamps put on upside down with obvious amour or such noticeable abbreviations as S. W. A. K. or the longer and more loving, "Hurry Mister Postman, this is to my love!" Make the affections an inside story—after all, what's in the envelope is the best part!

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

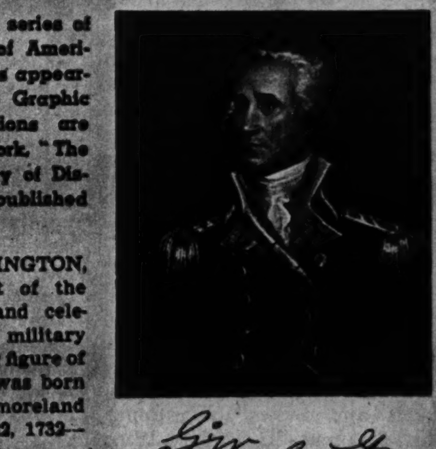
● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



G Washington

GEORGE WASHINGTON, first President of the United States and celebrated statesman and military leader, is an outstanding figure of American history. He was born at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland county, Virginia, Feb. 22, 1732—211 years ago tomorrow.

Not a great deal has been recorded of his childhood, and some of the stories that have been handed down are now regarded as mere fiction, particularly the story of the hatchet and the cherry tree. Washington's early schooling was more or less of the irregular variety. As he grew up he trained and educated himself. At the age of 14 he had learned surveying and was able to plot and measure the fields of his relatives and neighbors.

In 1743, at the death of his father, he went to live with his half-brother, Lawrence Washington, at the latter's estate, Mount Vernon, not far from Alexandria, Va. After serving as an assistant surveyor in exploring vast tracts in the Shenandoah valley in 1748, he was appointed public surveyor for Fairfax county, Virginia. When his brother Lawrence died in 1752 George became the executor of his will and residuary heir of his estate in the event that his daughter died without issue, which she did within 10 years.

• • •

For the next score years Washington lived the life of a country gentleman except when military duties called him from home. He enjoyed riding, hunting, and social activities. His desire for land prompted him to buy numerous tracts, and by 1757 he had acquired a total of about 4,000 acres.

His military career began as early as 1752, when he was made adjutant of one of Virginia's four military districts. In 1753, with the rank of major, he was sent by Gov. Robert Dinwiddie of Virginia on a journey into the Ohio valley to warn the French against encroaching upon British territory. In the following year he led a body of some 300 to 400 soldiers to within 40 miles of the present site of Pittsburgh, Pa., where the French had erected Fort Duquesne. Here, at Great Meadows, near what now is Confluence, Pa., he built a small defense which he called Fort Necessity. From this base on May 28, 1754, he made a surprise attack upon a detachment of French troops under Coulon de Jumonville, killing the commander and nine others and taking the rest prisoners. The French forced Washington to retreat into his fort at Great Meadows, where they besieged him and his little army and compelled them to surrender. Neither Washington nor his soldiers were taken captives, however, but allowed to return to Virginia.

Washington was one of the American officers who accompanied Gen. Edward Braddock on his disastrous march against Fort Duquesne and was present at the battle on July 9, 1755, in which Braddock was defeated and mortally wounded. In this defeat Washington displayed great leadership and courage. In 1758 he commanded the advance guard of Gen. John Forbes' army which captured Fort Duquesne. His marriage with Martha Dandridge, widow of Col. Daniel P. Custis, took place Jan. 6, 1759, and thereafter until the outbreak of the Revolutionary war he devoted most of his attention to colonial politics and the management of his and his wife's estates, the latter including 15,000 acres.

He was a leading member of the first provincial congress or revolutionary legislature in 1774 and was elected one of the seven Virginia delegates to the first continental congress, which met in Philadelphia on Sept. 5 of that year. The second continental congress, to which he also was a delegate, elected him commander in chief of the continental forces in arms against Great Britain, and on July 3, 1775, he assumed command of the troops besieging the British in Boston.

Too detailed to retell here is the story of his part in the Revolutionary war. Every patriotic American recalls how he fought against overwhelming odds, outwitted the enemy time and again, kept the spirit of American resistance alive, and finally brought about the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va., Oct. 21, 1781. On Dec. 23 two years later, in the state capitol at Annapolis, Md., he resigned as commander of the American army.

Chosen one of Virginia's five delegates to the constitutional convention in Philadelphia in 1787, he was unanimously elected its president and for four months presided over its sessions. When it came time to elect a president of the new republic no other name but his was considered. He was elected unanimously and was inaugurated in New York City, April 30, 1789.

• • •

In 1792 he once more was elected unanimously. When France and England went to war in 1793 Washington took a firm stand for neutrality which kept this country out of the conflict. As his second term neared its end he refused to allow his friends to advance him as a candidate for a third term. His famous farewell address of Sept. 19, 1796, was not only an explanation of his determination to retire but also a testament of sound advice to his country.

Returning to Mount Vernon in March, 1797, he devoted his remaining two and a half years to his estate. Only once in that time, in 1798, did he face the prospect of emerging from retirement, when he accepted appointment as commander in chief of the United States army as a war with France threatened.

A THIRSTY ROOSTER

"SAY!" shouted the Dunce one afternoon as he burst through the front door of the shoe house. "That old rooster over in the coop back of the big white house on the next street had the nerve to ask if we'd come over and cut the ice on his drinking water. He says it is frozen about an inch thick and he can't break it with his beak. I told the old crab we didn't have time to be going around breaking ice in chickens' drinking pans."

"Why, Dunce, you ought to be ashamed to talk that way," said the Lady of Fashion, who was sewing a patch on Gogo's pants.

"Well, that rooster is a nasty old crab," argued the Dunce. "We used to be able to get an egg from the hens in that coop until the old grouch told us to stay away. He's fighting or crowing most of the time. To see him strut about, you'd think he owned everything in sight."

"He's mean to the hens, too," put in the Turk, "and Tilly Titter, the sparrow, says that she has heard that he had picked a hen terribly the other day just because he didn't like the color of her comb."

"I don't doubt it," said the Cook "He's mean enough to eat a hen's egg without a tinge of conscience."

"Maybe he is a bad chicken," said the Lady of Fashion, "but that's no reason why we shouldn't help him if he is in trouble."

"That's right," said the General, who had been listening to all the talk. "A bad chicken gets just as thirsty as a good chicken. We can't help it because he's a bad chicken, but we can help him to a drink and I think we ought to do it."

"I'm glad you feel that way about it," said the Lady of Fashion, smiling at the General, "and I'm sorry that we all can't feel that way. If that rooster goes thirsty, it's our fault, for we could help him."

"Well," said the General, "I'd hate to see anything serious happen to the old fellow, for it would be our fault and then we'd be sorry we hadn't helped him."

Nothing more was said about the thirsty rooster, but most of the Teenie Weenies were very quiet when they ate their supper that night. The Dunce, who was especially talkative during mealtime, was unusually quiet and it was plain to see that he was thinking deeply. Once he started to take a drink but he set the cup down untouched.

"General," the Dunce said, "I think we should help that rooster get a drink."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," said the General. "We'll go over to the chicken coop in the morning."

Right after breakfast the next morning most of the Teenie Weenies followed the General to the chicken coop where they soon saw the rooster pacing up and down behind the fence.

"We've come over to cut the ice in your drinking pan," the General said.

The rooster made some cackling sounds, and the Chinaman, who understands chicken talk better than most of the Teenie Weenies, reported that the rooster was very much pleased.

Some of the men climbed up the fence into the coop and with a Teenie Weenie pickax they soon cut through the ice to the water. The rooster drank the pan almost dry and then began chattering at a great rate.

"He say," the Chinaman told the Teenie Weenies, "that he velly glateful. He say he make hens lay egg for Teenie Weenies whenever Teenie Weenies wantie egg."

"Tell him we may ask him to keep that promise when Easter time comes around," the General told the Chinaman.

"Well," said the Dunce as the Teenie Weenies walked back to the shoe house, "for a crabby old rooster he isn't so bad."

"I KEEP MY HANDS CLEAN! WHY CAN'T HE?"

40 HOURS A WEEK I'M UP TO MY ELBOWS IN THE GREASY DIRT OF A SHOP MAKING RIFLE PARTS BUT...

LAVA WASH-UPS GET MY HANDS AS CLEAN AND PRETTY AS ANY MAN COULD ASK

IN 30 TO 50 SECONDS—LAVA SOAP SENDS GRIMIEST DIRT DOWN THE DRAIN!

YET—LAVA'S AMAZINGLY GENTLE!

Watch how ordinary wash-ups miss the deep, greasy grime. But LAVA routs it—in 30 to 50 seconds! LAVA goes deep—fast—gets hands really clean. Leaves towels far cleaner.

Soothing, Smoothing to Skin!

Girls count on LAVA for pretty, clean hands—after war-work. LAVA's lather is smooth as cream... gentle enough even for little tots' grimy hands. Won't chafe. Leaves skin feeling fine.

Helps Family Look Cleaner!

BEFORE—

AFTER!

DOUBLE-ACTION!

2 PLUS—SAME SOOTHING INGREDIENT AS IN COSTLY FACE CREAMS!

LAVA 7¢ LARGE SIZE 10¢

DEEP DIRT AND GREASE in skin creases, around fingernails and knuckles... off it comes! LAVA cleans so thoroughly it removes many germs... helps nicks and cuts to heal!

DOUBLE-ACTION CLEANSING . . . super-speed, yet amazingly gentle! Gets hands really clean... comfortable... actually smoother! Works in hot or cold water ... hard or soft.

NOTHING CLEANS BETTER THAN — LAVA

SCRAM! DON'T BE BOTHERIN' ME, UNCLE WILLIE. I JEST COME IN AND I GOTTA GET SOME SLEEP.
SHHHHUSH! MAMIE THINKS SHE HEARD SOMEBODY DOWN STAIRS.
GOOD GOSH! WILLIE'S GETTIN' VERY BRAVE OR VERY BOOBY, LOOKIN' FOR A BURGLAR WITHOUT HIS SHOTGUN.
I THINK WE HAD OUGHT TO GO INVESTIGATE, MOON.
OKAY.
SLAM!
HEY! OPEN THAT DOOR! WHERE'S THE SHOTGUN?
I GOT IT, BUD!
WELL, DON'T POINT IT AT ME.
THAT THING'S LIABLE TO GO OFF.
DID YOU FIND ANYBODY, MR. HEREFORD?
MR. HEREFORD! WHO'S MR. HEREFORD?
TWEET TWEET
HAMMERHEAD HEREFORD, THE FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHTER AND NOW OUR MILKMAN. I INVITED HIM IN TO HELP HUNT FOR A BURGLAR. THAT'S WHO HE IS!
WELL, DON'T TELL HIM WHO I AM WHEN HE WAKES UP. I GOTTA GET SOME SLEEP.

I SAID "NO!"
BUT JANIE! I CAN'T GO ON THE PROWL FOR ANOTHER DATE JUST THE DAY BEFORE THE DANCE! ANYWAY, YOU CAN'T GIVE ME THE OLD HEAVE-HO WITHOUT A REASON!
WELL, OKAY! IT CURDLES ME TO TELL YOU, DANNY-- BUT YOU'VE TURNED INTO THE KIND OF JERK THAT NEEDS A DENTIST'S NEEDLING ON...ON BAD BREATH AND STUFF!
JEEPERS!
DANNY SEES HIS DENTIST!
TO GET RID OF BAD BREATH, I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM! FOR SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE THAT IN 7 OUT OF 10 CASES, COLGATE'S STOPS ORAL BAD BREATH INSTANTLY!
COLGATE'S SURE PUTS A POLISH ON THE OL' IVORIES! AN' WHATTA FLAVOR--WHAT I CALL SM-O-O-TH!
HEY, JANIE! WHAT DO YOU SAY WE DO A LITTLE TEAMWORK ON THIS CONGA?
NOW THAT'S A SUPER-DUPER IDEA, DANNY! I SAY, "YES!"
Play Safe!
TWICE A DAY—AND BEFORE EVERY DATE —USE
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
It cleans your breath while it cleans your teeth
Take an empty tube with you when you buy

"HERE'S WHY: Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into the hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stop stagnant saliva odors—remove the cause of much bad breath. And Colgate's soft polishing agent cleans enamel thoroughly, gently, safely!"

BRENDA STARR
REPORTER
By Dale Messick
WHEN ROMANCE COULD GO FULL SWING, BRENDA GOES COMMERCIAL INSTEAD, AND ASKS LARRY NICKELS FOR MONEY TO BACK KEN McKEE'S NEW PLAY
WHY SHOULD I GIVE YOU MONEY TO HELP KEN McKEE, A POSSIBLE RIVAL? WHAT'S THIS BOZO IN YOUR SWEET, YOUNG LIFE?
HE MEANS NOTHING TO ME, PERSONALLY.
... BUT HIS PLAY CONCERNS ME. TERRIBLY SORRY I CAN'T TELL YOU WHY, NOW. YOU'LL JUST HAVE TO TRUST ME, LARRY.
SO! YOU WANT ME TO DOLE OUT ALL THIS MONEY WITH NO COLLATERAL?
DOESN'T MY WORD MEAN ANYTHING?
HMM, POOR LITTLE RICH BOY....IT'S ONLY HIS MONEY THAT BRENDA WANTS. HER LIMITED FAVORS HAVE A PRICE. O.K., LITTLE GOLD-DIGGER, TAKE LARRY'S CHECK BOOK AND BACK A DOZEN PLAYS. BUT, GET THIS! HE ALSO HAS HIS PRICE.
OH! GEE, THANKS, LARRY. I PROMISE YOU WON'T REGRET THIS... A... ER... WHAT ARE THE STRINGS ATTACHED TO YOUR PURSE?
HA! IF LARRY WILL GAMBLE, CERTAINLY BRENDA WILL, TOO. SHE'LL JUST HAVE TO TRUST HIM!
DARN, HE'S SUCH A DEVIL! BUT WHAT ELSE CAN I DO?
WELL, WHAT DO YOU SAY, LITTLE BUSINESS PARTNER, SHALL WE SHAKE ON IT?
NEXT DAY, BRENDA MEETS FUDGE AND KEN TO TELL THEM THE GOOD NEWS
MISS STARR, YOU'RE A WHIZ! NOTHING CAN STOP ME NOW. YOU'VE MADE IT POSSIBLE TO GET MY PLAY ON BROADWAY.
AND ME, TOO!
.... AND IF OUR SCHEME WORKS....FOR ME TO BRING TO JUSTICE THE MURDERER OF MY MOTHER.
LET'S CELEBRATE!
ON WHAT?

You're going to love it!... this PRESCRIPTION FOR YOUR TEETH!

1 HOW TO USE IT

At least twice a day use this cream paste as you would any tooth paste. Brush well, with a quick, agitated, up-and-down movement of the bristles against the enamel.

The Listerine Prescription is an expert blend of over 14 different selected ingredients, balanced to give maximum polishing and cleansing without danger to precious enamel.

2 WHAT TO EXPECT

Sensational "pin-point" cleansing that gets after pin-point spots on enamel which might be missed entirely by a less efficient dentifrice.

An eye-opening taste thrill that sets your whole mouth tingling.

Economy you can measure in hard cash. So little paste needed to get results!

THE MARAUDING WOLF STEALTHILY CREEPS UPON SNIDE'S HELPLESS SHEEP
WOW! A WOLF! A BIG, GRAY FELLOW! OH, THOSE POOR SHEEP- GO IT, LUCKY!
THE WOUNDED LUCKY LEAPS TO THE RESCUE OF THE HELPLESS LAMB-
TWO SWORN FOES STAND AT BAY- A HUGE, SNARLING WOLF FACES THE LOYAL, COURAGEOUS DOG-
THAT MUST BE THE TOOL SHED! AN AX- A PITCHFORK- ANYTHING!
THE POWERFUL WOLF STRIKES VICIOUSLY AT HIS OUTWEIGHED ADVERSARY-
---AND BURIES HIS FANGS IN THE ALREADY WOUNDED DOG-BUT LUCKY'S FIGHTING HEART ASSERTS ITSELF- HE BREAKS THE HOLD AND SQUIRMS FREE-BAA!
WHAT'S THAT COMMOTION IN THE SHEEP CORRAL?
IN THE SAME MOMENT SNIDE CHOSE TO INVESTIGATE, LUCKY HAD THE ADVANTAGE OVER THE WOLF-
WHAT? IT'S THAT HOLLIDAY DOG AGAIN- AND HE'S CHEWIN' UP ONE OF MY SHEEP!
SO THE SHERIFF DOUBLE-CROSSED ME, EH? SET HIM FREE- WELL- I'LL FIX THAT!
I'LL PUT AN END TO THAT CUR ONCE AND FOR ALL!

Garden Club of Illinois Will Give Series of Four Lectures

By Irene Steyskal

Pots of white tulips in florists' windows, glimpses of azure sky thru rifts in scudding cloud curtains, pied piper winds whistling promising tunes thru brown branches, the man of the house puttering in the basement with his trowels and spades and rakes and studying the bright pages of seed and bulb catalogs as he smokes his evening pipe—these are the unmistakable signs presaging the coming of spring. The Garden Club of Illinois has been prompt to note them.

In a war year, with food rationing pending on a greatly extended scale, the home garden takes on important significance. To help the amateur gardener make the most of his plot this season, the club has arranged for a series of four lectures on "Practical Gardening," by Mrs. Albert Day Farwell of Lake Forest. Mrs. Farwell is nationally known as a horticulturist. Beginning tomorrow she will lecture at 2 o'clock on four consecutive Monday afternoons at Marshall Field and Co.

• • •

Mrs. Farwell's first talk will be "Planning the Home Garden." In her second lecture, March 1, she will discuss, "Study of the Soil." The following Monday her topic will be "Planting and Care of the Garden." The last talk, on March 15, will deal with "Storage of Vegetables."

Mrs. Raymond Knotts, president of the club, has announced that the series will be open to all persons interested in gardening. The fee for the course will be 99 cents, which includes the tax, and single admittance will be 55 cents. Tickets may be procured at the club's headquarters in the Palmer House.

The Garden Club of Illinois is carrying on a year round program of supplying flowers and plants for military hospitals and the chapels, recreation rooms and libraries in army camps and naval stations. It is to this project, which Mrs. George S. Parker of Winnetka is managing, that the entire proceeds from the lecture series will be devoted.

• • •

A meeting of unusual interest this week is the all day conference which the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation has planned for Friday. With Mrs. Albert W. Palmer presiding, the session will open at 11 o'clock in the 18th floor assembly hall of the Stevens building, 17 North State street.

The program has been drawn up by the world relations committee and will follow the theme, "Victory for Brotherhood." A panel of three distinguished speakers, each representing a different religious faith, will speak in the morning: Rabbi Solomon Goldman of the Anshe Emet synagogue; the Rev. Edward V. Cardinal, faculty member of Loyola university, and Dr. Wilhelm Pauck of the Chicago Theological seminary.

That afternoon the women will hear a talk by Helen Mineta, a young American of Japanese ancestry, songs by Carmen Gevino, an artist from the Philippine Islands, and a book talk by Ailee Huang, Chinese student at the University of Chicago. The three will be introduced by Mrs. George R. Wilson, chairman of the world relations committee. Brotherhood week, falling within the span of the Lincoln and Washington anniversaries, is fostered by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and it is in its spirit that the morning round is presented.

A mutual admiration society, as portrayed by Mrs. Robert J. Dunham and Elizabeth, one of the little charges of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society. Mrs. Dunham is one of a large committee that has been writing personal pleas for contributions to the society thru invitations to a "Phantom Benefit." The drive for funds is replacing the society's usual elaborate benefit ball.

Bundles for America to Hold 1943 Fashion Show March 9

By Cousin Eve

It was about a year now that Bundles for America had a highly successful benefit at Marshall Field's, a fashion show staged by Adrian of Hollywood. Two thousand patrons were ravished with the showing of exquisite fig leaves for spring and summer, worn by good looking girls. The navy and the army, Adm. John Downes and Mrs. Downes from Great Lakes, and the current general and his lady from Fort Sheridan with gold laced aides lent further glamor to the occasion. Following the fashions came an elaborate tea, and the after feeling was of a flawless party, a good time where much money was netted for our service men.

• • •

And what a year has followed for "Bundles"! Thousands upon thousands of knitted articles and comforts for our men in the several services have been handed out or sent away. There will be another benefit fashion show at Field's for "Bundles," given by the "28" shop on March 9.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. John Crerar, chairman, is entertaining members of the honorary committee of Bundles for America at the Casino at 4 o'clock, when the plan of the coming benefit will be outlined and discussed. Mrs. John P. Cohane will be present and address the meeting informally on work accomplished during the year and yet to be done. This tall, very lovely young matron is chairman not only of the Chicago chapter of this war relief society but a member of the national board of Bundles for America at Washington.

All the world loves a good fashion gala—and this will be one.

It's been a rule with me, if out of sorts, to dash forth and buy a hat. There's nothing like a new gadget worn lightly over the right eyebrow to accelerate late winter morale. My usual barometer in hats is Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the delightful Bobsey, who gets her chapeaux where she finds them. This winter Mrs. Goodspeed appeared at a tea in tweeds — apparently without a hat? Such an outmoded idea was certainly not for one as aware as she! But no — the patch of tweed that crowned her crown and was almost lost behind a fluff of bangs was hardly bigger than a special delivery postage stamp. And Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson has a twin of this hat on her sleek dark hair, just a little bit of tweed.

It seems to me that I've been going of late to many teas, practically one a day. The largest of these and done with the pomp and ceremony worthy an allied envoy extraordinary was for Owen Dixon, minister for the commonwealth of Australia at Washington. It was backed by the English-Speaking union and given at the Casino Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine had arranged every detail of the reception, losing her voice in a "laryngite" in the effort, so this gay, moving spirit was not present. And much missed were her witty words and exquisite distinction.

Not that a galaxy of other English-Speaking belles wasn't present, doing their bits at the tea and coffee urns with grace and charm, and looking charming. Among these serving in rapid sequence were Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Ralph James, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, and Mrs. Orville Taylor.

Mr. Dixon received on a rug at the ballroom door, with Frank

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

One of the most active groups in the Oak Park-River Forest OCD is the Junior Organization of Civilian Defense, JOCS for short. Composed of teen age girls, the organization was formed in the early summer of 1942, under the leadership of Joan Spring, a high school senior.

To date the girls have designed, sewed, stuffed, and dressed more than 125 dolls for allied refugee children. Their other activities have included Red Cross work, salvage collection, making and delivering cakes and cookies to the service men's center, in addition to school affairs.

Since the first five dollars was donated to their cause the JOCS have never solicited funds for their projects. Donations of materials for the dolls poured into headquarters. The members also have ordered 25 subscriptions to a weekly magazine, to be sent to service men or to U.S.O. centers.

• • •

Altho 100 persons already have signed up for training as volunteer recreation aids, another hundred—with emphasis on the men—are needed, according to Miss Dorothy Spiker, chairman of a special training committee sponsored by the child care group of OCD, Chicago Recreation commission and the Council of Social Agencies.

The first requirement of those who wish to assist in the play activities of boys and girls whose parents are employed in war industries is that they like children. They also should have a high school education and some skill in a recreation activity. This can include ability in volley ball, badminton, basketball, swimming, calisthenics, model airplane building, dramatics, hiking, art, metal work, social dancing, square dancing, photography, wood working, ability to lead games or supervise game rooms, lead singing or act as club leaders.

• • •

The course is of 30 hours' duration. Classes will be conducted in the loop in the morning and evening on Tuesdays and Fridays. Those who take the tuition free course pledge to work two afternoons or one evening a week for a six month period. Those desiring to register should apply at the volunteer office of the OCD, 111 West Jackson boulevard.

Women who can qualify for membership in the hospital corps are being sought now by the WAVES to meet their increased quotas in this field. There is a great need, according to Lt. Mary Daily, for clinical laboratory technicians, dental technicians, X-ray technicians, physiotherapy technicians, and occupational therapy technicians. Applicants must submit satisfactory evidence that they are qualified to perform the duties of hospital corps technicians in their own field.

Women enlisting for this corps will be sent to the naval training school at the Iowa State Teachers' college in Cedar Falls for an indoctrination course of five weeks. They will be rated as hospital apprentices upon the successful completion of it and transferred either to the naval hospital at San Diego, Cal., or to the national naval medical center at Bethesda, Md., for a four weeks' orientation course. After this they will be recommended for a hospital corps rating not above pharmacists' mate, second class. Those women interested should apply at the recruiting offices in the Board of Trade building, room 1175.

Experts Show Right Way to Hang Pictures

By Edith Weigle.

Because women readers are interested in the most effective way of hanging pictures we asked two authorities at the Art institute, Carl O. Schniewind, curator of prints and drawings, and Meyric C. Rogers, head of the decorative arts department for their opinions on the subject.

Their answer was to assemble for us two groups of furniture, varying widely in style, weight and mass, over which they proceeded to hang framed prints. These prints thus became not only interesting in themselves as works of art, but also as part of a decorative unit of the room in which they were used.

The first grouping was made up of a massive 17th century English chest of age-darkened oak, a gift of Emily Crane Chadbourne to the museum, and a pair of provincial French walnut chairs with solid wood seats, and carving on the back splats which were arched above two spindles.

• • •

At first glance one would suppose that only an oil painting in a fairly massive frame could make a fourth to this assembling of three pieces. But Mr. Schniewind proved that the right type of lithograph could produce exactly the right effect. He hung Bellows' famous "A Stag at Sharkies" above the chest. This vivid depiction of two athletes struggling in the prize fight ring is so powerful and carries such a feeling of weight that it is perfectly at home above the heavy pieces of furniture.

The only object placed on top of the chest was a large, early 17th century bowl, probably of Valencian origin, and a beautiful example of the Hispano-Moresque type of ceramics.

For the second grouping of furniture and pictures two handsome Queen Anne chairs with carved shell ornaments on the cabriole legs and beautifully curved wooden back splats, were chosen. These, a gift to the museum from Robert Allerton, flanked an 18th century mahogany, marble-topped table, distinguished for its gracefully scalloped apron and its claw-and-ball feet.

• • •

Because this group gave a rather long, rectangular effect a group of three flower prints in delightful colors was hung above the table, following its lines. In the center was the largest of the trio, "The Double Anemone," by Le Grand. On the left was "The French Wild Rose," by Henry C. Andrews, and on the right, "Bouquet of Flowers," by Roubillac.

Prints such as these are not at all costly. The Art institute itself sells a number of excellent colored reproductions of its oil paintings; and etchings, lithographs and drawings are available at various art shops and at the art departments of the large loop stores in Chicago.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The prettiest remembrance of St. Valentine's day seen at the tea the English-Speaking union gave for Owen Dixon, the minister from Australia, was worn by Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, who stood in the receiving line. It was a sentimental little corsage of sweetheart roses surrounding one yellow rose, and the whole was mounted within a red ribbon-bound wire heart. Mrs. Dempster's dress was of black and her hat was of smoke gray felt trimmed with feathery plumes of the same shade. Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, one of the assisting hostesses, was wearing a more informal costume, a tailored suit of brown wool with a blue blouse, effective colors together, and a smart little brown hat trimmed with a huge quill feather. Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley, presiding over the tea urn, wore a white hat trimmed with white feather wings with her black dress. Pretty and vivacious looking was Mrs. Ralph James, who heard the Australian envoy while still seated at the long buffet from which she had been dispensing coffee. Her gown was of a flattering shade of green, and her little hat was trimmed with two huge felt flowers, one green, the other crimson. Mrs. Harry McLeod, in from Lake Forest for the party, wore a charming little hat, two real looking pink camellias mounted on dainty black lace. Her frock combined black velvet and black crêpe. Miss Eloise ReQua was in black, too, with gleaming long white gloves and a gold link necklace as accessories.

• • •

Mrs. Frank E. Brawley, sipping tea with Mrs. Fred Schaaf, wore a black dress, heavily embroidered about the neckline with pearls and gold thread. Mrs. Schaaf's smart dress was of wine wool, decorated only by a scalloped line across the bodice, simple and stunning. Mrs. Edward A. Leight, arriving late, crossed the Casino's ballroom wearing a pale blue crêpe dress made with short sleeves and a gay little hat made of feather flowers of the same tone of powder blue. A valentine appeared at the Arts club's dance program last Sunday night, a red paper one, which Mrs. John Orndorff wore pinned to the bodice of her black dinner dress. Picking up the bright color was a long red plume which Mrs. Orndorff wore as a headdress. The most unusual earrings seen in some time were worn by the club's president, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, to see Jean Erdman and Merce Cunningham dance. They were of gold, and consisted of five music notes dangling from a long bar. Alexander Calder designed them, and they were made as lightweight as possible, otherwise these outsize jewels could not have been supported by an ear. Mrs. Shaw's dress was a lovely one of flame colored crêpe which just covered the tops of her arms. Mrs. Walter Brewster's dance recital dress was an unusual one of black in two pieces. The skirt was striped vertically in what looked like old gold brocade. The blouse was of plain black, cut with an oval neckline in front and back. On her head was a cap made of crocheted gold coins.

• • •

Mrs. Leander McCormick looked as smart as could be in a "little" dress of black, floor length, with short sleeves. Its only decoration was a pair of tiny clips at the corners of the square neckline. Mrs. Graham Aldis watched the dancers in a simple dinner dress of beige crêpe made with long sleeves and a flowing skirt. One of the few in informal dress in the audience was Mrs. Theodore Tieken, whose frock was a smart black one, and whose hat was a giddy confection of grapes, held to the center of her forehead by a bandeau of gold material. The most colorful clothes there were worn by the danseuse, Miss Erdman. One of her costumes combined purple, green, red, and mustard, and another contrasted cherry with pistachio. Befitting a bride who is being married informally at an army post, Miss Caryl Casselberry did not wear a wedding gown when she and Lt. Erskine Phelps Wilder Jr. were married recently in Walla Walla, Wash. Her simple, street-length gown was of a pale honey-beige crêpe, tone called "candlelight," that is especially becoming to the tall, slim, dark-eyed bride. With it the former Miss Casselberry wore a little feather hat swathed in brown veiling, and brown accessories. For her recent marriage to Hugo C. Vogel, Mrs. Jane D. Leonard wore a beige crêpe gown accented with touches of brown, a feather toque, and a corsage

Annual Tucson Horse Show to Be Held Today

In the nonessential category for city dwellers these days, Old Dobbin still reigns supreme in the southwest. TUCSON, ARIZ. Tribute to his supremacy is being rendered today out at Moltacqua, where the annual Tucson horse show will be held thruout the morning, and the first heats of the world quarter horse speed trials will be held this afternoon.

These events are being held with the express permission of the government, and thereto clings a moral for those who believe horses to be only for Chicago policemen and equestrians in Lincoln park. Cattle, insist those who know them, cannot be rounded up with a jeep. A few bright boys once tried to do it with airplanes, but the result was to scatter, not bunch, their herd.

The southwestern cow pony is genuinely indispensable; he cannot be supplanted on the range. Some of the sinews of war are leather and beefsteaks; the cattle industry is as necessary as the aircraft. So the government is interested in the continuation of these western horse shows at which five gaited quadrupeds are absent, but in which quarter horses and steel dusts vie with one another in the accomplishments of their profession, the pursuit of dogies.

Moltacqua is about eight miles northeast of town. Transportation there today will be by automobile, for those who have a few pints of gasoline left, and by buckboard, surrey, and prairie schooner. Several of the latter will pick up loads of passengers at the Santa Rita and transport them to the track in slightly over an hour. They will stop en route to let off passengers at the El Conquistador rodeo field, where this year's roping and bronc riding competition is being held today and tomorrow.

• • •

Many of the horse drawn vehicles going to Moltacqua will be entered in class No. 10 at this morning's show. On the official program it reads as follows: "Class No. 10 [buggy horses]—Any horse shown in harness to any kind of rig suitable to replace the automobile in these days of rubber shortage; performance 50 per cent, conformation 50 per cent." Besides showing off horses and rigs there is another reason for going to the Moltacqua program ahorse. Admission for those aboard cow ponies or riding in rigs is the same as admission for soldiers in uniform, 25 cents. Effete citizens motoring out must pay 75 cents.

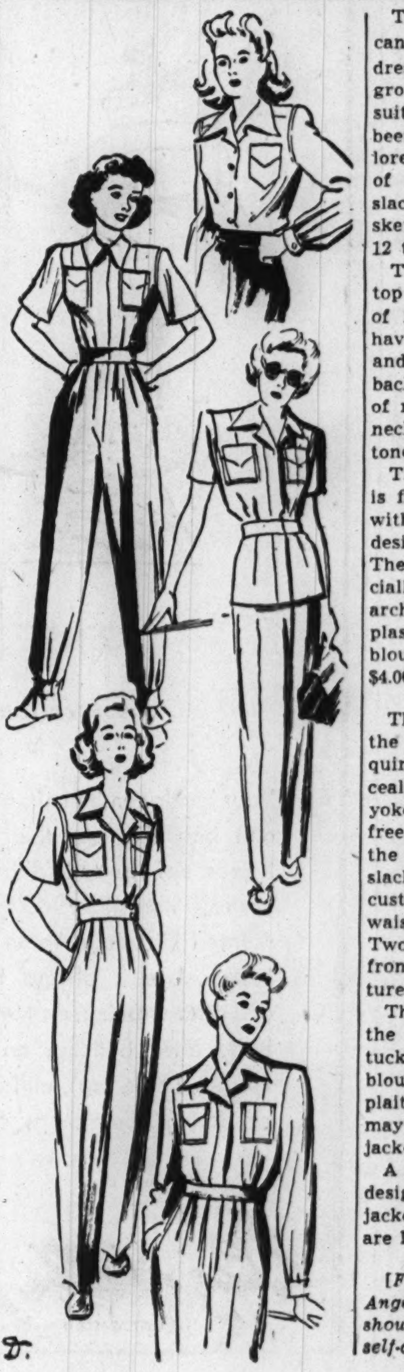
Fashion's . . . By Angela



The girl on the job in war work can be as attractive and appropriately dressed as her career girl sister. This group of soft blue, pre-shrunk cotton suits, created of durable material, has been especally designed and man tailored with an added feminine touch of smartness. Modestly priced, the slacks, shirts, all-in-ones, and blouses, sketched today, are available in sizes 12 to 44.

The white broadcloth blouse at the top of the sketch is a masterpiece of fine tailoring. The long sleeves have two French plaits at the cuffs, and two others dropping from the back yoke of the blouse afford plenty of room for action. The convertible neckline may be worn open or buttoned up.

The blue cotton, all-in-one work suit is finely tailored with patch pockets with safety reinforcements, which are designed to hold pencils and pens. The buckled leg on the slacks is especially good for women welders and architectural draftswomen. Concealed plastic buttons are featured in the blouse and drop seat. Priced under $4.00.

• • •

The belted jacket, slightly fitted, of the third model has all the safety requirements, short, boxy sleeves, concealed buttons, and back shoulder yoke with slight fullness, allowing freedom of motion. All are part of the perfect tailoring. The separate slacks preserve the tailoring found in custom made clothes. The wide waistband has two-button fastening. Two pockets and two neat plaits front and back are other slack features. Priced less than $2.00.

The beltless, semi-fitted jacket on the fourth figure may be worn as a tuck-in blouse or as a jacket. This blouse has a back yoke with two plaits at each side. The short sleeves may be tightened, if desired. This jacket is available in sizes 12 to 20.

A two piece number, last model, is designed for the fuller figure. The jacket is semi-fitted, but the sleeves are long. This is sold in sizes 38 to 44.

'Bundles' Plans Fashion Show for March 9

Hecht, president of the union, Mrs. Hecht, and the Peter Galliennes, British consul general and his attractive wife. The minister is a tall, gray haired, lean man of the Woodrow Wilson type. Seated later at a tea table with the receiving party, plus Capt. and Mrs. Benyaurd Wygant, Mrs. Dempster, and Mrs. John Crerar, the Australian made a talk on his native land which, for the public weal, he begged to have stricken off the record. Far as any one could hear, however, his mild address might have been shouted from the housetops and Hirohito none the wiser. Owing to our admirable censorship in this war, all I know about Australia is that they have kangaroos and 12,000 miles of sea coast.

The minister did say for the public benefit that our soldiers all seem to like Australia, and that Australians are 98 per cent British.

All around the Casino ballroom were tea parties at small tables, the 200 guests including Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Samuel M. Rinaker, Mrs. Frank Mulford, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Lyman Walker, Mrs. Elisha Chandler, Miss Louise Chandler, and Charles F. Kelley. Others besides Mrs. Valentine to be stricken with illness that day were Miss Kelley, pretty young secretary of the union, who had chicken pox, and Mr. Dixon himself, who was hospitalized that very night.

• • •

Another large tea of the week was Mrs. Donald Wegg's at the Churchill on Monday afternoon late, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Harris Adriance of Englewood, N. J. An interesting and constantly moving circle sat around a center of flaming logs and some of the guests were even recalling their school days. Chicago is more social this season than in years. The war has drawn people together as never before and again families have moved into town from the suburbs and renewed their old ties.

The great topic of conversation at any large gathering has been the appointment of Desire Defauw as conductor of our symphony orchestra for the season of 1943-'44. This dapper Belgian musician, a favorite, it seems, with Toscanini, has been heard at two of our concerts this winter. His work at that time appeared to divide symphony patrons into two camps, those who were enthusiastic over M. Defauw and those who weren't. Both sides were rather vociferous, but the decision lay, not with the patrons of the concerts, but with the trustees and associate members called by Edward Ryerson into the conference. These men and Mrs. Frederic Upham, Mrs. Clyde Carr, and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, voted unanimously for the Belgian who, tho not the native American demanded by Col. Albert Sprague, is, nevertheless, an agreeable personality.

Another thing, M. Defauw rated high with the musicians, who liked to play under his leadership and have respect for him. Thirdly and lastly, our new conductor is said to be definitely a social asset in our town where there is a man shortage at the moment, appalling to the most enterprising hostess. So, taken all in all, the augury for the future of our Chicago orchestra seems rosy.

Speaking of men, I was surprised there were so many available as rushed to Mrs. George Robbins' tea late Tuesday afternoon at 900 North Michigan avenue. The attractive California widow who has wintered with us this year had a very gay little party for her guest, Mrs. Ambrose Diehl, formerly of San Francisco, but now of New York.

Among the ladies were Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. Abner Stilwell, and Mrs. Rudolf Ganz, while among the men were George Carr, Stuart Logan, Robert H. McCormick, Howard Tracy, Ulric Beusch, and Alejandro del Carril, the new Argentine consul in Chicago, to name only a few. Mr. Del Carril is a tall, handsome Latin-American who has lived in the diplomatic service the world over, including China, soviet Russia, and South Africa. He flew here from England in the autumn. Like many foreigners, the gay Argentine finds we keep our houses too hot, and goes forth in our subzero weather in light summer clothes, mopping his brow. I almost froze to death on the marble floors and wind-swept pampas in Argentina, so I could sympathize in reverse.

There is one foreigner in New York, however, who has got the best of the "chauffage central" situation. He is Armand de Richelieu, slight, thin, wiry, quite small man, vastly wealthy but of anemic mien. He is married to an American woman, the former Douglas Wyse of Baltimore, and therefore has spent much time in this country, owning a house in New York. This house is furnished and filled with very beautiful ameublement, collected, owned, and treasured by M. de Richelieu, and period pieces inherited from his ducal forebears. Everybody who has fine antiques knows that steam heat is ruinous for fine old handmade pieces. And Richelieu opines that not only is steam bad for his possessions but withering and depleting for himself. So no heat of any kind sullies the atmosphere of the Richelieu abode with all its palatial surroundings. Therefore, as often happens, when the Richelieus entertain during the New York winter season, ladies go arrayed as if for a sleigh ride, and the men doubtless wear sweaters under their coats.

Armand de Richelieu is a great old French character, true to his native soil, the France that is France, and the traditions of his ancestors.

• • •

It took Louis Ellsworth Laflin Jr. to take us back 50,000 years to the "Origin of the Theater," with delightful slides in color and a scholarly talk given at the Contemporary club last Friday morning.

Louis is a younger son of an old Lake Forest family, who has specialized during his college days and since in playwriting and the theater. His lecture was a delightful gift to the Contemporary club, with the camera studies thrown in, which transported the members back to a cave of Dordogne wherein was found in a crypt the earliest existing female skeleton.

This relic was curled up like the human embryo, as were two negroid figures from 5,000 years later on the French coast. From France Mr. Laflin proceeded to prehistoric Greece and Egypt, carefully drawing the close connection between pagan beliefs and their final growth into Christian doctrine. It was an interesting thesis, showing a close alliance between early day theater and religion. One of his most interesting charts showed the vast theater that existed at the base of the Great Pyramid, a playhouse where the wealthy sat out at night, as they have in recent times in Italy. In Rome we have heard symphony concerts in the palace of the Caesars by starlight, and we have gone to grand opera in the coliseum at Verona when the hot day was done.

After Mr. Laflin's lecture the club members broke up into small parties for luncheon and then proceeded almost en masse to Orchestra hall, where Serge Rachmaninoff was the soloist that day. Of that magnificent concert there was but one opinion—it was the outstanding, superb, uplifting musical event of the winter.

Apropos of pianists, we have Erich Kleiber at next Tuesday's concert, who takes us back to Salzburg days, and at the same time are losing Daniel Ericourt, who is going on a tour of South American cities with his bride. Ericourt married Constance Fairbanks this winter, younger daughter of Mrs. Warren Fairbanks. Connie is a young beauty of a tall and splendid Juno type, and has just been having a touch of chicken pox. The trip, in fact, was somewhat retarded because of vaccinations, serums, etc. The Ericourts go first to Mexico City where he has concert engagements, then on to South America by air. In Argentina, by the way, they have been having the hottest season in memory of man, and the weather men say that we are in for the same here in our northern half of the Americas.

LIVING ON WEST COAST

Mrs. Thomas Pierce Barnefield, the former Olive Elizabeth Byers, whose marriage to Ensign Barnefield of Pawtucket, R. I., took place on Feb. 6 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Ensign Barnefield, a Harvard graduate, and his bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alex Byers of Evanston, have gone to the west coast. She attended the Roycemore school and Smith college.

dudes this morning. Recently pictured in magazines and newspapers as the ideal traveling outfit for these times, the surrey is frequently seen taking Silver Bell guests to nearby horse functions or to the El Rio Golf club. William P. Sidley of Winnetka, who arrived at the ranch this week to join Mrs. Sidley, who has been here since early January, is taxied to the golf course in the surrey nearly every day. Mrs. Sidley hurried over to call on a friend out on St. Mary's road the other day. Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal of Winnetka, who just were out at Silver Bell, went mountain climbing in the Tucson mountains near Gates pass one day last week. Mrs. Arthur Clarage of Chicago with her son, Dick, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams with their children, Gale and Bruce, also of Chicago, are among recent arrivals at the ranch, where evenings are spent learning the varsóvienne and schottische, square dances.

A long desert ride and steak fry was the lot yesterday of several Chicagoland youths who are students at the Southern Arizona School for Boys on Sabino canyon road. Leaving the school late in the morning, the boys traveled a dozen miles across the desert and into the foothills of the Catalinas, where they encamped and ate. Tired, altho probably not more so than their horses, they returned to school after dark.

Edward and David Jenner, sons of Mrs. Austin Jenner of Winnetka, are at the school this year. Others there are John L. Corliss of Wilmette, Edward T. Evans of Decatur, Allan P. Geddes of Rockford, William B. McMillan Jr., Alfred M. Rogers Jr., and Donald C. Mattes of Chicago, Daniel and Sampson Rogers III. of Rockford, and A. Eugene Staley III. of Decatur.

Judge John Gutknecht of Chicago recently checked in at the Congress hotel. Mrs. J. F. Mayberry, her two children, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Frances Mayberry, of the south side, recently left the Congress to take a house out in the El Rio district for a few months. Recent arrivals at the Pioneer include Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Neveh of Chicago, Frank P. Ross of Oak Park, Dr. and Mrs. David Arthur Hare, Henry W. Kern, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Keenan, all of Chicago.

Among recent arrivals at El Conquistador are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wieboldt and Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. of Chicago.

Earl Snow of Oak Park has his own stables at home and raises thorobred horses, but he is delighted with the rugged cow ponies out at Picture Rocks ranch, where he is staying, and with the winding canyons and desert trails which are his bridle paths. Here for a month's vacation, he was one of a number of riders from the ranch who went on a moonlight ride, ending up with a cocktail party at "A Little Ranch Down the Road."

On the same evening a number of guests at the Double U went for a moonlight ride and steak fry at Sabino canyon. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gellman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Lautmann, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lapine, Mr. and Mrs. James Glassner, Mr. and Mrs. Myer Mervis and daughters, Patricia and Natalie, and Mrs. Leonard Mervis, all of Chicago.

F. W. Stewart of Chicago was seen buying a bright orange silk neckerchief and a green cowboy shirt downtown the other afternoon. With Mrs. Stewart, he is stopping at the Christopher Square. Mrs. James F. Ramsey and Mrs. Ervin J. Goebel of Wilmette are at the Northgate these days. Mrs. Frank D. Weber of Wilmette is stopping at the Santa Rita.

ENGAGED

Miss Joy Cameron, whose engagement to George Koester is announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Cameron of Park Ridge. Mr. Koester, who is serving in the navy, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Koester of Ashland avenue.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

The New River Twists Thru the Everglades

By Alden Powell.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

Somewhere in England—I think in Southampton county—there is a wooded region called the New Forest. It was new two or three centuries ago. Lauderdale has a story like that, too, only this one is about a river that twists out of the everglades thru jungle and mangrove swamp to the sea.

The Seminole Indians tell the story about New river, and the geologists in general confirm it as best they can. This area of Florida, so I am told, is underlaid with limestone, and thru channels deep in the rock underground rivers run. Long ago one of these rivers broke to the surface not far from the sea, then one day, as the Indians tell it, boiled out of the earth some six or seven miles upstream, and New river was born.

When this happened—or if it really happened in one day—no one knows. This was long before Henry Flagler discovered Florida, long before the people of the United States spent millions chasing Chief Osceola, and it might well have been before Ponce de Leon.

• • •

I spent three hours on New river this afternoon, and lucky I was, for pleasure craft that before the war made two or more trips a day now are permitted to make one a week, and tickets are reserved days in advance. Now the lower reach of the river no longer gleams at night with ribbons of colored lights, and where more than 500 yachts were in former years tied to river docks there are only—well, no one says. Many that are here work part time for Uncle Sam, and have C. G. A. painted in large letters on their sides. Idlers no longer, they now have a job to do.

West of town New river is a glittering track thru the jungle, turning and twisting in an impenetrable snarl of tropical growth. Turtles and alligators doze in the sun along its banks. Blue herons and white egrets skim its water and wade the shallows. Swamp maple, sea grape, and holly lift themselves above some strange, fernlike plant that has grown unchanged since the age when coal was born. Here and there a banyan tree holds a palm in deathless embrace.

• • •

Spanish moss drips from overhanging limbs, and underneath, half hiding, orchids swing. High and low, a queer pineapplelike parasite makes living birds' nests.

Then gradually the jungle ceases and the everglades begin. The natural growth is lower, and there are open "prairies." Many persons are disappointed to discover the everglades are not all jungle and swamp. I am, too.

Back downstream, near and within city limits, the jungle has been hacked away to make room for winter homes. These are not as fashionable and palatial as those nearer the beach, but they are good enough to make any snow hating northerner sigh with envy. Some are even downright cottages of the Wisconsin type, with tropical variations. Let that dispel the notion, if any one has it, that only rich, retired executives may bask along New river. Just picture a Door county cottage shaded by cocoa palms, bananas, and Australian pine, with an orange tree for accent and a poinsettia hedge, and you have it. Nor must I forget—also the Wisconsin touch—fishing from the front steps.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Has the war had any appreciable effect on resort life in the midsouth communities? I always enjoy an early spring vacation around Pinehurst, N. C., and was wondering about that resort's status this year.—M. J. E.

A reliable survey reports that the midsouth resorts are shaping their recreational sports, entertainment events, and social programs around the military personnel stationed in the vicinity, and the resorts further report an excellent "season" in progress. Pinehurst, noted for its warm, dry winter climate, is staging outdoor sports coupled with entertainment for the military. Sponsored by the Clubs of America, the national amateur quail championship contest will have its run March 8. A full program of tournaments, sports, and socials, including the Pinehurst forum, is scheduled for the balance of this month and for March.

Aiken, S. C., is an open center for service men stationed at a nearby air base. Equestrian sports, as usual, hold the limelight at Aiken, and especially so during this month and March. Hitchcock woods and Aiken State park are recreational haunts for riding clubs and fox hunts.

Asheville, N. C., as a health resort, is featuring its spa facilities. The program includes bridle club riding thru nearby Pisgah National forest and the Great Smoky Mountains National park trails.

Tucson Fiesta Parade Is Scheduled Tomorrow

The cowboy of the old west will return tomorrow to Arizona with the Fiesta de los Vaqueros parade, Tucson's annual midwinter event. The occasion will unite in celebration with the Southern Arizona Dude Ranchers' association, and will offer the visitor an event of three roaring days of spirited entertainment, complete with pageantry.

Gov. Stassen Will Address Woman's Club

Clubwomen are bringing a parade of prominent and interesting personalities into their program spotlight this week. In the forefront is Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Minnesota's 35 year old chief executive, and newly elected president of the International Council of Religious Education. Gov. Stassen will speak at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

His own state has given the young governor the sobriquet of "farm boy with a future." "America's Destiny After the War" is the scheduled title of his address for the Tuesday meeting. Those attending will hear some of his ideas for home planning and international coöperation for peace. Because of general interest in the subject and the speaker, Mrs. Frederick E. Hutchins, program chairman, has announced that the meeting will be open to the public.

At the afternoon session of a daylong meeting Friday, the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations is to hear Julita V. Sotejo. Miss Sotejo is a member of the bar and is treasurer of the Women Lawyers' association of the Philippine Islands. She will talk on "Women of the Philippines."

The group will convene at 11 o'clock in room 1906 of the Republic building, 209 South State street, with Mrs. Henry W. Hartough presiding. Fred J. Schlottfeldt, director of immigration, will give a talk in the morning on "Immigation and Naturalization."

• • •

The Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations is bringing George B. de Huszar to its platform as speaker at a session on post-war planning at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow. Born in Switzerland, De Huszar has studied at the universities of Budapest and Geneva, the Institute of International Studies in Geneva, and at the University of Chicago. Presiding over the meeting, which will draw delegates from 100 organizations, will be Mrs. Max Biesenthal.

Chicago members will crystalize in a program Wednesday afternoon the National Council of Jewish Women's interest in solving the problem of utilizing woman in industry without detrimental effect upon herself, the family, and community.

A panel discussion is planned to cover war industry's need of woman power, the problems of child care and adequate housing involved, and concrete plans devised by coöperating agencies for action.

• • •

Lillian Herstein, faculty member of Wilson college and a member of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor, will be the principal speaker. Miss Herstein's talk will be directed to "The Need for 4,000,000 Women in Industry in 1943." A representative from the war man power commission also will be heard. Mrs. William H. Sahud will preside. The meeting, called for 1:30 o'clock in the council clubrooms in the Medical and Dental Arts building, is held under auspices of the public affairs department and the consumer relations committee, respectively headed by Mrs. Meyer Edelman and Mrs. Mitchell Edelson.

A luncheon in compliment to Mrs. Mary Berkemeier Quinn will be given by the joint committee on the Woman's Court and Detention Home at noon Thursday in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. Mrs. Quinn, graduate of Vassar college and of the Yale university law school, has been a practicing attorney in Chicago for 20 years. Gov. Greene recently appointed her public guardian of Cook county. She will talk about her work in that capacity.

Mrs. Louis B. Schwartz of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the Midwest branch of the Women's League of the United Synagogue of America, will be the special guest and speaker of a Chicago area meeting of the league Wednesday afternoon in the Anshe Emet Community house, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street. This is the annual reciprocity meeting, and an attendance of 1,000 representatives of the 19 affiliated groups in the area is anticipated.

Welsh Service Group Will Observe 90th Anniversary

Welsh persons thruout Chicago and the suburbs will celebrate St. David's day and the 90th anniversary of the Cambrian Benevolent society, a Welsh service organization, with a program at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the Hebron Welsh Presbyterian church, Adams street and Francisco avenue. The special guests for the occasion will be James Bradley Griffin, dramatic artist; Lulu Jones Downing, composer, and Ada Beth Baker, soprano on station W-G-N. Dr. John H. Evans is president of the Cambrian Benevolent society.

Wisconsin Alumnae Club to Hold Benefit Dinner

Men and women graduates of the University of Wisconsin will gather at 6 o'clock Wednesday at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue for a benefit dinner to be given by the University of Wisconsin Alumnae Club of Chicago. The highlight of the evening's program will be the showing of motion pictures of Colorado and the Rockies, lent by the Burlington railway. Proceeds from the dinner will be added to the scholarship and war activities funds.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Margaret Blakeslee's engagement to James C. Brace is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay C. Blakeslee of Beverly Hills. Miss Blakeslee attended the University of Illinois. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Brace of Santa Monica, Cal., studied at the University of Southern California and at present is at an officers' training school at Fort Knox, Ky.

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL...

the College Girl in the War

Big changes will come in college life when the Army and Navy start their educational programs on campuses throughout the country next month. Then jam sessions will become "remember-way-back-whens" in earnest—when only the R.O.T.C. wore uniforms, when dances were more important than grades, when "activities" were just plain fun. But women on campuses have already become adjusted to the Army and Navy studying in small groups, to the disappearance of boys from their classrooms, to placing the war first.

Red-headed Barbara Hulbert, junior in the school of speech at the University of Michigan, seems typical of most of her contemporaries on college campuses. She hasn't changed her course—but she's adding a class in motor mechanics. She rolls surgical dressings at least two hours a week, takes a course in first aid, and is on call to do typing for the Manpower Corps whenever that organization needs some done. The women of every class at the University of Michigan have one special war project, and the juniors' is the sale of War Bonds and Stamps. Barbara serves on two committees for this, publicity and corsage—on the second actually making stamp bouquets. She is also activities chairman for her sorority—which means it is up to her to see that the other girls in her house do their share to help win the war.

Because you could be another "lost generation," but your sense of humor, your balance, your intelligence refuse to let you be, Marshall Field & Company salutes you.

Barbara Hulbert, 223 South Elmwood Avenue, Oak Park, Illinois, is a junior in the school of speech at the University of Michigan. Among her extracurricular activities are first aid, the selling of War Bonds and Stamps, volunteer clerical work for the Manpower Corps. For her portrait by Dora, Miss Hulbert wears a gray and yellow wool suit from our Sports Room. This is the last in a series of eleven portraits of women in the war, drawn for us by Dora.

Cooking Editor Reports Values of Riboflavin

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

[This is the third in a series of Sunday articles by Mary Meade which describe the various vitamins and minerals essential to good nutrition. The first two articles discussed vitamin A and thiamin or vitamin B.]

All the beauty creams and youth treatments in the world can't do more to preserve the characteristics of youth in man or woman than riboflavin, or vitamin B2. One of this vitamin's most important attributes is its power to prevent premature old age.

When there's not enough riboflavin in the diet, senility is brought on early. Other results of deficiency are digestive disturbances, nervous depression, lowered vitality, general weakness, increased susceptibility to infections, skin diseases, eye troubles, such as excessive watering, burning sensations, redness, cataracts. The vitamin has been found to help cure cases of "night blindness" which haven't responded wholly to dosage with vitamin A. Cheiloses, or cracking and reddening of the skin at the corners of the mouth, and vascularization of the cornea are two direct results of riboflavin deficiency.

Deficiency in riboflavin occurs chiefly in this country among children in the south. Neglect in drinking milk and eating eggs and green vegetables is the most common cause.

• • •

The sources of riboflavin in foods are about the same as the sources of thiamin, that other member of the B complex, discussed in this column last week, except that cereals aren't good in this respect. Yeast is the richest single source. Milk is next, and it is the chief source of riboflavin in the child's diet. It is interesting and surprising to find that human milk is not a good source of this vitamin, which is supplied so plentifully by cow's milk. Eggs are rich in riboflavin, too.

Among meats, all of which give us riboflavin, liver and kidney rank first. Heart is also good.

The leafy green vegetables, including beet, turnip, and carrot tops, spinach, parsley, broccoli, are excellent sources. Soy beans are 10 times as rich in riboflavin as are other dried beans, also good sources.

Riboflavin can be purchased in the pure state, and, in deficiencies, often is administered intravenously by the physician. There is no harm in overdosages, but it is better to let a physician decide whether or not food sources need to be supplemented by artificial doses.

NIACIN.

Niacin [nicotinic acid] is the third important member of the vitamin B complex, thiamin and riboflavin being the others. The disease pellagra, common in the south, is a result of severe deficiency.

Pellagra, characterized by "the three D's," dermatitis, depression, diarrhea, is the most severe deficiency disease in the United States. Mortality is extremely high, something like 70 per cent when the disease is unchecked, and in many cases the mind is affected.

• • •

The typical diet which produces pellagra is one of salt pork, corn bread, soda biscuits, and sirup. Niacin alone can't effect a permanent cure, altho it does cure the most pronounced symptoms. Thiamin, riboflavin, vitamins A and C, and calcium are needed, too. Best sources of niacin are yeast, milk, liver, fresh green vegetables, eggs, and fish, which also yield the other members of the B complex. Milk supplies calcium, and milk, eggs and green vegetables contribute vitamin A. Tomatoes also are needed in the diet of a person suffering from pellagra, for the rich supply of vitamin C.

Nutrition authorities think that if southern rural families would raise their own tomatoes and green vegetables and keep chickens and "a family cow" the problem of pellagra would be solved.

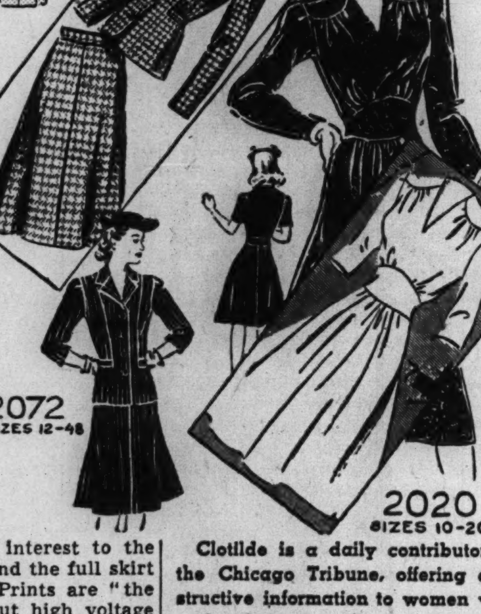
Patterns by Clotilde



Two fashion moods are spotlighted in these patterns. One design creates a two-piece dressmaker suit, the sort of thing women are prizing above rubies this spring. There's a casual revere collar line, a jacket which fits the figure superbly, and a paneled skirt which fashionably meets priority requirements. The jacket may be buttoned to the collar line, if you prefer, and the sleeves may be either long or short.

The dress model achieves softness with the use of deft shirring. The shoulder yoke lends interest to the simple V neck line, and the full skirt is a figur-flatterer. Prints are "the thing" for spring, but high voltage colors and pasters run them a close second.

Style No. 2072 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 54 inch material, for long-sleeved suit, or 3⅝ yards of 39 inch for suit with three-quarter length sleeves.

Style No. 2020 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved dress; 3⅛ yards for frock with three-quarter length sleeves.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

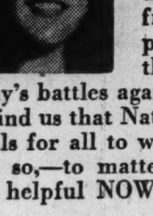
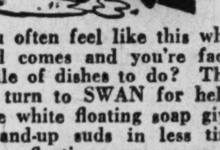
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting



New York, Feb. 20th. 211 years ago Monday, a man was born to lead Colonial America in proving a new national philosophy,—that a people banded together possessed the inalienable rights to win and maintain peace and freedom. Today this American declaration of people's rights has become global,—inspiring the hearts of all who fight or bitterly endure today's battles against oppression. So let Washington's Birthday remind us that National ideals proven in 1776 are today's World Ideals for all to whom PEACE and FREEDOM have meaning. And so,—to matters of daily living—with BUY-LINES you'll find helpful NOW!

How are you spending time once used in gadding about in your car? For me,—"curl up 'n' read" is the best entertainment answer! Take the March REDBOOK for instance. I've just finished the complete novel, "Dangerous Honeymoon." Here's a story that has EVERYTHING . . . mystery, romance, excitement, intrigue. And how you'll love Kirby,—the glamour girl heroine,—who single-handed beats a game the F. B. I. didn't even know about! You'll like the new Ursula Parrot serial that begins in the March REDBOOK, too,—and find the Hollywood novelette by Ben Hecht worth an evening's laughter! Try this reading-for-entertainment tip . . . you'll really have fun if you get the March REDBOOK tonight!

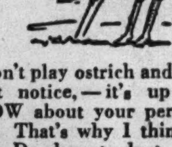


Do you often feel like this when day's end comes and you're faced with a pile of dishes to do? Then why not turn to SWAN for help? This pure white floating soap gives quick, stand-up suds in less time than other floating soaps even in hardest water! No need for strong, easy-to-waste package soaps NOW! SWAN Soap washes dishes clean in a jiffy . . . and because it's purer than finest castiles, it's baby-gentle on your hands.

Doctor's say walking is good for us . . . and more of us will walk now that tires and gas are rationed. But though health will benefit from war-enforced walking habits, 7 out of 10 of us won't enjoy it UNLESS we have support at the BALL of the foot. That's why I believe that new foot-relief development by DR. SCHOLL is so important. They're called LuPADS—loop over the fore-part of the foot to cushion the metatarsal arch with a soft pad that relieves cramps, pains, calluses, and burning sensations. Cost only $1 a pair at Drug, Department and Shoe Stores (or write to me if you can't find them, stating size and width of your shoe). They're especially essential for dress shoes . . . worn invisibly . . . weigh less than an ounce and give support without feeling bulky. Try them — they're an asset to shoe fashions and to YOUR comfort!

Yardley Beauty Preparations

Several weeks ago I printed a "miracle" beauty hint that's worth repeating again and again. Get a pot of YARDLEY'S "Holly Red" Cream Rouge and "finger-tip" its smooth creaminess sparingly and gently over your face. Smooth into a natural blend of warm, glowing color...see the lovely flush spread over your whole face instead of merely "high-spotting" cheeks. Cost of this "Holly Red" Cream Rouge is 85c and 55c,—and I'd advise your matching it with YARDLEY'S "Holly Red" lipstick for $1. Ask fine shops anywhere for these matched YARDLEY Beauty Preparations,—they give the "thoroughbred look" smart women covet!



Don't play ostrich and think others don't notice,—it's up to you to KNOW about your personal daintiness. That's why I think the AMOLIN Deodorant duet belongs on every chic woman's dressing table. AMOLIN Deodorant CREAM is smooth and soothing, delicately scented, vanishes as you apply it underarms,—and does its job of deodorizing supremely well! You'll want fine smooth AMOLIN Personal Deodorant POWDER, too . . . for so many discreet and personal uses. Try it in your slippers, sift this soft white powder over babies' sheets, and use it ALWAYS on those "particular" days when you've feminine secrets to hide. Ask your Druggist for this AMOLIN twosome that so safely, daintily and effectively guards against personal offense!

That "droopy" faded look and tired shadows WILL come from overtire and hard work so many of us are experiencing these days. So why not make EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S Homogenized Facial Cream a regular "beauty-lift" habit! Faithful use can bring an amazing beauty-mirage to YOU . . . lubricating skin better and more evenly because it's more active. Ask your cosmetic counter for it,—then pat on face and throat with upward and outward strokes. Press extra amount on lines under eyes, on forehead and from nose to mouth. Wipe off after 8 minutes. Regular use of HOPPER'S Facial Cream can help keep skin firm, fresh looking,—and exquisitely lovely throughout the years.

Etiquet Editor Answers Some Queries Today

By Helen Bartlett.

Questions and answers, short and to the point, will make the information contained in today's column easy to assimilate.

Miss J. K. asks this question: "When making a telephone call or answering such a call, what is the proper conversational technique?"

When making the call and you hear the customary "Hello," ask by name for the person to whom you wish to speak. Ask for her by her full title: "May I speak to Mrs. Smith?" And when Mrs. Smith responds, tell her who is calling by saying, "This is Mary Jones." Notice particularly the use of titles. In giving your own name, you use the same form as in writing your signature, name without the title Miss or Mrs.

Do not say, "Who is this?" when some one answers your ring. Instead, ask for the person to whom you want to speak.

When answering the telephone simply say "Hello" or repeat your telephone number as identification. Then, when you hear who is wanted, graciously accommodate by calling her or taking a message for her in her absence.

A bride writes: "Does a bride remove her veil before the reception?" The answer is "No." The bride wears the same costume at the reception as she did at the wedding ceremony. She continues to wear her veil. Not until she and the bridegroom leave the guests at the reception to prepare for their wedding trip is the costume changed or altered in any way.

• • •

From Mrs. L. M.: "A friend of mine says that when a calling card is inclosed with a wedding gift, the title Mr. or Mrs. or Miss is scratched out. Is this correct?"

No. It is not correct. A line is drawn thru the title on a card only when a personal message is written on it. No message should be written on the card inclosed with a wedding gift and the title is left untouched.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Is there some linoleum around your house that is losing its glaze? Or has the glaze already gone? Is there some worn spot that needs attention yet the entire floor doesn't require redoing? There is a transparent finish on the market for just such rejuvenation, made up of thinners and oils and blended resins. . . . This finish will give your linoleum a wax-like appearance which is durable and hard and cleanable with soap and water. . . . You also can use the finish for your woodwork or floors for it is suited to all wood surfaces, and because of its transparency it is especially worthwhile if your floors, woodwork, trim or furniture are light in color.

• • •

Every one is interested in keeping freshly painted or papered walls in as good condition as possible, that they may last as long as possible. . . . There are protective colorless films and finishes which can be applied over newly decorated walls so that when they become a little dusty or dirty they can be easily cleaned. . . . These finishes are a worthwhile protection to have in the home.

• • •

There's a cleaning "help" for numberless jobs around the house which has a dual personality. . . . It is both a chamois and a sponge. . . . You can use it wet as a sponge to wash windows and floors, woodwork and furniture, and then you can wring it dry and use it as a chamois to polish and dry the surfaces you've been working on. . . . Since the supply of sponge is shrinking this is a practical way of meeting the problem. . . . The little cleaner comes as a cluster of pieces of chamois firmly sewed together.

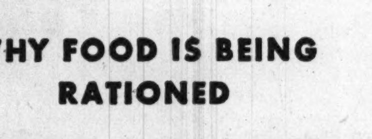
Betty Crocker

Explains What You Want to Know About Point Rationing*

COMPILED FROM GOVERNMENT SOURCES BY THE HOME SERVICE STAFF OF GENERAL MILLS, INC.

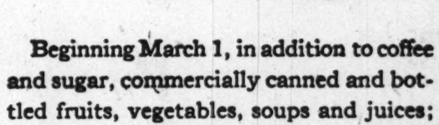
* Let's call it "Food Sharing"... for that's what it is!



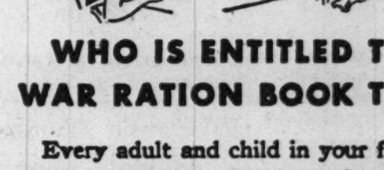
WHY FOOD IS BEING RATIONED

To save the lives of American soldiers. Our young men, fighting on battle fronts all over the world, must be well-fed and strong. To give them the food they need as vitally as ammunition . . . to help supply our fighting allies . . . we in America must go without some of the food we used to buy freely. But everyone, through point rationing, will be able to get his fair share of the food that is available.

WHAT FOODS ARE AFFECTED NOW

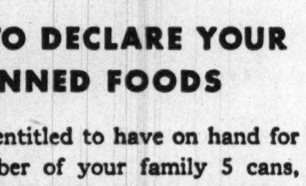


Beginning March 1, in addition to coffee and sugar, commercially canned and bottled fruits, vegetables, soups and juices; frozen fruits and vegetables, and dried fruits will be rationed. Other foods may be added at any time, so keep an eye on your local paper. You may apply for "War Ration Book Two" sometime this week. Watch your local newspaper for time and place.



WHO IS ENTITLED TO WAR RATION BOOK TWO

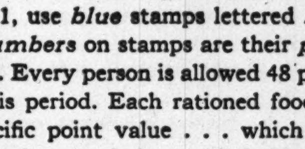
Every adult and child in your family who has War Ration Book One (the sugar book). One member of your family may apply for all your new books. He must bring with him two things: (1) a declaration of the extra canned foods your family has on hand . . . not counting home preserved foods, (2) the sugar ration books now being used by your family (you cannot get Book Two without Book One).



HOW TO DECLARE YOUR CANNED FOODS

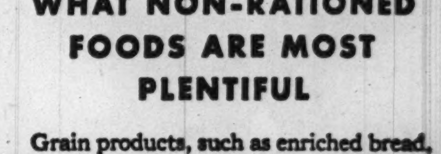
You are entitled to have on hand for every member of your family 5 cans, bottles or jars, eight ounces or over, of commercially packed fruits, vegetables, juices, soups, chili sauce, ketchup, on February 21. If you have more, it's nothing to be ashamed of . . . if you declare them to your ration board. You also declare the coffee you had on November 28, 1942 over one pound for every person 15 years or older.

HOW TO USE POINT STAMPS



In this first ration period, March 1 to April 1, use blue stamps lettered A, B, C. Numbers on stamps are their point value. Every person is allowed 48 points for this period. Each rationed food has a specific point value . . . which may change from period to period. You will give your grocer or delivery man stamps (torn out in his presence) equal to the exact point value of what you buy, plus your money.

Your grocer can't give you change in stamps, so don't waste your low point stamps on high point purchases.



WHAT NON-RATIONED FOODS ARE MOST PLENTIFUL

Grain products, such as enriched bread, cereals and flour, and locally grown fresh fruits and vegetables are still plentiful in America. Learn their nutritional values . . . how they can be substituted for other foods that are scarce. With wise planning you can still give your family varied, interesting and nutritious meals. Home Service Departments of food companies, utilities and newspapers can help you.

How to Use Your Ration Book to Best Advantage

MAKE OUT MENUS FOR ENTIRE WEEK. List all the food you have to buy, and see how much rationed food you'll need. Then...

COUNT YOUR POINTS. If you haven't enough to buy the rationed foods you'd like, change some of the high point items on your list for low point items, or substitute non-rationed foods. Point values will be given in the newspaper and posted in your grocery store.

LEARN ABOUT POINT STRETCHERS. Cereals, enriched bread, fresh fruits and vegetables and many other foods are not rationed. Use them as often as possible to give your family nutritionally balanced meals every day. Use rationed food only when you can't plan your meal without it.

AVOID WASTE. Learn to use all edible parts of food. Plan to use leftovers appetizingly.

Write to General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., for two new free booklets, "POINT RATIONING BULLETIN" and "POINT STRETCHERS", ways to use non-rationed foods and feed your family well.

Bougainvillea Is Miami Visitors' Favorite Bloom

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

When Ponce de Leon landed in this state in 1513, he found the native flora so beautiful that he named the state Florida, the land of flowers. Yet one of the flowers most popularly associated with the southeast coast, bougainvillea, was not introduced to the state until more than 200 years later.

Of all the lush tropical growths that abound here, palm trees, hibiscus, poinsettias, poinciana, flame vine, none seems to catch the fancy and the favor of northern visitors more than the bougainvillea. This winter, which has been distinguished by unusually warm weather, has brought forth magnificent blooms on this versatile species, which never fails to draw questions and admiration from newcomers.

Visitors who never were privileged to enter the famous Deering estate, well know the place from its walls festooned with garlands of bougainvillea. Hialeah fans remember the beauty of the vine on the walls of the grandstand, long after they have forgotten what horse won the Widener that year.

Brazil is the original home of the bougainvillea. It was found there, growing wild in 1766, by one Bougainville, a French navigator, during a scientific expedition around the world. A French botanist discovered the plant and named it in honor of his captain. It was during this expedition that the Solomon Islands were discovered, and the name Bougainvillea was given to the largest of the group. Since 1766 the bougainvillea has become distributed thruout the tropical world, and because of its versatility is grown as a sprawling bush, a formal shrub or a rampant vine.

It is best known, in Florida at least, in its natural variety, purple. Next in popularity, and the odds-on favorite with a certain few, is the crimson variety, which, cultivated as a vine, resembles no other more than the rambler rose of northern climes. There are more than a dozen varieties.

Shoe rationing will probably take the laugh out of that old joke on Miamians. Arriving back north after a sojourn at Miami or Miami Beach, even those without a tan were accosted. "You've been in Miami, haven't you?" "Why, yes. But how can you tell?" "By your shoes." Shoes in this resort always have been as vivid as the sunset, with as many colors as the rainbow. Northerners, who at home must be content with sedate black, navy or brown, go wild over the wild colors of resort shoes here.

Every one who had a fur coat wore it here Monday and Tuesday, for the first really cold spell of the winter spelled discomfort for Miami and Miami Beach. Even a few muffs were noticed. The farming gentry rushed to protect their victory gardens and choice tropical plants, and every one rushed into use heating facilities they thought they wouldn't need this winter. But few complained, as the weather has been unusually constant and mild, and thru it all, the sun shone, which makes a true Floridian, native or visitor, forgive everything else.

There is some reading between the lines of the pleasure driving ban edict, and greyhound racing addicts have found a way. The ruling stipulates that a motorist may use his car to dine at a restaurant which is not also a place of entertainment, this to avoid including night clubs as restaurants. And if he can, after dinner, without going out of his way, stop at some place of amusement, it is approved. So a little Italian restaurant, which was having a hard struggle before, now is turning them away because it is within a few blocks of a dog track.

The visiting military often are interested in tropical plants of this area and the Miami Beach Garden club is conducting for them a series of garden tours, long an attraction to civilian winter visitors. The first of the series was last Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Moos of Lake Forest opened the garden at their Pine Tree drive residence.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reid of Chicago and their children, Valerie and James T. II., and Mr. Reid's father, Capt. James T. Reid of Port Huron, Mich., have joined at the Versailles Mrs. Reid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Hokin, also of Chicago.

Dr. Paul J. Davidson of Chicago is visiting them for a few weeks. Expected later are Mr. Strom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Strom and his sister, Mrs. H. B. Strecher, and Mr. Strecher, all of Chicago.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Feb. 23, 1895.

Archbishop Ireland.

Dear Julia: The Union League club had a large and enthusiastic audience at its celebration of Washington's birthday in the Auditorium yesterday. Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul was announced as speaker and his reputation for eloquence attracted many who do not ordinarily attend. The great churchman is very popular here, and when he speaks on temperance or patriotism, his hearers fairly hang on his words, for he seems as one inspired. After his address today I heard several people say that he deserved to be made a cardinal. I have heard W. J. Onahan, a well known Chicago Catholic, say that he is confident this hour will come to him.

It was an impressive sight as the meeting opened, for the stage was crowded with Chicago's men of affairs. My husband, as usual, had been asked to sit there, and I was proud of the company he was in: Marshall Field, Norman Williams, Dr. Clinton Locke, who has just retired as rector of Grace Episcopal church; Bishop Cheney and Bishop Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church; Henry W. King, a neighbor of ours on Rush street; John G. Shortall, and many of the Catholic clergy.

As the great churchman rose to speak, a hush fell on the crowd. He is an impressive figure, handsome in a manly way, with strong features and a pleasing smile. His black clerical garb contrasted with the glowing colors of the flag above him, festooning the proscenium arch. So quotable is he, I took down several of his sentences, to put in my scrapbook. Perhaps it was his personality, perhaps it was a sort of mass hypnotism which affects you when you are a part of a crowd which is strongly moved by a speaker, but I found myself trembling with emotion when he cried, with hand upraised: "If ever, with the years long cycling, O, God of nations, allow it not! The Republic of America becomes a silent tenant of history's pages or survives only as the shadowy figure of her pristine self; then let no man, from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores, speak aloud the name of Washington; then let the people of this continent do him this justice, this honor, to bury his name with his work, and by their silence make confession that they were faithless to the one and the other, and unworthy the glory of either."

He compared the proud boast of the Roman, "Civis sum Romanus," with the words, "I am an American citizen," saying there was never another equaling the latter in sublime meaning, with its wealth of rights and privileges. He protested against socialism, asserting that Americans will never be willing, in the hope of ulterior results, to become part of a vast machine, in which each one is but a link in a chain, or a cog in a wheel, without self-assertion or self-control. He called state socialism, by whatever name it cloaks itself, the veriest despotism, radically opposed to the mind and heart of America. He said of the nonvoter: "The American refusing to vote merits disfranchisement or exile," a sentiment which was loudly applauded. There are so many so-called "good citizens" who complain of corruption in politics, but who will not take pains to go to the polls.

Our winter has been, on the whole, a pleasant one, so far as weather goes. We have lately attended the theater, to see Lillian Russell, in "The Grand Duchess." This former Chicagoan, plumper now than she used to be, is just right for the part she takes and her voice is lovely still.

Ever with love,
Your devoted
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

A Chicago Family in Victorian England.

Mrs. W. L. Whitmarsh, Chicago, sends us an interesting letter from a small Chicago boy, Sidney Eastman, whose father was United States consul at Bristol, England, during the Civil war. Under date of Jan. 30, 1862, young Sidney, writing to his friend, Willie Whitmarsh, in Chicago, says: "The people here are the most stuck-up folks I ever saw. They are afraid to carry a little bundle for fear of soiling their dignity, which is of great importance. If they have a bundle to carry, they put it in a little basket and then they can condescend to carry it." Sidney's mother, wife of the consul, finishes the letter, writing to the elders of the Whitmarsh family about the official mourning being worn in England, because of the death of the prince consort. Miss Eastman's "complimentary mourning," decreed by the "draper and mercer," who knows all about such things, is to be a black alpaca skirt, trimmed with velvet bands, with which is worn a scarlet jacket. "I laughed aloud," says Mrs. Eastman, "it seemed so ludicrous." By the queen's orders, mourning was to be laid aside after Feb. 7. [The prince died Dec. 14, 1861.]

Hadassah Will Open Its Tithe Drive Tuesday

The Chicago chapter of Hadassah, Zionist organization dedicated to aiding and rehabilitating Jews in Palestine, is in the midst of extensive planning for its 16th annual tithe drive. Formal launching of the campaign will take place at an open meeting at 2:15 o'clock Tuesday in the Drake hotel. The highlight of the afternoon's program will be the presentation of Avis Shulman's new pageant, "New Worlds for Old." Dorothy Sigel is directing the production and Hannah Rubin has charge of the choreography. At the meeting, members will hear Mrs. Harry Berkmen's report on the national board meeting recently held in New York. At 1:30 o'clock on Wednesday, Mrs. James H. Olshan, president of the Chicago chapter, is scheduled to speak at a meeting of the north shore division in the Glencoe temple.

• • •

With equal zeal and pride, the Junior Hadassah is continuing and expanding its own special programs and activities. Members, each bearing a book for a service man, will gather at 2:30 o'clock today at the Hamilton hotel to hear Mrs. Nell Ziff Pekarsky, for three years president of the Junior Hadassah. Cantor Carl Urstein, a native of Palestine and graduate of the Vienna Conservatory of Music, will give his interpretation of several Hebrew and Palestinian melodies. Looking ahead, plans are already being made for the annual Midwest Region conference on March 6 and 7 at the Schroeder hotel in Milwaukee, Wis. One of the principal speakers will be Rabbi Morton Berman of Chicago.

Thru the Looking Glass

The benificent action of a good cream will help maintain the youthful, smooth texture of the skin in the area around the eyes. In addition ,it may head off the little lines and wrinkles that detract so much from pretty eyes.

Those fine, but telling, lines that form in the area around a woman's eyes may be signs of age, but more often the result of insufficient eye care. And that's an area we all want to keep as young looking as possible. Once the lines and wrinkles have formed, however, there is little that can be done about them. They definitely cannot be erased, but further damage can be prevented, and a rich eye cream, faithfully used, is a positive "best friend" in this respect.

Eye creams are specially formulated to help prevent the damage that can be wrought by dry skin, fatigue, and squinting. One of the best we know of in this category is a rich cream that can be easily applied. It is soft and thin, so that it can be patted in without pulling or rubbing the delicate tissues. A light yellow in color, there seems to be a hint of menthol or camphor in the preparation which soothes and comforts.

• • •

There's a special way of applying eye cream to get the maximum benefit from it and avoid harming the tender skin. Scoop up a small amount of the cream with the tip of the index finger and smooth it gently from the inside corner of the eye, working well out toward the temple. Look up toward the ceiling during this process to insure spreading the cream evenly and closely under the eye where tiny lines are likely to form.

Close the eyes and pat another small dab of cream on the upper lid. Gently smooth in the cream. This is a particularly delicate area, and the skin should never be pulled or rubbed in even the slightest degree. It's best if the cream can remain on overnight, but if it's necessary to brighten the eyes during the day, an hour or so will be sufficient time to get good results.

Perhaps the most important thing of all in regard to eye cream is regular, consistent use. Don't invest your money in a cream and use it only spasmodically. It won't do any good in the jar but must be applied with regularity to pay dividends.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is a lamentable fact that most players get their greatest thrill from bidding a slam and then laying down 12 sure tricks as testimony to their good judgment. There is far more to bridge than this, however. To the true bridge enthusiast, the size of the contract is relatively unimportant. There may be, and often is, more "glory" in fulfilling or defeating a mere two spade contract than in bringing home a slam, simply by force of superior arms. For example:

East dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH
♠Q 9 6
♥7 4
♦K 5 3
♣A K 8 6 5

WEST
♠J 10 5
♥J 10
♦Q 6 4
♣Q 10 9 3 2

EAST
♠7 4 3
♥A K Q 8 3 2
♦A 9 7
♣7

SOUTH
♠A K 8 2
♥9 6 5
♦J 10 8 2
♣J 4

At several tables the bidding proceeded as follows:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	2 clubs
2 hearts	2 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

In other cases, East was so injudicious as to rebid his hearts to the three level, and at that contract lost three spade tricks, one club and two diamonds, for a very bad score.

Absolute top was earned by that particular East-West team that came out with a plus score of only 50 points against the adversaries' low contract of two spades. But that 50 points really had to be earned!

The defense at this table went as follows: West opened the heart jack. East overtook and promptly returned his singleton club. Declarer's jack was covered by West's queen and won by the ace. Dummy's remaining heart was now led, declarer, of course, intending to ruff his third heart. At this point, East made the bold play of ducking, his one hope being that West could win the trick and return a club which East could ruff.

West did, in fact, win with the heart ten, and he returned the club ten. Dummy's club king was duly ruffed away by East, who then returned a trump. Declarer ducked, and the ten forced the queen. Declarer now entered his own hand by ruffing a low club with the spade eight. The diamond jack was the next play. If West had surrendered to the temptation of covering this honor, declarer would have had clear sailing, i. e., the jack, queen, king, and ace would have gone on this one trick and later, regardless of East's return, declarer would finesse against the diamond nine, and bring home the entire diamond suit. On West's actual refusal to cover the diamond jack, however, declarer was in deep water. For want of a better play, he led his remaining heart. West ruffed in with the spade jack and when dummy discarded a diamond, returned his remaining spade. Declarer won and led a diamond, East capturing the king with the ace.

This was the defender's fifth trick. Now East had to avoid another pitfall. A heart return did not appear attractive, in that it would let declarer ruff in one hand while discarding from the other. Nevertheless, this was an infinitely better play than a diamond, which would have given declarer his contract. If East had led the diamond nine, declarer would have covered with the ten, West with the queen, and dummy would have ruffed. Now declarer would have had the good diamond eight. On East's actual return of a heart, however, declarer was helpless. The best he could do was ruff in dummy while discarding a diamond. And now, after he had ruffed a club, he had to present West with the diamond queen which he had carefully retained.

Chicago Girl Scout Leaders Will Hold Special Conference

In anticipation of an ever increasing need for trained girls to assist in the teaching of children, Chicago Girl Scout leaders will meet for a special three day conference, starting on Tuesday, in the Girl Scout office, room 322 at 35 East Wacker drive. Mrs. Arthur Hughes, president of the St. Louis Girl Scout council; Mrs. Roy Nobel, a trainer in the nature field, and Miss Lou Williams, author of the Girl Scout Weather Handbook, will be the principal speakers at the conference.

Mrs. Nobel, speaking at the opening session at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday and later at 8 o'clock, will discuss "How to Present Nature to Intermediates," and "How to Present Nature to Senior Girls." Miss Williams' talk at 7 o'clock will concern "The Principles of Weather and How to Forecast It."

On Wednesday, Mrs. Nobel will continue her discussion of the methods for teaching nature to intermediates and advise day camp directors and counselors on nature studies in the camps. At a meeting of the leaders' advisory committee and troop counselors at 7:30 o'clock that evening, Mrs. Hughes will speak on "Volunteer and Professional Job."

The conference will close with the presentation of Mrs. Nobel's lecture on "Nature for Brownie Leaders" at a joint meeting of the organization and training committees at 10 o'clock on Thursday.

Immaculata Alumnae Plans Benefit Dance Saturday

A benefit dance will be given by the Immaculata Alumnae association on Saturday night in the American room of the Hotel La Salle to swell the organization's scholarship fund. The dance committee is headed by Miss Margaret Mary Sieja. Miss Margarette Nolan is president.

Nature's Laws Are Good Child Rearing Guides

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We know one of our failings: We never have quite enough baby articles in our column. There are various reasons why we don't. One is that in recent years we haven't had constant, close contact with babies. The other is that most babies are under the care of a doctor, who has definite ideas about feeding and other aspects of physical care.

However, the fact remains that there is much information and advice being given out to mothers from reliable sources that doesn't bear the scrutiny of topnotch, liberal, truly scientific theory and practice, too. So where I have acquired a conviction about certain phases of baby care and when that conviction has been reinforced by the conclusions of leading pediatricians, I feel it my mission to put forward those ideas.

My aim is to help parents not only with definite advice, but to help them to understand the baby, so that they will not blindly accept everything they are told.

It is true that thinking thru to the fundamental truths of the nature of babyhood may occasionally bring a mother into conflict with certain aspects of the advice given her by her doctor, nursing service, or psychologist. Is this bad? I do not believe so. Our minds are made to function with, and as mothers we should try to think thru every situation we're faced with and search for the truth, especially where our children are concerned.

• • •

I could give you a number of examples of the sort of thing I am talking about. For example, it should be obvious that in birth a natural delivery is best for mother and baby. Yet the head of one of our great maternity associations tells me that at one time there was so much encouragement of unnecessary Caesarean section that now, in their classes for prospective mothers, they have to reëducate many women who are eager, even in normal cases, to ask their doctors for what they think is the easy way: Caesarean birth.

To cite another example of wrong advice which is thought to oppose nature's way with a baby. For a time there was, and it still is, prevalent an idea that artificial foods were just as good for a baby as nature's. Some doctors encouraged, and some mothers demanded and still do, the early discontinuation of breast feeding. Yet it requires only a little clear thinking to see that this cannot be best. Logically, I am not talking of those exceptions where artificial feeding is indicated by either the baby's or mother's condition, or by other uncontrollable circumstances, but of those instances where everything is normal.

Another widespread school of thought connected with baby care, which did not take nature's plans for the new human being into consideration, was the too early training of the baby toward control of the eliminative functions, especially bladder control. I should not say "was" in this connection, but "is." A noted pediatrician and child psychiatrist in one of our great medical centers discussed that with me only last year. His is the attitude which we often have expressed in this column—briefly, that overtraining is harmful and should not be begun prematurely and that nature [as seen in the child's development] points the way to the baby's readiness for bladder control.

And in connection with the variety of advice being given out, he said that one of the widespread visiting nurse services is still advocating in its many classes the too early and too intensive toilet training of babies. Here again it can be seen that to follow nature in the whole growth and development of the baby is the right and thoughtful way. As you see, it is not to create confusion, but to make mothers think about certain advice they receive, that I discuss carefully such angles on baby or child care as these in this column.

Other of what I call the unnatural approaches to management are evinced in reports I often receive from parents. They have to do with eating and fears. A typical statement is, "My little girl doesn't eat well. I have been advised to offer her food at each meal, take it away in about 10 minutes, and repeat this at every meal until she eats with enthusiasm. I have even been told to offer her the same plateful of food. It hasn't worked; she doesn't eat, and she's losing weight." The other advice is typified by this report, "My child cries when I go out of the room these days" or "at night when I leave him. He has not always done this. I have been told to let him cry it out on every occasion that he acts in this way, even to the point of exhaustion or when he sobs pitifully."

In my replies I have given these parents definite advice to the contrary; but here I have only room to say in these two connections what has been the theme of this article. It is: Think over directions on care and management. Consider the results you get from following them. Are they good? Does such advice seem like nature's and therefore an intelligent way? Think for yourself and study your child.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Covers originating in Europe and other covers addressed to European countries often bear the abbreviated postal markings such as "P. D." or "P. P." These may be enclosed in a rectangular frame or they may be unframed. Both mean the same, which is that the full postage has been paid on the piece of mail matter so marked.

The letters "P. D." stand for the French words "payé jusq' à destination," and translate directly into the English "paid to destination." It is understood that the "P. D." was intended to be applied to all paid letters going to places outside the Austro-German Postal Union, but some countries did not follow this rule at all times.

The letters "P. P." likewise stand for a French phrase "port payé," meaning "postage paid." Lacking a very complete understanding of the rules of the period it may be assumed that this marking was to be used on letters addressed to places within the postal union mentioned above.

In spite of the fact that both markings indicate the full payment of postage, covers are sometimes found which indicate that additional postage is to be collected on delivery. The postal regulations of the United States for 1857 state that French letters showing a rate mark and the "P. D." in red ink are to be treated as paid while those showing the rate and "P. D." in black ink are to be considered unpaid. The rate marks shown on such "paid" letters state the amount which is to be credited the United States by France, while the rate marks on the unpaid letters show the amount charged the United States by France.

Another source of many "P. D." letters charged with postage due came up in France during the 1860s when a tax was levied against all incoming mail from Spain as a protest on a similar tax which had been placed on mail arriving in Spain from France.

• • •

About two years ago Eugene Klein of Philadelphia brought out a valuable and popular book entitled "United States Waterway Packet Marks, 1832-1899." As usual this stimulated the interest in the markings found on covers carried on the inland waterways and brought out many new examples which had not been listed.

Mr. Klein now makes this new material available for collectors by publishing a supplement of 38 pages which records 190 new marks. In addition earlier dates of use have been discovered so the supplement title embraces marks from 1818 to 1899. The supplement which contains 202 illustrations may be obtained from Mr. Klein at 212 S. 13th street, Philadelphia, for $3.50 or in combination with the original book for $8.

Home Owners' Queries

Kansas City, Mo. [To the Home Owners' Editor].—What can we do to remove glossy surface from enamel before repainting?—John G.

Answer: You can rub down with steel wool or use a new penetrating liquid which cleans a glossy surface and at the same time deadens the gloss.

• • •

Chicago [To the Home Owners' Editor].—We are repainting our house exterior as soon as weather permits and would like to make it seem lower. What colors would help to "proportion" it? We have shutters on both floors.—Mrs. George A.

Answer: If your house seems too tall you can paint the roof a dark color and then paint shutters on upper story windows the same color as the roof and the shutters on the first story the same color as the body of the house.

• • •

Chicago [To the Home Owners' Editor].—Isn't there some sort of unit available which will absorb musty odors in basements, closets, etc.? Have heard about it but can't locate it.—Mrs. Fred F.

Answer: Yes, there are units for this purpose, obtainable in houseware departments of many department stores, hardware stores and some drug stores. There also are units which will help reduce moisture by drawing it from air. Send stamped envelope to this department for retail outlets in Chicago if you can't locate units, and for manufacturers' name.

Lady of the House

Washington Anniversary.

If a man's greatness is measured by the efforts of other men to explain him, as some contend, then surely George Washington was among the greatest of earth. The real secret of this greatness is perhaps best expressed by Ella Colter Johnson:

"Throughout the ages men have sought to rise
To heights of greatness and to peaks of fame,
Thinking to carve an everlasting name
By conquering the weak, whom they despise,
And by mere strength of arms to tyrannize
The world till it shall bow down to acclaim
Them as all-powerful. This is their only aim,
Sadly they fall—tho they may win the prize.

Who would have power which none can overthrow,
But which shall last thru all eternity,
Must conquer hearts by selfless service; then
The world will gladly on that one bestow
Its never-ceasing praise; for only he Is great who greatly serves his fellowmen."

Fashion Show.

The flowers are busy making gowns,
Beneath the drifts of fallen snow.
Last night in colors bright and gay,
They held their annual fashion show.
The icicle upon the trees
Glistened like cut glass chandeliers.
While lilybells rang loud and clear—
To herald iris in their pastel sheers.
The daisy wore a petalled collar white,
The morning glory's frock was azure blue.
The hollyhocks donned ruffled skirts,
Their jewels made of drops of dew.
The violets so demure and shy,
Wore purple robes of royalty.
Think not the flowers are fast asleep—
Soon their alluring magic we shall see.

More Aprons.

Herself addicted to collecting milk glass, Clyta Shaw [Monmouth] thinks an apron collection would prove an interesting hobby.

An apron of pink China silk with lace and embroidery, and crossed allied flags on the pocket, was sent from France during World War I. to Mrs. H. M. Sanderson of Chicago.

Having the beginnings of an interesting collection of old aprons, Marie N. Moreen of Glenview has long promised herself an apron orgy reproducing others she can remember:

The high-necked, collared, long sleeved, button back school apron of dark blue calico dotted with white horseshoes. The "snooty little affair" made of "dolly varden" trimmed with ribbon-run beading, ruffle, and edging. The sewing apron that was worn to ladies' aid, bazars, ice cream socials—a tailored affair with large pockets to accommodate change, punches, scissors, and thimble. Aprons of bleached flour sacks dyed with saffron or beet juice. The homely laundry apron made of worn ticking from the straw tick or feather bed. The black sateen circular apron worn by clerks in department stores.

Which suggests that, with the times what they are, we might well emulate the resourcefulness of our foremothers and adopt the apron as insignia of the home quartermaster corps.

False Spring.

Say, Mr. Weatherman,
You ought to know
That poor little robins
Can't weather this snow.

You gave us some sunshine
With breezes so wooing;
The robins came pronto,
Thought summer was brewing.

But when they arrived
The snow and the ice froze
Their cold little beaks
And their wee little toes.

It's all right to fool us
Strong women and men,
But please don't you ever
Fool robins again.

Juanita Ford Squires.

Pause.

Dusk these winter days comes soon,
Some days are dusk at noon;
The spirit sighs
In this half-light, half-night,
Dwells deep on things intangible,
Yet strong as tide or wind in mountain high.

"One Hundred Assorted Beauty Spots" was what it said on the small envelope, and in it still were a number of tiny squares, triangles, full moons, crescents, stars, trefoils of black court plaster. Visions of loveliness of a distant, leisurely day! You find so many things when you delve into old trunks.

Splendid Cough Relief Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking. Makes Big Saving.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

MUST YOUR DAUGHTER RISK HAPPY MARRIAGE ON HALF-TRUTHS?

Many a mother herself, reared in an atmosphere of false modesty, dreads the day when she must "tell her daughter." Too often, she fails to tell her at all—as a result, she learns "half-truths" from young wives unknowingly risk their very happiness by placing their dependence on weak, ineffective "homemade" mixtures; or by over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind a safe—yet amazingly powerful fluid for the douche, Zonite. Its great germicidal action is immediately effective against all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors, leaving no tell-tale odor of its own. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. For modern hygienic protection you may never have known before, get Zonite at your druggist.

Sewing Notions Give First Aid to Seamstresses

By Rea Seeger.

Long before the war time restrictions, knowing women were making their own clothes. Because there are so many clever ideas available to make sewing easier, because there is an official sew and save week, notions or first aids to either beginner or veteran seamstresses are tremendously important. With these small trifles perfection is assured. Dresses, suits, blouses, lingerie, hats, bags, gloves, and even coats are speedily made during the dark indoor days of midseason. Patterns are foolproof, each with an inner slip of instructions with illustrations of each step of cutting, fitting, and finishing. You can't go wrong!

Many shops and stores have sewing clinics and classes. One of the world famous sewing machine companies also features sewing classes. Fabric departments are showing amazingly large assortments of new spring and summer materials. Staffed by experts, any and all information about pre-shrunk, color-fast materials is instantly obtainable. Pertinent information as to draping qualities, bias cutting, appropriate materials for dresses, heavier suits, coats, and other interesting knowledge about fabrics are but a small portion of their services.

• • •

Since what you sew and finish becomes no smarter than the little extras or notions that are used in the making, these trifles are consequently of prime importance. The old rule of pressing while you go is still the best one. There are several different pressing devices, miniature ironing boards, pads especially designed for the pressing of shoulder sections, and small narrow sleeve pads or boards to fit in the smallest sized sleeves.

Good sharp scissors are a "must," so are the pinking scissors, if you would have a professionally finished inner appearance to the model you are making. Sharp pins, basting thread, and plenty of it, plus tailor's chalk are other necessary items. A flat, steady table for cutting and all the pressing devices complete the finds for the beginning of the operations.

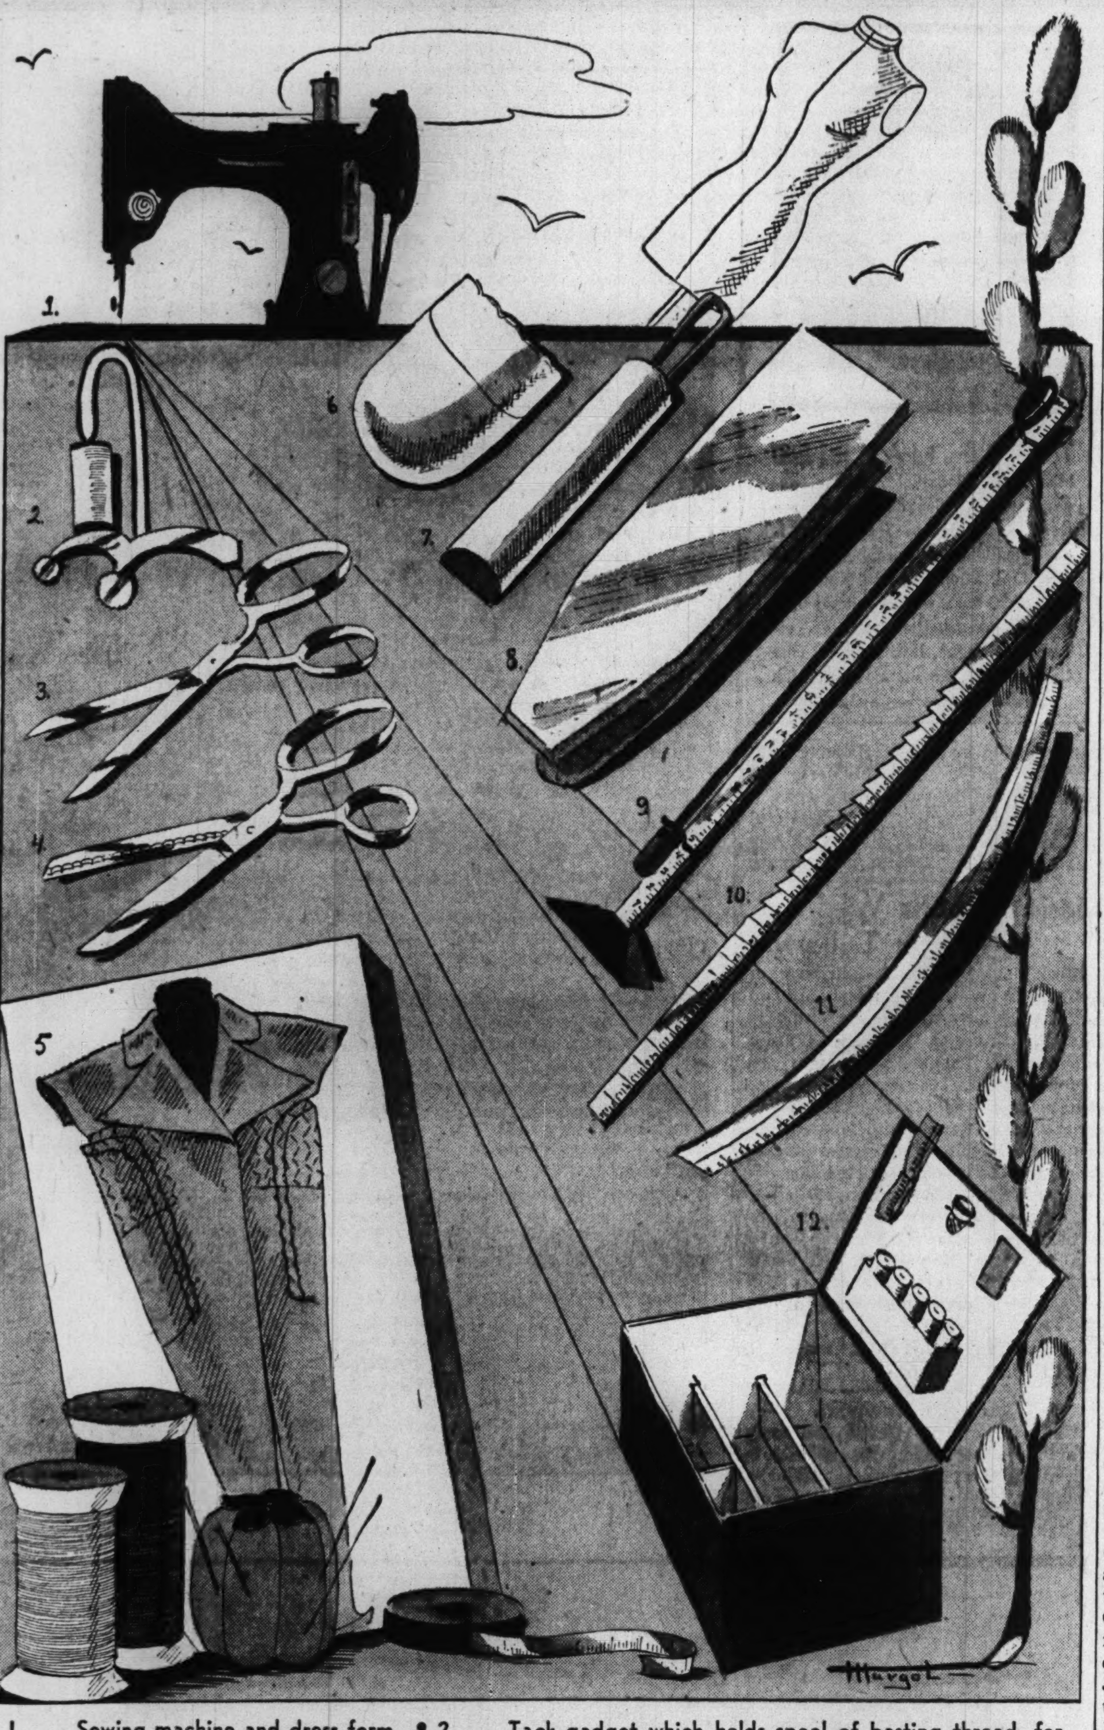
There are a couple of self-operated hem markers, rulers, and rulers marked and made to follow a curve, as well as tape measures and reel tape measures. Note the boxes or kits in which to cache all your pet sewing aids.

• • •

Without question, a good dress form is the first consideration and necessity of the beginner or veteran sewer. There are several fine buys. If you are a beginner, select one of the identical twin affairs made to order from your own architectural specifications. These individual dress forms take two weeks to complete, so order them immediately for your spring sewing. If you are lucky and have an average figure, there are dressmaker forms in sizes from 32 and up, ready to use. Experienced sewers can use these and revamp to fit their own figure lines.

Add a portable sewing machine or one of the double duty affairs of machine and table, and from then on it's up to you and your ability to sew a fine seam with professional enthusiasm. If you become panicky you can always consult the experts in sewing clinics around town. Thousands are sewing their own clothes; it's one of the best conservation ideas of the times. Besides the conservation idea, there is also the comforting knowledge that you can and will make clothes that are individual!

Sketched are some of the available sewing aids now ready for the first spring shoppers. All may be found in Chicago shops. For further information, call Superior 0200.



1. . . . Sewing machine and dress form. • 2. . . . Tack gadget which holds spool of basting thread, for even tailored tacking. • 3 and 4. . . . Cutting and pinking shears. • 5. . . . Tailor's canvas inner lining cut to fit suits and coats comes in sizes 14 to 20. • 6. . . . Padded device for pressing shoulder seams and sections. • 7. . . . Narrow, padded sleeve presser. • 8. . . . Small ironing board for pressing plackets, insets, and short sections. • 9. . . . Self-operating hem marker. • 10. . . . Notched ruler for hemming. • 11. . . . Curved, marked ruler for measuring curved surfaces. • 12. . . . Sewing box with space for small needlework tools.

Suggestions Tell How to Maintain Beauty in War Time

Keep your face powder light and frothy for easier and smoother application by stirring it up with an orange stick once a week.

An astringent that smells good enough to drink, but don't do it, is made by crushing a handful of mint with a muddler. Then pour over it a good quality of witch hazel and let stand over night. In the morning simply strain the mixture into a bottle and you have an astringent that will be refreshing and stimulating to your skin.

Idea Still Good.

A beauty mask which grandmother used is now a favorite of movie stars. You can make it by mixing a half cup of buttermilk with enough cornmeal to form a stiff paste. That's all there's to it except spreading it over your face and neck, for a gentle kick to lazy pores.

Junior Styles Suit Women of All Age Groups

By Bettina Bedwell.

The junior miss has broken the bounds of the age category, at least so far as fashions go. Such clothes can't be given the brush off as belonging exclusively to what our society columns call the "sub-deb." Not this year. Junior styles have branched out to take in "junior brides," "junior mothers," "junior wives," and "junior career women," to name some of the new groups who are buying their clothes in junior shops and departments. In the vast demand for these extra-young clothes, don't forget the real, veteran junior miss is still right in there getting her clothes at the same place, too. All of these junior styles are a big item in the fashion field.

The result of such an all time high in the demand for junior styles has not created clothes which look as if they were made for older girls. They still look their age, and it is the girls who buy them who look younger.

• • •

Outstanding classes of junior styles include coats, suits, and dresses, both day and evening, just like any other styles. The junior miss coat of the year is the Chesterfield. The Chesterfield, by the way, represents the most amazing grab of masculine apparel in all the history of women's clothes, it having been a man's overcoat exclusively for years before we had any swiftly rotating women's style system. Anyway the girls have got the Chesterfield firmly on their backs, and it looks like it will stay there for the duration. For the junior wardrobe the Chesterfield will be in charming pastel colors of wool. It is bought more often than not to go with a pastel colored suit, and the colors I have seen the most for such clothes are light pinks, aqua, powder blue, lilac, beige, yellow, and pale gray.

A vast program of cottons is an important part of junior fashions. Cotton suits and dresses are rampant in junior shops. A leading style slant in cotton is the dark cotton dress and suit, trimmed or touched with white or bright colors. Being practical and pretty, this is a big success. Black, navy, brown, dark green, and dark red are colors used. The outstanding type of dark cotton dress is the dirndl, and second, running neck and neck, are the jumper dress and the pinafore.

• • •

Outstanding in cotton suits for junior sizes is the suit of plaid, checked, or striped cotton. Wool and rayon mixture suits in these same patterns are the first spring forerunners. Closely following them is the blended suit with jacket and skirt in different colors with a blouse in a third.

There are several leading hats, made by great milliners, which are aimed straight at the junior miss. There is a half-bonnet and a capot from Lilly Dache, a dolly hat and a beret from John-Frederics, to mention four. Another is the flapjack sailor, which is the size and height indicated by its name. It is plastered on the back of the head and is super-young looking. So, too, is the baby bonnet hat with flowers at either side of the head and over the ears.

Palm Beach Is Holding Annual Regatta Today

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The annual Washington birthday regatta is to be held today in spite of Hitler and high water. All power boats being in government service, Palm Beach will turn back the hands of time and use sailing craft. Classifications will be sail area for Moths, Snipes, Comets, and Bahamas Dinghies.

Ocar W. Johnson of Chicago will skipper a ranger type sloop-rigged boat, carrying also a Genoa jib. This boat and two others like it also entered in the regatta were constructed by the boatbuilding class in the Vocational Training school at West Palm Beach. Leonard S. Clarke, instructor of the class, was formerly captain of the Cora S. and the Kenkora, owned by Kenneth G. Smith of Chicago.

The races will take a triangular course and will be held in the lake between the Royal Palm bridge and the closed Southern boulevard bridge.

The George Washington regatta has been held continuously for some 30 years and is one tradition that Palm Beach refuses to dispense with, even temporarily. This regatta has been regarded as the annual inaugural event of yacht racing in the United States, boats going from here to other parts of Florida, and thence to northern waters.

• • •

Missing this year will be the banquets and jollifications. There is no flotilla of palatial yachts with pennants flying in the breeze; no gorgeous night parade of yachts festooned with colored lights, reflected light giant jewels in the dark waters of the lake; no outward accoutrements of glamor at all. Just boat races, for window dressing is not necessary to the soul of a true yachtsman. It was pointed out that the Seminoles in their cypress log canoes staged the first boat races in these waters.

Hotels and apartments in Palm Beach are full to overflowing. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Condon, who are at the Brazilian Court, entertained on Tuesday afternoon with a cocktail party.

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Lanahan of Chicago are at the Vineta, where Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Smith of Evanston are recent arrivals. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herendeen, who were absent from Palm Beach last season, have opened their Clarke avenue villa. Mrs. James S. Knowlson IV. of Hinsdale is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, at La Boliche. Orville E. Babcock Jr., who is stationed at Spartanburg, S. C., is spending a few days with his family at the home of Mrs. Babcok's mother, Mrs. Hugh N. O'Neil, in Via del Lago. Mr. O'Neil is expected to arrive next week from Chicago. Ensign Peter Malcolm is spending a short leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Malcolm, and his sister, Mrs. Firmin Desloge IV. Mrs. Vilas Norton of Golf is at the Villas.

• • •

Mrs. William E. Vogelback gave a luncheon at the Beach club. Col. and Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau gave a dinner party Friday night at Villa Today honoring Daniel J. Schuyler and Earl Sproul of Chicago, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry.

Two golf tournaments were played during the past week, the woman's golf championship and the Old Guard tournament. In lieu of the annual Old Guard banquet there will be a luncheon next week at the Everglades club when permanent trophies and special awards will be presented. Special awards will be war bonds and stamps. Clinton Sibley Dow, vice president, will preside at the banquet in the absence of Charles Francis Coe, president. The luncheon will be a stag affair and limited to club members. Louis L. Stephens of Chicago was victor in the recent bridge tournament of the Old Guard.

Sonja Henie left Palm Beach just before the recent cold spell descended. She said that she did not care for cold weather. Seen at the home of her brother, Leif Henie, the ice queen of the silver screen might have been posing as Miss Palm Beach. She wore patio pajamas in a smart print, wide jeweled bracelet, gold earrings, and diamond set clip. A spray of white gladioli was tucked in her golden hair, and she had acquired a honey-beige sun tan. She was wearing white, soft and dainty as a snowflake, at the patio.

The current exhibition at the Society of the Four Arts has proved to be the most popular of all, so far. It is a showing of modern art assembled from the Museum of Modern Art in New York. Many highly controversial abstracts are shown along with paintings of unusual charm and merit.

"Just think," gushed one admirer of the ultra modern to a conservative lorgnetted dowager, "some of these artists have never been hung before."

Artists represented were Darrell Austin, Hyman Bloom, Raymond Breinin, Francis Chapin, Morris Graves, Joseph Hirsch, Charles Howard, Rico Lebrun, Jack Levine, Helen Lundeberg, Fletcher Martin, Knud Merrild, Mitchell Siporin, and Everett Spruce. Sculptors represented were Samuel Cashwan, Emma Lu Davis, Donal Hord, and Octavio Medellin.

Mrs. Earl E., Pittsburgh, Pa.—I find it a saving on table linen to make place mats from remnants of wallpaper we put on our dining room walls last month. I cut these mats 12 inches by 18 inches, backed each one with heavy paper, and bound with passepartout. Under glass these certainly add a pretty touch to table and are useful as well.

Mrs. Harry Anderson, Chicago—To prevent any mold on bacon, ham, etc., I saturate a cloth with vinegar, wring it out, and then wrap it around any smoked meat. Then I wrap it all in paper and put in refrigerator.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Exhibition of Contemporary Art on View

By Eleanor Jewett.

The third annual exhibition of the Society for Contemporary American Art is now on view in gallery 53 of the Art institute. The exhibit will continue to March 14. This annual affair is a little different in its management from the average exhibition. The method of selecting works to be shown is delegated to the members of the society; each member selects either a painting or a piece of sculpture, which item becomes a candidate for purchase by the society. When a picture or piece of sculpture is bought it is presented after the showing to the Art institute for its permanent collection.

The first year of the society's existence, 1941, "Little River" by Francis Chapin was purchased and it now hangs in gallery 39 of the Art institute. Last year "Pier on Sunday" by James Lechay was bought and at the moment it hangs at the Arts club because it also was a prize winner in the institute American exhibition.

In the present exhibit Milton Avery, Louis Bouche, Eugene Berman, Maurice Stern, and Earl Knaths are represented. Of special interest is a picture painted by the Frenchman, J. Helion, who recently escaped to the United States from a German concentration camp. Chicago is well to the front in the show with paintings by Salcia Bahnc, the only artist to have two pictures selected; Maude Phelps Hutchins with a timely bronze portrait of the actress, Gertrude Lawrence; Nicola Ziroli, David Bekker, Julio de Diego [who has recently gone to New York to live], and Leon Garland.

The exhibition is modern in character.

The print department of the Art institute is sponsoring a fine exhibition of photographs by Clarence John Laughlin, a native of southern Louisiana. Mr. Laughlin has made over 4,000 photographs of old buildings, statues, and beautiful ironwork designs in New Orleans. Some of the most interesting of these are being shown. Mr. Laughlin is at present engaged in doing photographic work for the National Archives in Washington.

• • •

The decorative arts department of the Art institute announces an intriguing exhibit of representative examples of silhouette portraits of the early 19th century. They are the work chiefly of August Edouart, a Frenchman, one of the greatest silhouettists in history. He was born at Dunkirk in 1789 and went to England after he had lost his fortune in the Napoleonic wars.

Edouart took the same "silhouette" from Louis XV.'s minister of finance, Etienne de Silhouette, whose economics were so drastic that "silhouette" was applied to anything paper cheap.

This charming exhibition is in gallery A-18.

The Art institute offers an exhibition of animal photographs in Blackstone hall thru the month of February. The prints are all candid shots, with the animals off guard. Elephants, lions, tigers, cats, dogs, birds, frogs, horses, monkeys and squirrels are among the creatures which have been photographed. It is the Eisendrath exhibit of animal photographs and has been lent to the Art institute by the office of war information at Washington.

The painting with probably the least popular appeal in the whole of Georgia O'Keeffe's fine exhibition at the Art institute has been purchased by the Art institute for its permanent collection. It seems a pity that such a stunning canvas as "Cross by the Sea, Canada" or the beautiful little "Red Poppy" or one of the brilliant studies of "Jack-in-the-Pulpit" might not have been chosen by those in charge of museum buying. The "Black Cross," which is the canvas that was purchased, does not represent the artist's magnificent ability as a draughtsman and a colorist. Modern symbolism may be read into the conception and as one painting in a group of contrasting pictures the "Black Cross" has a place, but it is far from doing justice to Georgia O'Keeffe's genius nor can one regard it as a magnet to draw appreciative eyes. "Cross by the Sea, Canada" has inspirational quality; unfortunate that the crosses may not be exchanged.

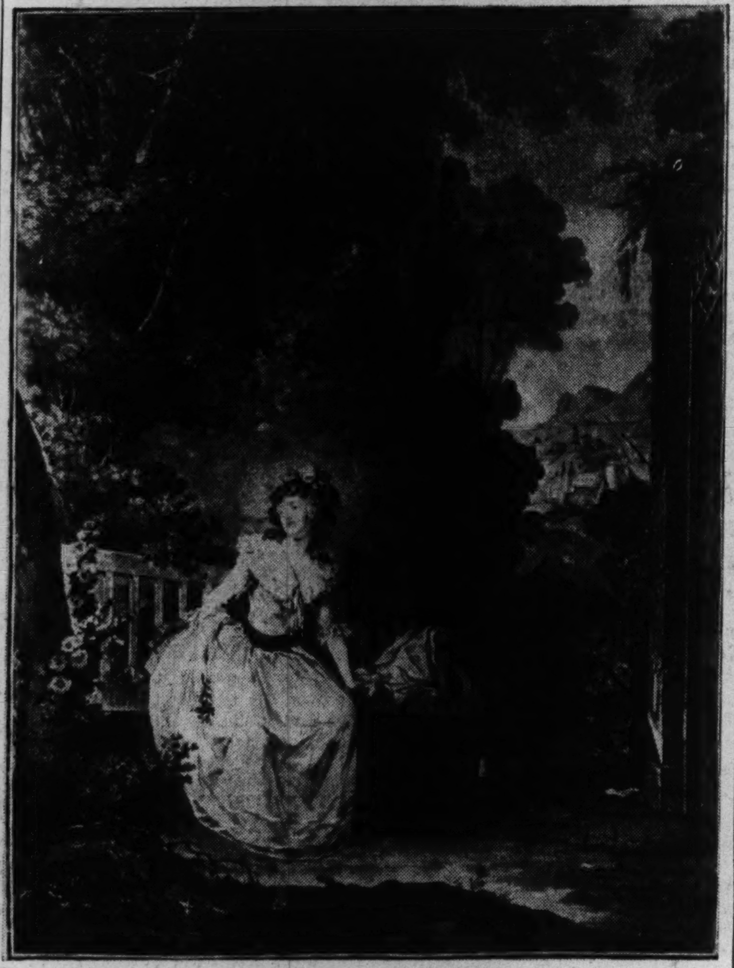
The Ackerman Galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue, opened yesterday an exhibition of paintings of the sea by Alphonse J. Shelton, whose "Surge" won the Logan medal. The exhibit is brilliant. It will run to March 15. Mr. Shelton has painted the sea for many years and his work is understanding and stirring.

Needlework pictures by Mrs. Clytie Weaver also are on view at the Ackermann Galleries. The landscapes are done directly, without the help of design or guiding lines. The compositions are delightful and resemble the loveliest of water colors done with needle and thread substituting for brushes and paints.



"NINA, MME. DUGAZON"

Janinet is the French painter responsible for this lovely item in the Charles Netcher memorial collection of the Chicago Art institute. The exquisite combination of portrait and landscape is on view in the print department of the Art institute, where many of the most important works in the permanent collection are displayed.

Music Society to Hear Opera Version Today

Walter Damrosch's opera, "The Man Without a Country," will be given in concert version today by the Music Study Club of Chicago at a meeting for members and guests at 3:30 o'clock in the Chicago room of the Hotel La Salle. The ambitious program has been arranged and is directed by Edith Heffner Dobson.

James Bradley Griffin will be the narrator. Vitus Smutny, violinist, and Phalia Heim, pianist, will provide the instrumental music. The cast of singers will include Everrett Clarke, as Aaron Burr; Claude Bassler as Lt. Philip Nolan of the United States marines; Gladys Reid, as Mary Rutledge; Harry Gaut, as Herman Blennerhassett; Charles Fries, and Irving Prescott, as other marines; George Prescott, Edwin Johnson, George Maier and John Burton, as naval officers of the frigate, Guerriere. Women's and men's choruses for the production have been recruited from the club's chorus.

Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, will be present as special guest and speaker. Mrs. Keith was spokesman for the federation last week when it presented an ambulance to the navy for use at the Great Lakes naval hospital.

The Organized Women Musicians are meeting at noon Tuesday in the tea room of the Medical and Dental Arts building, 185 North Wabash avenue, for lunch, a lecture on oriental rugs, and a program of East India music by Lillian Poenisch.

Emma Menke's "Impressions of New England" suite, played by a string trio, will be featured at the fourth "active members" concert of the Lake View Musical society. The program will be presented at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Alliance Francaise of the Fine Arts building. Louella De Windt, contralto, and Helene Grossenbacher, soprano, will sing. Accompanists will be Alice Shearer and Aurelia Lindell. Mrs. Frederic Tellander is president of the society.

Board members of the Musarts club of Chicago will meet Tuesday at Mrs. Max Arkin's home, 520 Stratford place.

Activities of Chicagoland Women's Clubs

Ely Culbertson will appear before the Friends of American Writers at their noon luncheon meeting Wednesday in the capacity of author and student of international politics, rather than the more familiar rôle of bridge expert. Mr. Culbertson's autobiography, "The Strange Lives of One Man," is a current best seller. He is the creator of a blueprint for world peace, as well as of a Culbertson system for playing bridge, his forthcoming book, "World Federation Plan," being his exposition of the former. Mr. Culbertson will talk about "The Destiny of America" at the Wednesday meeting, which is to be at the Chicago Athletic association.

Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is canceling its white breakfast, the large patriotic party given annually in celebration of Washington's birthday anniversary, this year because of war conditions. In its place a tea will be given at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the Cordon club, to which national officers residing in the vicinity, state board members, and regents of chapters in the Chicago area have been invited. Mrs. Herbert E. Torrance will preside. The guest speaker will be J. S. Carroll of the FBI. Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson will give a "Tribute to George Washington." The chapter and its guests will hear a musical program by the Australian violinist, Ernest Toy, with Eva Leslie Toy at the piano.

Hostess members, appearing in Minna Schmidt costumes, will form a court of "colonial dames" when the Alliance of Business and Professional Women meets at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening for the annual Washington birthday dinner in the Chicago Bar association's rooms, 29 South La Salle street. Dudley Crafts Watson, Art institute staff lecturer, will speak. "Washington, the Magnificent," will be his subject.

• • •

The Women's Finance forum will hear two speakers, Heeman T. Powers of the Bureau of Estate Research in New York, and Frederick Discus, attorney, at a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock Thursday in the Chicago College club. Mr. Powers will talk on "100 Cents' Worth Out of Every Dollar," and Mr. Discus' topic will be "Getting Your Will Into Your 'Will.'" Presiding will be Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, founder-director of the forum.

• • •

The Chicago Woman's Aid will have Bergen Evans of Northwestern university as speaker at a literature breakfast at noon Tuesday. "Heretic's Heritage" is the title under which his lecture is scheduled. A "finance for women" breakfast is planned for noon Friday, when Dr. Henry S. Bloch will talk on "Taxes and Bonds in 1943." Later that afternoon Mrs. Joseph Davis, Mrs. Norman Freehling, and Mrs. Sigmund Kundstadter will discuss "Colonies in the Post-War World" at an international relations round table.

• • •

For their third quarterly meeting the Big Sisters will hold a George Washington birthday tea at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. Mrs. Charles H. Moody, the president, is focusing special attention upon the Red Cross work being carried on by the 17 units affiliated with the Big Sisters in a Catholic Red Cross unit. Members of the individual groups will preside at the tea tables. Miss Jeanette L. Young will speak briefly for the Red Cross. Ann Birk Kuper will give a dramatic interpretation of "The Eve of St. Mark."

JAMES HILTON

..James Hilton's famous novel of a great love, lost and regained

RANDOM HARVEST is a great best-seller that has captured the hearts of all America! Millions will see the movie . . . get your free copy of the original story NOW!

YOU first see "Smithy" and Paula together in a little tobacco shop—Armistice night 1918. In that day's wild frenzy of joy even hospital guards forgot to watch gates—and "Smith," shell-shock case, had just walked quietly out into the street—into the shop, for cigarettes—into Paula's life, for love! She knew at the first glance that he was her man—but he didn't know who he was—since that shell blast in France. Paula didn't care; she was satisfied to have him as "Smithy"!

And then you watch the beautiful blossoming of their ecstatic love story—set in the tinsel-grandeur of a British theatrical road company. "Smithy" went along as a handy man, understudy, actor, Paula's husband—until he began to succeed in his own role as a writer. And at last the day when an editor summoned him to Liverpool—Paula waving, wishing him good luck, and safe return!

But "Smithy" had walked into the bad luck of a skidding taxi—and waked up on a park bench—had remembered who he really was—Charles Rainier—son of a rich manufacturer—heir to millions! And what of the months of life and love with Paula? All hidden by that shifting blank patch in his memory—leaving only a vague, unsatisfied longing for the woman he had loved and lost!

And that's where the really thrilling part of "Random Harvest" begins, for you long and ache for the lovers to find each other again—while the years pass, bringing to them both everything heart could wish—except the lost love! How they finally came together, in full knowledge that it had come back at last, is the surprise secret of this magnificent novel! Hundreds of thousands have paid $2.50 to read it, but you can now get a copy to read and keep—yours absolutely FREE if you join the Literary Guild now! Mail Coupon TODAY.

'Cry Havoc' Is Heroic Story of Volunteer Nurses

WartimeDrama ComingMarch1 to Studebaker

By Cecil Smith.

The story behind the production of "Cry Havoc," arriving at the Studebaker theater March 1 as the third Theater guild subscription play of the season is as unusual as anything in recent theater history. John Wildberg, the producer, told it to me a few days ago, and I am passing it on to you as literally as I can.

Last year Allan R. Kenward, a young script writer for M-G-M in Hollywood, wrote a play in his spare time. The tragic tale of Bataan had just been unfolded, and Mr. Kenward found dramatic material in the heroic story of a group of volunteer nurses of all types and backgrounds, who took care of the American wounded during the siege.

• • •

Lacking the means and the professional connections to promote his play in New York, Mr. Kenward arranged for a performance by a Hollywood acting group in the Beechwood theater, a miniature house seating 75. From the first night the play was an astonishing success, and as rapidly as the 75 seats would permit, all manner of people, great and small, came to see it.

The fame of "Cry Havoc" spread to managerial offices in New York, and spirited bidding for production rights ensued. Lee Shubert offered the best price, and the rights fell to him. Since Mr. Kenward had directed his own play on the Pacific coast, Mr. Shubert brought him to New York to perform a similar task. A cast of well known actresses—there are no male rôles in the play—was engaged, and rehearsals began early in December.

Mr. Shubert did not care for the original title, "Cry Havoc," and wanted to change it to something else. When he proposed the change to the author, an acrimonious argument resulted. For days the argument apparently continued, with Mr. Kenward's work as a director suffering accordingly. Finally the author gave in, and allowed Mr. Shubert to select the peculiar title of "Proof Thro' the Night."

Under its new title the play was finally presented in public on Christmas week. The bitterness and distraction of the rehearsal period bore their inevitable fruit. The performance was not very good; some of the actresses forgot lines, and others proved to be none too perfectly cast. Press notices were of the mixed variety, and in ten days the play closed, one of the ignominous failures of the winter.

• • •

The public seldom knows all the facts behind such a failure as that of "Cry Havoc," and the natural assumption on the part of those who had not seen it was that it was a poor job of playwriting. But Mr. Kenward continued to have faith in his play, and he persuaded John Wildberg—the successful co-producer with Cheryl Crawford of the "Porgy and Bess" revival—to share his faith.

Discussions with Mr. Shubert followed, whereby Mr. Shubert agreed to let Mr. Wildberg have the setting, costumes and other physical appurtenances, and also to let him have a free hand in recasting and redirection, in return for a partial, but not controling financial interest in the production. Scarcely had the ink dried on the contract when the Shubert warehouse, containing the setting of "Cry Havoc," along with a myriad of aging operetta investitures we now shall never see again, burned to a crisp. Mr. Shubert agreed to have a new setting constructed, thereby increasing his financial interest in the play, tho still not to the point of controling managerial policies.

"Cry Havoc" is a unique play, because its failure in New York did not decrease many people's belief in it. The Theater guild, lacking enough plays to satisfy its subscription commitments in the various cities, made an arrangement with Mr. Wildberg whereby "Cry Havoc" is to be presented on guild time in all the major cities, beginning with Chicago.

• • •

The new cast falls into three categories—players from the original New York company, players from the original Pacific coast company, and players from neither. Mr. Wildberg claims that his new composite cast is better than either of the first ones, and there is certainly no reason to dispute his claim between now and March 1. The most important player from the New York cast is Florence MacMichael, a comedienne who plays one of the central parts. Newcomers to the cast are Flora Campbell, whose fresh naturalness was one of the few assets of Sinclair Lewis' "Angela Is Twenty-Two" [produced by Mr. Wildberg in a younger and less prescient phase of his career], Eugenia Rawls, who appeared as the Giddens daughter in Tallulah Bankhead's company of "The Little Foxes," and Margie Hart, emerging from the twilight of burlesque into the high noon of serious dramatic performance.

The newly reorganized company of "Cry Havoc" will begin its career at the Studebaker theater here. Tomorrow the actresses will arrive from New York, where they have been rehearsing, and will continue preparations here. Two closed preview performances for service men and women are scheduled for Friday evening and next Sunday afternoon. These will help to take the place of the customary out of town tryout.

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN

black eyes: "Murder breeds murder, my boy. There was never anything truer said."

He chuckled a little and said almost gloatingly: "I'll tie up your case for you, John. Besides, there's the important question of motive. Suppose this Forbes woman knew who murdered Frame. Suppose —" He checked himself abruptly, his black eyes glittering yet secretive. "It's my luck to step in after you've gone out and wind up your famous unsolved murder. The Beasley luck," he said, and chuckled.

Major Campbell's face didn't change. Nevertheless a kind of shutter seemed to have closed over it and whatever he was thinking. He reached inside his coat and got out a package of cigarets. His brown belt glowed dully in the light as he struck a match. "Nevertheless, Eliot, I think you'd better let Miss Steane go now. She's had rather a bad time. You can't get much out of a—a hysterical witness," said Major Campbell, looking at Beasley as if Victoria didn't exist.

"I can get a confession—"

"I doubt it."

"But, my God, John, you thought she murdered Frame!"

Campbell said, "I didn't prove it. Remember that, too"—and then saw that she was rising and came toward her.

Victoria put her hands on the table. "I'm going to have a lawyer," she said. "I refuse to answer any more questions now."

The small scarlet belt was so near her hand it almost touched it.

It was Maj. Campbell who broke the silence. "She's quite within her right, of course, Eliot," he said. "Besides—well, you can let her go for tonight, can't you?"

"I'll not have you interfering, you know, John," said Beasley softly. "I let you in on this tonight because you asked to come. All right, Miss Steane, you can go."

Maj. Campbell opened the door for her, his brown face and bright hazel eyes inscrutable. He said nothing. There was no way to know whether he was a friend or an enemy.

But she hadn't murdered Henry —or Clistie. If Clistie had known that Henry was murdered, and had evidence leading to the murderer, she would have told the police, long ago. And Beasley's theory left out Joan Green altogether.

The Red Belt—but Who?

Yet there was her red belt. How could Clistie's murderer have got possession of it! Had he crept into the house—big, rambling, frequently left unlocked—found his way secretly to her dressing room, and got away again without being seen? But then, who?

The library door closed.

Michael was waiting, sitting on the stairway, an ash tray beside him full of cigaret ends. Thalia was there, too, sitting on the step above him. She was wearing the blue silk house coat again and looking very pretty.

"O, Vicky," she said quickly, getting up. "We've been waiting. Was it very bad? Of course, we knew about the belt—they asked everybody whose it was. Vicky, I sent the telegrams about the wedding. I got the list from Bessie. I—" she hesitated, her eyes very soft and dark and yet rather watchful under her long, soft eyelashes.

"I didn't know what to say and you were in your room and so upset about Clistie, that I didn't—want to bother you. But I knew you couldn't have the wedding. So I said in the telegrams it was postponed. I couldn't think of anything else to say. I do hope that was right. Poor darling, you look simply dead." She paused for an instant. And a spark of something knowing and queerly speculative moved in her dark eyes and she said gently, "Was John Campbell very difficult?"

"No," said Victoria shortly. And again looking directly into Thalia's eyes found nothing secret, nothing amused, only sympathy.

"My God, I thought they'd never let you go," said Michael, putting his arm around her. "Vicky, darling, we'll get a lawyer right away."

He went upstairs with her. Thalia followed and went into Bessie's room. Ernestine was waiting for Victoria; fat old Ernestine with her troubled, faithful eyes. Hot milk was on the bed table. "She's got to go to bed now, Mr. Michael," she said. "Come, Miss Vicky. Ain't no use making yourself sick."

But she let Victoria tell Michael what Beasley had said. Michael listened in silence, holding her tight in his arms. "It'll be all right; you'll see," he said quietly. "We'll get at the truth. We did it before. Vicky, is there anything you've forgotten? Anything about Clistie?"

"Now, Mr. Michael," said Ernestine. "Miss Vicky's done up. Such a wedding day tomorrow! With Miss Clistie—" scowling and troubled, she stopped.

Michael said, "It was all right for Thalia to send telegrams saying that the wedding was postponed; but we'll be married anyway. Right, Vicky?" He paused and said, "Vicky, I don't believe you've understood a word I've said. Put her to bed, Ernestine. Good night, dear."

Ernestine closed the door after him. "Now, now," said Ernestine. "Drink your milk—hold up your arms, Miss Vicky—turn around—" Her loving old hands were more adept than the most skilful of French maids.

Victoria didn't remember Ernestine's leaving the room. She didn't even remember putting down the glass of hot milk.

Agnew awakened her.

"Toothache?" she said sleepily. And then remembered and sat up: "What's wrong? Agnew—"

"Sh-sh—don't yell! Nothing's wrong. I just wanted to—to talk—" he hesitated. He'd put on a winter bathrobe, hot looking and woolly; his spectacles glimmered as he turned his head. "Vicky, why do you suppose Clistie went to the pumphouse?"

"I don't know. I wondered, too. There's nothing there—"

"No—Vicky, I'm going down there."

"Agnew, you're not!" she said sharply.

"There must be something — some clew——"

"But, Agnew, you can't—" she thought quickly, seeking a reason with which to dissuade him. "The police have already been there. They wouldn't overlook anything."

"Yes, but why did she go there? And in the morning the police will be everywhere under foot again and I don't believe any of them are around tonight. I've got a flashlight."

With despair she recognized his arguing tone. It meant that nothing short of dynamite would sway him. She got up and reached for a dressing gown.

"What are you going to do?" he whispered quickly.

"Tell Hollis."

"Vicky," he said, "if you tell him and get him to stop me, I'll never tell you another thing in my life. I mean it."

He did mean it. There was a pause. He tugged the flashlight out of his pocket and turned toward the door.

"Wait," she said and fumbled for slippers. "I'm going, too."

"No. Vicky, I won't let you—"

"I go or tell Hollis. Take your choice."

There was another silence while she tied the long crimson sash on her dressing gown. Then he said crossly: "All right. Come on—"

The house was quiet. There was a small light above the stairway; the rooms downstairs were dark. They crossed the drawing room, groping their way and let themselves out the side door, very quietly. They crossed the porch and Agnew caught her wrist and whispered, "Follow the shadow of the hedge, just in case there is a policeman around."

But they crossed the garden and still no one stopped them. The tall yew hedge made a wide, black shadow at the end of it. There was a gap in the hedge there. Agnew let Victoria precede him. On the other side of the hedge the moonlight fell full and strong upon them.

But it had been a mistake to come. They'd better go back to the house—back thru the still, white moonlight, back along those shadowy paths.

Agnew whispered in her ear: "What's the matter?"

"We're going back. This was a crazy idea—"

"Maybe it was," admitted Agnew, "but now we're this far—"

"Let's go back."

"Afraid? Well, I don't much like it myself. It's so darned white and black and—and still—but it's not much further."

"But there can't be anything there. I mean anything that would explain—"

"All right, go on back, then!" snapped Agnew fretfully. "But I'm going on."

He went ahead. The moonlight was bright and everything was quiet. Not even a bird moved in the black depths of the pine woods.

She followed his tall, bathrobed figure which was clearly outlined in the moonlight. He was carrying the flashlight in one hand. They moved again into the deep black shadow made by some shrubs which were planted thickly around the slanting door of the pumphouse. She could barely see Agnew but she could hear him tug the door upward. She couldn't see the steps; he was fumbling with the catch of his flashlight. "Go ahead, Vicky," he said. "If this thing's out of batteries—"

She groped for the edge of the steps and started down them. Agnew was muttering impatiently and clicking the catch of the flashlight. She couldn't see anything below her but now she could touch rough, cold concrete wall on both sides of the steps. She went down a few more steps, nerving herself to take each one. The pump wasn't running. It was perfectly still and quiet except that Agnew, above, seemed to be having difficulty finding the steps, scuffling his feet and bumping against the door. She turned around and said, "Agnew—where are you—," and the lighted, luminous sky directly above and the nearer black shadow of shrubs were blotted out.

Footsteps Stop; It's Not Agnew

She cried, "Agnew—why did you drop the door? Where's the light?"

Agnew was coming softly down the stairs in the thick, damp darkness but he didn't answer.

"Agnew—" she said again. And stopped.

The footsteps stopped, too. Suddenly she knew it wasn't Agnew.

Whoever was in the pumphouse did not answer. And must have heard her voice.

She could remember very little about the pumphouse. It was small, built around a pump which was run by electricity, and a tank for the storage of water. There was only one way to get in or out of it and that was by the steps. That was all she knew of it. And with the blotting out of that rectangle of luminous sky she wasn't sure, even, where the steps were.

She must move. Do something—anything; not stand there frozen, rigid, waiting for the trap to close. She moved backward cautiously. Her hands stretched into the darkness. If she could find the wall, it might guide her to the steps—if she went the right way. If nothing came out of that enveloping black pit and fell upon her, slid around her neck, tightened itself.

Her fingers touched something rough and cold; it was the wall; exactly as she touched it there was from somewhere near a sudden rasping, hoarse murmur, like a beast rousing, and with a loud throb the pump started. She didn't scream. She couldn't.

The pump settled with a regular, loud beat which filled the tiny cellar, throbbing in her ears, making the darkness vibrant. Under the cover of that sound, she slid along the wall, instinctively toward the right. In a moment the wall gave way behind her. She stumbled but the sound of it was covered by the noise of the pump. She fell upon steps, scrambled up them, groping upward, found the door and pushed. It wasn't heavy; light came thru the crack and showed a streak of white.

It would reveal her clearly if she lifted it further, but she had to get out of the cellar. She pushed at the door and it fell back with a jarring thud.

Moonlight poured down upon her, flooding the steps. The shrubs made black shadows. The pump was so loud behind her, waking all the black night to throbbing life, that she couldn't tell whether or not she was being pursued. But she stumbled into the shadows of the nearest shrubs, fell over something, was down on her knees again and, suddenly, tugging at Agnew's woolly bathrobe. He was there, in a heap. He said, mumbling: "Vicky—what did you hit me for—"

She clutched at his arms. She dragged him to his feet. He was reluctant to move and she had to make him come with her—had to make him hurry—had to urge him along while he stumbled and held back.

They reached the gate in the yew hedge. She looked back and behind her stretched a white alley of clear moonlight, with the silver yew hedge on one side and the deep black belt of shadow made by the pine woods on the other side. She could see the clump of shrubs around the pumphouse. The sound of the pump filled the night with its steady throb. No one followed them—or at least nothing moved along the white strip. But there were deep, concealing black shadows everywhere.

"My head aches," said Agnew thickly and loudly. "Don't make me run." But she did, clutching his arm tightly, dragging him along thru the garden, ghostly and strange at that time of night.

"O, hurry, Agnew."

They reached the side door on the porch and it was lighted. They had left it dark. Some one then must be up and about. She pulled Agnew into the house and Jody was in the hall. He heard them and came running to meet them. He had, obviously, dressed in a hurry; his collar was open and his wrinkled old face looked worried. He peered at them uncertainly.

"Jody, call Mr. Hollis! Call Mr. Bayne! Hurry!"

"Let me go," said Agnew. "I'm going back down there—somebody hit me." He spoke thickly. There was blood on his face from a cut on his forehead, and a bump swelling rapidly above his left ear.

Jody cried, "Mr. Agnew—what happened? You come with me."

"I'm murdered," ~~said~~ Agnew, mumbling. "I'm wounded! Somebody tried to murder me!"

"You come right with me," cried Jody tremulously, taking his arm.

"You come right along with me. I fix it—"

The amount of blood, tho, streaming down Agnew's pale face was frightening. She followed Jody and Agnew to the butler's pantry. Jody snapped on lights. Agnew put his head under the cold water. Jody got out towels and ran around him in circles, muttering and anxious.

Agnew Bloody but Unmurdered

All in all, she thought later, several moments must have elapsed before Agnew announced himself as wounded but unmurdered, and Jody pulled himself and his scattered wits together. Victoria started for the stairs herself but Agnew called her back to hold the towel to his head.

"I'm bleeding to death," he groaned. "I tell you I'm wounded."

"Jody, hurry—tell them in the pumphouse——"

"Yes, miss."

She could hear Jody's muffled knocks, the low murmur of voices, and in a moment steps running down the stairs again. Jody went with them. And after a little while Agnew, fidgeting and murmuring, snatched the towel away, discovered his head had stopped bleeding and had only an inch long cut in it, and went, too.

"It was your belt, Miss Steane . . ."

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN

By MIGNON G. EBERHART

(Copyright: 1943: By Mignon G. Eberhart.)

What Has Gone Before Ten weeks have elapsed since Henry Frame was found dead in the river and Victoria Steane was suspected of his murder by John Campbell, coroner and state's attorney. Victoria had quarreled with Frame about his management of the Steane mills, in which she owned most of the stock. But the coroner's jury brought a suicide verdict after Michael Bayne, manager of a branch mill, discovered that Frame was embezzling from the business. Victoria lives with Aunt Bessie Isham and her two sons, Hollis and Agnew, and the housekeeper, Clistie Forbes. Thalia Frame, Henry's daughter, has stayed on for a visit after her father's death. At a party given by Colonel Galant at Camp Blakoe, John Campbell, now a major, talks to Victoria and tells her he is still sure that Henry Frame was murdered and warns her against more murders. He is surprised to learn that she is getting ready to marry Bayne. With the wedding only two days off, Victoria realizes she doesn't love Bayne and cannot marry him. She tells Bayne this, but Bayne asks her to think it over before refusing. Victoria hears a scream that night in the pine woods near their home, then a splash in the river. Clistie promises to get Judson, the gardener, to investigate. But Clistie does not return, and an unidentified woman's body, wearing Clistie's dress, is found in the river. Agnew finds Clistie's body in the pumphouse. She has been strangled. Victoria's belt is around her neck. The girl found in the river is identified as Joan Green, a secretary in Colonel Galant's office. Victoria is again questioned, this time by Beasley, the new state's attorney.

INSTALMENT VI.

"THERE were so many people at the camp," Victoria said slowly. "I don't remember stopping at Col. Galant's office more than once or twice. If she were there I don't remember her. I do, tho, now, remember seeing her at the tea party."

"O, you remember her, now, do you?" said Beasley.

Maj. Campbell's figure moved a little forward. Victoria said: "It is true, exactly as I told you. I didn't know where I had seen her until you spoke of Col. Galant's tea. Then I knew."

John Campbell had stopped. His voice came from the shadows. "Have you any proof to the contrary, Eliot?"

Beasley shrugged, shot a quick glance toward John Campbell, and said, "No; not yet, and you know it."

There was a short silence.

Beasley's long yellow fingers were tapping the polished surface of the table. Maj. Campbell's tall, uniformed figure, just at the edge of her vision, moved back again quietly into the window embrasure.

Beasley leaned forward and continued with an air of frankness and a stretching of his thick, purplish lips that went for an ingratiating smile: "Well, Miss Steane, let's forget Joan Green. Let's go back to last night. You say you heard a scream. You say you thought some one was being hurt. You say it seemed to come from the pine woods. You say that you ran out into the hall and called Miss Forbes and Agnew Isham. At least that was your statement this morning when I talked to you. Do you want to change it?"

"No. That is what happened."

"Do you want to add to it?"

"That is all there is to tell."

"Really," said Beasley. "O, I think not quite all. For instance, why did you call a boy of 18 when there were men in the house? Why did you tell Miss Forbes that you had heard something in the pine woods, and then let her go alone and unaccompanied to investigate? Why didn't you go with her or send some one with her?"

"I meant to call Hollis," said Victoria, "but I made a mistake and opened the door to Agnew's room instead of Hollis'; the rooms are beside each other. And I called Clistie because——" she knew her voice wavered and she made herself speak steadily, "because we always called Clistie. She always saw to things. That's why I let her go downstairs and, when she told me to, I went back to my room. She said she was going to telephone to Judson, that's the gardener. She—all of us did what Clistie told us to do. We always have. If I'd known—if I'd dreamed——" Her voice wavered again and this time she had to stop.

Beasley said: "Whom did you call first, Agnew or Miss Forbes?"

"Agnew—well, as a matter of fact, I went to Clistie's room first. But she wasn't there and hadn't been to bed. Her dressing gown was across the bed. I called her—I think I called her—anyway I started toward Hollis' room and opened the door to Agnew's room instead, and woke him. Then as we went into the hall to call Hollis there was Clistie. She'd put on her dressing gown and she still had on her turquoise satin slippers."

"Was she wearing the brown lace dress then?" broke in the state's attorney.

"I don't know. I—why, no, I'm sure she wasn't wearing it under the dressing gown, for I remember noticing her slippers. The dressing gown wasn't as long as the dress would have been; it came about to her ankles. No; I'm sure she wasn't wearing it then."

Again Maj. Campbell's voice came from the window embrasure. "What was she wearing when she was found? I don't remember that any one told me."

"Dressing gown, underclothing. No dress. Stockings. Blue slippers."

"What of the girl's dress, then? What happened to it?"

Beasley looked irritated. "If I knew that, John, I'd know why she was wearing the Forbes woman's dress—which is more than I know now. Go on, Miss Steane. What happened then?"

"It's as I told you this morning. She asked what was wrong and I told her. She said she'd call Judson and see to it and sent me and Agnew to bed. She said she'd come back and tell me—but she didn't come. And then——"

"Then you and Agnew called Hollis Isham and Bayne and roused the house to look for her. But what about this scream? What time did you hear it?"

"I'm not sure. It was around midnight, I think."

"Can't you be more specific?"

"It was a little after 11 when I went out on the balcony. I was there a long time. When Agnew and I realized that we must look for Clistie it was nearly 2, and Agnew thought she had been gone about an hour. I must have heard the scream about 12:30. Perhaps a little later."

Questions, and More Questions

He glanced at the stenographer. "What time did Hollis Isham and Miss Frame say they returned from the movies?"

The stenographer stopped flipping pages. "Here it is, Mr. Beasley. Shall I read it? 'Question—What time did you return? Answer—I'm not sure; a little after 12, I suppose.' That's Mr. Isham. And Miss Frame says——" He paused to turn another page. "Miss Frame says, 'It was 10 minutes, almost exactly, after 12.' She says——"

"All right. Now, Miss Steane, did you know they had returned?"

"I heard a car I supposed was Hollis' car."

"You didn't see either Hollis or Miss Frame?"

"No."

"But it was after that you heard the famous scream?"

"Yes."

"How long after?"

"Perhaps—a quarter of an hour. I can't say exactly."

"You send Clistie Forbes to see what was wrong and an hour later you 'realized you must look for her.' It took you rather a long time, Miss Steane," said Beasley, again sarcastic. He was right, tho, Victoria thought. If only they had not been so dependent upon Clistie, so assured of her efficiency, and so blindly, childishly obedient!

Beasley said: "Did anybody else hear that scream?"

"No. At least—no."

"What were you going to say?"

"It just seemed to me so loud and—and shrill. I thought every one must have heard it."

"But in point of fact no one else did. The night was very quiet, too. You're sure, Miss Steane, that some one screamed?"

"Yes. I wasn't dreaming——" Something moved in his eyes. She stopped, and after an instant said slowly: "You didn't mean that I was dreaming."

"No, Miss Steane, I'm afraid that isn't what I meant," said Beasley, stretching his lips over his teeth. He leaned forward so his long hand reflected itself in the surface of the table and the reflection looked exactly like a yellow, grasping claw. He said, "I told you I was going to break this case and do it quickly. Now, I've already questioned other people in the house, Miss Frame, Mr. Bayne, Hollis, and Agnew Isham; the servants, every one but Mrs. Isham and you. The whole picture isn't clear. There's no use pretending it is." He paused and Victoria thought, queerly, with a kind of surprise, but he's honest. He was suspicious, clumsily sarcastic—with sparkling, hateful black eyes. But honest.

He said, "I suggest, Miss Steane, that there could have been no scream, for you alone heard it. I suggest that your story could have been only a ruse to get Miss Forbes out of the house. I suggest that this dead girl could have been dressed in Miss Forbes' dress merely in a desperate intent to confuse us. It would have been something a woman would think of. I don't know why Joan Green came here; or why she was murdered. So far—I'm being perfectly frank with you——

"I know only that Joan Green was a quiet, hard working girl; she came from a little town near here where she had lived with an aunt; she'd learned shorthand and typing in high school; she left home for the first time when she got a job at Camp Blakoe last winter; she had a room in a hotel in Ponte Verde. That's all, so far, that I know about her. But that's not the point." He was leaning far over the table now, shaking his long hand at her. It was so still in the room that no one seemed to breathe. He said, "It was your belt, Miss Steane. You—and this boy—were the last to see Clistie Forbes. You sent her out into the night. You——"

Maj. Campbell came toward the table. "I think you're going pretty far, Eliot."

Beasley's long, thin body twisted around. "It's my case, John, not yours. Altho——" he smiled. "Well, no," he said. "I'm not so sure but what it is your case. Or was your case. You always said Henry Frame was murdered."

There was another silence in the hot room. Then Maj. Campbell said: "Exactly what is the connection?"

"I don't know, yet. But mark my words, there is one. The Frame case is opened again, automatically. No doubt in anybody's mind now that he was murdered. So there's a triumph for you, my boy. You always insisted he was the kind of man somebody would murder."

There was another short silence before Maj. Campbell said: "I believed he was murdered, yes. But what about evidence?"

"Evidence of murder in the Frame case?"

"Evidence of that, and evidence linking it to the murders last night."

Beasley thrust out his lower lip and put his head on one side, judicially. "Concrete evidence, none. I doubt if we shall have any further evidence on the Frame case. But the big link is simply murder." His long hand dropped to his knee, his thick eyelids lowered over his

Engagement of Defauw a Surprise to Chicagoans

Montreal Loud in Its Praise of New Conductor

By Claudia Cassidy.

Whatever else the orchestral association achieved by the engagement of Désiré Defauw as musical director and conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for the season of 1943-'44, there is no denying that it scored a surprise. Announcement of the Belgian's signing came as a kind of bombshell to many of us because, if I may mix my metaphors, we had not considered him a likely dark horse. In our discussions as to what man was best fitted to take over where Frederick Stock left off, Mr. Defauw was not even an entry. So we reeled under the impact of the association's bland announcement that he had won the unanimous vote of the 50 trustees and members who make up that governing body.

Désiré Defauw.

Obviously, this means that the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the property of the orchestral association, to do with as it sees fit. Probably the average concertgoer had not thought about this before, because for 37 years we had Mr. Stock as the man who personified the orchestra. He made it a great institution and we who went to hear it considered it, proudly, our property. When Mr. Stock died last October we knew instinctively that he could not be replaced. You do not replace a man who has given his life to an orchestra and a city, persistently refusing offers to go to other orchestras where he would have been more highly paid, perhaps more widely admired, but certainly no more deeply loved. You can not replace a man like that, but you can give long and comprehensive consideration to what may be the next best thing.

• • •

Perhaps the orchestral association has done just that, tho to those outside its circle of deliberations the choice seems hasty, ill considered and risky. Mr. Defauw is 57 years old and he has not previously held permanent post as conductor of an orchestra that ranks in importance with our own. The association based its selection on his European background, which centered in Brussels, on his Montreal success with the Concerts Symphoniques, and on the three guest concerts in which he conducted the Chicago Symphony orchestra in January—a Thursday-Friday pair and a Saturday "Pop."

Montreal is loud in its lamentations at losing Mr. Defauw, which is to his credit. Thomas Archer, music critic of the Montreal Gazette, replied to a Tribune inquiry, "Désiré Defauw came here after the fall of Europe to Hitler and discovered a collection of musicians. He took them in hand and he built a real symphony orchestra. For that we shall be eternally grateful to him."

• • •

With all due respect, the Chicago Symphony orchestra is not "a collection of musicians." It is one of the four ranking orchestras of the United States, which in 1943 means the world. Nor do I find it any more reassuring to be told, also in Montreal quotes, that Mr. Defauw is "an organizer of no mean ability, a man who can appeal directly to the musician and get results which could not be obtained by one who was less a citizen of the world." Have you any idea what that means? It baffles me.

Specifically, Mr. Defauw has retained his Belgian citizenship, altho he has been for three years a refugee from that stricken country. This fact is mentioned as information, not criticism. He has spent much of that time in Canada. Besides, while there is a great deal of drum beating for an American conductor, I admit I am not one of that lusty band. Frankly, I would not care if our new conductor were a Hottentot if he had the qualifications of a great leader equipped to continue the orchestra's tradition of solidity, soundness and brilliance in an uncommonly comprehensive repertory.

Perhaps Mr. Defauw has these qualifications. It would be unfair to deny them to him without giving him full chance to prove his worth. But the orchestral association engaged him on the basis of his Chicago concerts, and not all of us share its enthusiasm about those concerts. My own reaction to the Thursday night performance was summed up in this sentence: "On the whole, I found his conducting style less than distinguished, being limited in scope, generally neat in outline, and far from immaculate in detail."

With those words staring me in the face, I look on next season with qualms which I hope Mr. Defauw's unqualified success will dissipate. The one thing that really matters in the whole situation is the future of our orchestra, which is of vital importance to Chicago.

• • •

A provocative sidelight to the appointment is the anomalous position in which it places Hans Lange, former associate conductor, whose new title, if any, is not clarified. Mr. Lange will remain with the orchestra and will conduct important concerts, so much we know. Since Mr. Stock's death he has done some of the best work of his Chicago career with the orchestra, gaining considerable respect and admiration in the process. It came as a shock to many to have him supplanted by anything short of a conductor of great international reputation.

So the orchestra situation rests on the laps of the gods, meaning the orchestral association. Whatever happens, let's hope it won't be dull.

• • •

Other places, other conductors: At press time the grapevine had the Cleveland orchestra post between two Czech conductors, George Szell and Hermann Adler . . . and did you hear the tale of Koussevitzky, said to have used the New York Philharmonic post as bait to get what he wanted in Boston?

• • •

Wrong number department: Dr. R. C. Blackwell of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra wants to know where I was the other night when the orchestra played an encore at Orchestra hall. Apparently the doctor is clairvoyant even if I am not. Having no notion Mr. Dasch was going to embark on an encore at intermission, I went out to the Orchestra hall office to visit the management. Fired by reporting zeal I took hearsay on the number, and apparently it was wrong say. What did you play, doctor?

Frances Faye Delights Patrons of Latin Quarter

Sammy Walsh, Comedian, Also Is a Favorite

By Will Davidson.

Frances Faye.

Without divulging any military secrets, it's possible to predict with certainty "Faye and Warmer" in the Latin Quarter. Frances Faye came back to town a few days ago, surprised some of her friends with her newly rationed figure, and completely won over the Randolph street diners with her hearty and heated songs.

Miss Faye is an admirably controled exponent of the powerful, rhythmic type of song. Even in her quieter moments she seems on the verge of something explosive. Yet when she cuts loose in the superb tempo of "Shut My Mouth" she still maintains complete command of what she's doing. Her timing of sly and sometimes hilarious interpolations is exquisite. Her subtleties are just that, with no sledge hammer necessary to make you see what she means. I think Miss Faye will prove to be as popular a star as the Quarter has had.

Likewise I think Sammy Walsh will come into some of the fame he so richly deserves. Sammy has been very, very funny for a long, long time, but there's been a jinx of some sort trailing him like a devoted gremlin. His last show in Chicago was at the Chez with Gracie Fields, and Sammy, of course, was a second runner to the fabulous Briton. But Sammy is a wonderful comedian. He has a whimsical sense of the ridiculous that is devastating. His glee club, his Benny Goodman impersonation, his hilarious "Old Man River" are completely delightful nonsense. And he's a deft, considerate master of ceremonies.

The Bernard dancers are back in the Quarter with their ludicrous routines. Their forte is the casual burlesquing of what in other hands might be very ordinary dance routines. Sometimes, however, the Bernards seem a bit too casual, and their essentially funny ideas go begging. When the three boys did an imitation of the incomparable Makebelieves singing "Pennsylvania Polka" à la the Andrews sisters it was an amazingly good takeoff. When they continued on thru most of the Makebelieves' numbers the excellence of work couldn't quiet my amazement at their bold lifting of an act that had been such a success here so very recently.

Margery Ward's tap dancing, Eddie Pripps' music, and the interim rhumbas of Louis Ramirez supply the balance of the entertainment.

Don't be surprised if Art Kassel starts featuring soon a revival of an old song, the title of which, I believe, is "Don't Bring Posies, Baby Needs Shoesies Now." It's a cinch, these days. Art continues to do splendid work in the Walnut room of the Bismarck, packing the dance floor nightly and shepherding a smart little show.

Gloria Lee's dancing girls have some very commendable numbers in the current revue—heavier than is their usual wont. The Fire dance, the Mexican number, and the Wooden Soldier routine are neatly done.

The Robertos are a lively and very likable dance team, skilled especially in Latin turns. They look as if they were having a fine time, and that is a very pleasant departure from a good many far less talented teams.

Surprise hit of the show is Randy Brown, who features, of all things, those paddle ball toys that let you play ping pong alone. Randy's an amiable Joe from Georgia, and altho all his material isn't particularly hilarious he's pleasant, and very skillful. A good flash act.

The singing of Gloria Hart, as every one knows, is cute and good. Particularly when she sings "My Great Big Bundle of Blue" to an entranced sailor such as Seaman First Class Bob [Barrymore] Phipps of Great Lakes. Jim Featherstone, Art's new balladeer, is swell. His voice has an amiable quality. His manner is quiet and friendly.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Glen Gray returns to the Panther room Friday. . . . Saturday is Circus party night at the Edgewater Beach hotel. . . . You should have seen Charlie [Camellia House] Wright register amazement over Bert Allerton's tricks in the Pump room. . . . Congrats to Griff and Dorothy Williams, on account of their second daughter, Wendy. . . . I hear Tito Guizar is to follow Dwight Fiske into the Mayfair room in March. . . . Lou Breese, the Chez Paree's genial maestro, is co-author with Tim [Baton] Gayle and Jack Fascinato, arranger for the Dinning Sisters, of a new song, "Is Sally Still Waiting for Me?" . . . I understand drunken roués are quite in demand now, what with the new restrictions on high heels.

Elisabeth Bergner May Return to N. Y. Stage

Elisabeth Bergner, absent from the Broadway stage since "Escape Me Never" in 1936, may return this season in a Russian play tentatively called "Secret Weapon." Philip and Janet Stevenson are adapting the play from the Russian script of Constantine Finn.

Sidney Foster, Pianist, Joins the Le Roy Trio

Sidney Foster, 25 year old pianist who appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra early this season, has been engaged by Rene Le Roy, flutist, as a member of the Le Roy trio. Mr. Le Roy was a Ravinia soloist with the orchestra in 1941.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Moissaye Boguslawski.

Moissaye Boguslawski, who makes his home in Chicago, will appear in a piano recital at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30. His program includes Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 27, No. 2; Schumann's "Carnaval," a Chopin group offering the Etudes in A flat major and B minor, the Nocturne in F major, the Fantaisie Impromptu, and the Polonaise in A flat major, and ends with music by Alkan, Debussy, and Liszt.

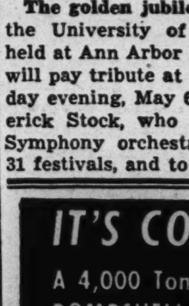
• • •

The Chicago Negro Opera Guild, Inc., will present its second "Aida" of the season at the Civic Opera house this evening, starting at 8 o'clock. With the exception of Shelby Nichols, who has replaced Reginald Burruss as the King of Egypt, the cast is unchanged from that heard last October. It holds La Julia Rhea as Aida, Thelma Wade Brown as Amneris, Napoleon Reed as Radames, William Franklin as Amonasro, Jackson Smith as Ramfis, and Maurice Cooper as the messenger.

• • •

Charlo Byars, soprano, will appear in Curtiss hall recital Tuesday evening at 8:15, with Jane Hampton at the piano. Her program opens with a group by Purcell, Caldara, Monteverde, and Handel, includes Mozart's "Dove Sono" from "The Marriage of Figaro," and songs by Hugo Wolf, Richard Strauss, Joseph Marx, Richard Trunk, Duparc, Faure, Fourdrain, and others.

• • •



Ann Hawryliw.

Ann Hawryliw, young Canadian violinist now a member of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, will appear in recital at Kimball hall Tuesday evening at 8:15. Her program includes Bach's Concerto in A minor, Vieuxtemps' Concerto No. 4, D minor, and music by Godowsky, Prokofieff, Debussy, Paganini, Sarasate, and others. Olga Sandor is the accompanist.

• • •

The golden jubilee May Festival of the University of Michigan, to be held at Ann Arbor May 5 thru May 8, will pay tribute at the concert Thursday evening, May 6, to the late Frederick Stock, who with the Chicago Symphony orchestra participated in 31 festivals, and to Albert A. Stanley, a festival founder, who died in 1932. The program, to be played by the Philadelphia orchestra under Eugene Ormandy, with Fritz Kreisler playing the Mendelssohn concerto, also includes Stanley's "Laus Deo," composed in 1913 for the first festival given at Hill auditorium, Stock's "Psalmodic Rhapsody" and Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration."

The 1943 festival opens Wednesday evening, May 5, with Beethoven's Overture, "Leonore," No. 3, which began the first festival 50 years ago, and ends Saturday evening, May 8, with Verdi's "Manzoni Requiem."

Among the singers participating this year are Lily Pons, Astrid Varnay, Stella Roman, Kerstin Thorborg, Frederick Jagel, Salvatore Baccaloni, and Alexander Kipnis, while instrumental soloists include Mr. Kreisler and Vladimir Horowitz. Choral organizations to be heard are the University Choral Union, directed by Hardin Van Deursen, and the Youth Festival Chorus, directed by Marguerite Hood.

George Chavchavadze.
[Abresch Photo.]

George Chavchavadze, Russian pianist who will appear in recital at Orchestra hall next Sunday afternoon, has had the unusual experience of substituting for Mickey Mouse. That was when he was asked to give an impromptu recital at an English movie house filled with soldiers and handicapped by a broken projection machine. Not quite sure what to play to please his audience, Chavchavadze tried Liszt, Chopin, and Schubert. One request to "Swing it, George!" was shouted down by the majority, who wanted more of the same. Playing both for soldiers and blacked out audiences in bombed English cities, the Russian found that soldiers liked Liszt, Chopin, and Tschaikowsky, but that civilians, depressed by those composers, seemed to prefer Mozart, Strauss, and Debussy.

Complete details are expected within a few days as to the two week engagement of the Metropolitan Opera association, opening March 22 at the Civic Opera house. Edward Johnson, genral manager of the company, says the entire company will tour, including orchestra and ballet.

Sympathetic Portrait of Poet Yeats

"W. B. YEATS, 1865-1939," by Joseph Hone. [Macmillan, $6.]

Reviewed by Marcia Winn.

"He is shy, sensitive, and nervous," J. B. Yeats, the artist-philosopher, wrote of his son, Willie. "Difficult to win, and yet he's worth winning." And Willie Yeats was a strange child—mystical and shy, with deepset, slanting eyes and a mind rooted in Irish folklore —who hid out on the Irish fens at the age of 10 pretending he was Hamlet, "an image of heroic self-possession."

In this authorized biography of William Butler Yeats, who, up until three weeks before his death in 1939 at the age of 73, continued to write plays and poetry, Joseph Hone was given access to a wealth of material—the poet's notebooks and diaries, a mass of correspondence, and a lifetime of letters from his father, J. B., who was always to advise and counsel him in a father and son relationship like that of the two Mozarts. Out of it emerges a sympathetic but sometimes too erudite picture of the man who devoted most of his life to bringing Irish literature into repute.

• • •

Yeats was a romantic figure in a romantic age, moving always with the rebels of English literature and the rebels of Irish nationalism, from George Russell [AE] to Oscar Wilde to John Synge to Lady Gregory. Tall, aloof, and mystic, with a pale face, long hair, and rich, melancholy eyes, he carried with him always his special dream of the Irish people and his unrequited love for Maude Gonne, the revolutionary, known as the Irish Joan of Arc, who, organizing a Young Ireland society, taught the children of the poor a catechism beginning, "What is the origin of evil?" The answer was "England."

Not until middle age, when he married a young and wealthy girl and had money rolling in from his American tours, was Yeats anything but poverty-stricken. Yet he had a splendid faculty for attracting wealthy godmothers to his enterprises, chief of which was the Irish theater under Lady Gregory. Of his work with her, Mr. Hone writes in far greater and duller detail than of what might have been a more interesting period—his early blossoming as a poet. The author seems to neglect, too, Yeats' propensity for mysticism and astrology, believing, perhaps, that the poet took care of those sufficiently in his own works on the subject.

• • •

In connection with Yeats' poetry, Mr. Hone emphasizes one little known fact: that late in life Yeats rewrote his early lyrics with their wistful romanticism, insisting that the revisions stand as his work. One example of this should be sufficient to make one wonder why:

[ORIGINAL.]

"And then you came with those red mournful lips
And with you came the whole of the world's tears
And all the trouble of her labouring ships
And all the trouble of her myriad years."

[REVISED.]

"A girl arose that had red mournful lips
And seemed the greatness of the world in tears,
Doomed like Odysseus and the labouring ships
And proud as Priam murdered with his peers."

Somewhere in a biography, authorized or unauthorized, one should be able to get a glimmering of the root of such a metamorphosis. It doesn't seem to be here.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

SOME 30 years ago Frank Billings was Chicago's greatest family doctor. He lived with his daughter, and here's a story she told about him:

He came home terribly blue one night and said: "Well, I've killed a man." She remonstrated with him, but he went on:

"I couldn't help it. It's all the fault of these people who call me the last hope. I was summoned to just such a case today. The wife met me at the door and said: 'My poor husband is so low that our own doctor has given him up; so I have called you as our last hope. But my husband doesn't know I have. So if he regains consciousness please tell him that you are Dr. Smith—because if he knew Dr. Billings had come he'd know how desperate his case is.'

"I agreed, and went up to his room. While I examined his heart, he asked: 'Who's this?' 'Only Dr. Smith, dear,' said his wife. But the poor devil opened one eye, and when he caught sight of me, damned if he didn't rear right up in bed. 'O, my God, no; it's Billings!' he shouted. And he fell back dead."

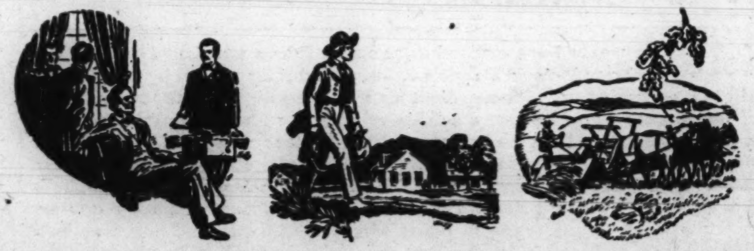
Anybody who has ever attended autographing parties knows that sometimes they sparkle and sometimes they don't. . . . One held at Field's the other day did. . . . That was because it was enlivened by the guest of honor, Ernest Poole, with stories from his new book, "Giants Gone: Men Who Made Chicago."



Illustrations by C. B. Falls for Ernest Poole's "Giants Gone: Men Who Made Chicago." (Whittlesey House.)

"I'm a story teller," Mr. Poole said, "and 'Giants Gone' is an attempt to picture the growth of the body and spirit of Chicago thru stories of the work and lives of 20 of its leaders whom I knew thru their descendants and their friends." . . . As Arthur Frederic Otis set forth in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, "the book is enriched by intimate anecdotes, resulting in sidelights on phases of personality seldom revealed in such an account." . . . The Billings [illegible]ecdote was recited to the author by the famous doctor's daughter. . . . [illegible]'s another one, told, appropriately enough, in the store founded by Marshall Field:

"Back in the '90s Mr. Field was playing golf one day at Wheaton with Peter Dunne of 'Mr. Dooley' fame. When he made a very lousy drive Dunne asked him:

"'Mr. Field, would you like to make a fine long drive?'

"'I certainly would, Pete.'

"'All right,' said Dunne, and he took from his pocket a dollar bill. 'Wrap this around your ball. You can make a dollar go farther than any man I've ever known!'

"And Marshall Field certainly could do that—for here in Chicago, starting from scratch as a clerk at $8 a week, he built the greatest retail and wholesale business of its kind in the west."

• • •

Ernest Poole hasn't lived here in years, but he was born in Chicago, and spent the first 18 years of his life here. . . . His father was Abram Poole, a leader in the business, social, and religious life of this city from the '70s until the turn of the century. . . . The family home is still standing at the corner of Michigan avenue and Erie street. . . . Ernest has had a notable career as newspaper correspondent, magazine writer, and novelist. . . . His first novel, "The Harbor," gained him a lot of attention, and the second, "His Family," was awarded the Pulitzer prize. . . . He now divides his time between New York and the White mountains. . . . His son, William Poole, is one of the editors of Whittlesey House.

"Giants Gone" has the stuff that Chicago is made of and is proud of. . . . It should shoot to the top of the best seller lists here, and stay there quite a while.

Readable Tale of Professor Lacks Reality

"A CIRCLE IN THE WATER," by Helen Hull. [Coward-McCann.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

Hilary and Vera Sedgewick are any young Mr. and Mrs. America with a small house, a small son, a small income and, in this case, a typewriter.

Hilary, a young college professor, ambitious and burning, wrote a novel, a bitter book, pouring out all the hate and sordid truth that had filled his own unhappy childhood on a New England farm. The book was so good that the young professor was promptly dismissed by a narrow minded, misunderstanding college faculty which couldn't tolerate the harsh truth.

Next came months of struggle in a crowded New York apartment where Hilary struggled with a second book, and Vera, love humbled, worked beside him, waiting for him to find himself. Her life was one of exemplary wifely devotion to a husband who had an incurable "girls in summer dresses" complex. She was patient thru the succession of his amours.

Because of a lack of money and perseverance, Hilary abandoned his literary ideals. He began to sully his typewriter with pulpy best-sellers and stories for slick paper magazines until, by the time he and Vera had decided on a divorce, he was able to maintain a swank New York apartment and a spacious, landscaped house in the country. Both Vera and Hilary married again.

The book, tho thoroly readable, is unsatisfying. It lacks warmth and reality and its standardized characters don't even fall in love with credibility. Miss Hull accuses her character, Hilary, of selling his writing talents up the river purely for the sake of making a living. One might wonder if the author hasn't been tempted to do the same thing.

Vivid Tale Depicts Wartime Political Scene in America

"THE LAND I LIVE," by Stephen Longstreet. [Random House, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

This one gets off to a running start toward the goal of popular favor—in spite of the overstrained title—because the poor boy who became President is an integral and ineradicable part of American folklore.

The Ormsbee family reversed the pattern of migration, moving east to an industrial city named Antioch. The time coincides roughly with four decades of this century, plus enough more to end the war. Here Gramp, a white whiskered old war horse who got a cracked shinbone at Cold Harbor, acquired a sizable chunk of a nearby mountain range [topography is incidental], and spent his declining years in a series of joyous lawsuits against the greedy interests which coveted the timber on the hills and the minerals under them. Gramp invariably lost, but how he did enjoy the fighting!

Pete Ormsbee, ex-logger, disabled in an accident and turned cabinet maker, devoted himself to being a husband to Gramp's daughter and a father, of sorts, to four boys, each of whom bore a name beginning with the letter D. David tells the story. David was an artist who alternated his studies [New York, Paris, China] with spells of acting as secretary and alter ego to Driscoll. Dennis was a religious fanatic who tried one brand of religion after another, and finally found peace as an obscure preacher. Douglas was a mill hand, with a flair for machinery and a craze for boats, which was, in time, to make him a great shipping and shipbuilding magnate, and a mighty power when it came to slapping boats together faster than subs could sink them.

• • •

That accounts for all but Vicky, the mother. She was small and very pretty and bossy, a trifle vulgar and inordinately ambitious. She goaded the silent, plodding Pete into throwing together jerry-built houses for mill hands [that was during World War I.], making a paper fortune, and losing it all in the crash. The boys didn't need any goading.

But the story, for all the interesting side excursions, belongs to Dris. He began as errand boy for the local political boss; the machine's lawyer saw him thru his bar examinations. He kicked the machine overboard and ran for the state legislature, only to find the machine behind him. Machines change candidates and policies whenever it becomes profitable to do so.

He married the beautiful daughter of the city's leading banker-industrialist. The marriage wasn't happy; some obscure incompatibility, some physical or mental quirk set the lovely Linda to drinking herself to death. By that time he was governor, and had crammed thru a reluctant legislature a bill, reminiscent of Lázaro Cárdenas, designed to break up large land holdings and make homesteads of them. Then a businesslike lady, former art student and presently running a publicity bureau, took him in hand, wangled the boss into appointing him United States senator for an unexpired term, married him, and set out to reach the heights.

But Dris wasn't ambitious; he sired a bill, doomed to be stillborn, which would take over all war industries and pay for them in Victory bonds. Then he went back home and began farming, that being the only way he could serve the war effort. But he was the Little Man's Friend, and the people called him, like Cincinnatus, from the plow to carry the banner for the "out" party in the national elections.

• • •

The book is packed with incident, with characters. Ned Wonderly, the boss; Jake Fry, the machine lawyer; Cabot Carson, Boston Brahmin, Voltairean philosopher and art dilettante; gin drinking Aunt Netta and visionary Uncle Thoreau; Cap Roc—crippled in the head from a Spanish war wound—whose bloody battle with the minions of the corporations is a lusty two-gun western thriller in its own right; all these are real people, if a trifle off pattern, alive and kicking.

The book is a big slab of American life, lusty and unconquerable, and a first rate piece of story telling, vivid and virile, with a happy balance between realism and idealism.

"WORLD WITHOUT END," by Gilbert Frankau. [Dutton, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan.

There used to be—and perhaps still is—a sort of standardized clown act which was common to all circuses. A clown carrying a large box would run out into the center ring, followed by two or three yelping and frisking fox terriers or poodles. Suddenly he would stop short, set down his box, open the lid, grab the dogs, and pop them one at a time, with mysterious flourishes, into the container. Slamming the lid down, he would ostentatiously fit a crank into the side of the box, grind away at it—and behold, to the noisy delight of the stands, a string of sausages would slowly issue from the side.

Such excitement, such a popping in of the basic ingredients, such an easy and certain grinding out of so astonishingly predictable a product, such flourishes and such noisy delight, are all to be found in Gilbert Frankau's twentieth novel, "World Without End." This novel differs from the circus trick, however, in that it is not supposed to be funny.

The circus trick was a good one, as circus tricks go; it achieved its purpose. Maybe this book is a good one, too, as such books go. At least one must marvel at the ingenuity of the work, even while he realizes that this swift but bulky saga of a brave, debonair, true blue, handsome, sensitive, virile, and utterly incredible hero [to whom befall any number of fantastic and perhaps predictable adventures] is, after all, only the same old sausage.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

SPEAKING of coincidences: On the day the French battleship Richelieu was discovered in New York harbor, a new historical novel about Cardinal Richelieu dropped on the desks of the nation's literary editors. It is "The Arm and the Darkness," by Taylor Caldwell, first name Janet and in domestic life Mrs. Marcus Reback, who has a good record in the lending library trade.

• • •

We have kept no count of the Richelieu novels that have been printed since Athos, Porthos, Aramis, and D'Artagnan saved the honor of Anne of Austria, but we suspect that if placed end to end they might reach from the birthplace of Alexandre Dumas père to the tomb of Bulwer-Lytton. The subject may be a novelty, however, to readers of this generation, who suffer from spiritual rickets because they have been deprived of proper romantic nourishment.

• • •

When the wave of Japanese conquest swept over the East Indies, which should be called "the Conrad country," we expressed a belief that a revival of interest in Joseph Conrad would follow. Sure enough, out came "The Conrad Argosy," to receive many nominations on "ten best" lists. Now comes a book of memoirs, "Conrad and His Contemporaries," by J. H. Retinger, a Pole transplanted, like Conrad, into English soil. [Roy Publishers; to be issued Feb. 23]. The two were close friends, and also collaborators on a never completed dramatization of "Nostromo."

• • •

The current fashion for Russian reading should include Conrad's "Under Western Eyes." It has often caused us to remark that one of the best Russian novels was written by a Pole in English.

• • •

Two versions of the Rickenbacker saga are running neck-and-neck in a race toward book publication. One is Rickenbacker's own story; the other is the diary of Lt. Whittaker, as published serially in THE TRIBUNE, in expanded form. The odds seem to be on Whittaker, who will be published by Dutton, sponsors of Stanley Johnston's "Queen of the Flat-Tops." A sonnet called "Miracle of Rain," recently printed in THE TRIBUNE'S Line O' Type or Two column, will garnish the Whittaker story, perhaps on the jacket. It will unveil the poet "Quizzicuss" under his real name, John Hooks of Chicago.

• • •

Some learned doctor of letters should study the effect of literature in forming the character of the generation that reads it. For example, in the western states of this nation there is much imitation of characters in wild western fiction. Somerset Maugham touches on this point in his introduction to "Tellers of Tales," an anthology of short stories [Garden City Publishing company]. He says:

"I know from my own experience that, 20 years after Kipling wrote his first important stories, there were men scattered about the outlying parts of the world who would never have been just what they were if he had not written them."

• • •

Among Chicago's numerous circles and dinner clubs of intellectual bent is a group of Civil war experts [not veterans], given to furious arguments over fine points of strategy. We hope that they will not overlook "The Life of Johnny Reb," a carefully documented study of the common soldiers of the Confederacy, by Bell Irvin Wiley [Bobbs-Merrill; publication date March 1]. Its illustrations are numerous and fascinating.

• • •

The new era of railroad transportation has developed a large population of hobbyists who enjoy a dream life of streamliners. They go in for watching and snapshooting streamliners, lunching on streamliners in terminals, and playing with toy railroads at home like infatuated juveniles. These addicts should rejoice in "Railroading from the Head End," by S. Kip Farrington Jr. [Doubleday, Doran]. Its emphasis is upon up-to-date machines and methods, and it carries 40 illustrations in half-tone.

Prayer before battle is an ancient custom, but if observed in this war, the shorter the better. An example of the piety of Adm. Nelson might be recommended:

"We trust to the Great Disposer of all events, and to the justice of our cause. I thank God for this great opportunity of doing my duty."

• • •

This may be found, among hundreds of other prayers for occasions, in "A Chain of Prayer Across the Ages," compiled by Selina Fitzherbert Fox [Dutton; sixth and new American edition].

For Children's Authors.

A prize of $1,250 has been announced for the best juvenile book manuscript submitted before March 31. The book will be published by Julian Messner, Inc. Entry blanks and information may be obtained by writing Miss Helen Hoke, executive director, Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation, 8 West 40th street, New York City.

Missing Cats and Herring: Murder Clues

"MURDER BY INCHES," by Stanley Hopkins Jr. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.]

Reviewed by Drexel Drake.

The coroner's jury was content to call it suicide when Ed Sharp, owner of the Herald in the little Long Island town of Cheswick, was found dead in his office. That was not a wholly unreasonable conclusion. There was the empty glass beside the body, and a brief farewell note in the typewriter. But ruthless plotting and devastation by a band of saboteurs would have gone on without interruption if a small group of Sharp's friends and associates had not followed the slimmest of clews to find the real explanation of his death.

The story is narrated pleasantly by Angela Thorpe, just out of college and waiting to take up a teaching post. She became allied with a newcomer in the community who displayed a puzzling interest in Sharp's death. A marked ruler and a herring label, ignored by the police, assumed importance in the case. Also, cats in the town formed a habit of disappearing.

This story has a competent plot.

• • •

"SIREN IN THE NIGHT," by Leslie Ford. [Scribner's, $2.]

Col. Primrose and Mrs. Grace Latham, with the competent assistance of Sergt. Buck, are still engaged in mingling with folks of more or less social prominence and managing to solve puzzling murders. For this story, the trio transferred activities from Washington to San Francisco, where they encountered murder during a blackout. Loring Kimball, public benefactor, was poisoned. Suspicion pointed in embarrassing directions. A moving drama of long nursed hatred was uncovered.

• • •

"THE BLACK ANGEL," by Cornell Woolrich. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

It was no secret to Alberta Murray that the affections of Kirk, her husband of two years, were slipping. For many days he hadn't called her Angel Face. Then she found his hidden suitaces, packed ready for a trip. She went to the apartment of the other woman—Mia—and found Mia's strangled corpse. Kirk was tried for the murder and sentenced to die. Then the story: Alberta's gruelling sacrifice to save Kirk's life. One after another, she sought the other men in Mia's life, confident she would find the murderer. This is heavy tragedy, hauntingly presented, with no light moments.

• • •

"MURDER THRU THE LOOKING GLASS," by Michael Venning. [Coward-McCann, $2.]

Was the young man on the train Jeffrey Bruno, pulp writer, or was he John Blake, sought by the police for the murder of wealthy Rufus Carrington? Or, was he both? Only an author's strong faith in extravagantly eccentric [and notoriously meandering] technique could account for the intense enterprise with which these questions are long suspended, but eventually answered. If you bear with it, you'll catch up with an elaborate murder conspiracy plot at about page 220.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Back in 1938 I warned Sonja Henie to stop, look, and listen—that she had a rival in the offing. . . "Such a tiny rival! Such a very YOUNG rival! Such a whiz BANG of a little skater . . . a miniature Sonja Henie, no less. . . ."

Today I could say the same words about Irene Dare who, in "Silver Skates," offers Belita the same sort of competition that she did the redoubtable Sonja in "Breaking the Ice."

Tho she's five years older, Irene doesn't look it and she's still as tiny as she appeared when she first left me "stirred and marveling. . . ."

• • •

"Silver Skates" is the sunshine and light of the Palace's co-featured films. After you shudder over the muck and pain of naziism as unreeled in "Hitler's Children" it's a blessed relief to come out into the daylight of smiles and music and beautiful, lithe unafraid bodies that can be said to symbolize the same.

The picture is alive with thrilling skating numbers, backgrounded by a neat but unremarkable story. Claire, owner of an ice show and engaged to her orchestra leader, is about to become bankrupt because Belita, star of the show, insists on quitting to become just a wife. To the rescue, after many thises, thats, and thoses, comes Katrina, an orphaned refugee, who has entered Claire's life while in search of an uncle now in the service. Katrina saves the day for the show—and the finale is a happy and beautiful one.

• • •

Belita, Eugene Turner, who dances with her, and Frick and Frack, the comedians, are all champions and all perfectly amazing. . . . You simply DON'T know how they do it! As for wee Irene—well, I've told you about her.

The picture is magnificently staged and costumed. . . . Handsome Patricia Morison, smiling Kenny Baker and an able cast of nonskaters adapt themselves pliantly to the story's requirements. . . . Songs are fairly melodious. . . . Among them are "A Girl Like You," "Lovely Lady," "Love Is a Beautiful Thing," and "A Song of the Sea."

See you tomorrow.

NAZI PAWN

Bonita Granville's life is anything but one of sunshine and roses in "Hitler's Children." She plays a Nazi cat'spaw. Palace.

Vaudeville

Chicago theater. The headliner this week is the radio singer and comedienne, Beatrice Kay, who is making her first local appearances. For more than four years Miss Kay has been featured on the network radio program, "The Gay Nineties," and she has won popularity for her satirizing of period songs. At the Chicago Miss Kay is presented in a Gay nineties production and sings oldtime ballads, including "I Don't Care," in the manner of Eva Tanguay. Elsewhere the bill includes Paul Gerrits, roller skating monologist; the harmony team of Art and Bob Coleman; the Chicago theater ballet, and the badminton team of Davidson and La Forge.

Rialto theater. Myrna Dean, "daughter of one of the country's foremost physical culturists," and also "a startlingly pronounced blonde," heads a show whose roster also includes Paul West, Meggs Lexiing, Lew Fine, Joan Monroe, and Helen Marie Watson.

Keeping Up with Hollywood

-By Ed Sullivan

In the rain and the snow of New York, Jimmy Jemail, the Inquiring Photographer of The News, rapped on various theatrical dressing room doors and posed an interesting question to performers. . . . Asked Jemail: "Do you feel the emotions you portray when acting?" . . . Replied Eugenie Leontovich, appearing in "Dark Eyes" at the Belasco theater, "Yes." . . . Differed Dorothy Stickney, co-star of "Life with Father" at the Empire, "No." . . . Veteran Effie Shannon, in "Arsenic and Old Lace," agreed that in the first few performances a performer can feel the emotions, but that in a long run, it is difficult if not impossible. . . . Florence Eldridge, appearing in the off-discussed "The Skin of Our Teeth," answered: "The actress' job is to recreate, every evening, the emotions of the character she is playing, but she must not lose herself completely in these emotions. She must always keep the critical element of her mind functioning, to avoid losing herself in the character's emotions."

Dorothy Stickney.

The query, and its varying replies, suggests that this question is one of those which came first the chicken or the egg things. . . . And it brings to light the curious problem presented to performers in Hollywood, who without audience reaction, must generate emotion and create shadings. . . . Not only that, but your movie performer, unlike the stage performer, is not even permitted to play his scenes consecutively. . . . The last scenes of a picture, very easily, may be filmed a few days after shooting starts and the opening scenes, conversely, may be filmed last. . . . The answer is, of course, that a performer is as sound as his technique, and good lines don't hurt. . . . The great performer will respond better to great lines and direction than the ordinary workman.

Sarah Bernhardt, they tell me, would play a scene of agonizing intensity and then stand in the wings, dry-eyed and calm, a few minutes later and watch the other members of the cast. . . . The spell she created on the stage did not affect her personal emotions. . . . But her technique was vast enough and deep enough to permit her, on stage, to create an authentic counterfeit. . . . Just as star comedians can keep an audience howling and then walk off stage, after bowing, and scream unhappily that the horse he played in the second race ran out of the money.

• • •

Here, I think, is a partial explanation of these things, which puzzle those who haven't come in close contact with the stage. . . . An actor, by virtue of his experience, learns that there are certain expressions to denote certain moods and then, by practice, learns to make them appear as spontaneous reactions to set situations. . . . In other words, he learns to hold a mirror up to natural attitudes without letting you know that what you are observing has been carefully set. . . . His voice, his hands, the posture of his body all enter into the charming conspiracy, and lighting effects are part of it. . . . Tense scenes play at their tensest when the lighting key is low; gay scenes play gayest when the lighting key is high. . . . Stage directors and movie directors and cameramen will tell you something about lighting. The late John Barrymore, the last time I interviewed him, pointed out that much of the tremendous success of his "Hamlet" was owed to the genius of his stage electrician.

Understanding these things, you are not dismayed or disillusioned when you learn that Greer Garson rebelled at the very thought of playing "Mrs. Miniver." . . . Clark Gable and Charles Laughton hooted when Director Frank Lloyd first approached them with "Mutiny on the Bounty." . . . Now if actors and actresses lived deeply in their rôles, Greer Garson inevitably must have flopped as "Mrs. Miniver" because she disbelieved the character. . . . And Laughton and Gable, disliking their rôles and questioning the fans' acceptance of them as Capt. Bligh and Mr. Christian, would have been shipwrecked. . . . That these things didn't happen is because their training, expressed as technique, enabled them to interpret lines and situations so brilliantly that you were persuaded that the counterfeits you were watching were in truth coin of the realm.

• • •

In other new pictures the question of authentic emotion need not enter. . . . "Andy Hardy's Double Life," and "Dr. Gillespie's New Assistant," are continuations of series in which well remembered figures fit snugly into well remembered rôles. . . . The critics report that they'd like to see some new formulas in each, while granting that they've already run the gamut. . . . Newcomer Van Johnson, in the Gillespie series, won high marks; Esther Williams, as a newcomer to the Hardy menage, is greeted on the screen by whistling from the juveniles, indicating the steamlined figure which she once propelled so rapidly thru California's championship swimming pools has found a new and appreciative audience.

This Town Called Hollywood

By Philip Scheuer

Life, as the poets have noted, plays funny tricks. From 1916 to 1918, an Austrian named Erich von Stroheim was much in demand as an actor of German villains. He epitomized the American idea of a swaggering, be-monocled Prussian officer in such atrocity propaganda movies as "Heart of Humanity," "Hearts of the World," and "The Hun Within."

With the end of World War I. Von Stroheim turned to directing. He was the first great realist of the screen, as D. W. Griffith was its first starry-eyed romanticist. His "Greed" [1924], filmed in 27 reels and released in half that, wrought an incalculable effect on production everywhere—from Hollywood to Berlin. Some critics believe that with it the motion picture came of age.

"Greed" wasn't Von Stroheim's first notable film, but it was almost his last. In 1925 he directed "The Merry Widow," with Mae Murray and John Gilbert, a romance which he filled with the same cynical, decadent—yet curiously, sensually alive—quality which had distinguished his earlier works, among them "Blind Husbands" and "Foolish Wives."

• • •

By then, however, Louis B. Mayer and other executives were rebelling at his expenditures, which invariably ran into millions. Von Stroheim's "The Wedding March," made a year later for Paramount, fared indifferently and "Von was reputed to be washed up." For a couple of years it looked as if he was.

Erich von Stroheim.

Then, in 1929, he resumed acting—this time in the talkies. He portrayed a ventriloquist in "The Great Gabbo." The once fearsome, bull-necked heavy, his accent more suggestive of Brooklyn than Vienna, seemed more docile than menacing. He continued playing—to moderate approval—for several years in Hollywood; and then suddenly went to France. There he became the most sought-after star who had ever migrated to that realistic land and was twice decorated. His salary was about $1,000, a day—and he worked many days. In "Grande Illusion," perhaps his finest of 20 films abroad, he played a German officer—but with a difference. "Grande Illusion" was a plea for pacifism.

• • •

The new war drove "Von" back to his adopted America. Offered the part of Himself in the wacky stage melodrama, "Arsenic and Old Lace," he accepted when he learned that Bela Lugosi had already played it. "If he could get away with it with his accent, I felt that I could, too," he says. Von Stroheim "got away with it" for two years.

His career had now run almost a full cycle. Then, a couple of months ago, Paramount asked him to come back and do a picture. The script looked good, and "Von" agreed. Last week, must of the swagger gone but still true to his breed, he was creating the rôle of Marshal Erwin Rommel, big boss of Hitler's Afrika corps, in "Five Graves to Cairo." . . . Another German officer in another World war.

• • •

The Von Stroheim of today is an enigma, a man of colliding emotions—embittered one moment at the tricks that men and fate have played upon him, proud the next that he has come back as far as he has, and in the next shrugging off both failure and success as matters of equal indifference. I talked to him at his apartment. He is heavy-set but not the big bruiser I remembered from my youth. This, then, was the Erich von Stroheim who was once known far and wide as "the man you love to hate!"

At worst, I thought, he is a man you'd hate to love.

• • •

"I hope," he said humorously, "that I never run into Rommel—or, rather, that Rommel never runs into me!" He is disappointed that his lines are being handed to him day by day, much preferring to interpret "instead of just acting what's written," altho he must be aware that history may even now be putting the finishing touches to the script—and the marshal. He doesn't mind portraying Nazis "with character," but he draws the line at sheer blind brutality. For this reason he turned down a Gestapo part in "Hostages" and as quickly accepted that of another German in "The North Star." He will play an officer who pays lip service to the cause without believing it, and whose lack of sincerity finally gets him shot by his own side.

Direct again? Of course he'd like to—and may, soon, down in Mexico. Altho Von Stroheim completed only seven productions in 14 years, those seven did much to make the cinema—and ungrateful Hollywood—great. My good wishes go with him.

PEACEFUL

Henreid Goes on 5-Day Week; Hasn't Gas Enough for 6

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (AP).—War has put a "B" in Paul Henreid's bonnet and he's not complaining. Henreid lives in Brentwood, 20 miles from his studio in Burbank. He has a "B" card and an arrangement with his studio whereby he is not required to work on a picture six days in any one week. He has just enough gasoline to get to work five times each week.

"I do my shopping to and from work," he explained. "I have never finished a week with more than a cupful of gasoline."

Michie's New Book Tells How to Soften Up Nazis with Bombs

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

OF ALL the correspondents reporting this war, Allan A. Michie seems to be the most agile. Since he got tired of being an office boy in a Chicago law office and wangled a job from Time, he seems to have been racing from one battlefield to another. After working for Time he went to Reader's Digest, and then he wrote "Retreat to Victory" on the basis of his experiences in Crete, Syria, Egypt, and Libya, throwing in a slice of the Pacific for good measure. He says he was on the wrong end of about 600 air raids in Britain; so he saw how towns were bombed and what airplanes can do.

His observations and airplane trips made him certain that Germany can be bombed effectively, but he doesn't like the way we are doing it or the planes we are using. In England the censorship—American—wouldn't let him file stories about the defects of our bombers; so he started to write a book about them. The rush that he is everlastingly in applies also to his books. He had to get his argument over to the American public. But time was running out. In a month, a few weeks, Germany would be in a better position. So he wrote "The Air Offensive Against Germany." He finished the preface on Jan. 29.

Henry Holt & Co. rushed the book to the press and with the help of special deliveries managed to get copies into the bookstores by Feb. 18, the date set for publication. So there it is, bristling with arguments for better bombers and more bombing, for the "softening up" that must wreck German plants if we are not to pay for the invasion with a tremendous list of casualties.

Michie knows it can be done. It ought to be done so thoroly, he says, that when von Rundstedt telephones Krupp's for more equipment and munitions there won't even be a Krupp's left to answer the telephone.

More Courage Needed.

This is the time for plain talk, and we can stand much more of it than we are getting. All good, forceful writing is controversial these days, but the way of an author who takes sides is by no means smooth. If you take a positive position, one way or another, you make enemies. Unless our correspondents are courageous and speak out, we cannot know the truth. Fortunately, many of them have plenty of courage.

Ruth Mitchell, sister of our airplane hero, "Billy" Mitchell, has the courage to speak out. A number of years ago she visited the Balkans and became deeply interested in the Serbian nation. She learned a great deal about Serbian aspirations, and this gave her views unexpected usefulness in Washington when the fight between the partisans and the conservatives began in Yugo-Slavia. Miss Mitchell has been conferring with Col. W. J. Donovan and other experts in Washington. She has put her impressions into a book, "My Chetnik Brothers," which Oxford University Press will publish.

Betty Kirk is another woman with decided views on foreign affairs. Her field is Mexico. She opposes extremes in politics and approves the steps taken by President Camacho to steer a course that will benefit the Mexican people as a whole without making any one group paramount. Her book, "Covering the Mexican Front," was published a few months ago. In it she deplored the attempts of the conservative movement, which is allied with the Falangists of Spain, to get a foothold. She said that the Franco intelligence organization known as the SIM had taken over axis activities in Mexico and was dangerous to the United States. She is now in New York City, turning to article writing to express her views. Collier's will carry her views on Mexico in the near future.

He's Done It Again.

I talked with Harry E. Maule, one of the editors of Random House, just after he had come from Sinclair Lewis' hotel with the final O. K. of the novelist on the page proofs of his new novel, "Gideon Planish." It went right to press, for publication April 19. "This time," says Maule, who is not given to boasting, "I'm sure he's done it. He has taken the big philanthropic racket, the publicizing of people who are superficial and always grabbing space, and it's going to make a lot of talk. There's a magazine editor in it, for instance—wonder whether people will pin a name on him?" But Lewis has not described any specific individual. He has done what he did in "Babbitt" and "Elmer Gantry"—described men with traits we all recognize, but avoided identification with real people. At present the author is living in a New York City hotel.

Carver in the Movies.

Marc Connelly has agreed to write a motion picture play on the life of George Washington Carver, basing it on the biography by Rackham Holt. He plans to close the deal with Hollywood in a few days. As he wrote "The Green Pastures" on the basis of Roark Bradford's stories, no one will challenge his ability to make a great motion picture out of the Carver biography. First printing of the book, by the way, will be 15,000. "The Green Pastures" was based on "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun." Another of Bradford's successful stories, "Ol' King David an' the Philistine Boys," is being reprinted this week by Harper & Brothers because of its continuing popularity.

Juliet and Joliet.

I have received a number of interesting letters from Chicago and Joliet readers on the subject of the town of Juliet, which preceded Joliet. I am grateful to Spencer LeRoy, of the law offices of Chapman & Cutler, for giving me the legal steps by which Juliet became Joliet. Juliet was laid out by James B. Campbell on June 10, 1834; the name Joliet was not used until Feb. 26, 1845, by act of legislature and the city was incorporated in 1852. A Joliet reader who wants to be known only as Kildare clears up the mystery of the first name. He writes that Campbell was treasurer of the board of canal commissioners and bought 80 acres of canal land for $100; he laid it out in town lots and sold them for from $19 to $108, those on Jefferson street bringing $50. "Like all politicians, even up to the present, he was interested in no one but himself and his family; so he named the embryo city in honor of his daughter, Juliet." Thus we see that if Shakespeare was the godfather of Joliet he was twice removed. Kildare bases his information on a memoir, "Forty Years Ago," by "Long George" Woodruff.

Moon and Its Reactions on Human Beings

"THE STORY OF THE MOON," by Dr. Clyde Fisher, F. R. A. S. [Doubleday, Doran, $3.]

Reviewed by Oliver J. Lee.

The moon is not only the nearest celestial body to the earth in miles, but it is closer to the experience and emotional life of man than any other. The sun is so large, distant, and overpowering that we are like beggars creeping helplessly before its majesty. Stars and even the planets seem remote and impersonal.

But the moon—Ah! She is so near, mellow and friendly that even a callow freshman introduces her into his "poetry" with spoon, loon, and swoon.

Dr. Fisher has given us another notable book of the kind—happily increasing in number—which humanizes the austere and erudite findings of the scientists while keeping contact with the sources and respecting their integrity.

"The Story of the Moon" belongs in everybody's library. Parents need it to answer the questions of their children. Ambitious youth can use it to enrich its romantic appeal. The college professor will learn from it how to present an interesting subject without drying it up in academic jargon.

From theories of the moon's origin, thru its motions, its tidal effects, its functions in eclipses to its intrusions into the literature and folklore of the ages, the author leads his reader on, both delightfully and profitably.

This book will stay on the table and not in the bookcase.

Pollock's Story of His Career

"HARVEST OF MY YEARS," by Channing Pollock. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Cecil Smith.

The degree of your enjoyment of Channing Pollock's autobiography will depend largely upon the degree to which you approve of the author's shrewd, commercialized moralizing. As playwright and author Mr. Pollock has carved himself out a profitable career purveying simple generalizations about human conduct, motives, and aspirations by putting them in a sententious form which seems to have been palatable to a large, if specialized, public.

His mind does not appeal to this reviewer, but in a way his native cleverness does. His book of memoirs traces his evolution thru the developing stages of a busy career which included a considerable period of press agentry for William A. Brady and Lee Shubert before he had earned a sufficient backlog to enable him to devote himself exclusively to play writing.

Possessed of an easy and readable style and a good memory for anecdotes, Mr. Pollock provides many interesting mementos of the theater in the early days of the 20th century, and also a particularly evocative chaper on El Salvador, where his father was American consul in the late 19th century.

Autographing Party.

Stanley Johnston of THE TRIBUNE staff will autograph copies of his book, "Queen of the Flat-Tops," in the book department at the Marshall Field store next Saturday afternoon, starting at 2:30. He has promised to make a short talk about his experiences in the Pacific.

Woman Looks at Confusing Malaya Fight

"POST MORTEM ON MALAYA," by Virginia Thompson. [Macmillan, $3.]

Reviewed by Philo M. Buck Jr.

This title is well chosen, tho the book leaves even a careful reader a little confused. The author describes conditions that preceded and accompanied the death of an order in the orient. The war merely hastened an end that was inevitable.

For the order in Malaya, as even a casual visitor could feel, was unstable.

It had two basic motives, political exigency and trade. The one because Singapore became, quite without design at first, the bastion of the British empire in the orient. The other because tin and rubber were two commodities needed in the markets of the world. Add to these copra, for its vegetable oils, and you have the story of the defense of Singapore and why the ports of Penang, Singapore, Port Swettenham and Malacca were crowded with the ships of all nations.

• • •

British governors did what they could. First were the complexities due to differences in race: Malays, good natured, more or less easy going, unambitious, and unpolitical; Indians, emigrants from India, more progressive, shopkeepers and industrial leaders, speculators, and beginning to be politically restless, after the manner of the Indians back home; Chinese, long established in Malaya, progressive, industrious, having a growing share in the industry, tin and rubber, of the country, and economically and politically alert.

The Malays were Muslims, the Indians Hindus, the Chinese, more or less possessing the easy unorthodoxy of commercial China. All these differences made for an unnatural social, economic, and political life. Down at the bottom was the often exploited labor for the tin mines and rubber plantations. To give these mixed peoples an idea of a national life, when both Indians and Chinese looked abroad for their homes and traditions, would be something of a problem.

• • •

Then to complicate the difficulties was the nature of the government. Only Singapore and Penang were British possessions. The Federated Malay States and the Unfederated States were ruled by sultans, under British protectorate. Such a government was bound to be anomalous.

In a period of peace, things might have gone on for years, and a new order might have replaced the old. In time of war, listlessness and the fall of Singapore resulted.

The book has a mass of well documented fact, and covers well the whole social, political and economic life of the country.

YOUR LITERARY I. Q.

By Howard Collins.

BLIND CHARACTERS IN LITERATURE.

Briefly described below are 10 literary figures who are conspicuous because they were blind. With how many of them are you acquainted? Answers are on page 13.

1. When his lunatic wife set fire to the house where she was confined on the top floor, this gentleman was blinded in an attempt to rescue her.

Joseph Andrews Ethan Frome Ernest Pontifex
Charles Primrose Edward Rochester.

2. A sword cut on his head, received while he was a war correspondent, gradually brought blindness to this English artist.

William Bagot Dick Heldar Harold Skimpole
Charles Strickland James Triplet.

3. Altho a thick volcanic ash impeded the progress of most people in the stricken city, it was no handicap to this blind flower girl as she led the man she loved and his sweetheart to safety.

Aida Diana Eurydice Fantine Nydia.

4. Tho blind, he occasionally assists his private detective friend in criminal investigations; he has also written several articles on his hobby, numismatics.

Max Carrados Thatcher Colt Craig Kennedy
Drury Lane Asey Mayo.

5. This zealous missionary was so nearly blind that he mistook a flock of penguins for human beings and baptized them, causing complications.

Mr. Hooper St. Mael Fr. Perrault Rustico Tartuffe.

Book News and Reviews

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IT is good to find a continuing interest in Jules Verne, the great story teller, one of the giants of his craft. His biography, by George H. Waltz Jr., reviewed by Prof. Kenneth Kaufman in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, is the second to appear in English in less than two years, but it is welcome. He was not just an early Edgar Rice Burroughs, and he has more than just a clinical interest as a literary phenomenon. Dismissed as negligible by the earnest compilers of Outlines, with solemn thoughts brooding under their tall hats, Verne may yet creep into an Invitation to Learning program some Sunday morning for a nod of benevolent recognition.

Few writers in the long line of world entertainers contributed more to human happiness than this French magician, who anticipated most of the marvels of the 19th century, and is still a few strokes up on Science in the approach to the technological promised land. He was the Scheherazade of his time—a master fantasist—and, altho he founded a school of popular fiction that persists to this hour, there has been nobody just like him since. At his pseudo-scientific best, H. G. Wells is only his admiring pupil.

Looking Into the Future.

Not many readers, it may be assumed, are familiar with Verne's satirical—and penetrating—prophecy of the future, first published in America in 1889. Looking forward 1,000 years, he saw this country as the leading world power, and Francis Benett—a caricature of James Gordon Bennett—the most powerful figure of the new civilization. In the prediction, roads 100 yards wide are lined with blocks of sky scrapers over which hover aërial liners. All towns contain 12,000,000 or more inhabitants. The landscape between them is obliterated by vast webs of electric power lines. Europe and America are connected by underground railways and trains move at incredible speed. Moving sidewalks save the legs of pedestrians. There is a limited control of weather. All houses are equipped with combination telephone and television sets. News of the world is broadcast continuously to subscribers who see the actual events as they occur while listening to synchronized comment. Contact has been established with Venus and Mercury and Mars. From Benett's great newspaper building enormous searchlights project gay pictures and seductive advertising copy on the clouds. . . .

And so on. It is a picture not without a certain feverish charm, but a bit terrifying to a sentimentalist born in horse and buggy days. I would rather read about it than participate in it.

Lost—One Contributor.

In the autumn of the year 1879, during the last days of the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes, called "Granny Hayes" by his opponents, a young Scotsman, who rather fancied himself as a writer, crossed the Atlantic by immigrant ship to New York, then continued across the American continent to the Pacific coast in one of the barbarous immigrant trains of the period. The seeds of tuberculosis were in him; he was a sick man who, in his own words, "had no hope of seeing 31." Also, he was rudely dressed and close to being penniless. Back home in England he had a small reputation for good work and two little books carried his name on their covers—"An Inland Voyage" and "Travels with a Donkey in the Cevennes." He brought with him a number of manuscripts, including one written on the Atlantic crossing, and these he hoped to sell in the course of the brief halt in New York.

In the office of one of the popular magazines that day when the odd foreigner called was a junior clerk or office boy, who saw only a rough looking stranger obviously just off an immigrant ship. He was brief and possibly a little supercilious. Anything the gentleman cared to leave would be handed to the editors, he said loftily. The stranger turned and walked out—and the Century magazine had lost Robert Louis Stevenson.

This true story is a fable for editors and publishers, and perhaps for office boys too. It may even be a fable for young writers.

They Should Not Be Seen.

Are authors people? Isabel Paterson, who is one herself and knows them from China to Peru, suggests an answer in her usual forthright fashion. "Authors," she says, "should never be seen. Their place is in the home. They are no great treat there either, but the family has to put up with them. Whatever they have to give us is in their work."

I find this reckless opinion in a delightful volume—"What Is a Book?"—edited by Dale Warren and published by Houghton Mifflin. It is a symposium of "thoughts about writing," to which 20 distinguished practitioners contributed, and it is the best $3 lecture course—it is not a lecture course, by the way—I have ever seen.

Here is another quotation from the same book: "I never saw an author in my life, saving perhaps one, that did not purr as audibly as a full grown domestic cat on having his fur smoothed the right way by a skilful hand." The man who said that was Oliver Wendell Holmes.

It was Voltaire who said: "If I had a son who wanted to write, I should wring his neck out of sheer paternal affection."

Thugs and Authors.

In spite of the similarity of names, and to avoid some curious confusions, reference librarians should note that there is a difference between Burke and Hare and Burke and Howe.

Burke and Hare were two unattractive thugs who flourished in Edinburgh more than 100 years ago. Their line was selling bodies to the medical schools—a business more or less within the law until they improved on it, first by stealing bodies from the graveyards, then by creating corpses to order.

Burke and Howe, who must hereafter be considered together, are of course the two amiable gentlemen of letters, recently celebrated by Charles Collins; their resurrections are of another and nobler sort. I agree with Mr. Collins: A dictionary of American literature that includes Gene Rhodes, Nick Carter, the Rover Boys, Mutt and Jeff, "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight" and the Line-o'-Type column of this newspaper may be said to be reasonably complete.

Lafcadio Hearn died in 1904. In a letter to a friend, written shortly before his death, there was this epigrammatic comment: "There is a great deal about social reform today, and a great many people talk about socialism. They do not realize that when socialism comes it will be as moral as an adding machine and as merciful as a lawn mower."

4 Dickens Novels Condensed to One-Sixth Original Length

"THE DICKENS DIGEST," condensed by Mary Louise Aswell. [Whittlesey House, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren.

This is not the first attempt to mold the novels of Dickens nearer to the heart's desire.

Some 10 years ago Robert Graves, for instance, rewrote "David Copperfield" under the title "The Real David Copperfield." He set out to strip the novel of its padding and to purge it of its confusions and repetitions.

"The root of the modern difficulty with Dickens," he said, "is in his continual readiness to sacrifice straightforwardness in writing to a tradesman—like exploitation of the now extinct Dear Reader. The Dear Reader public . . . was most leisurely, and, in a literary sense at least, most uncritical. He had so poor an opinion of it that, instead of planning and writing a novel first and then, when it was in shape, serializing it, he formed the habit of turning out an instalment a month, seldom looking more than a couple of months ahead for the development of his plot."

• • •

As a result he had to reintroduce characters, reëmphasize their peculiarities, and patch in connections and justifications. This situation made for confusion and dilution.

Robert Graves set out to correct such structural defects in "David Copperfield," but he set out to do more: to turn Dickens into an honest novelist. He felt that Dickens had honestly stood by the logic of his characters for a third or so of the way, and then, at the point of Emily's flight with Steerforth, he had lost courage to face the moral issues which had been raised in the book. So Mr. Graves set out to write what, in one sense at least, is a novel using the materials provided by Dickens. He intended to mend not only Dickens' manner but his morals.

Mrs. Aswell is less ambitious and more reverent than Mr. Graves. She sets out merely to give the "busy modern reader" and, incidentally, Charles Dickens, the benefit of her five years' experience on the staff of the Reader's Digest. She has reduced "David Copperfield," "Oliver Twist," "Martin Chuzzlewit," and "The Pickwick Papers" from their traditional total of 1,500,000 words to 250,000 words, simply by cutting, without resorting to rewriting or summary. The basic narrative lines are retained, and the old characters, still quite recognizable, go somewhat more briskly about their old business.

• • •

But the job itself raises some questions. It professes to give Dickens without tears. It hopes to recall the "busy modern reader" back to the world which he, presumably, once enjoyed. No, better, it is that old world now streamlined, equipped with modern plumbing, glittering with chromium, and threaded with arterial highways. Or, to change the metaphor, the busy modern reader is brought back to the world he once knew, but only on a Cook's tour, not to live. And this may be the point: when a novel by Dickens is good, it is good—as is "Tom Jones," or "The Brothers Karamazov," or "Vanity Fair," or "War and Peace"—because it gives the reader the sense of living in its special world.

But Mrs. Aswell has rendered a service to those readers who do not want to live in any such worlds, but who do want to pass a course in the Victorian novel or to impress a dinner table.

A Travel Book as Timely as Today's Paper

"REDISCOVERING SOUTH AMERICA," by Harry A. Franck. [Lippincott, $5.]

Reviewed by Mason Warner.

Harry A. Franck has never written a best seller, but for 30 years his tales of travel have sold steadily. "Rediscovering South America" is his twenty-third since "Vagabonding Down the Andes" began building a loyal following.

The latest is a long book, 453 pages, yet Franck addicts will come to the end with regret that he did not write more—and he could easily have done that by giving Colombia and Venezuela as much interesting detail as he has Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil.

His informal and chatty style—or lack of style, if you are inclined to pedantry—permits him to camouflage facts and figures so that the reader is unaware that he is absorbing otherwise dull statistics.

Populations and racial characteristics, export products, topographical features, varying climates with their effects on people, economic conditions, progress of education, manner of living among the natives of the different countries are described as if the author were just telling a friend about his trip.

The book is as timely as today's newspaper or a current magazine. German and Japanese penetration in Brazil, Chile, and Argentina are appraised. He reports the refugees' problem without favor.

GIANTS GONE MEN WHO MADE CHICAGO

By Ernest Poole
Author of "The Harbor"

Some of the famous people included in this book:

WILLIAM OGDEN
JOSEPH MEDILL
ALLAN PINKERTON
POTTER PALMER
P. D ARMOUR
GEORGE PULLMAN
JANE ADDAMS
CHARLES I. YERKES
JULIUS ROSENWALD
THEODORE THOMAS

You will really know your city when you read this absorbing story of the great men now gone who believed in Chicago's future and who took chances that would make men gasp today.

"GIANTS GONE is a distinguished service to Ernest Poole's home city . . . a fascinating narrative," says Arthur Frederic Otis. "Obviously it has been a labor of love made possible not only by tireless research through older chronicles, but by personal contact with people who knew his heroes well. The book is enriched by intimate anecdotes, sidelights on phases of personality seldom revealed in such an account. You will know them all, and you will know Chicago better for knowing them. Your main wonder will be that Poole has crowded so much, so entertainingly, between the covers of his grand work. . . . It's well worth reading."

New Comedy, 'The Moon Vine,' Opens on Broadway

Critic Reports Play Amusing, But Artificial

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special]. — A new comedy this week was one called "The Moon Vine." In it Haila Stoddard, who is the wife of Jack Kirkland, and he the producer of "Tobacco Road," plays the rôle of the heroine, a stage struck young girl living in the deep south.

Haila Stoddard.
[Acme Photo.]

A pleasant little comedy, with not much chance for a long life on Broadway, "The Moon Vine" and its production does suggest an interesting picture of the home life of a play producer who is married to a pretty and talented actress.

Actresses like to act, which is perfectly reasonable. And they are probably pretty restless around the house when they are not acting. Not unreasonable to believe that their nightly greeting for papa, when he returns to his home after a hard day gossiping with his secretary and reading scripts at the office, would be: "Find anything today, dear?" To which his answer five days a week would as reasonably be: "Not a darn thing!"

To which the actress-wife might reply, as she let down the kitchenette and began preparations for the evening eggs: "Seems funny to me that out of all those plays you read not one of them has anything for me." "Well, I didn't write them; it's not my fault," he might counter.

"Did you say anything to Edna Ferber?" she might call after him. "Yes." "What did she say?" "She wasn't interested." "Did you talk with George Kaufman?" "Yes." "What did he say?" "He's tied up." "Did George Abbott telephone?" "No."

And so on, far into the evening meal. After four or five months of this a man, even a man married to a pretty actress, might conceivably feel the strain. His decision then would be to grab the first script that did have a part for the wife and gave the least promise of being salable, to the pictures if not to the public, and take it home for inspection.

• • •

"It is not probable that this is what happened in the Kirkland home. For one thing Mr. Kirkland is well-to-do ["Tobacco Road" played its 10th engagement in Pittsburgh recently], and would have a maid, and for another he may not like eggs. But he evidently did select "The Moon Vine" for Miss Stoddard, and it is not unreasonable to believe he did so to keep her from fretting about not having a stage job.

The Stoddard heroine in "The Moon Vine" is Mariah Meade. Living in Mansfield, La. She gets herself engaged to Roscoe, who goes into the foreign field as a missionary. Immediately he is gone Mariah begins to long for life on the stage, and when Danny, the minister's son, who had run away to become a dancer in vaudeville, comes home for a visit she falls terribly in love with him, and he with her.

To get rid of her missionary, Mariah makes her friend, Ellen, write a letter announcing the death of Roscoe in the Australian wilds. But she overacts her grief so effectively that Danny is led to a revival meeting, where he confesses his feeling of guilt that his love has been responsible for Mariah's collapse.

A little silly and entirely artificial, as you may see, but there are amusing moments, several good comedy characters and Miss Stoddard plays Mariah with a good deal of personal charm. Arthur Franz is the Danny.

Plans are being worked out whereby "The Patriots," Sidney Kingsley's new play centering around the political careers of Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and George Washington, may be released to the members of the National Theater conference immediately. This will not only make the play available to several hundred of the better amateur and semi-professional theater groups from coast to coast, but it will set a precedent that may later result in the formation of a national conference circuit of theaters.

The formation of such a circuit, combined with the coöperation of the Dramatists' guild, will mean that the better Broadway plays will be made available for minor theater centers the country over the same season the plays are produced on Broadway, in place of being held until after the expiration of their local runs.

The new condition will have been made possible by the experience of the Playwrights' company with Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark." This present Broadway hit was written by Mr. Anderson for the members of the national conference and released to them first. Some 75 performances of the play had been given by conference groups in various parts of the country before the Broadway production had passed its 50th performance, and since then the conference record has reached 125 productions.

This action of the Dramatists' guild, and the dramatists' play service, plus the coöperation of the wiser producers, should answer the plea of Paul Green, the playwright and leader of the Carolina playmakers, that the bottleneck that is Broadway, be broken in the interest of the whole theater.

"Broadway is a great force in the American scene," Mr. Green wrote the New York Times recently. "But it is not the whole American scene, not by a long shot. Nor is it, in fact, the most important part. The real American theater, fast coming into being, can be designated as the people's theater, and it stretches, not from 42d street to 52d street by Broadway, but from Seattle to Miami, from San Diego to Portland, Me., and all up and down Old Man River and his tributaries. During the last 15 years it has grown by leaps and bounds. Millions of dollars worth of new theater buildings have been erected in civic centers and at university and college campuses. [It is obvious, of course, that Broadway still is for the present the hot spot of our drama.] But with the upsurging of the people's theater thruout America the old methodology under which it functions needs some amendment to meet the new need."

There are not many left to remember a comedian who dies at 81, after years spent in retirement. But around the country there will be a few hundreds who will recall the late James T. Powers, who died last week in his apartment at the Hotel Ansonia in upper New York. He kept close to Broadway to the end. Not too many years back, he used to walk from the Ansonia at 77th street, to the Players' club in Gramercy park, at 20th street.

He was there two years ago on Edwin Booth's birthday, when the players laid their annual wreath at the foot of the Booth statue in the park.

Jimmy was 81 and well thru with this life. Not many remember him and his squeaky voice. Not many will remember that London, too, thought he was a frightfully funny little fellow when he played with Willie Eduoin in "Fun in a Photograph Gallery." I like the story of his trying as a boy for a clog dancing prize on a Bowery amateur night when his granduncle, in the audience, sought to encourage him. "Kape it up, Jimmie darling," called uncle in a rich Irish brogue; "Kape it up, and when yuh finish, don't shtop!"

Irwin Shaw's New Play Will Contain 52 Scenes

Norman Bel Geddes, Max Reinhardt, and Richard Myers have jointly taken possession of Irwin Shaw's newest play script, "Goose Pimples," with a view to production this season. Reinhardt, of course, will do the staging, and Geddes will provide the scenery. The play is unusual in that it contains 52 scenes, which necessitates virtually a motion picture technique in order to expedite the action. Geddes describes the play as "a realistic psychological study of a young woman who is very much disturbed over her future."

Notes of the Theater

Ruth Chatterton, always a welcome visitor to Chicago's stages, returns next Sunday to appear at the Erlanger theater in Noel Coward's "Private Lives," with her former husband, Ralph Forbes, as her vis-à-vis. It was in this play that Miss Chatterton became the box office leader of the summer theaters last year. So good was the public response to "Private Lives" that she and Mr. Forbes kept on in it after the summer was over, playing in Washington, Baltimore, Boston, and other eastern cities. Before Christmas—when it became apparent that Miss Chatterton had abandoned her intention to act in a new play called "The Incredible Woodhull"—this department ventured the prediction that she would be out here in "Private Lives." And now, after two months of silence, comes the sudden announcement that she will be here, and soon.

Ruth Chatterton.

Miss Chatterton returned to the Chicago stage, after a long spell in the movies, in "Tonight We Dance," a light comedy, in the fall of 1939. Before then her last Chicago appearance had been in 1922, with Henry Miller and Blanche Bates in "The Changelings." Her acting skill and beautiful diction rewon her public instantly, and she returned late in 1940 to give a memorable performance in Shaw's "Pygmalion." Mr. Forbes last played here, and with distinction, in Katharine Cornell's production of Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma" in the fall of 1941.

• • •

Burton Holmes chooses the timely topic of "North Africa" for his second lecture in Orchestra hall this week, on Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon. This is a pre-war, peace time visit, he indicates, and not a war lecture. It includes such crucial points of interest as Dakar, Gibraltar, Casablanca, Morocco generally, Algeria, Tunisia, Malta, Tripoli, Libya, and Suez. The third lecture, next week, will be on "New England."

• • •

With a deep salaam, this department hands the custody of affairs at the Civic Opera house back to the music page. The big theater closed the most prosperous five week period in its 13½ year history last night, with the departure of "Lady in the Dark," which grossed $250,000 or more between Jan. 19 and Feb. 20. For the next weeks, and perhaps months, the Civic Opera house will be devoted to its more usual pursuits, such as Ballet Theater, which opens Wednesday, and opera—probably the New York Metropolitan—later in the season.

The use of so large a theater for an entertainment planned for much smaller houses is, and always will be, a moot question. Certainly public demand for "Lady in the Dark" justified the use of a 3,500 seat house, despite the inevitable loss of intimacy between performers and audience. Whether the remarkable success of "Lady in the Dark" will encourage other musical comedies to invade the Civic Opera house remains to be seen; but it should be observed that few, if any, actresses have the box office power of Gertrude Lawrence.

• • •

Fifteen members of the cast and backstage crew of the "The Eve of St. Mark," at the Harris, became blood donors one day last week. Altho it applauded the patriotism of these stage people, the management had some qualms about the idea that all of them chose the same day for their gift. With principals, understudies and stage hands all involved, there seemed to be a possibility of catastrophe at the evening performance; but all went well, for apparently nobody felt any ill effects.

• • •

Washington's birthday matinées will be presented tomorrow by all the plays in town except "Life with Father." Price scales are those which apply to Wednesday matinées. "The Eve of St. Mark," at the Harris, will omit the usual Wednesday afternoon performance this week.

• • •

The Shuberts like to announce that they will take their touring plays into New York, altho they do not always do so—as witness the sad case of "The Merry Widow." But "The Student Prince" is evidently really going there in June, after a long tour of eastern centers has been completed with a two or three week stand in Boston. It has been some years since "The Student Prince" has been heard in New York, and the management thinks the time for a return is now ripe, since Broadway is experiencing a revival of interest in old-fashioned operetta. Meanwhile "The Student Prince" has two more weeks to go here at the Selwyn before continuing on its peregrinations.

• • •

Buddy Ebsen and Skeets Gallagher, comedians of "Good Night, Ladies," at the Blackstone, have found demands upon their spare time growing out of control. Both have been exceedingly generous in devoting their talents to war causes, but some firm way of allocating their time has now become necessary. In the future the local treasury department will govern invitations, including participation in bond selling rallies. Recently Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau awarded honorary citations to both actors for their assistance in the selling of bonds.

• • •

Only nine performances of "Life with Father" remain at the Erlanger theater. Next week-end, after Saturday evening's final performance, Percy Waram, June Walker and the company will entrain for Detroit, where the gay comedy of the '80s will play a fortnight's return engagement at the Cass theater.

• • •

The cast of "The Doughgirls," arriving at the Selwyn theater March 8, has finally been revealed. The best known personality in the company is Taylor Holmes, whose last Chicago appearances were in association with the late George M. Cohan in the political travesty, "I'd Rather Be Right." Others in the cast, several of whom have been seen here in a variety of recent plays, are Peggy French, Betty Lawford, Leila Ernst, Russell Hardie, Ann Mason, Viola Roache, Donald Foster, Kim Spalding, Royal Beal, Joseph Marks, Le Roi Operti, and Donald Mackenzie. George S. Kaufman is the director.

• • •

Charlotte Greenwood, the enchanting stork legged comedienne, is having one of the successes of her life in Detroit, where packed houses are jubilantly acclaiming her return from the movies in "Leaning on Letty," the comedy [originally called "Post Road"] in which she last appeared here several seasons ago. At the end of each performance she regales the audience with some of her inimitable, and by now classic, song and dance material. A return engagement in Chicago might not be amiss, tho nothing has been heard of such a plan from Miss Greenwood's direction.

• • •

"The Eve of St. Mark" brings John Call, as Pvt. Mulveroy, to Chicago for the first time since he played the rôle of the bicycling priest, Father Flaherty, in "Father Malachy's Miracle." Earlier assignments in Chicago were "Sailor Beware" and "Squaring the Circle." In addition to all three of these plays, New York has seen Mr. Call in the original Theater guild performance of "Ah, Wilderness," with George M. Cohan; with Jane Cowl, June Walker and Percy Waram in "The Merchant of Yonkers," and with Glenda Farrell in "Life of Reilly."

• • •

"Old Acquaintance," John Van Druten's comedy, continues at the Goodman for one more week. The present production was directed by Eunice Osborne. "Little Black Sambo," the children's play, continues each Saturday afternoon thru March 20, with a morning performance March 6.

Elmer Rice at Work on a Play About Thomas Paine

Elmer Rice is at work on a play concerned with the eloquent Thomas Paine. He says, however, that he still has a good deal of work to do on it, so that production is not likely this season.

Dr. Butler Decries Neglect of U. S. History Study

System Makes Incompetents, Educator Says

By the Rev. John Evans.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, calls vigorous attention to the neglect of United States history studies in colleges and high schools in his annual presidential report which has just come from the press. The educational system, he said, is thus producing "incompetent citizens."

He cites a survey which revealed that 82 per cent of the institutions of higher learning in the United States do not prescribe the study of the history of the United States for the undergraduate degree, and 72 per cent of the colleges and universities do not require United States history for admission.

"It is difficult to believe that such a condition could exist, for unless the American citizen knows the history of the foundation and development of his country as well as the organization and growth of its government he must be and remain hopelessly incompetent as a citizen," the report declared.

"The fact is that the history of the United States from the settlement of this continent down to the present day is probably now the most important subject of study in the whole field of modern history. This is not because it is American, but because it illustrates and reveals the operations of the federal principle of government, which is the principle to which the coming world must look for prosperity and peace.

"That an American youth should have practically no knowledge of what happened since the time of the Pilgrim fathers to the present day, and how it happened, is inconceivable. Yet just this condition appears to exist. Surely no high school and no college should permit a youth to leave its doors without having been well instructed and drilled in the history and government of the United States. Washington and Franklin, Hamilton and Jefferson, Clay and Webster, and Lincoln should be full of meaning to every American youth. Otherwise, he cannot understand the world in which he lives."

POPULAR RECORDINGS

Glenn Miller has done a near-perfect job of interpreting that superb hit, "That Old Black Magic," for Victor. Easy tempo, a gentle but impressive background, and the singing of Skip Nelson and The Modernaires makes this a cinch record. It is backed by a similarly handled version of another excellent song, "Pink Cocktail for a Blue Lady."

Organ-like in its rich backgrounding, Vaughn Monroe's orchestra does just right by "Let's Get Lost." And then it goes into solid rhythm for "Happy Go Lucky," a light and happy tune.

The Four Vagabonds are back kicking the ditties around for Bluebird, and "Rosie the Riveter"—"I Had the Craziest Dream" provide an ideal coupling for them. A nice contrast between the vigor of the first and the mellowness of the second.

Current Music News.

Erich Kleiber, guest conductor of this week's concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, has arranged his three Orchestra hall programs with a minimum of scores to permit concentrated rehearsal, an interesting sidelight on a man who apparently is more concerned with good concerts than with a display of repertory. Like Wilhelm Steinberg, who conducted earlier this season, Mr. Kleiber will have a young American pianist on his midweek program. She is Eugenia Buxton, a Tennessean, who has appeared here in recital and as soloist with the Civic orchestra. Mr. Kleiber's programs follow:

When Efrem Zimbalist appears in Orchestra hall recital the afternoon of March 7, he will include his own "Sarasateana," a suite of Spanish dances, on the program. Mr. Zimbalist has made seven around the world concert tours, and has become a collector in the process. He collected violins, then sold most of them because they required too much care. Now he has Chinese snuff bottles, and complete collections of the work of George Bernard Shaw, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and Sinclair Lewis—a curious trio.

VOTE TUESDAY ON CITY'S ALDERMEN

NAME SCHOOLS TO ISSUE NO. 2 RATION BOOKS

Teachers Start Big Task Tuesday.

Lists of elementary schools by wards were announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, to guide Chicago residents in registering for point rationing, beginning Tuesday and continuing thru Friday. Registration hours will be 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Registrations will be taken in 333 elementary buildings, with 9,000 elementary teachers, 6,500 teachers and advanced students in the city's junior and teachers' colleges and thousands of volunteers to do the work.

Expect 3½ Million.

Three and a half million Chicagoans are expected to be registered in preparation for canned goods rationing, to begin March 1.

High school classes will not be affected, but elementary schools, junior and teacher colleges will be dismissed during the registration.

Registration will be in alphabetical order, Mulcahy announced, according to the following schedule:

A thru B—Tuesday morning.
C thru E—Tuesday afternoon.
F thru H—Wednesday morning.
I thru L—Wednesday afternoon.
M thru N—Thursday morning.
O thru R—Thursday afternoon.
S—Friday morning.
T thru Z—Friday afternoon.

Consumers are urged to follow the schedule except where pressing circumstances prevent it, Mulcahy said.

Each registrant should go to the school in his ward nearest his home, Mulcahy said. He emphasized that no registrant should cross a ward boundary to register, even if a school in a neighboring ward should be closer than the nearest school in his ward. This regulation is necessary to keep ration records straight, he said.

The housewife or any other adult in a family may register for the entire household, Mulcahy reiterated, and he reminded that the registrant should have with him ration book No. 1 [sugar book] for each member of the family, and a completely answered consumer declaration form, which will state the family's stock of canned goods and coffee. Registrars will remove stamps for items declared in excess of five cans per person.

Schools in wards lying wholly or partly in the north side area were listed as follows:

1st—Drake, 2641 Calumet; Haines, 231 West 23d place; Haven, 1472 South Wabash; Moseley, 2348 South Michigan; Ward, 2701 South Shields.

43d—Headley, 2107 North Magnolia; La Salle, 326 Eugenie; Mulligan, 1855 North Sheffield; Newberry, 700 Willow.

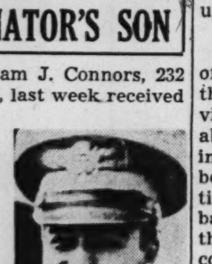
PAT CONNORS IS MADE 1ST LIEUTENANT AT 18; STATE SENATOR'S SON



Lt. Connors.

State Sen. William J. Connors, 232 East Walton place, last week received the news that his son, Pat, 18 years old, had been promoted from second to first lieutenant. When he was commissioned last June 7, Pat was one of the youngest officers in the army, and now his father believes that Pat must be one of its most youthful first lieutenants.

At Culver Military academy Pat received The Tribune R. O. T. C. medal. Upon his graduation he entered the army immediately with his parents' consent. His skill as a polo player led him straight to the cavalry.

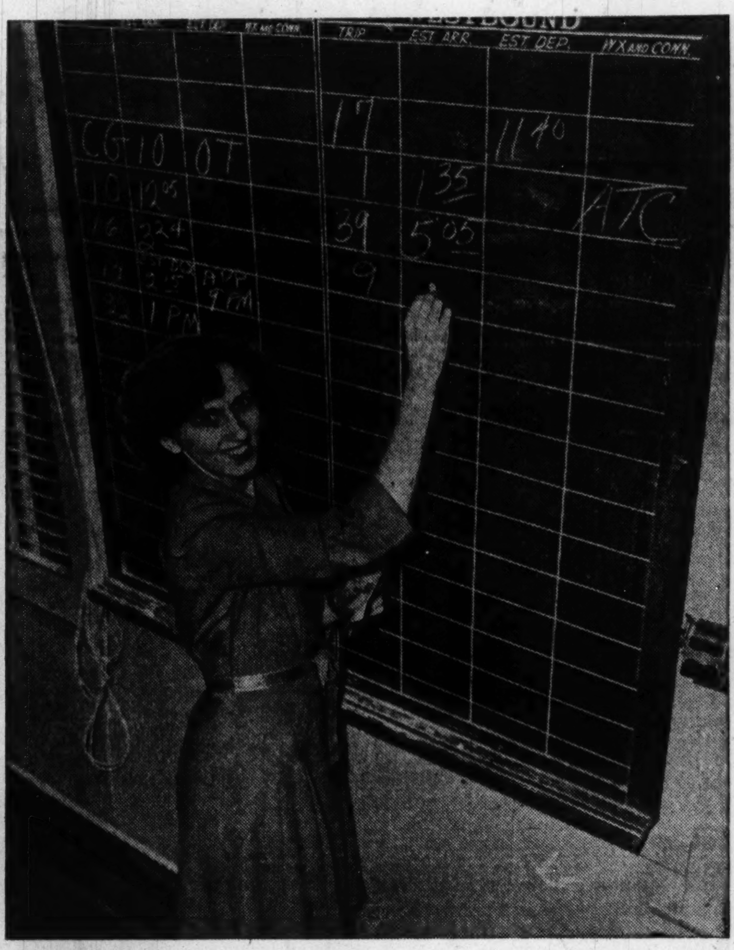
After training at Fort Riley, Kas., and Fort Bliss, Tex., Pat was assigned to Sierra Blanca, Tex., where he is patroling the Mexican border.

Girls Give Glamor and Honest Day's Work to Air Lines in War Time Duties

Helping in the war time job of moving essential civilian and military travelers, Miss Frances Kelly, 366 Hazel avenue, Highland Park; Miss Mary Naylor, 869 Pine street, Winnetka, and Miss Rose Hartmann, 5704 North Hermitage avenue (left to right), are now traffic saleswomen in the Chicago office of United Air Lines, 23 East Monroe street. Miss Kelly is a graduate of Northwestern university and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, London. Miss Naylor is a graduate of Westlake School for Girls, Holmly Hills, Cal. Miss Hartmann, a graduate of St. Scholastica academy, formerly was a secretary and receptionist.

The "all clear to go" signal is being given by Miss Katherine Pettis, 1400 Lake Shore drive, who is now a passenger agent at the municipal airport. Miss Pettis formerly was an insurance broker.

Voice training is an important subject at the school for training air line workers. The student tested by the recording machine is Miss Dorothy Lynch, 1020 Lawrence avenue.



The blackboard work, with Miss Carol Wilson, 2240 Wesley avenue, Evanston, as the exponent, is a school project leading up to real duties in the reservations department. Miss Wilson is a graduate of Senn High school and the University of Chicago. Formerly she was employed in the purchasing department of a meat packing plant.

COMPLETE STORE TO DEMONSTRATE POINT RATIONING

Installed for 60,000 Uptown Residents.

A completely equipped model store at 1063 Arglye street will supply answers to questions the 60,000 residents of the Central Uptown community may ask concerning point rationing. The store, first of its kind in the city except for the OPA store at Michigan avenue and Wacker drive, was opened recently in the heart of one of the north side's busiest shopping districts.

Wade R. Franklin, commander of the Central Uptown civilian defense organization, is sponsor of the venture. Local ration board 40-48, 5004 Broadway, helped Franklin in setting up and staffing the store.

Invite Store Men.

In addition to residents, hundreds of retailers and wholesalers thruout the north side have been invited to view the model store and to learn about point rationing which will go into effect March 1. The store will be staffed by the consumer information committee, headed by Mrs. Barbara Byer, and by representatives of the local ration board and the OPA consumers division.

Full shelves have been stocked with both rationed and unrationed foods. Bins of fresh vegetables, unrationed, also are stocked. Both wholesale and retail merchants of the community have coöperated in setting up the store by furnishing sample stocks of canned goods and other articles of food.

Continued Use Planned.

While it is planned to stress the point rationing program thru the next few weeks in an effort to help educate residents in better buying, according to Franklin, the model store will be used later to explain all forms of the consumer rationing program.

OUR TOWN

MISS MARY JANE D'AMBROSIO, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mel D'Ambrosio, 5060 Marine drive, is one of the 20 students at St. Mary of the Woods college enrolled in a course in pre-aviation physics. The course, designed to fit the girls to help win the war after their graduation, includes instruction in astronomy, map reading, and weather forecasting. Other north side girls in the class are Miss Marykay Jones of Wilmette and Miss Therese Jordan of Kenilworth.

Parties soon will be old hat for Mrs. Henry Schnakenberg of 5824 Glenwood avenue. A week ago Thursday it was a party for her 78th birthday. Last Thursday it was a 55th wedding celebration. She and her husband, who is 82 years old, greeted their many friends who came to visit them on the second occasion. Present at the open house were their son, Fred, his wife, and their granddaughter, Audrey.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM J. BAULDRY, former Canadians, celebrated their 53d wedding anniversary in their new home with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Biser, 5254 Wayne avenue. Mr. Bauldry, 80 years old and recovering from an operation, said gaily on his anniversary that he's "going to stick around for a while yet to see the new-fangled home comforts they fix up after the war." The elderly couple's home in Canada was close to the birthplace of the Dionne quintuplets. They have spent many years pioneering in the wilds of northern Ontario.

FOUR RUNOFFS ARE PREDICTED ON NORTH SIDE

Battles Hottest in Many Years.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The hottest verbal battles in several years marked the windups of the aldermanic campaigns in most of the north side wards last week. The proof of the forensic pudding will be forthcoming next Tuesday when Chicagoans visit the polls to elect their aldermen and nominate candidates for the mayoral election April 6, on which date will also be held whatever aldermanic runoffs are necessary.

The ward representatives are picked from a ballot on which no party names appear and a candidate must poll more than half of the total vote to win, or fight it out with the runner-up in a supplemental election.

See Runoffs in 4 Wards.

Such runoffs were considered a likely prospect last week for four north side wards—the 43d, 45th, 47th, and 50th. In the other wards in the north area, G. O. P. candidates were hammering busily away against the incumbent Democrats, with the city hall candidates hoping for a small Republican turn-out on mayoral primary day.

Here are brief sizeups of the north side ward situations, identifying the candidates and showing their principal political indorsements—regular Democratic or Republican, Free Democratic [Boyle for mayor], and Better Government association:

Forty-Ssecond — Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe, alderman since 1919 and president pro tem of the city council, Reg. Dem. Paul J. Randolph, oil salesman, alternate delegate to G. O. P. national convention in 1940, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. T. McCormick Hartford, real estate, perennial candidate. Randolph is in an uphill fight against a popular political veteran.

Forty-third—Ald. Mathias [Paddy] Bauler, 3d term, Reg. Dem. James B. Waller, real estate and former alderman, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Max Becker, retired machinist. Samuel A. Culbertson, factory executive, Albert-for-mayor group, Burmeister Republicans. George J. Hickmann, radio service man. Joseph C. Hollerbach, undertaker, defeated for G. O. P. ward committeeman in 1940. Joseph La-Barbera, real estate. Bauler and Waller, whom the present alderman unseated in 1933, came to grips again four years ago, Waller forcing Bauler into a runoff with the aid of James J. Kane, and then coming within 244 votes of winning his old seat back. Culbertson, an aggressive campaigner, may land Waller or himself in a runoff with Bauler this year.

Forty-fourth—Ald. John J. Grealis, attorney, 3d term, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. David J. Wright, state oil inspector, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Edward D. Rogers, property management, Free Dem. Wright is fighting against formidable odds.

Forty-fifth—Ald. Edwin F. Meyer, insurance and real estate, 3d term, Reg. Dem. Theron W. Merryman, plumbing contractor, candidate for county assessor last year and for alderman four years ago, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. William H. Feigenbutz, beer dealer and insurance, former alderman. William F. Becker, unemployed. Mrs. Catherine Reutel, mother of six children, We the Mothers. It seems likely that Meyer will have another runoff, as he did four years ago.

Forty-sixth—Ald. James F. Young, attorney, alderman since 1936, Reg. Dem. George S. Lavin, attorney, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Harry W. Prafke, pharmacist. Both Lavin and Prafke are campaigning intensively, and there is some possibility of a runoff.

Forty-seventh—Ald. Frank O. Hilburn, attorney, 1st term, Free Dem., B. G. A. Frank J. Nenning, printing plant owner, Reg. Dem. Franklin C. E. Lundquist, program director for station WCFL, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. This is a particularly bitter struggle, in which any two of the candidates may land in the runoff.

Forty-eighth—Ald. Robert C. Quirk, civil engineer, 1st term, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. Theodore R. Pickard, attorney and beauty school owner, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Pickard is regarded as the runner-up, but is fighting with growing zeal.

Forty-ninth—Ald. Frank Keenan, insurance, 2d term, Reg. Dem. William J. Lunn, attorney, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Lunn, vigorous and popular, has made Ald. Keenan extend himself.

Fiftieth—Ald. James R. Quinn, attorney, 4th term. Jens M. Jensen, attorney and state liquor and cigaret revenue supervisor, a candidate for alderman four years ago, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Einer J. Jensen, private policeman. LeRoy Nelson, advertising, Albert-for-mayor. Most observers foresee another run-off between Ald. Quinn and Jens Jensen, similar to the one in 1939, which Quinn won.

In the 1st ward, which includes the downtown area, a two-man struggle is in progress for the seat from which Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, czar of the ward since the death of his pal, John J. [The Bath] Coughlin, is retiring because of advanced age. Kenna is backing John Budinger. The hard hitting Business Men's committee is behind James McVittie, engraving plant owner, who charged last week that Budinger is fraudulently registered as a 1st ward voter.

AIR LINE TRAINS WOMEN TO FILL WAR BLED STAFF

School Opens New Career for Personable Girls.

Handling reservation calls, selling tickets, and helping clear traffic at the terminals, women are proving their value in air transportation. Key positions in the flying and dispatching of planes are retained by the men, but the fair sex are finding opportunities in a new career as they step into the places of men who have gone to war or taken more important posts with the air lines.

To meet the demand for trained workers in a field where few women possess previous experience, United Air Lines started a school last fall at its Chicago headquarters. Fifty students are graduated every two weeks to fill vacancies of men now on leaves of absence in the 36 cities where the transport corporation operates.

Service Training Desired.

Applicants, preferably between the ages of 22 and 30, must first pass the personality test. A high school diploma and some college training is required, and previous experience including duties in a service capacity are desired.

Recently, the school reached its first objective, set last fall, of 300 trained women gathered here from coast to coast. Chicago neighborhoods are well represented in the list of those now active on the "front line" where they come in contact with the public. The school continues to hum with its courses in reservation and passenger handling procedures.

Women on duty say they are fascinated with their new jobs. Among them are women who formerly taught school, studied art, trained for the stage, modeled, or were receptionists. They feel themselves a part of the glamour connected with travel. In the beginning, they may not have known the difference between a stabilizer or an aileron but the something called "charm" which was innate, together with schooling, has enabled them to transfer their enthusiasms to details of air transportation.

Find Numerous Jobs.

Once, the only part played in the air line business by women was that of stewardess, secretary, or stenographer. Now they are demonstrating that there are numerous places where they can be equally adept as men in handling important tasks. Back in 1930, but eight young women were employed on the United Air Lines coast to coast route. Today, the corporation estimates that approximately 30 per cent of its 6,500 employés are women as compared with 15 per cent a year ago.

D. A. Medland, employment manager, who sifts the applicants for the work that requires personality, speed, accuracy, and patience, seeks for the school young women who are well balanced emotionally.

William Gentry, instructor at the school, has a background in passenger service rather than as a pedagogue. His classroom is equipped with the traditional blackboard and desks. Hours are from 9 to 4:30, five days a week, and one-half day on Saturdays. Equipment includes a sample ticket counter and a memo vox for recording the voice and playing it back to its possessor.

Stress Tone of Voice.

The tone of voice is stressed by the teacher as an expression which displays the feeling or attitude of the speaker. It must be capable of having a warmth that is contagious. Enunciation must be watched carefully.

Those who graduate to the United's reservations department at the municipal airport come in contact with patrons thru telephonic conversation only. A second group is trained for ticket offices where the public is met at close range. Members of a third group wear uniforms and work as passenger agents at the terminals.

Handle Telephone Work.

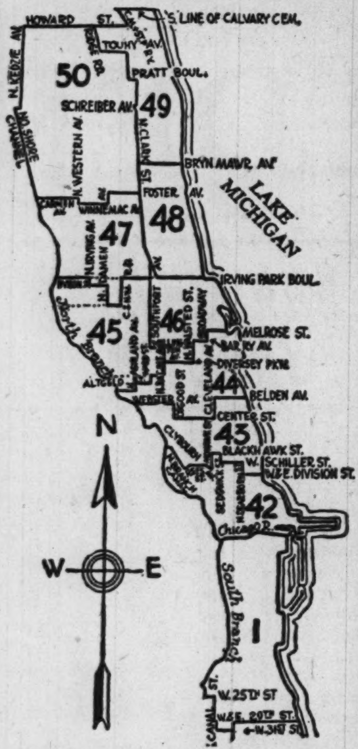
Workers in the reservation department handle all telephone calls requesting space on the many flights leaving Chicago. Their important job is to see that seats are properly assigned and that planes are not oversold, and to answer intelligently calls about schedules and rates. Graduates who go to the traffic offices must know all about ticketing, the code names of cities, the company's history, about other air lines, and the company's policies.

A career, undreamed of by their mothers and grandmothers before them, has been made available to these hundreds of young women of modern times. Fascination for the work has given those who meet the requirements added dignity and a common bond. "What is the fare to Los Angeles . . . to New York?" "What time can I leave?" "Can you give me a reservation on the 5 o'clock?"

They know all the answers.

North Side Wards

Stories of aldermanic election and ration registration on page 1.)



Boundaries of wards on the north side, shown here, will be important in two respects Tuesday—for the city aldermanic elections and for opening of registration for point rationing to start March 1. Registration will continue thru Friday in all public elementary schools. Consumers must register within their own wards, according to the OPA.

BOOK REVIEW TEA TO AID NEWBERRY CENTER FRIDAY

Mrs. Sarah Weidner Youngren will give the first in a series of six book reviews, sponsored by the Newberry Center league, at 2 o'clock Friday in Glenna hall, First Methodist church of Evanston. The series will continue with afternoon reviews March 26 and April 23, followed by tea, and morning programs on Marsh 12, April 9 and May 7, preceded by coffee.

Mrs. Paul Morrison of Evanston is president of the Newberry Center league, which aids in the support of the Newberry Avenue center, 1335 Newbery avenue. The particular interest of the league is in the center's nursery and kindergarten, where a number of children whose mothers are working in war industries are cared for during the daytime.

Mrs. W. Van Dervoort Gathany of Evanston is chairman of the book reviews. She is assisted by Mrs. Albert H. Pendleton of Kenilworth, Mrs. Frank L. Stellner of Evanston, and Mrs. Harlan Greenfield of Evanston.

D.A.R. in Evanston to Hold Party for Shut-In Society

Fort Dearborn chapter, D. A. R., will present an afternoon of entertainment, under auspices of the Evanston bureau of recreation, for the Shut-In society, Tuesday at the First Congregational Church house, Evanston. A musical skit will be given by several students of the Northwestern university school of music. Mrs. Ray Garrett, regent of the Fort Dearborn chapter, will speak on the origin and correct use of the American flag. Tea will follow the program.

LAYMEN TO HOLD CHURCH RITES IN WILMETTE TODAY

Wilmette Methodist church will observe Laymen's day at the regular 11 o'clock service this morning. Assisting the Rev. Erskine M. Jeffords, minister, will be three laymen. A. L. Fuller, vice president of the board of trustees, will serve as three minute spokesman; C. F. Davis of the National College of Education will read from the Scriptures, and W. G. Van Winkle, a member of the men's work committee, will lead the responsive reading. There will be music by the choir and men's chorus under direction of D. F. McSloy. The Rev. Mr. Jeffords will preach on "Victory for Brotherhood."

National Civic Group.

The north side group of the National Civic organization will meet at 2 o'clock today at Three Links temple, East hall, 4740 north Western avenue. Robert R. Reese will talk on "Political Factions in War." The program is under chairmanship of Mrs. D. Summers of Evanston.

PIONEER WOMEN OF NATION TO BE LAUDED BY CLUB

Evanston Group Will See Historical Drama.

A tribute to feminine builders of America will be given in a patriotic program by Frances Homer entitled "American Women" at a meeting of the Woman's club of Evanston Tuesday afternoon. In her historical presentation, Miss Homer will dramatize in costume the story of the United States—its beginning, its establishments and the ideals for which it stands, by portraying women who lived thru the various stages of its development.

Mrs. Winston R. Tucker and Mrs. Paul Cook will give book reviews at the monthly book review program of the club at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. Tucker will review "Mrs. Parkington" by Louis Bromfield, and Mrs. Cook will review "How to Win the Peace" by Carl Hambro.

North Town Woman's Club.

Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. Henry Martinson, program and music chairmen of the North Town Woman's club, will present a program at 1:30 o'clock Friday at the Indian Boundary fieldhouse, 2500 Lunt avenue. James Bradley-Griffin will give Stephen Vincent Benet's "They Burn the Books." He will be accompanied by Lulu Jones Downing who composed the musical background.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Members of the Rogers Park Woman's club will be given an afternoon of entertainment by the Juniors, starting at 2 o'clock Tuesday. In their show entitled, "All-American," Natalie Powers will sing, Norma Piercy will dance, Virginia Schellinger will be at the piano, and Virginia Kempf will give a dramatic reading.

Mrs. Stephen Tedor will review "West with the Night," at 12:45 o'clock. There will be a musical hour given by members of the club at 10:45 o'clock. The club will have an evening party of cards and dancing. followed by a midnight supper, Saturday.

Neighbors of Kenilworth.

The last book review of the season will be given for the Neighbors of Kenilworth at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Kenilworth club. Mrs. Marie Niergarth Zander, book analyst and commentator on world events, will discuss post-war problems in her reviews of "The Problems of a Lasting Peace," by Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson; "The Conditions of Peace," by Edward Carr; Henry Wallace's "The Price of Free World Victory," and Henry Agar's "The Time for Greatness."

North End Woman's Club.

The American home department of the North End Woman's club, 6200 Sheridan road, will celebrate Washington's birthday with a victory dessert bridge at 1 o'clock tomorrow. War stamps will be given as prizes.

Preceding the card party, there will be a tableau in which Mrs. O. F. Paisley, in costume, will give extracts from George Washington's farewell address. Mrs. Arthur Warrington will appear as Martha Washington, assisted by the committee. Mina Schmidt will furnish the costumes for the tableau.

Welles Park Woman's Club.

Miss Marie Smenos will give several dramatic readings at a meeting of the Welles Park Woman's club at 1:30 o'clock Friday, under auspices of the American home department. Members of the club also will hear a debate by the University of Chicago debating team. War stamps will be on sale under direction of Mrs. B. W. Roberts.

EDGEMERE CLUB CARD PARTY TO AID CHARITY FUND

Cancel Men's Night Fete Because of War.

Mrs. George W. Hoad.
[Toloff Photo.]

In accordance with the Edgemere Woman's club policy of curtailing its purely social activities during war time, Mrs. Burt E. Steenson, president of the club, has announced the cancellation of the annual Men's night party. Taking the place of this usual entertainment for husbands, a special philanthropy fund card party will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. George W. Hoad, second vice president, is in charge of all arrangements for the card party.

Lake View Woman's Club.

Mrs. Jacob David, chairman of the social service department of the Lake View Woman's club, has arranged a program for the meeting Tuesday at the Granada hotel, 525 Arlington place. The Rev. Garfield Daw, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist church and chairman of the morale of the Ravenswood district, will speak at noon to members of the club.

Miss Ethel Munns Lucas, dramatic reader, will give a selection of interpretations of the Negro dialect at 2 o'clock.

Women of People's Church.

"A Pageant of American Laws" will be presented as a feature of the Legislation day program of the People's Church Woman's club at 1 o'clock tomorrow at Channing hall, 941 Lawrence avenue. Mrs. Clyde Bassler, chairman, will be assisted by 30 club members who will play various parts in the pageant.

N. U. War Forum.

"Will We Have a Social Revolution?" is the question Prof. Arthur J. Todd, chairman of the sociology department of Northwestern university, will discuss when he speaks at the university war forum at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening in Harris hall on the Evanston campus.

N. U. DROPS WAA-MU PRODUCTION; PLANS WAR BENEFIT SHOW

Don Pash.
[Bernie Photo.]

Northwestern university will have no Waa-Mu show this year. In its place will be a war benefit variety program, to be presented by the students at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening in Scott hall on the campus with total proceeds going to purchase an army jeep.

Altho the lavishness of Waa-Mu productions will be missing, Don Pash, senior in the school of music and director of the show, promises there will be no lack of entertainment. His all-girl chorus will sing such popular songs of the day as "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones" and songs out of the past like "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody."

Other musical highlights for the evening include Rick Larson and Pat Hill, duo-pianists; Louise Yates, Art Miller, and Joyce Reed, vocalists, and the Phi Delt quartet. Miss Carol Silver, Northwestern student who has given performances in Kimball and Orchestra halls, will play Tschaikowsky's "Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor."

Comedy in the show will be provided by Pat Westbrook, former Waa-Mu star, and Dick King, honor student in the school of speech.

FOOT REMEDIES PLANT WILL FLY ARMY-NAVY 'E'

Scholl Company Makes Parts for Helmets.

Tomorrow the army-navy "E"—symbol of excellence and efficiency in production—will fly over the Scholl Manufacturing company, 213 West Schiller street.

In the presence of the company's 1,500 workers who earned the award, with army, navy, and government officials looking on, Brig. Gen. J. E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the Chicago quartermaster depot, will make the formal presentation to Dr. William M. Scholl, president and founder of the company. The ceremonies will begin at 4:30 o'clock.

Tent Saves Man Hours.

Setting for this war time scene will be a huge tent, more accustomed to circus crowds than the quiet, purposeful group which will be gathered under it. Rented for the day from a circus company, it has been erected on a vacant area adjacent to the plant to save those precious man hours of work which would otherwise be consumed in traveling to the nearest auditorium, almost a mile away.

Mayor Kelly will open the meeting with an address of welcome. Lt. Comm. A. L. Myrland, senior assistant to the supply officer of the 9th naval district, will present the army-navy "E" lapel insignia for all workers. Accepting the insignia in their behalf will be William P. Cook and Miss Mary Tinnerella, stewards of the AFL local.

Mass of Tiny Pennants.

Climax of the afternoon will come as the blue and gold pennant is unfurled on the stage. Simultaneously 1,500 blue and gold miniature pennants will be waved by the audience of plant employés. These they will take home following the ceremonies to be hung in their living room windows.

Martial music by the Board of Trade Legion post band and presentation of colors by the marine corps color guard, commanded by Lt. Col. C. L. Jordan, will lend a tone of militarism.

The Scholl company is receiving the coveted "E" award for its work in designing and manufacturing the straps, suspension pieces, and headbands used in helmets for the nation's fighting men. It also makes a variety of orthopedic and foot comfort products used by the army and navy.

Homecoming for General.

For Gen. Barzynski this Washington birthday event will be in the nature of a homecoming. He was born and reared almost within the shadow of the present Scholl company. Its founder was his childhood friend, and many of the employés whom he will be congratulating tomorrow afternoon were his fellow students at Tuley High school.

Zoneta Zollo to Wed

[Liebling Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Julius B. Zollo of 511 Brompton place announce the engagement of their daughter, Zoneta, to Arnold Paul, son of Mrs. Morris Paul of 1320 Columbia avenue. There will be an informal reception at the Zollo home this evening after 7 o'clock.

NORTH SIDE LINES UP FOR RED CROSS FUND CAMPAIGN

Name Chairmen of City, Shore Points.

North side and north shore are ready to fall into step with the Red Cross drive to raise $8,750,000 in the Chicago area beginning March 1 with the appointment of Frank Sweeney, 543 Addison street, B. M. Koehler of Glencoe, and L. A. Ferguson of Lake Forest, respectively, to head the north side, the Cook county and Lake county north shore divisions.

These citizen committees will have the task of house to house solicitation to supplement industrial coverage which is designed to secure gifts equal to one day's pay from every employé at his place of business.

Must Recruit Volunteers.

The three division chairmen will recruit volunteers in their respective districts to be part of an army of 50,000 solicitors in the campaign. Sweeney's north side section will correspond with OCD division 6.

Working under Koehler in the north shore Cook county division will be Vice Chairmen Harry L. Wells of Evanston, Mrs. Frank Whiffler, Glenview; Roland D. Feltman, Kenilworth; Max Finke, Morton Grove; Mrs. Norman E. Watson, Northbrook; Merrill C. Stowe, Northfield; Mrs. Thomas J. O'Connell, Skokie; Elmer D. Becker, Wilmette; Carleton Blunt, Winnetka, and Edward G. Gantner, Golf.

Lake County Committee.

Ferguson's committee which will solicit in Lake county includes Mrs. George Ubl, Deerfield; H. F. Kelley, Highland Park; E. A. Menke, Ravinia; Mrs. George C. Kenry, Highwood; Mrs. Robert K. Lewis, Lake Bluff; William E. Webster, Libertyville; Mrs. E. C. Luther, Libertyville; Gordon Ray, Mundelein; Evelyn Olson, Wauconda; Herbert McLaughlin, Lake Forest, and Mrs. Orville Bickmase, Lake Zurich.

Chairman of the city-wide campaign is Fred B. Snite. Arthur H. Schneider will be in charge of the suburban campaign. They will work under Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the drive.

April Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Micheal Frank of 1437 Edgewater avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Esther, to Nathan Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schneider of South Kolin avenue. The young people will be married the evening of April 18 in the Frank home. A reception will follow the wedding.

Science Academy Lecture.

Dr. Charles A. Shull, professor of botany at the University of Chicago and president of the Cowles Botanical society, will give an illustrated lecture, "The Trees and Plant Life of Oregon," at 3 o'clock today in the auditorium of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, Lincoln park.

OLD FLOORS LOOK LIKE NEW AFTER SIMPLE REPAIRS

Paint or Good Finish Will Work Wonders.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our home! It's the best we will have till victory is won, so let's take the best possible care of it, and everything in it!

Did you know that—

You don't have to worry about the age of a hardwood floor? No matter how old it is or what service it has seen the chances are that it can be reconditioned like new.

Recently we saw oak and maple floors in a research house that were more than 50 years old. New boards were used for patching at certain points and yet it was almost impossible to tell where the new boards joined the old flooring that had been well sanded and refinished.

Hints for Softwood Floors.

You can do a lot for old softwood floors, too. Woods like hemlock or fir or pine can be painted or given an oil finish. Or they can be varnished and waxed or treated to varnish stain. Yawning cracks can be filled and sandpapered smooth and these fillers can be touched up with stain or paint to match the floor.

If the softwood floor is in really bad shape and uneven you can cover it with a rigid board 4 inches wide and in lengths of 8 feet, 10 feet, and 12 feet to form a perfectly flush base for new linoleum or new hardwood flooring.

Lend Beauty to Home.

In less than a day you can have a prefinished hardwood floor of Colonial type plug planks permanently cemented into place over your existing floor without fuss or muss or nails. If your old floor is too uneven to make a good base you can use ⅛ inch rigid boards as a base. And these same rigid ⅛ inch rigid boards likewise can be used to cover existing doors and convert them into modern flush panel doors.

Hardwood floors deserve the best possible treatment, for when they are cared for wisely they bring warmth, color, and beauty into a home.

A sanding machine will give you the best results and if possible an expert should be called in to use this machine. It isn't easy to manage it as it is powerful and must be operated properly to produce a smooth finished floor.

Buy only a good floor finish, whether it is varnish, stain, wax, or one of the penetrating floor seals. You want a finish manufactured by a good firm and your dealer will help you in your selection. And the manufacturer of the finish material will have instructions as to application, if you do the work yourself. If you engage an expert floor refinisher he will give you instructions as to the proper care of the floor, once it is reconditioned.

If a hardwood floor is soiled and a bit scuffed it probably can be put in good shape by thoro washing with soap and water, quick drying, and then revarnishing.

MACHINIST IN A WAR PLANT AT 76 MARKS GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

A four tiered anniversary cake was cut for relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Granquist, 5117 North Wolcott avenue, at a party celebrating the couple's golden wedding last Sunday. The wedding anniversary also was Mr. Granquist's 76th birthday.

Mrs. Granquist.

Frank Granquist.

Born in Sweden, Mr. Granquist left his family and came to America, alone, at the age of 13. He has spent most of his life in the Chicago area. He and Mrs. Granquist have resided 18 years at their present home on Wolcott avenue and, prior to that, they lived in Wilmette.

Despite his 76 birthdays, Mr. Granquist has worked six days a week in a war plant since Pearl Harbor. He is a skilled machinist and operates a turret lathe. The Granquists have two daughters and four grandchildren. Robert H. Kasdorf, a grandson, is in the army air forces.

SORORITY GROUP TO HEAR REPORT ON BLOOD GIVING

Mrs. Arthur H. East will entertain the north shore alumnae group of Alpha Gamma Delta at her home, 2209 Central street, Evanston, at 1 o'clock tomorrow. Assisting Mrs. East as hostesses will be Mrs. T. Dickerson of Evanston and Mrs. Edmond A. Siebert of 4708 North Kenton avenue.

At the meeting, the north shore alumnae president, Mrs. Donald A. Miller of Evanston, will give a report on the campaign for contributions to the Red Cross blood donor service, sponsored by the alumnae group. Chairman for the north side area is Mrs. Bror Nordberg of Glenview. Following the business program, the afternoon will be spent in sewing for the Visiting Nurses' association of Evanston.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 22.

If you want a fast growing tree that does not grow too large, plant a Chinese elm. It is drouth resisting, hardy, not too dense, and is suitable for city conditions. But the gardener must remember that trees need plant food to respond in a vigorous manner.

Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Many garden soils in city gardens lack humus or decayed matter, with the result that the soil packs hard after a rain. No gardener should refuse a load of manure, for it is invaluable in building up garden soil.

The working in of decayed vegetable matter, peat moss or muck, old leaves, leafmold, or other material aids materially in the improvement of the soil. If the soil is heavy work in two or more inches of ashes or some sand. If sandy, the soil will become more moisture holding if manure is spaded into it.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Feed the lawn in early March to make ample nourishment available from the beginning of growth. Commercial foods will not burn if they are used at that time, and no raking in is necessary.

Thursday, Feb. 25.

Many gardeners will grow some flowers in the vegetable garden, but wherever possible vegetable growing must be given first consideration.

By planting annual vines on porches, up the side of the garage, or wherever they can be used to advantage, the effect will be pleasing.

Friday, Feb. 26.

Get rid of the pestiferous dandelion by digging them out of the lawn and using them as greens. When properly prepared, they are delectable.

Saturday, Feb. 27.

Never give the insect pests a chance to become established on house plants. Watch continually for them and begin a program of eradication immediately. Ferns and ivies are likely to be attacked by scales.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

SPELLING BEE
TODAY
12:00 NOON

"Professor"
HAROLD ISBELL

It's four members of the WAITS against four of their male instructors in today's spelling bee—and the WAITS, in case you don't recall, represent the Women Airplane Instrument Technicians, so the sparks are really apt to fly. Cash prizes will be awarded the winners as usual in this popular combination spell-down and funfest. Be at your radio promptly at 12:00 noontime when "Professor" Harold Isbell calls the class to order.

FIRESIDE PARTY
TODAY AT 4 P. M.
formerly heard at 5:30

LOUISE MASSEY

For a half hour of genuine Sunday afternoon pleasure and relaxation, tune in WGN's popular "Fireside Party" at 4 o'clock. Dream to the singing of soloist Louise Massey and "The Westerners" in a program of your favorite ballads. Thrill to a new dramatic sketch of the Merriweather family by prominent Chicago radio actors and actresses. Here is music and drama combined in its most entertaining form to be enjoyed from your favorite armchair. WGN at 4:00 p. m.

EASY MONEY
6:30 TONIGHT

Mike Trent—erstwhile magician—now private detective and nemesis of racketeers—has struck another hot trail. Hear Trent tonight in "Easy Money" over WGN, as the famous racket-buster and crusader against crime, through his knowledge of magic, exposes the nefarious workings of a notorious shoplifter. Distinctly different in technique, unique in plot, "Easy Money"—now in its second season—ranks among the most popular detective dramas on the air. Tune in every week.

BENNY TO BATTLE LITTLE JOE, QUIZ KID BALL OF FIRE

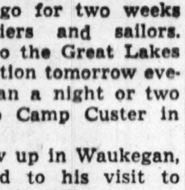
Comedian and Bright Boy to Exchange Visits.

Jack Benny.

When Jack Benny broadcasts from Chicago today for the first time in many years he will be confronted by an extra heckler, the 6 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman. Benny's regulars, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Rochester, and Don Wilson will be on hand to explode the boastful stories of his childhood on the shores of Lake Michigan he is bound to recite for soldiers of the army's air forces technical training command who will be his guests at the Eighth Street theater.

Shortly after 6 p. m. on WMAQ-NBC Benny will face Joel, mighty mite of the mike, with his toothless smile, lisp, and a mind that works like an ack-ack gun. Joel has been clocking about as many laughs lately on the Quiz Kids' show as writers Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin have been giving Benny each week. Tonight listeners will get a double dose not only on the Benny show—but on the Quiz Kids' session on WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m.

For as soon as Joel has pulled a few "secret" mathematical tricks on Benny he will race over to the Merchandise Mart for his own show. Jack will follow at 6:29½ and expects to be on hand for the last half of the Quiz Kids' show. As "judge" of the quiz Benny may have an opportunity to get back at little Joel.



Joel Kupperman.

Benny and his troupe will be in and around Chicago for two weeks entertaining soldiers and sailors. They plan to go to the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow evening; Fort Sheridan a night or two later, and also to Camp Custer in Michigan.

Benny, who grew up in Waukegan, is looking forward to his visit to Great Lakes. There, just 25 years ago, he received his naval training and while stationed there got his start as a funny man. Prior to the war he had toured theater circuits as a violinist.

Benny volunteered his talents as a violinist to the revue. Dave Wolff, now a Chicago advertising man, wrote and produced the show. He discovered Benny's latent talent for humor. Today Jack calls him his first gag man. After the war Benny toured vaudeville circuits with Ned Miller, Chicago composer, as partner.

Benny never abandoned the violin altogether and that ultimately paid a dividend. After a wait of 25 years he was invited recently to play at a benefit concert in Carnegie hall.

"You've heard what they've been saying on the radio almost continuously ever since" he remarked. "'The best tunes of all come from Carnegie hall.'"

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALS SLATED FOR TWO NIGHTS

The finals of the Golden Gloves tournament of champions will be broadcast by W-G-N tomorrow and Tuesday from ringside at the Chicago Stadium with Sportscaster Jack Brickhouse giving the blow by blow account.

The finals will be broadcast both nights from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The winners will make up the team to represent the middle west in a match that will be held later with New York champions.

Brahms' Second Symphony Feature of Philharmonic

Brahms' Second Symphony in D major will be played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra at 2 o'clock this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. The balance of the program will consist of the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Mozart's Symphony in G minor, No. 40 [K. 550].

Music of France, Scotland Feature of Thomas Show

John Charles Thomas will sing "A Wearyin Awa'" and "Tommy Lad" on his show at 1:30 this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. The Lyn Murray chorus will offer "Allouette," with the orchestra playing "Yankee Doodle."

WAITs on Spelling Bee.

Four WAITs and four of their instructors will compete for prizes on the Spelling Bee to be broadcast on W-G-N at noon today. The WAITs who are women airplane instrument technicians, and the instructors will spell words offered by Harold Isbell, master of ceremonies.

'MUSIC IN THE AIR' TO BE PRESENTED ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Jerome Kern's "Music in the Air" over W-G-N, W59C and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas will be co-starred.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Sieglinde and Thomas that of Karl. Laurette Fillbrandt will take the dramatic part of Sieglinde. The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Jack LaFrandre is the writer-director.

Stravinsky's C Symphony Scheduled by Stokowski

Leopold Stokowski and the NBC Symphony orchestra will feature Igor Stravinsky's Symphony in C at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Other selections to be played will be Debussy's "Night in Granada" and Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe."

'HOW FAST ARE WE WINNING?' IS N. U. TOPIC TODAY

A discussion of "How Fast Are We Winning the War?" will be presented on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10 a. m. today. Participants will be: Stanley Johnston, noted Chicago Tribune war correspondent; Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago; Kenneth E. Olson, dean of the Medill School of Journalism, and Dr. Melchior Palyi, economist and current events analyst.

These discussions, broadcast in W-G-N's main studio are open to studio guests. A question and answer period follows the broadcasts.

Salute Rotary Clubs on Special W-G-N Broadcast

A special broadcast celebrating the growth of the Rotary International will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 2:30 to 3 p. m. From Chicago, Vincent Pelletier and a supporting cast will present a dramatization of the history of the organization and the activities of Rotary clubs in war time. International president, Senor Fernando Carbajal of Peru, will speak briefly during the broadcast.

Stevens and Spalding Guests of Kostelanetz

Rise Stevens and Albert Spalding will be guests on the André Kostelanetz program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The American overture, arranged and introduced by Kostelanetz, will be played. Miss Stevens will sing "The Song Is You" and "I'll Follow My Secret Heart." Mr. Spalding, violinist, will play "Meditation" from "Thäis."

Quaal to Norfolk.

Ensign Ward Quaal, former announcer for W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System, has been assigned to the naval training station at Norfolk, Virginia, as an instructor and communications officer.

I am grateful for Clothes Protection

I know Edgewater's method of washing makes clothes last much longer

This is of vital importance to every family today. We, at the Edgewater Laundry, realize that it is our duty to use only the very finest, mildest soaps obtainable to add as many years of life as possible to every item of clothing we wash. We do not, at any time, use acids, bleaches, chemicals or alkalies which are destructive to fabrics or colors. This extra mild method of washing is not a new emergency idea with us. We have been doing this type of fine laundering for nearly a half century.

IN WARTIME, AMERICA NEEDS TRIM, ENERGETIC WOMEN!
Don't Be Fat!
Reduce this proved way that requires no strict diet lists—
No exercises—
No harmful drugs

Lovely Radio Star, Irene Rich, 2nd Lieutenant in Women's Ambulance & Defense Corps of America, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch Way to reduce.

READ AMAZING FACTS:
Today, thousands of patriotic American women are discovering a remarkably effective way to lose ugly, sluggish fat! To thus have that trim, "active look" and alert, peppy feeling so important today! It's easy! Merely mix ¾ glass* Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* water—drink before meals and at bedtime. Then what amazing action follows! First: You have less desire to eat sweet, fattening foods—thus cutting down caloric intake. Second: Natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime actually helps Nature consume excess fat! Builds quick-energy, too! Thus you look better—feel better! Have more of the pep you need in wartime! Start reducing the Welch Way today! *8-oz. glass

MOUNT VERNON MODELED HERE IN RARE WOODS

Washington Life Inspires Northwest Sider.

BY CHARLES CARROLL.

Chicago now has its own Mount Vernon. It was finished last week, the climax of six years of work. Built on a scale of three-eighths inch to the foot, it is, in detail, plan, and sturdiness, every inch the equal of the first Mount Vernon. Made of 30,000 pieces of wood, carved from specimens of rare woods of six continents, the model was based on working blueprints of Washington's home. To complete it, the builder, spent 15,000 hours in his workshop.

It was the dream of Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry street. Ever since he left his home in Germany 15 years ago this month and came to America, he had looked forward to that goal. Inspired by the freedom of America which Washington's courage first made possible, and as detetrmined as the first President that "whatever is done should be well done," he began his model six years ago. And it was the immigrant admirer of Washington who quoted so accurately that bit of philosophy of the father of our country.

Quit Work to Build.

He had earned enough to make it possible for him to devote all his time and energies to his project. In the years since 1937 he returned to his work as a bricklayer for only eight months.

First step in building the model was correspondence with authorities in colonial architecture. He wrote the architect of the capitol in Washington, historians of the Daughters of the American Revolution, officers of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, and the superintendent of the home at Mount Vernon. The superintendent provided plans from which he made his blueprints.

Second step was selection of woods. He chose woods from six continents; went about their purchase in Chicago. He wanted fine and durable woods for his model — woods that would simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon without the use of modern paints.

Rare African Woods.

From Africa came ebony for the weather vane ball; bubinga for the small steps in the cupola; avodire for the brick of Mount Vernon's walls; vermilion wood for the roof, and benin for the lawn.

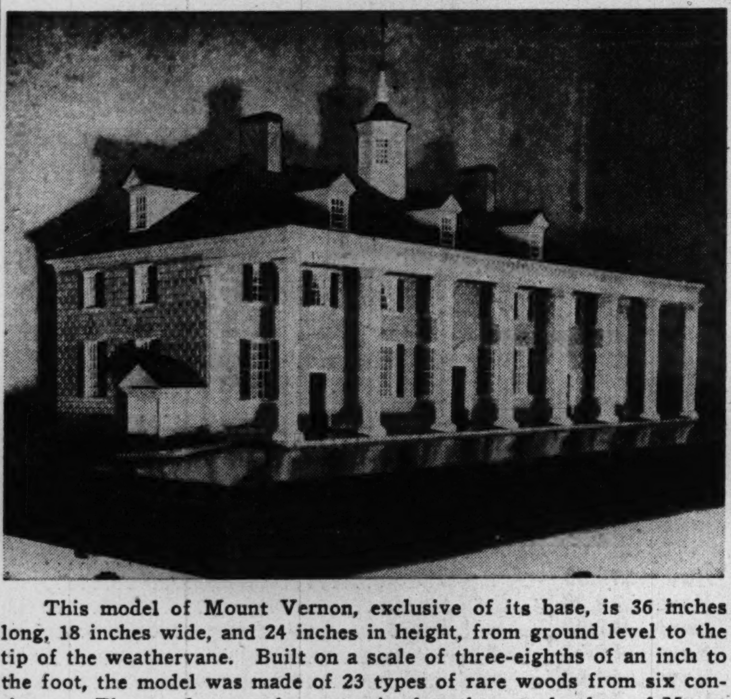
The boxwood for the columns, the cornices, the cupola, the banquet hall window, and the rear doors came from the East Indies. So, too, did the padouk for the cupola roofing and the teak for the sidewalk foundation.

From England came sycamore for the basement windows, pearwood for the front and rear steps, and harewood for the sidewalks. The model Mount Vernon's window frames are of American holly; the shutters of Circassian walnut from Russia; Venetian blinds of West Indian satinwood. The molding is of narra wood from the Philippines and the gravel of the drive is of Australian lacewood.

All in all, Chicago's Mount Vernon was made of 23 types of rare wood.

Zoller and his wife have three children, two sons and one daughter. Jacob, 30, is a private in the army at Fort Custer, Michigan. Herman, 28, is a corporal, stationed at Camp Pickett, Virginia. Their daughter, Mrs. Katharine Meier, lives at 4206 Troy street.

Builds Model of Mount Vernon



This model of Mount Vernon, exclusive of its base, is 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 24 inches in height, from ground level to the tip of the weathervane. Built on a scale of three-eighths of an inch to the foot, the model was made of 23 types of rare woods from six continents. The woods were chosen to simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon. Only features of the model home to be made without wood are the glass windows, the painted curtains of the second floor and the brass weathervane.

Determined as was Washington that "whatever is done should be well done," Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry avenue, spent 15,000 hours in the last six years completing his model of Mount Vernon. Only unnecessary work in that time was this intricately cut model of the Chippendale railing that surmounted the piazza at Mount Vernon. He learned that the railing had been removed from the front of the home in 1935 when it was discovered it was not an original feature.

PLAN PROVINCE RALLY OF DELTA GAMMA IN APRIL

Mrs. John Stedder of 227 South Greenbay road, Highland Park, recently was elected president of the Evanston and North Shore Alumnae chapter of Delta Gamma. Other officers are Mrs. Burr Lee of 2523 Harrison street, Evanston, and Mrs. James O'Brien, 139 Hazel road, Glencoe, secretary. Plans are being made for the province convention to be held April 16 and 17, with the Evanston chapter as hostess to the delegates from Province III., which includes Lawrence college, Beloit college, Albion college and the Universities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, and Northwestern.

MRS. JAMES E. SAWYER.

The marriage of Marie Werner, daughter of Joseph G. Werner, 1217 Albion avenue, to James Eugene Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sawyer of De Kalb, took place recently at the First Congregational church, Evanston. A reception was held at the Georgian hotel, following the ceremony. The young couple is now at home at 936 Lake Shore drive.

MIZPAH WOMEN HOLDING ANNUAL DINNER TONIGHT

Sponsor 13th Silver Plate Event at Covenant Club.

Concluding several months of united effort to raise individual "silver plate" quotas thru a series of activities, more than 300 members of Women of Mizpah will attend their 13th annual silver plate dinner dance this evening at the Covenant club. Mrs. Otto Moss is general chairman for the dinner.

This year, a large part of the proceeds will be used for war service, as well as philanthropic and cultural projects. While, in pre-war years, the annual dinner was formal and the social highlight of the club's season, it will be an informal party this year, Mrs. A. Chester Green, president of the sisterhood, said.

Anshe Emet Sisterhood.

Sisterhoods of 19 affiliated Conservative synagags in the Chicago area will be guests of the Anshe Emet sisterhood at the annual reciprocity meeting of the Women's League of the United Synagog of America Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Louis B. Schwarts of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the midwest branch of the league, will be the speaker. Guests will be welcomed by Mrs. Arnold P. Natenberg, president of the Anshe Emet sisterhood.

Mrs. Phillip Yavitz, president of the Chicago branch, will give a greeting. A social hour will follow the musical program on which Pansy Lieberfarb, pianist, and Mary Pregozin and Ethel Schaffer, violinists, will play.

Agudas Achim Sisterhood.

A tea, ending the annual membership drive of the Agudas Achim sisterhood, will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Louis Rosen, 833 Gunnison street. New members and their sponsors will be guests for the afternoon. The program by Sadie Stern Merel will be entitled, "The Eve of St. Mark." Mrs. Louis Rosen is president of the organization.

Temple Sholom Sisterhood.

"I Saw Them Fighting," will be the subject of a lecture by Leland Stowe, sponsored by the Temple Sholom sisterhood at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday at Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Samuel Narrod is chairman of the lecture.

LEONE RECEIVES NEW OCD POST IN ROGERS PARK

Commands Protective Services in Area.

As the duties and problems of civilian defense multiply each week, new names go down on the roster of workers. In the Rogers Park-Clark community, Sam Leone, 1222 Touhy avenue, has been appointed assistant commander of the civilian defense corps. Mr. Leone will be in charge of protective services. He was formerly training officer of the community.

◆

The Sheridan Center OCD will award certificates to men and women who have completed courses of training as senior air raid wardens, air raid wardens, fire watchers, and messengers at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Le Moyne school, Waveland avenue and Fremont street. Identification cards for service corps workers also will be issued. G. Otto Meierdierks and Louis L. Cohen, heads of the defense and service corps, will present the awards. Lee Ross, director of division 6, will speak. In charge of arrangements is A. C. Mayerson, community commander.

◆

◆

E. R. Christhilf, commander of the Howard street community of OCD, has appointed Mrs. Carl Hildebrand, 1408 Jonquil terrace, to the post of assistant commander in charge of the defense corps in his community. Mrs. Hildebrand formerly was conservation chairman. In her new job Mrs. Hildebrand will have under her direction: Conservation, with Mrs. William T. Silver, chairman; salvage, Edward F. Welch, chairman; consumer information, Mrs. Paul B. Thrasher, chairman; war housing, Raymond Mons, chairman; physical fitness, Wilbert D. Nelson, chairman; victory gardens, Mrs. George De Muth, chairman; morale, and transportation. Appointments to the chairmanship of the last two services will be made within the next few days.

◆

At 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon women of the near north side are invited to attend an OCD rally in the Surf theater, Dearborn and Division streets. The program will include the showing of a government feature length film, "The World at War," and a talk by Miss Clara Gordon of the National Live Stock and Meat board on "Point Rationing, Meat Cookery, and Low Cost Meals." Directing the rally are Mrs. Lea Fish, chairman of the women's activities committee of the community, and Mrs. H. L. Stanley, conservation chairman.

Hold Dinner at Y. M. C. A. Institute Wednesday Night

Austin Y. M. C. A. will be host to the north side laymen's institute at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Wednesday night. Departments participating in the meeting will be Austin, Wilson Avenue, Lincoln-Belmont, Irving Park, Oak Park, and Rogers Park. Jim Mummery, member of the state Y. M. C. A. staff, will be the guest speaker.

DE PAUL MOVES WAR CLASSES TO NORTH SIDE 'Y'

For the convenience of potential war workers, De Paul university is taking its tuition free war training courses from its campuses into the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., 3333 North Marshfield avenue.

Coöperating with the university in this venture is the Lake View Industrial council. Industrial supervision and foremanship for men, labor legislation and industrial relations, production control, and industrial pay roll accounting are a few of the courses offered at the Y. M. C. A.

No Truer, Nobler Creatures Ever Lived Than Women!

As T. L. Peacock said in "The Vision of Love," thou wast made:

"To chase the clouds of life's tempestuous hours,
To strew its short but weary way with flow'rs,
New hopes to raise, new feelings to impart,
And pour celestial balsam on the heart;
For this to man was lovely woman giv'n,
The last, best work, the noblest gift of Heav'n."

Ah, true, how very true. Woman! Lovely woman! Nature made thee to temper man: we had been brutes without thee (thanks to Tom Otway) and as for that guy Kipling who referred to you as "A rag, a bone and a hank of hair," all we can say is he musta been saturated with dyspepsia at the time. We, here at the Skokie Valley Laundry, agree with Bulwer-Lytton who said there was: "More royalty in woman's honest heart, than dwells within the crowned majesty and sceptered anger of a hundred kings!" And we know, too, how understanding you can be, like f'r instance, when our drivers told you we were going to eliminate some of the little fancy things we used to do here at Skokie. That is just for the duration, of course. That SUN-GLO service of ours, however, is still a good solid dish of meat and potatoes. Here's what you get:

- ✓ SHIRTS (standard style only) professionally ironed at NO EXTRA CHARGE.
- ✓ WOOL BLANKETS washed soft as a baby's skin, returned ready to use.
- ✓ CHENILLE and Candlewick spreads washed in olive oil base suds, ready to use.
- ✓ DOILIES, Madeiras and needlework hand-ironed with new type of mist-spray irons.
- ✓ HANDKERCHIEFS ironed and perfectly folded.
- ✓ NO CHARGE for buttons or mending shirts.
- ✓ KNIT PIECES like cotton undershirts, socks, etc., fluffed in dust-free sterile air—no ironing needed.
- ✓ WEARING APPAREL, dry and folded.
- ✓ ALL FLAT pieces will be returned gloriously radiant with a bright new freshness and charm.
- ✓ BATH TOWELS washed in water soft as dewdrops, dried and folded—super-absorbent.

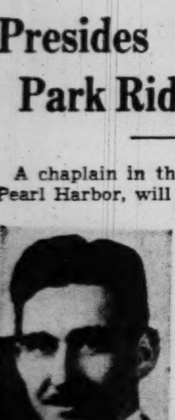
VOTE TUESDAY ON CITY'S ALDERMEN

PEARL HARBOR CHAPLAIN WILL DEDICATE FLAG

Presides Today at Park Ridge Rites.

A chaplain in the navy, veteran of Pearl Harbor, will return today after three years' duty to dedicate the service flag of the church of which he was once pastor. He is Lt. Raymond C. Hohenstein, pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran church of Park Ridge from the church's founding in 1931 until early 1940. The dedication services will take place at 3:30 o'clock at the church.



Lt. Hohenstein.

Chaplain Hohenstein volunteered for the navy in January, 1940. He received his early training at the bureau of navigation in Washington, D. C., at Quantico, Va., and at San Diego, Cal.

In June, 1940, he was assigned as chaplain to the U. S. S. Boise, the cruiser which wrote a brilliant chapter to American naval history in recent actions in the Solomons.

Lt. Hohenstein served aboard the Boise until August, 1941, when he was transferred to the U. S. S. California, a battleship based at Pearl Harbor.

Wounded During Attack.

He was preparing early morning worship services on the California on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japs unleashed their attack upon the island stronghold.

Wounded several times by shrapnel during the raid, Lt. Hohenstein was ordered to a naval hospital on Oahu, chief of the Hawaiian Islands. He remained there until February last year, when he was made chaplain of the submarine base at Pearl Harbor.

Several weeks ago, he received orders to return to the United States and was assigned to the naval training station at Great Lakes. Last week he enjoyed a reunion with his wife and two young sons, Charles and Clyde, in the family home on Chester street in Park Ridge.

Flag Honors 6 Members.

The service flag he will dedicate today at the church will honor its six members in service. The stars are for Lt. Hohenstein; the Rev. Armin Breihan, also a former pastor of the church; Lt. Glenn Granath, former Sunday school superintendent; Corp. Arnold Juern, former assistant Sunday school superintendent; Pvt. Richard Boight, and Midshipman Willard Gieseke.

The Rev. Waldemar Kissling, present pastor of the church, will act as liturgist at the dedication ceremony. Music for the services has been arranged by Herbert R. Stoffels. Corp. Theodore Kissling, son of the pastor, will be the soloist. Families of the church's former members, now in the army and navy, will be special guests.

SCOUTS AND CUBS WIN WAR BOND POSTER PRIZES

If war bond sales increase in Portage Park and Jefferson Park within the next few weeks, it may well be because of the poster contest conducted recently for members of Boy Scout Troop 981 and Cub Pack 3981. Results of the judging have been announced.

First prize winner in the Boy Scout division was Hubert Moran, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Moran, 4450 North Mango avenue. First prize winner in the Cub Pack division was Gerald Cotter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kaven Cotter, 5949 Giddings street. Second prize went to Richard Brandt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Brandt, 5919 Wilson avenue. Tied for third prize were Warren Fick, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fick, 5917 Wilson avenue, and Charles Silber, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Silber, 5943 Wilson avenue. Pieces of scouting equipment will be awarded as prizes.

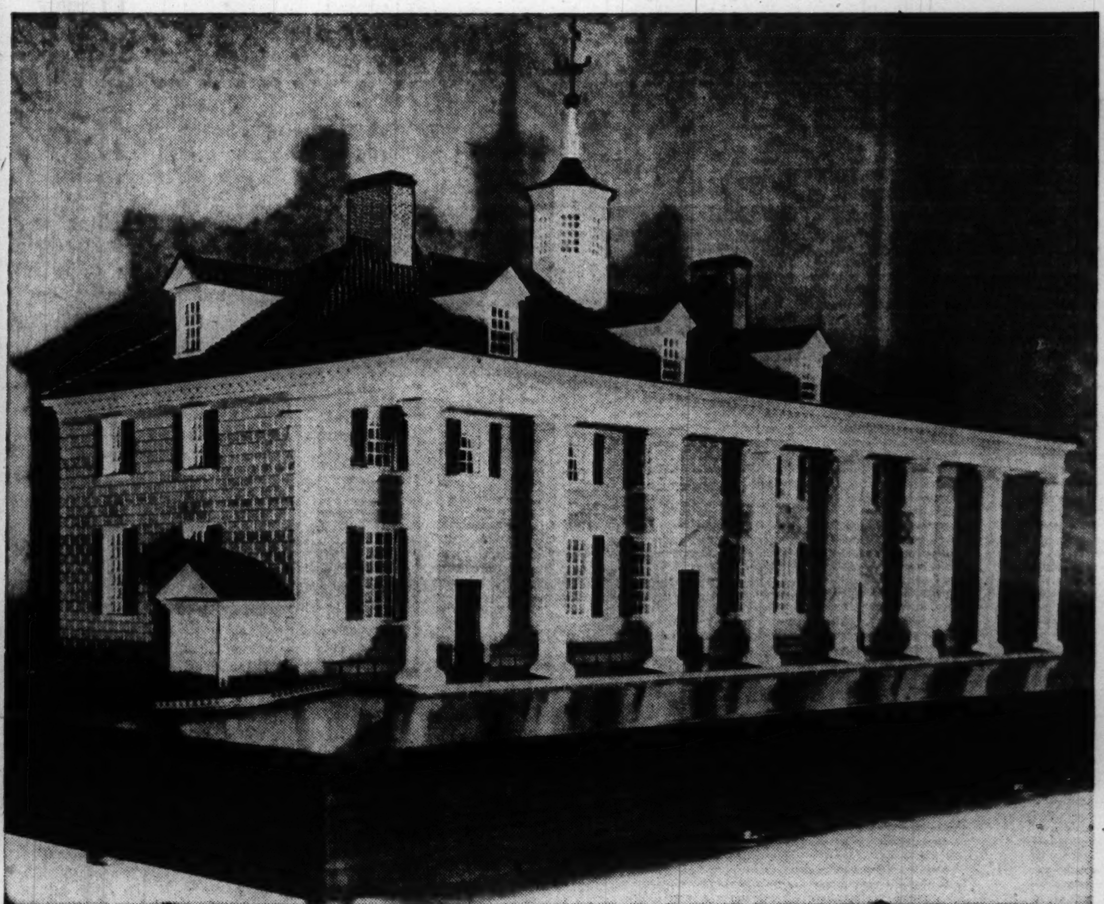
Prizes were awarded partly on the judgment of Victory Emery, treasury department representative who viewed the display, and partly due to preferences expressed by 850 persons who cast votes. The 40 posters entered in the contest will remain on display at 4771 Milwaukee avenue thruout this week. H. J. Moran is leader of both the Cub Pack of 45 boys and the Scout Troop of 40.

Y. W. Girl Reserves Elect at Roosevelt, Flower High

A. are: Mary Lou Schmidt, 2550 Montrose avenue, president; Ruth Beck, 4521 North Drake avenue, vice president; Arlene Hansen, 4433 North Troy street, secretary; and Nonette Ausmann, 4452 North St. Louis avenue, treasurer. Also from the northwest side are officers chosen by the Y. W. C. A. Girl reserves at Flower Technical High school: Alice Kulla, 1253 North Rockwell street, president; Winogene Wolmer, 2539 North Central avenue, vice president; and Helen Varrial, 1106 North Central Park avenue, treasurer.

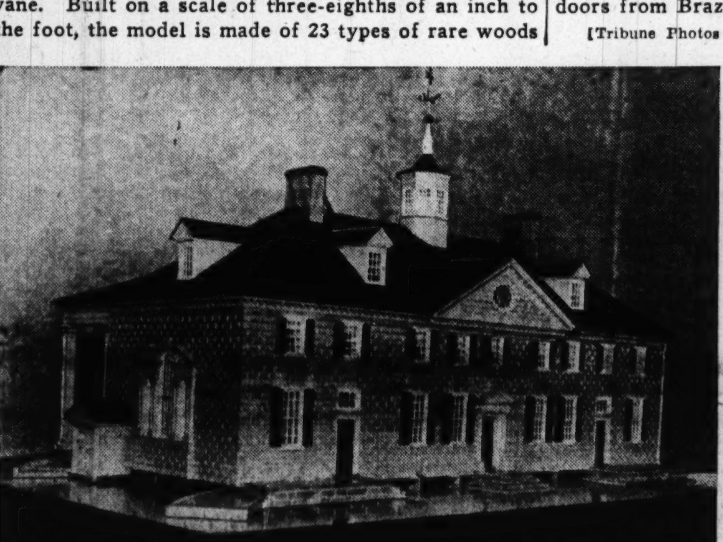
Spends Six Years of Work and Study Building Scale Model of Mount Vernon

Determined as was Washington that "whatever is done should be well done," Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry avenue, spent 15,000 hours in the last six years completing his model of Mount Vernon. Only unnecessary work in that time was this intricately cut model of the Chippendale railing that surmounted the piazza at Mount Vernon. He learned, in reading an architectural magazine that the railing had been removed from the front of the home in 1935 when it was discovered it was not an original feature.



This model of Mount Vernon, exclusive of its base, is 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 24 inches in height, from ground level to the tip of the weathervane. Built on a scale of three-eighths of an inch to the foot, the model is made of 23 types of rare woods from six continents. The columns at the front of the home were made of boxwood from the East Indies; the roof from South African vermilion wood; the doors from Brazilian greenhart.

[Tribune Photos by Julius Gantter.]



Only features of the model home to be made without wood are the glass windows, the painted curtains of the second floor, and the brass weathervane. The brick steps, at the rear of the home, were made of countless pieces of peroba, a yellow rose colored wood, native to the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil. The shutters were fashioned from circassion walnut from Russia.

★ With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS ★

Lt. Leonard H. Fischer, 4322 North Monitor avenue, who recently visited his wife and relatives here while on leave from Fort Knox, Kentucky, has been assigned to duty at Camp Campbell, Kentucky. A recent graduate of Fort Knox officer candidate school, Lt. Fischer had spent 22 months at the recruit reception center at Camp Grant, before being selected for officer training.

Lt. Fisher.

Five WAACs, former residents of the northwest side, completed their basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and were assigned new duties. Mary G. Wedlock, 4836 Bernard street, has been selected for officer candidate school at the Iowa training center. Mary J. Saccomanno, 626 North Christiana avenue, has been assigned to an army administrative school at Conway, Ark. Ruth V. Kane, 5406 Neva street; Mathilda E. Recently graduated from the officer candidate school at Fort Benning, Georgia, Kenneth D. Sheldon, 5817 North Austin avenue, and James F. O'Hare, 5109 North St. Louis avenue, have been commissioned second lieutenants in the army. Lt. Sheldon, a graduate of Schurz High school, attended Northwestern university, before entering the service. Lt. O'Hare attended Von Steuben High school and North Park college.

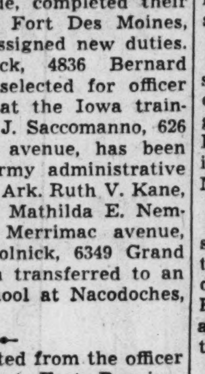
Joseph S. Grzesiak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grezesiak of 2955 North Ridgeway avenue, has been promoted to corporal at the air depot training station at Stinson field, San Antonio, Tex. A graduate of Schurz High school and formerly a photographer in Chicago, he is now a photographic technician at the field. His wife and child live in San Antonio.



Corp. Grzesiak.

Charles V. Fargo Jr., 5327 Giddings street, has been selected for the field artillery candidate school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He formerly was a corporal. Before entering the service, he and his wife, the former Florence Witte, worked for the Pullman company. Mrs. Witte is still associated with the company.

John M. Fischer, 2320 North Maplewood avenue, on duty at the headquarters of the San Francisco port of embarkation, was recently promoted from staff sergeant to technical sergeant. He has been in the army since March, 1941.

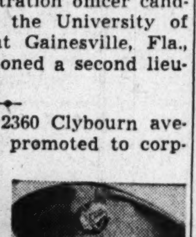
Dolores Kaminski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kaminski of 6318 North Melvina avenue, who was recently sworn into the WAVES, left last week for Hunter college, New York City, where she will receive her basic training. Miss Kaminski, who is a graduate of Schurz High school, worked in the purchasing department of a Chicago manufacturing company, before entering the service.

Dolores Kaminski.

Henry L. Demski, 3528 Melrose street, was recently promoted to corporal. He is stationed at Fairgrounds, Detroit, Mich. His brother, Roman P. Demski, formerly on duty in England, is now "somewhere in North Africa."

Michael F. Laterza, 5008 Division street, was graduated recently from the army administration officer candidate school on the University of Florida campus at Gainesville, Fla., and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Alex Popovich, 2360 Clybourn avenue, was recently promoted to corporal. He has been in the army more than two years.



Corp. Popovich.

Two northwest siders recently arrived at the Amarillo army air field, Amarillo, Tex. to begin an intensive course in aviation mechanics. They are: Carter Gibson, 2439 Logan boulevard, and Elmer A. Morgan, 2456 North Rockwell street.

Graduated recently from an intensive course in aviation mechanics at Shepard field, Texas, Pvt. John Gaynor, 2851 North Kedzie avenue, and Ptv. Eugene S. Sadlowski, 2145 North Avers avenue, are now eligible to become crew chiefs on a bomber and to win a rating as corporal or sergeant.

For 25 years associated with the Milwaukee railroad, Alex V. Marxen, city passenger agent, whose home is in Bensenville, recently left his post, accepted a commission as first lieutenant in the army air forces, and is now in the traffic and transportation division of the air forces in Washington.

Graduated from a 12 weeks' intensive course at the adjutant general's school, Fort Washington, Maryland, James H. Gillison, 3427 North Hamilton avenue, has been commissioned a second lieutenant.

Selected recently to attend an enlisted specialist school at Camp Wallace, Texas, Pvt. Jack W. McEwan, husband of Mrs. Norma McEwan of 4111 Nelson street, is now pursuing a course in electrical engineering.

Commissioned second lieutenants in the army air forces upon their recent graduation at the Roswell army flying school at Roswell, N. M., Robbert F. Pudelwitts, 6049 Ardmore avenue, and Alan Q. Winholt, 3042 North Tripp avenue, have been asigned to other posts for further duty.

Lt. Pudelwitts.

Appointed recently a midshipman in the United States merchant marine cadet corps, Leonard J. Lichtenstein, 3308 Hollywood avenue, is now in training at the merchant marine basic school at Great Neck, Long-Island, N. Y.

Students at the submarine chaser training center at Miami, Fla., Joseph Dessent, 4026 Melrose street, and Wayne D. Bowman, 5805 Melrose street, are being taught seven days a week to fight the U-boat menace.

Selected by the commanding officer of the air depot training station at Will Rogers field, Oklahoma, to attend officer candidate school, Sergt. Irving E. Milstein has been assigned to the anti-aircraft artillery school at Camp Davis, North Carolina.

Upon completion of the 16 weeks' course at the quartermaster service school at the naval training station, Farragut, Idaho, Wilbur R. Schat, 1502 Ohio street; Casimir J. Kotara, 1419 Superior street, and William G. Hay, Park Ridge, will be ready to qualify for advancement in petty officer ratings

Scout Troop Plans Annual Charter and Parent Night

Troop 916 of the Boy Scouts of America will observe its third annual charter and parent night at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the Bethel Methodist church, Ridgeway and Cullom avenues. A committee man and scoutmaster will be installed; Tenderfoot Scouts will be welcomed to membership, and honors for regular troop members will be awarded.

OCD Block Party.

Blocks 7 and 9 in the Cragin-Belmont community of OCD will hold a party at Old Point hall, 5105 Grand avenue, at 8 o'clock Wednesday, March 3. Proceeds will go for gifts to the men in service from the blocks. John E. Poris is captain of the two blocks.

Mount Vernon Modeled Here in Rare Woods

BY CHARLES CARROLL.

Chicago now has its own Mount Vernon. It was finished last week, the climax of six years of work. Built on a scale of three-eighths inch to the foot, it is, in detail, plan, and sturdiness, every inch the equal of the first Mount Vernon. Made of 30,000 pieces of wood, carved from specimens of rare woods of six continents, the model was based on working blueprints of Washington's home. To complete it, the builder, spent 15,000 hours in his workshop.

It was the dream of Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry street. Ever since he left his home in Germany 15 years ago this month and came to America, he had looked forward to that goal. Inspired by the freedom of America which Washington's courage first made possible, and as detetrmined as the first President that "whatever is done should be well done," he began his model six years ago. And it was the immigrant admirer of Washington who quoted so accurately that bit of philosophy of the father of our country.

Quit Work to Build.

He had earned enough to make it possible for him to devote all his time and energies to his project. In the years since 1937 he returned to his work as a bricklayer for only eight months.

First step in building the model was correspondence with authorities in colonial architecture. He wrote the architect of the capitol in Washington, historians of the Daughters of the American Revolution, officers of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, and the superintendent of the home at Mount Vernon. The superintendent provided plans from which he made his blueprints.

Second step was selection of woods. He chose woods from six continents; went about their purchase in Chicago. He wanted fine and durable woods for his model — woods that would simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon without the use of modern paints.

Rare African Woods.

From Africa came ebony for the weather vane ball; bubinga for the small steps in the cupola; avodire for the brick of Mount Vernon's walls; vermilion wood for the roof, and benin for the lawn.

The boxwood for the columns, the cornices, the cupola, the banquet hall window, and the rear doors came from the East Indies. So, too, did the padouk for the cupola roofing and the teak for the sidewalk foundation.

Six large doors of the home are made of greenhart wood, native of Brazil. The chimney steps are of massaranduba, a heavy, dark, fine grained wood; the base of the model of rosewood, both natives of the forests of the Amazon.

Simulated Copper Roof.

Honduran mahogany was used for the foundation walls and chimney caps; Cuban mahogany for the copper roof. Central American prima vera wood furnished the porch ceiling and the basement doors.

From England came sycamore for the basement windows, pearwood for the front and rear steps, and harewood for the sidewalks. The model Mount Vernon's window frames are of American holly; the shutters of Circassian walnut from Russia; Venetian blinds of West Indian satinwood. The molding is of narra wood from the Philippines and the gravel of the drive is of Australian lacewood.

Name Schools Which Issue Ration Books

Lists of elementary schools by wards were announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, to guide Chicago residents in registering for point rationing, beginning Tuesday and continuing thru Friday. Registration hours will be 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Registrations will be taken in 333 elementary buildings, with 9,000 elementary teachers, 6,500 teachers and advanced students in the city's junior and teachers' colleges and thousands of volunteers to do the work.

Expect 3½ Million.

Three and a half million Chicagoans are expected to be registered in preparation for canned goods rationing, to begin March 1.

High school classes will not be affected, but elementary schools, junior and teacher colleges will be dismissed during the registration.

Registration will be in alphabetical order, Mulcahy announced, according to the following schedule:

A thru B—Tuesday morning.
C thru E—Tuesday afternoon.
F thru H—Wednesday morning.
I thru L—Wednesday afternoon.
M thru N—Thursday morning.
O thru R—Thursday afternoon.
S—Friday morning.
T thru Z—Friday afternoon.

Consumers are urged to follow the schedule except where pressing circumstances prevent it, Mulcahy said.

Use School in Own Ward.

Each registrant should go to the school in his ward nearest his home, Mulcahy said. He emphasized that no registrant should cross a ward boundark to register, even if a school in a neighboring ward should be closer than the nearest school in his ward. This regulation is necessary to keep ration records straight, he said.

Must Bring No. 1 Books.

The housewife or any other adult in a family may register for the entire household, Mulcahy reiterated, and he reminded that the registrant should have with him ration book No. 1 [sugar book] for each member of the family, and a completely answered consumer declaration form, which will state the family's stock of canned goods and coffee. Registrars will remove stamps for items declared in excess of five cans per person.

Schools in wards lying wholly or partly in the northwest side metropolitan area were listed as follows:

26th—Andersen, 1155 North Wolcott; Carpenter, 666 North Racine; Columbus, 2120 Augusta; Motley, 739 North Ada; Otis, 525 North Armour; Peabody, 1444 Augusta; Washington, 1000 Grand.

28th—Beidler, 3151 Walnut; Emerson, 1700 Walnut; Hayes, 258 North Leavitt; Mitchell, 2233 Ohio; Morse, 620 North Sawyer; Ryerson, 646 North Lawndale; Talcott, 1840 Ohio; Tennyson, 2800 Fulton.

30th—May, 512 South Lavergne; Nash, 4837 Erie; Nobel, 4127 Hirsch; Orr, 1040 North Keeler; Spencer, 214 North Lavergne; Tilton, 4152 West End.

31st—Cameron, 1234 North Monticello; Chopin, 2440 Rice; LaFayette, 2714 Au-

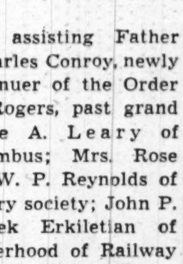
ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH PLANS HOMECOMING FETE SATURDAY NIGHT

A homecoming party for former parishioners of historic old St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, will be given Saturday night in the Morrison hotel. Mayor Kelly and other prominent guests will attend, the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor, announced.



The Rev. T. J. Hayes.

The radio team, Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh, will headline the entertainment. There also will be an orchestra for dancing and tables for cards. The party is being sponsored by the Order of Seville, Knights of Columbus, of St. Patrick's council, Altar and Rosary society and Irish organizations.

The committee assisting Father Hayes includes Charles Conroy, newly elected grand seignuer of the Order of Seville; J. C. Rogers, past grand seignuer; Clarence A. Leary of Knights of Columbus; Mrs. Rose Owens, and Mrs. W. P. Reynolds of the Altar and Rosary society; John P. Butler and Parsek Erkiletian of Lake lodge, Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; Michael Burns of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Maurice Cotter and Paul M. Sheridan of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Thomas Gibbons, leader in Irish organizations.

RUNOFFS SEEN AS RESULT OF HARD BATTLES

Hot Fights in 36th, 38th, 39th.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The torrid aldermanic campaigns which continued to pop last week in the 36th, 38th, and 39th wards brought forecasts that three sitting aldermen probably would be forced into run-offs. The election will be Tuesday. Of the eight other incumbents on the northwest side three are unopposed and five seem strong enough to poll a majority of the votes to be cast Tuesday.

The many sided fights for the vacancies in the 33d and 40th wards also may result in run-offs. The only other northwest side vacancy is in the 37th, where a two-candidate battle is in progress.

G. O. P. Hopeful of Run-offs.

All the incumbents are regular Democrats, and Republican spokesmen are not optimistic about gaining a council seat in the election. They are shooting for the run-offs, which are scheduled for April 6, the date of the mayoral election, for all wards in which no candidate receives a majority Tuesday. The turnout of G. O. P. voters is customarily much greater for the mayoral election than for the primary.

Under the law aldermanic elections are nonpartisan, but as usual regular party organizations are exerting efforts in behalf of selected candidates in most of the wards. On the northwest side three Kelly-backed Democratic aldermen — Richard M. Walsh [36th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], and Hyman L. Brody [39th] — ran into unexpectedly loud opposition from regular Republicans and disgruntled Democrats.

Ald. Cullerton, who ranked 11th among Chicago's 50 aldermen in attending council meetings in the last four years, is running neck and neck with Loyd C. Larson, indorsed Republican who seems powerful enough to bring about the run-off with the help of anti-Kelly votes for Raymond T. O'Keefe, former Democratic state representative [25th]. A fourth candidate is Louis Larsen, a guard for the Brinks Express company.

Walsh in Close Race.

Ald. Walsh barely squeezed into office in 1939 in a run-off with George W. Robinson, then the incumbent, who had Democratic organization support. Walsh now is again beset with Robinson, as well as Herman [Max] Richter, backed by a hard working regular G. O. P. ward organization, and Zeb Zarnecki, a Polish radio announcer. Ald. Walsh and Richter are expected to emerge No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in the voting Tuesday.

James A. Davis, a state oil inspector who is backed by the regular G. O. P. ward organization, is expected to push Ald. Brody of the 39th into a runoff. An active civic worker, Davis played a leading rôle in the northwest side feeder bus fight and in the battle for the extension of the Montrose avenue street car line. He has seen army service in the Philippine insurrection, on the Mexican border, and in France.

The other candidates in the 39th are Sol Gertz, another ex-service man with an outstanding record; Nino J. Persello, 29 year old attorney who has been put up by independent groups, and John Maiski, without organized support.

Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st] is faced with vigorous opposition from two well known Republicans, Howard S. Hewson and Timothy P. Sheehan, both backed by different elements of the ward organization, but his popularity is expected to keep his seat for him by a narrow margin.

Stage Battle in 40th.

The race for the 40th ward seat to be vacated by Ald. Joseph C. Ross, who is retiring, has developed into a lively intraparty fray. Ald. Ross, who heads the minority Republican group in the ward, has indorsed George O. Ibsen, an employé of the state finance department. The other contenders are Lawrence Spuller, regular Republican nominee; Julius Sherwin, assistant state's attorney and Boyle Democrat, and Samuel P. Gurman, indorsed Democrat. Gurman and Spuller probably will wind up in a run-off, tho all the candidates are evenly matched and the dopesters may be surprised.

C. H. Kordowski, an attorney with long experience, has been stumping the 33d ward day after day with telling effect as the regular Democratic candidate. Nevertheless, it is doubtful if his rapidly increasing reputation can give him a majority over the four others contending for the seat left vacant last fall by the death of Ald. Vincent S. Zwiefka. They are John H. Brandt, florist and regular Republican; Z. H. Kadow, former alderman; Edward J. Perlowski, Boyle Democrat, and John M. Price, independent.

Connell in Uphill Fight.

Francis X. Connell, regular Republican, is working hard to win the 37th ward post which was left open recently when Ald. Francis E. Callahan joined the marine corps, but he does not appear strong enough to defeat William J. Lancaster, chief trial lawyer for the city in property damage cases and who is backed by

NORTHWEST SIDE LEGIONNAIRES GO BACK IN SERVICE

38 Veterans of 11 Posts Return to Duty.

Thirty-eight veterans of the last war, all members of American Legion posts of the northwest side, have returned to active service with the army, navy, and marine corps. The men represent 11 Legion groups.

Bell post, 6945 Fullerton avenue, has two members in the service. Dr. Harold A. Sofield of River Forest, who, in civil life, was a pediatrician and member of the staff of the Masonic Children's hospital and Loyola university, is now a major in the army medical corps, stationed at an evacuation hospital in the southwest Pacific. In World War I. he was a quartermaster third class in the navy. Paul M. Jorgensen joined the army before Pearl Harbor. A private in the last war, he now is a sergeant in an army engineer battalion.

Three Past Commanders.

Belmont post, 5100 Belmont avenue, has six representatives in service. Andrew Graczyk, 5259 Melrose street, a past commander of the post, was an army private in 1917 and 1918. Today he is a sergeant in the marine corps, stationed in Washington, D. C. Russell E. Senior, 3519 North Long avenue, another past commander, was a private in the marine corps during America's first war with Germany. He again is with the marines, a technical sergeant at Quantico, Va. Past Commander John M. Maxwell, 3049 Linder avenue, again in the navy, is a chief petty officer. Dr. Edward P. King, 6000 Byron street, with the army last time, is a captain in the medical corps. Albert Anderson, 5418 West Melrose street, has returned to the navy. Ray Geis, 3419 Lowell avenue, again is in the naval air corps, serving in Nashville, Tenn.

Caldwell post, 6112 North Caldwell avenue, lists six veterans in service. Ross E. Fulton, with the field artillery in World War I., is a chief machinist mate in the navy overseas. Herbert L. Kumpfer, an aviator in the last war, is a lieutenant colonel in the army at Fort Wayne, Ind. Frank B. Murphy is a first lieutenant in the army at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. Clarence Cartter, with the navy before, is with the army now. Earl Nessler again is with the army. D. Alf J. Holm, with the navy 25 years ago, is a lieutenant commander stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Send Veteran Apiece.

Budlong post, 2831 Lawrence avenue, and the Des Plaines post each have one member back in uniform. The Budlong veteran is Lawrence Patrick Gibbons, 3604 North Damen avenue. In the navy from 1917 to 1919, he has returned as chief petty officer at Great Lakes. The Des Plaines Legionnaire is Joseph J. Healy. He served 19 months as a chief petty officer in the navy in the last war and now is a captain in the army signal corps, on duty in Washington, D. C.

The Edison Park post, 6709 Oshkosh avenue, finds four of its men again under arms. Dr. Merrick M. Breck is a major in the army medical corps. Fletcher Newell, royal Canadian air force fighter in the last war, is a captain in the army air forces. Henry Mall formerly in the infantry, is also with the army air forces. He is a sergeant on duty at Goodfellow field, Texas. Washington J. Dyniewicz is fighting again with the navy.

The Logan Square post, 2453 North Kedzie avenue, counts three members again in service. Erwin Larse, 3519 Wrightwood avenue, is a captain in the army. He is in Hawaii. Stanley Przygacki, 4868 Warner avenue, is in Alaska, a captain in the army medical corps. Jack Bryll is a private at Camp Grant, Illinois.

Three from Melin-Romer.

The Melin-Romer post, 5230 Division street, boasts three members in service. Elmer W. Cox, in the army from 1918 to 1919, is now a sergeant, instructor of the R. O. T. C. unit at Austin High school. William Sell, navy veteran, is a corporal in the marine corps at Mare Island, Morro Bay, Cal. Ira McKee Smith, in the army in 1918, is now a major in the same branch of service.

The Palmer post, 5752 Grand avenue, has one member in the army. He is Pvt. Joseph Besler of 2148 North Laramie avenue.

The Mel Tierney post in Park Ridge, with eight members returned to active duty, has contributed more men than any of the other 10 posts. William F. McCaughey, with the army at Camp Lee, Virginia, in 1918, is now a captain in the field artillery at Clinton, Ind. Fredrick W. Johnston, an army private overseas in World War I., is a captain in the army air forces and is serving as commanding officer of a single engine squadron at Aloe army air field, Victoria, Tex. Thomas J. Corgan, two years a corporal with the AEF in the last war, is a second lieutenant in the army air forces at Randolph field, Texas. George Fender, a naval ensign before, is a lieutenant commander in the navy in charge of the "training ship" at the North Dakota State School of Science, Wahpeton, N. D. George M. Lyon, seaman first class at a navy aviation repair base at Eastleigh, England, in the last war, is a chief petty officer in the navy, based at Hieneme, Cal.

Served on Destroyer.

Herman E. Scheunemann, quartermaster second class in the navy during 1917 and 1918, served on a destroyer in the North sea. Now he is a chief boatswain's mate at the aviation machinist mate school at Navy pier, Arthur W. Koepp, a corporal with the AEF in France, is a captain in the dental clinic of the recruit reception center at Fort Sheridan. Ralph G. Davis, a sergeant major in the 214th field signal battalion at Camp Custer, Michigan, in World War I., is a lieutenant colonel in the finance department of the army.

Victory post, 4146 Elston avenue, has three members in the army. Carl F. Steinhoff, 6207 Artesian avenue, in the last war was a lieutenant in the medical corps. He is now a medical corps lieutenant colonel, stationed at San Francisco, Cal. Rex Fleming, 3034 North Halsted street, a former private in the anti-aircraft corps of the army, is a captain in the medical corps at Camp Lee, Virginia. D. M. Werdebough, 3200 Montrose avenue, a cook with the AEF in France in 1918, is a private at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Name Northwest Chairmen in Red Cross Fund Drive

Organization of city and county divisions in the Chicago chapter's drive for $8,750,000 for the Red Cross war fund to be launched March 1 has been completed with the appointment of Fred B. Snite to head the urban group. Arthur H. Schneider, vice president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, will take charge of the suburban campaign, according to Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman.

These divisions will have the task of house to house solicitation to supplement industrial coverage, which is designed to secure gifts equal to one day's pay from every employé at his place of business. Mr. Snite's city division has been organized to conform with OCD groupings. The northwest side, district No. 5, has for its chairman, Atty. Joseph Newton, 105 West Madison street.

Suburban Area Organized.

Mr. Schneider has divided his suburban territory, which includes Cook, Du Page and the southern half of Lake county, into six districts, with a chairman and vice chairman for each group. All vice chairmen will recruit volunteers in their respective districts to be part of an army of 50,000 solicitors who will take an active part in the campaign. County divisions on the northwest side are:

District 2, Cook county northwest—Chairman, Dr. F. W. Lindberg, Barrington; vice chairmen, Mrs. George C. Hieber, Arlington Heights; Mrs. George Schneberger, Arlington Heights; Mrs. James Haffner, Barrington; Mrs. Hyde Gillettee, Barrington; Mrs. Edward B. Schmidt, Bartlett; Murray S. Smith, Des Plaines; George L. Busse, Mount Prospect; Mrs. W. C. Koch, Niles; Mrs. Albert Goeler, Niles; Mrs. Winifred Whitham, Ontarioville; Roy L. La Londe, Palatine; Frank O. Potter, Park Ridge; Mrs. Chester Foust, Schamburg, and Miss Lucille Schneider, Wheeling.

Du Page, Lake Leaders.

Among the vice chairmen of district 5, in Du Page county, are Mrs. Emma L. Capoot, Bensenville; Mrs. W. F. Elms, Bartlett, and Mrs. M. C. Whyte, Itasca. Mrs. Evelyn Olson of Wauconda is one of the vice chairmen in district 6, Lake county.

Northwest side residents serving as vice chairmen in district 4, Cook county, west, include Mrs. Leo E. Engelman, Elmwood Park; Charles Wurm, Fairview; Mrs. Fergus M. Flynn, Franklin Park, and Mrs. Ruth Swan, Schiller Park.

Also serving in district 2 are Mrs. W. C. Koch, and Mrs. Albert Goler, both of Niles.

Tuberculosis Institute.

The monthly clinic of the Tuberculosis institute of Cook county will be held from 10 until 3 o'clock Wednesday at the municipal building in Elmwood Park, for the Leyden township district.

LANE TECH BOND GOAL: WANT TO NAME WAR PLANE

Hope to Reach $300,000 by 'Doolittle Day.'

Anxious to sell $300,000 in war bonds and stamps in order to have a Flying Fortress named after their school, the students of Lane Technical High school, who have sold over $250,000 since Pearl Harbor, hope to reach their goal by Doolittle day, April 18, first anniversary of the American raid on Tokio.

Russell Christian, student war coordinator, who lives at 2151 Bradley place, believes the mark will be passed. Until last June only $50,000 in bonds and stamps had been sold. Sales since that time, however, have soared. During the week commemorating the first anniversary of America's declaration of war $40,000 in cash was converted into bonds. In an average week $10,000 is taken in.

Faculty Man Is Agent.

The faculty has helped in the drive. In September a faculty member agreed to become an issuing agent for bonds. Sales were much accelerated when the students found they could bring their money in the morning and take their bonds home in the evening. The office is open all day. Christian works two periods there and then helps make out the report and the bank remittance.

The salesmen have formed an "army." Enlistment in the army costs $1. Promotion depends upon sales of bonds and stamps. Soldier salesmen who account for $750 in purchases become generals.

Commander in chief is Donald Fertel, 931 Gunnison street. Among the members of his family, relatives, neighbors, and friends he has sold $15,360 in war securities. And he has bought $100 worth for himself!

War Mother Buys.

A mother of a former Lane student now serving with the navy in the Pacific bought $125 in bonds and stamps from Fertel. Hearing of the student bond drive, she called him and asked to buy her share for him.

Four people interested in the school have bought $1,000 bonds.

Christian and Fertel wish that the 50 bonds that they sell on an average every day could be of the same denomination.

TUESDAY'S VOTE TO CLOSE RACES FOR ALDERMEN

both the city hall machine and a citizens' committee.

If there is a dark horse on the northwest side, it might well be Ernest F. Kaps, who claims the unofficial support of the G. O. P. ward organization in his determined campaign to upset Ald. Matt Porten, who has represented the 34th for five terms. Kaps is a business agent for the carpenters' and joiners' union.

Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st] and Ald. Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d] should win easily over their opponents, Peter J. Sklodowski, an independent, and Alvin G. Kolski, a Boyle Democrat. Ald. Walter Orlikoski [35th], indorsed Democrat, also is expected to win Tuesday over four other contenders: Edmund Ambrozewski, regular Republican; Edmund J. Cwik and Michael Swiatkowski, Democrats, and Bernard Wichlenski, an independent.

Ald. Alexander J. Sobota [26th], Ald. George D. Kells [28th], and Ald. Edward J. Upton [30th] are not opposed for reëlection.

New Drama Group to Give "Ladies in Retirement"

The newly formed Playmakers, under the direction of Russell Hupp, will present "Ladies in Retirement," on three consecutive Sundays beginning next Sunday, at the theater in the Tiffin building, 4059 North avenue. In the cast will be Elsie Skerbinek, Josephine Mondelli, Elaine Mathison, Dick Rapoporte, Betty Gawler, Eileen Pavley, and Joyce Gordon.

Hold Dinner at Y. M. C. A. Institute Wednesday Eve

Austin Y. M. C. A. will be host to the north side laymen's institute at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Wednesday night. Departments participating in the meeting will be Austin, Wilson Avenue, Lincoln-Belmont, Irving Park, Oak Park, and Rogers Park. Jim Mummery, member of the state Y. M. C. A. staff, will be the guest speaker.

MOUNT VERNON MODELED HERE IN RARE WOODS

Washington Life Inspires Northwest Sider.

All in all, Chicago's Mount Vernon was made of 23 types of rare wood.

Few Features Not Wood.

Only features of the model not made of wood are the glass windows, the painted window curtains of the second floor, and the brass weather vane atop the cupola.

Zoller did not add a railing on the front roof. Altho it may have been a common sight to Chicago visitors of Mount Vernon before 1935, he found, in reading a national architectural magazine of February, 1938, that "the Chippendale railing which for years surmounted the piazza was not an original feature and was therefore removed in 1935."

Zoller is a collector of Mount Vernon memorabilia and a great respecter of the home as a national shrine.

An item of Mount Vernon history which he gleaned from Paul Wilstach's history of the home is "that there is an order in the United States navy by which, when ships of the service pass Mount Vernon between sunrise and sunset, a full guard and band is paraded, the bell is tolled, the colors are dropped to half mast, the bugle sounds taps, the guard presents arms, and officers and men on deck stand at attention and salute. . . ."

Two Sons in Army.

Zoller and his wife have three children, two sons and one daughter. Jacob, 30, is a private in the army at Fort Custer, Michigan. Herman, 28, is a corporal, stationed at Camp Pickett, Virginia. Their daughter, Mrs. Katharine Meier, lives at 4206 Troy street.

Zoller has no immediate plans now that his six years' work is completed, but he does admit that he already has made blueprints of Lincoln's home in Springfield, of Jefferson's home, Monticello, in Virginia, and of the national amphitheater in Arlington National cemetery.

25 PARK RIDGE V-5 CADETS ARE AVID VOLUNTEERS

Attending classes isn't compulsory, there's no honor roll, and no one flunks out. But the school for Naval Aviation V-5 cadets, at Park Ridge, is any school teacher's dream. For the 25 young men who attend classes twice weekly have one goal—knowledge.

The classes were started last fall, after an intensive recruiting drive. The school is run by a committee with J. Harvey Redson, 606 South Washington street, as its chairman. Serving on the committee are Marshall Howard, Alf G. Rosnes, Walter J. Welinske, J. E. Conlon, and Will Connelly, all of Park Ridge.

Brush up work in mathematics and code are emphasized. Earl F. Ronneberg, 7240 Pratt avenue, Chicago engineer, teaches mathematics.

One of the V-5 cadets himself, Alfred Fischer III, drew on his experience as a graduate of the RCA Radio Communications school to teach his fellow cadets radio code. Recently a course in physics has been added, under the instruction of James Albert Fizell, 6850 North Oleander avenue. The projected course in ship and plane identification has no instructor as yet.

Roger A. Sloan, a commercial artist and one of the V-5 cadets, designed the insignia. The cadets have organized sports teams to develop the spirit of team work and to build themselves up physically.

Some of the boys who have been in the service several months now have written back to tell Mr. Redson and his committee how much their schooling helped them.

War Work Training Clinic Scheduled at Lane Tech

A war work training clinic will be held for war production workers from 7 to 10 o'clock Thursday night at the Lane Technical vocational school, 2501 Addison street. Aim of the clinic is to demonstrate to employers and employés methods of effecting greater industrial efficiency thru the free organized training courses of the school. Meetings have been arranged for the discussion of special problems by the executive, reception, orientation, and tours committees of the clinic.

Van Buren Legionnaires to Honor Past Leaders

Van Buren American Legion post will honor past commanders Tuesday evening at the Steuben club, 188 West Randolph street. Junior Past Commander Onni R. Isaacson will be presented a past commander's ring. Past Commander Vincent F. Werner will be master of ceremonies.

6 Early Vegetables 10¢

Last Spring we planted 6-Varieties Early Vegetables in our Trial Gardens to find how many Vegetables could be Produced from the Seeds Planted. Seeds were counted, and the number planted is given below...Here Are The Results:

BEET, Early Red 50 Seeds, Produced 44 Beets
LETTUCE, Earliest Leaf 200 Seeds, Produced 129 Plants
TURNIP, Early 6-Weeks 200 Seeds, Produced 172 Turnips
CARROT, Golden Beauty 100 Seeds, Produced 67 Carrots
RADISH, Earliest Red 75 Seeds, Produced 59 Radishes
TOMATO, Early Burbank 25 Seeds, Produced 21 Plants and 765 Tomatoes

Above 6-Varieties were grown on plot of ground 10x25 feet.

If you want lot of Early Vegetables that can be grown on a small plot of ground, Plant these Six Varieties of Tested Seeds.

We guarantee each Pkt. will contain More Seeds than we planted, and we will mail one of each, all 6 Pkts. for 10c...or 3 Pkts. each, 18 Pkts. 25c. MILLS 1943 Seed Book is FREE...Our 56th Year. F. B. Mills Seed Grower, Box 60, Rose Hill, N. Y.

Map of Northwest Side Wards

Boundaries of wards on the northwest side, shown here, will be important in two respects Tuesday when city aldermanic elections will be held and registration for point rationing, to begin March 1, will open. Registration will close Friday night. Consumers must register within their own wards, according to the OPA.

OLD FLOORS LOOK LIKE NEW AFTER SIMPLE REPAIRS

Paint or Oil Finish Will Work Wonders.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our home! It's the best we will have till victory is won, so let's take the best possible care of it, and everything in it!

Did you know that—

You don't have to worry about the age of a hardwood floor? No matter how old it is or what service it has seen the chances are that it can be reconditioned like new.

Recently we saw oak and maple floors in a research house that were more than 50 years old. New boards were used for patching at certain points and yet it was almost impossible to tell where the new boards joined the old flooring that had been well sanded and refinished.

Hints for Softwood Floors.

You can do a lot for old softwood floors, too. Woods like hemlock or fir or pine can be painted or given an oil finish. Or they can be varnished and waxed or treated to varnish stain. Yawning cracks can be filled and sandpapered smooth and these fillers can be touched up with stain or paint to match the floor.

If the softwood floor is in really bad shape and uneven you can cover it with a rigid board 4 inches wide and in lengths of 8 feet, 10 feet, and 12 feet to form a perfectly flush base for new linoleum or new hardwood flooring.

In less than a day you can have a prefinished hardwood floor of Colonial type plug planks permanently cemented into place over your existing floor without fuss or muss or nails. If your old floor is too uneven to make a good base you can use ¼ inch rigid boards as a base. And these same rigid ⅛ inch rigid boards likewise can be used to cover existing doors and convert them into modern flush panel doors.

Lend Beauty to Home.

Hardwood floors deserve the best possible treatment, for when they are cared for wisely they bring warmth, color, and beauty into a home.

In any refinishing work only good prepared removers which you can get at hardware, paint, and material supply stores should be used. Directions should be closely followed.

A sanding machine will give you the best results and if possible an expert should be called in to use this machine. It isn't easy to manage it as it is powerful and must be operated properly to produce a smooth finished floor.

Buy only a good floor finish, whether it is varnish, stain, wax, or one of the penetrating floor seals. You want a finish manufactured by a good firm and your dealer will help you in your selection. And the manufacturer of the finish material will have instructions as to application, if you do the work yourself. If you engage an expert floor refinisher he will give you instructions as to the proper care of the floor, once it is reconditioned.

If a hardwood floor is soiled and a bit scuffed it probably can be put in good shape by thoro washing with soap and water, quick drying, and then revarnishing. If the varnish has worn thru and the wood underneath become soiled, the floor should be sandpapered after washing and drying and two coats of varnish applied.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Feb. 22.

If you want a fast growing tree that does not grow too large, plant a Chinese elm. It is drouth resisting, hardy, not too dense, and is suitable for city conditions. But the gardener must remember that trees need plant food to respond in a vigorous manner.

Wait until the end of the month to sow vegetable seeds. Give full sun after the seeds germinate and transplant into boxes before the seedlings become weak and spindly. Never sow seeds too thickly.

Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Many garden soils in city gardens lack humus or decayed matter, with the result that the soil packs hard after a rain. No gardener should refuse a load of manure, for it is invaluable in building up garden soil.

The working in of decayed vegetable matter, peat moss or muck, old leaves, leafmold, or other material aids materially in the improvement of the soil. If the soil is heavy work in two or more inches of ashes or some sand. If sandy, the soil will become more moisture holding if manure is spaded into it.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Feed the lawn in early March to make ample nourishment available from the beginning of growth. Commercial foods will not burn if they are used at that time, and no raking in is necessary.

Order all seeds now to have them on hand for sowing when the proper time arrives. All tender vegetables and flowers should not be planted until all danger from frost has passed, and this is usually after May 20, or even later according to season.

Thursday, Feb. 25.

Many gardeners will grow some flowers in the vegetable garden, but wherever possible vegetable growing must be given first consideration.

By planting annual vines on porches, up the side of the garage, or wherever they can be used to advantage, the effect will be pleasing.

Edgings of low growing vegetables or herbs may be used in the flower borders to good advantage. One of the best annuals for a narrow strip next the house is the showy portulaca, and it self-sows.

Friday, Feb. 26.

Get rid of the pestiferous dandelion by digging them out of the lawn and using them as greens. When properly prepared, they are delectable.

House plants start into active growth at this season. Water each morning. Turn the plants occasionally so that all their parts will enjoy their share of light. Give plenty of fresh air, but do not allow the plants to suffer from cold drafts.

Saturday, Feb. 27.

Never give the insect pests a chance to become established on house plants. Watch continually for them and begin a program of eradication immediately. Ferns and ivies are likely to be attacked by scales.

Plant lice or aphids attack almost any kind of plant and red spiders work injury before one is aware of their presence. Use recommended remedies that are available at supply houses.

Prune grape vines this month. Cut back all branches to about two buds, and give an application of plant food.

WIFE OF DOCTOR RECALLS JOB ON PAPER IN TOKIO

Thought Japs Peaceful—Until Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Max T. Bolotin.

Honolulu, Tokio, Kobe, Shanghai—those aren't just names in today's news to Mrs. Max T. Bolotin, 3639 Lawrence avenue. They're places where she has held newspaper jobs in days gone by—society editor in Honolulu, ship's reporter in Kobe, copy reader in Shanghai.

Mrs. Bolotin's newspaper experience started back on the Barnesville, O., weekly. During a visit with an aunt in Portland, Ore., she landed a post as "assistant to the assistant society editor" on The Oregonian. From there she hopped on down to San Francisco, to join another aunt on a trip to Honolulu.

Once in Hawaii, she had no difficulty getting a job as woman's page and society editor of the Star Bulletin. Honolulu was the mecca for royalty and the newly rich the world over, and it was Mrs. Bolotin's job to chronicle their comings and goings.

Lands Tokio Job.

A year in one place was enough, so Mrs. Bolotin took the next boat for Japan, and sailed into a job in Tokio on the Japan Advertiser. After three months, the paper sent her down to Kobe, principal seaport city, to head its branch office. It was her job to interview every one from the duke of Gloucester on down.

That lasted a year, too, and then she was off to Shanghai, where Carl Crow gave her a seat on the city desk, reading copy. She hadn't written a headline since the Barnesville Enterprise days, but no one in Shanghai ever knew that.

After six months in Shanghai, she saved enough to travel the rest of the way around the world, right back to the old job in Barnesville. But Ohio was too calm, so it was back to Shanghai for Mrs. Bolotin.

Meets Husband on Boat.

It was on the boat from Honolulu to Shanghai, however, that she met Dr. Bolotin, and somehow the job looked much less attractive. They were married in Shanghai in February, 1933, and continued on around the world, making a honeymoon out of what Dr. Bolotin had expected to be a bachelor cruise.

Hongkong, Manila, Singapore, Port Said, were all on their ports of call. They spent six weeks in Palestine, and for two months "did" Italy from top to toe. From May until November they lived in Vienna, while Dr. Bolotin took post-graduate work. In November, Mrs. Bolotin was called back to the United States by the illness of her father. Dr. Bolotin followed in February.

After a few months they came on to Chicago, where Dr. Bolotin resumed the practice in Albany Park which he had established 12 years before. Mrs. Bolotin, no longer lured by Honolulu and points west, keeps their apartment and serves the doctor as his office assistant.

In spite of her years in Japan, Mrs. Bolotin makes no pretense of knowing anything about the working of the oriental mind. After years in Tokio and Kobe, she had grown to think of the Japanese as the most peace-loving people in the world. That is, she thought of them as such until Dec. 7, 1941. Pearl Harbor changed her opinion.

NORTHWEST SIDE LIBRARIANS SHOW READING TRENDS

Many Study Sciences, War, Peace Plans.

The war has brought changes in the reading habits of residents of the northwest area, according to recent reports of four northwest librarians. Recreational reading has decreased. Emphasis today is on the study of plastics, metallurgy, aviation, and allied fields in science. Second in popularity are books on the war, its personalities, its battlegrounds, and its problems. Third in demand are works on post-war planning and spiritual and economic reconstruction.

Miss Fanchon I. Henderson, librarian of the Albany Park branch of the Chicago public library, reported that books on mathematics led all other technical books in circulation. "Berlin Diary," "They Were Expendable," and "Mission to Moscow" were the leaders in nonfiction; "The Moon Is Down" and "The Last Time I Saw Paris" out in front in fiction circulation. All are books about the war.

Seek Up to Minute News.

There has been a noticeable increase in magazine and pamphlet reading and a sharp raise in the demand for literature on post-war planning. Demand some times exceeded supply.

Augmented interest in Latin America was seen in an increased call for Spanish grammars. Applicants for citizenship and the civil service boosted the circulation of English grammars.

Children, following the lead of their parents, turned from the amusing and imaginative to books on serious subjects—aviation, geography, and Latin America.

Many Study Mechanics.

Mrs. Mary Adelman, librarian of the Northwestown branch at 1615 North Pulaski road, found reading on welding, radio, aeronautics, and machine operation much increased. "Victory Through Air Power," "Men on Bataan," and "He Wanted to Sleep in the Kremlin" were the most widely circulated books of nonfiction; "The Song of Bernadette," "Dragon Teeth," and "The Sun Is My Undoing" the most widely read works of fiction.

There was heavy demand for literature on post-war planning.

Mrs. Mabel Schweickert, librarian of the children's room, cited a marked trend toward vocational reading among children. Career and current affairs books were much sought. Boys were reading about aviation; girls about nursing; both about Latin America.

"Flat-Tops" Is Popular.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith, librarian of the Portage Park branch at 5253 Irving Park road, noted a sharp rise in requests for books on drafting, blueprint reading, sheet metal, and electrical work. Mathematics was popular with men about to enter service. "Last Train from Berlin," "Queen of the Flat-Tops," and "Russians Don't Surrender" were the "best sellers" among nonfiction and "Prodigal Woman," "The Robe," and "Drivin Woman" the most sought fiction.

Students were reported calling for pamphlets on post-war reconstruction problems. The library planned to securt additional material in anticipation of an ever increasing demand. Mrs. Adeline Petri, children's room librarian, reported vocational reading fast becoming popular, altho mystery books were still favorite reading with the youngsters.

Miss Frances Holbrook, librarian of the Park Ridge public library, observed the same trend in reading in Park Ridge as the three other librarians experienced in the city. "Suez to Singapore," "Escape from Hongkong," and Jane's "Fighting Ships" outranked most of the other works of nonfiction and "The Cup and the Sword," "The Valley of Decision," and "King's Row" were well toward the top of the list of the most popular books of fiction.

Seek Hoover's Book.

Many requests for "Problems of a Lasting Peace," recently written by former President Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson, and Edward Carr's "Conditions of Peace" indicated the concern of Park Ridgians with post-war questions.

This concern was reflected again in an increased demand for foreign language grammars. Spanish was the most popular with French and German following in that order.

Children of Park Ridge, as children elsewhere, were turning from amusing stories to articles showing interest in their future and that of the world.

NORTHWEST SIDE NURSES' AIDS LED BY 2 HOUSEWIVES

War Mother and Writer Serve 1,000 Hours.

A war mother and a writer of juvenile books are leaders of the 152 nurses' aids on the northwest side. Together the two have served the Red Cross more than 1,000 hours since they finished their training courses.

Mrs. Burton T. Collins, 4524 North Wolcott avenue, has a daughter, Jessie, a second lieutenant in the army nurse corps, and a son, Burton Jr., is in the army. She has two other daughters.

Works Three Days a Week.

She has worked 589 hours at Children's Memorial hospital, 707 West Fullerton avenue, since completing her training course last April. She spends from 8 o'clock in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon there every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

Mrs. Collins' work has consisted of all the duties of a floor nurse, except giving medication to patients. Feeding, temperature taking, and bed care of the patients take most of Mrs. Collins' time.

Mrs. James T. Stewart, now in her fourth year with the Red Cross, has long been a writer of children's stories. Her interest in books of all kinds brought her early work with the Red Cross as a gray lady and librarian at Grant hospital, 551 West Grant place.

Began Training in 1941.

In 1941 she began her training as a nurses' aid. Since early 1942 she has worked over 500 hours at the hospital and is now senior nurses' aid there.

Mondays she works in surgery from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon. Wednesdays she is an aid in the medical clinic during the same hours. One other day every week she assists the regular nursing staff wherever she might be most needed.

Both Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Collins also are housewives.

Serve Two Hospitals.

Hospitals on the northwest side, served by volunteer nurses' aids, are St. Mary's of Nazareth hospital, 1120 North Leavitt street, and the Lutheran Deaconess hospital, 1138 North Leavitt street. Residence of volunteers, however, does not affect place of hospital service.

Any citizen, over 18 years of age, who has had a high school education and is in good health, may apply at Red Cross headquarters, 529 South Wabash avenue, for an interview. Training consists of 40 hours of classroom work and 45 hours of practical experience in hospital wards.

ARLINGTON RED CROSS AIDS ASK MORE WORKERS

Double Dressing Quota in Northwest Town.

Mrs. Donald Cox and Mrs. Kenneth Sieburg, co-chairmen of Red Cross surgical dressing units in Arlington Heights, have issued a plea for more workers to help fill the monthly quota for that village. The current quota for Arlington Heights is 10,000 dressings a month, twice the original quota.

At present, 100 women in the village have signed up for regular service. There is still need for additional workers if the 10,000 quota is to be met.

The schedule for the surgical dressing stations, and the personnel for each, follows:

List Monday Sessions.

Mondays: Legion hall, Douglas and Minor streets, 10 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. Kenneth Sieburg in charge, assisted by Mrs. Albert Mors.

Monday evenings: Health center in village hall, 7:30 o'clock, Miss Catherine Behrens in charge.

Tuesdays: Legion hall, 10 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. Virgil Horath in charge, assisted by Mrs. Bernard Laubinger.

Wednesdays: Lutheran school annex, 10 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. Allan Swan in charge, assisted by Mrs. John Peroutka and Mrs. Helen Martens.

Wednesdays and Thursdays: St. James school basement, 10 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. Leonard Weidner in charge, assisted by Mrs. Charles Fitzpatrick.

Fridays: Legion hall, 10 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. N. A. Carlson in charge, assisted by Mrs. Hugo Thal.

Alternate instructors are Mrs. Russell Ford, Mrs. Charles Bloecker, Mrs. Charles Revenaugh, Mrs. Mary L. King, Mrs. George Hieber, Mrs. Paul Stroud, and Mrs. Gladys Gilson.

Irving Park Church Group to Hear of Books on Japan

The Philathea guild of Irving Park Presbyterian church will present Mrs. Kenneth McAfee of Wilmette in a review of three recent books on Japan at 8 o'clock Friday night in the church community building, Keeler and Belle Plaine avenues. Mrs. McAfee, who spent many years in Japan and China, was once an instructor in English literature at the Shanghai-American school in China. The three books to be reviewed are "Behind the Face of Japan," by Upton Close; "The Three Bamboos," by Robert Standish, and "A Year of the Wild Boar," by Helen Mears.

Airmen's Women Relatives Form Club, Plan a Party

The Aviation's 4-Leaf Clover club will sponsor a card party at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Chopin park fieldhouse, 3420 North Long avenue. Women relatives of men in aviation service are invited to join this club, a branch of the Amelia Earhart Memorial Civic club. Mrs. Mary E. Spath, 5015 Newport avenue, is in charge of organization.

Logan Square Legion Plans Washington Birthday Fete

The Logan Square post of the American Legion will present a patriotic program tomorrow night at the Logan Square Masonic temple, in observance of the birthday of George Washington. Sigurd S. Storm, assistant commander of the Wrightwood-Fullerton-Armitage community of the office of civilian defense, will be the principal speaker. Fred H. Peper, post commander, will preside.

CITIZENS' SHOW GIVES STUDENTS A RADIO LESSON

Learn Ways of Studios at Rehearsals.

The Citizens of Tomorrow radio broadcasts, originated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a tribute to high school students and their teachers, have presented the pupils with a dividend not forseen when the shows were inaugurated—an intimate acquaintance with the mechanics of a successful broadcast.

A. M. Conger.

The 89th program in the series, which is to honor Arlington Heights High school, will be aired at 1 o'clock today over W-G-N.

Hold Rehearsal for Show.

Rehearsal for the show was held last Monday in the gymnasium of the school in Arlington Heights. The program was recorded later by a portable unit which visited the school.

At the rehearsal Philip Maxwell, "principal of the air" and master of ceremonies for the program, first explained the rôle of the studio audience at a broadcast.

As the chairs in which the audience was seated were not firmly fixed to the floor, Maxwell pointed out the need of the students securing their chairs with one hand as they rose for the singing of the national anthem and school song—thus avoiding the noise caused by the shuffling of the chairs.

Applause, he pointed out, should be restricted to the time allotted by the producer, and should be allowed to die out rather than come to an abrupt end.

Student Acts as Timer.

Then, emphasizing the importance of split second timing to the full success of any radio broadcast, he gave his watch to Florence Besander, a freshman at the school, and asked her to serve as official timer of the various numbers to be incorporated in the program.

These techniques explained, the rehearsal began.

First to rehearse were Arlington Heights' six cheerleaders, all girls. Leading the locomotive cheer for the school were: Rosemarie Glueckert, Ellen Andersen, Barbara Barrett, Audrey Schumacher, Norma Hasz, and Dolores Hogreve.

After the students had sung "Arlington High Loyalty," the rehearsal spotlight was turned on William C. Turner Jr., 16 year old senior of Mount Prospect.

Honor Man of School.

High point man in a recent scholastic aptitude examination, leading scholar of his class, and football letterman and band member, he was chosen by the faculty as the honor student of the school. He will be interviewed on the program today.

Next to rehearse was the 80 voice girls' chorus. Led by Donald C. Costain, director of music, they sang Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Woods' "A Voice in the Old Village Choir."

A group of well blended voices, the only suggestion made them at rehearsal was that they give more volume to their singing.

Last to be called upon were Norman and Myron Russel, twin brothers who form the color guard at the school, and Francis Jorstad, president of the senior class.

Principal Is War Veteran.

Only one of the honored guests on today's program not to rehearse was A. M. Conger, principal of the school. A veteran of the last war and a graduate of the University of Illinois in 1920, Conger came to Arlington Heights five years later as assistant principal and instructor in manual training and mechanical drawing. In 1935, he received his master's degree in education from Northwestern university and assumed the duties of principal. He will review the school's war activities on today's program.

Special guests who were present at the recording are Albert W. Goedke, mayor of Arlington Heights; I. E. Besander, mayor of Mount Prospect; C. I. Davis, president of the Arlington Heights High school board of education; Stuart R. Paddock, editor and owner of the Cook County Herald; Carl H. Ewert, president of the Arlington Heights Lions club.

RUMANIANS GIVE AMBULANCE TO RED CROSS TODAY

The newly organized Chicago chapter of the Alliance of Rumanian-Americans for Democracy will present an ambulance to the American Red Cross this afternoon as the first in a series of patriotic projects. The presentation will take place at 2:30 o'clock at the Swiss clubhouse, 639 Webster avenue. The campaign to raise funds for the ambulance and the presentation ceremony, have been under direction of John Landesco, honorary president of the Chicago chapter; John Secosan, president, and John L. Spornick, secretary.

The presentation speech will be by Paul M. Deac of the editorial staff of the Detroit Free Press, national chairman of the alliance. The Kelvyn Park American Legion post will participate, and the choir of the Rumanian Baptist church will sing the national anthem. John L. Spornick, 2416 North Kilpatrick avenue, will preside.

Dimitriu Onofrei of the Chicago City Opera company and the San Carlo Opera company, and Josef Cristea of the Bucharest Opera company and the Chicago Opera company, will sing. There will be an address by John Secosan, Chicago chairman of the alliance. News of contributors to the ambulance fund will be read by Mr. Spornick. There will be a piano solo by Matyas Sarah and a vocal solo by Pervas Josephine.

Following the presentation program, leaders of the Rumanian community will participate in a round table discussion of "A Post-War Agrarian Program for Central Europe." Chairman will be John Landesco. Those taking part will be the Rev. Luca Sezanov, John Secosan, Vince Rusu, John Androne, and Mr. Spornick.

Schurz Evening School to Start Dance Classes

Student dance classes for adults over 25 years old who have not already registered in the evening school at Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, will open at 7 o'clock March 1 in the boys' gymnasium, on the Waveland avenue side of the building. Miss Mathilde Vogt, 1447 North Dearborn street, will instruct the dance classes. The classes will be held under auspices of the social center bureau of the Chicago board of education, of which Mrs. Ernestine L. Badt is director.

BENNY TO BATTLE LITTLE JOE, QUIZ KID BALL OF FIRE

Comedian and Bright Boy to Exchange Visits.

Jack Benny.

When Jack Benny broadcasts from Chicago today for the first time in many years he will be confronted by an extra heckler, the 6 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman. Benny's regulars, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Rochester, and Don Wilson will be on hand to explode the boastful stories of his childhood on the shores of Lake Michigan he is bound to recite for soldiers of the army's air forces technical training command who will be his guests at the Eighth Street theater.

Shortly after 6 p. m. on WMAQ-NBC Benny will face Joel, mighty mite of the mike, with his toothless smile, lisp, and a mind that works like an ack-ack gun. Joel has been clocking about as many laughs lately on the Quiz Kids' show as writers Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin have been giving Benny each week. Tonight listeners will get a double dose not only on the Benny show—but on the Quiz Kids' session on WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m.

For as soon as Joel has pulled a few "secret" mathematical tricks on Benny he will race over to the Merchandise Mart for his own show. Jack will follow at 6:29½ and expects to be on hand for the last half of the Quiz Kids' show. As "judge" of the quiz Benny may have an opportunity to get back at little Joel.

Joel Kupperman.

Benny and his troupe will be in and around Chicago for two weeks entertaining soldiers and sailors. They plan to go to the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow evening; Fort Sheridan a night or two later, and also to Camp Custer in Michigan.

Benny, who grew up in Waukegan, is looking forward to his visit to Great Lakes. There, just 25 years ago, he received his naval training and while stationed there got his start as a funny man. Prior to the war he had toured theater circuits as a violinist.

Benny volunteered his talents as a violinist to the revue. Dave Wolff, now a Chicago advertising man, wrote and produced the show. He discovered Benny's latent talent for humor. Today Jack calls him his first gag man. After the war Benny toured vaudeville circuits with Ned Miller, Chicago composer, as partner.

Benny never abandoned the violin altogether and that ultimately paid a dividend. After a wait of 25 years he was invited recently to play at a benefit concert in Carnegie hall.

"You've heard what they've been saying on the radio almost continuously ever since," he remarked. "'The best tunes of all come from Carnegie hall.'"

Stevens and Spalding Guests of Kostelanetz

Rise Stevens and Albert Spalding will be guests on the André Kostelanetz program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The American overture, arranged and introduced by Kostelanetz, will be played. Miss Stevens will sing "The Song Is You" and "I'll Follow My Secret Heart." Mr. Spalding, violinist, will play "Meditation" from "Thäis."

IN WARTIME; AMERICA NEEDS TRIM, ENERGETIC WOMEN!
Don't Be Fat!
Reduce this proved way that requires no strict diet lists—
No exercises—
No harmful drugs
Lovely Radio Star, Irene Rich, 2nd Lieutenant in Women's Ambulance & Defense Corps of America, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch Way to reduce.
READ AMAZING FACTS:
Today, thousands of patriotic American women are discovering a remarkably effective way to lose ugly, sluggish fat! To thus have that trim, "active look" and alert, peppy feeling so important today! It's easy! Merely mix ¾ glass* Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* water—drink before meals and at bedtime. Then what amazing action follows! First: You have less desire to eat sweet, fattening foods—thus cutting down caloric intake. Second: Natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime actually helps Nature consume excess fat! Builds quick-energy, too! Thus you look better—feel better! Have more of the pep you need in wartime! Start reducing the Welch Way today! *8-oz. glass

'MUSIC IN THE AIR' TO BE PRESENTED ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Jerome Kern's "Music in the Air" over W-G-N, W59C and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas will be co-starred.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Sieglinde and Thomas that of Karl. Laurette Fillbrandt will take the dramatic part of Sieglinde. The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Jack LaFrandre is the writer-director.

Brahms' Second Symphony Feature of Philharmonic

Brahms' Second Symphony in D major will be played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra at 2 o'clock this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. The balance of the program will consist of the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Mozart's Symphony in G minor, No. 40 [K. 550].

'HOW FAST ARE WE WINNING?' IS N. U. TOPIC TODAY

A discussion of "How Fast Are We Winning the War?" will be presented on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10 a. m. today. Participants will be: Stanley Johnston, noted Chicago Tribune war correspondent; Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago; Kenneth E. Olson, dean of the Medill School of Journalism, and Dr. Melchior Palyi, economist and current events analyst.

These discussions, broadcast in W-G-N's main studio are open to studio guests. A question and answer period follows the broadcasts.

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALS SLATED FOR TWO NIGHTS

The finals of the Golden Gloves tournament of champions will be broadcast by W-G-N tomorrow and Tuesday from ringside at the Chicago Stadium with Sportscaster Jack Brickhouse giving the blow by blow account.

The finals will be broadcast both nights from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The winners will make up the team to represent and the middle west in a match that will be held later with New York champions.

Stravinsky's C Symphony Scheduled by Stokowski

Leopold Stokowski and the NBC Symphony orchestra will feature Igor Stravinsky's Symphony in C at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Other selections to be played will be Debussy's "Night in Granada" and Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe."

Play Shop Drama.

Denney Kelley's "Rattler to Atlanta" will be presented on Northwestern Play Shop at 2:30 p. m. today over WJJD.

SEE CLOSE VOTE IN 4 WARDS TUESDAY

NAME SCHOOLS TO ISSUE NO. 2 RATION BOOKS

Teachers Start Big Task Tuesday.

Lists of elementary schools by wards were announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, to guide Chicago residents in registering for point rationing, beginning Tuesday and continuing thru Friday. Registration hours will be 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Registrations will be taken in 333 elementary buildings, with 9,000 elementary teachers, 6,500 teachers and advanced students in the city's junior and teachers' colleges and thousands of volunteers to do the work.

Expect 3½ Million.

Three and a half million Chicagoans are expected to be registered in preparation for canned goods rationing, to begin March 1.

High school classes will not be affected, but elementary schools, junior and teacher colleges will be dismissed during the registration.

Registration will be in alphabetical order, Mulcahy announced, according to the following schedule:

A thru B—Tuesday morning.
C thru E—Tuesday afternoon.
F thru H—Wednesday morning.
I thru L—Wednesday afternoon.
M thru N—Thursday morning.
O thru R—Thursday afternoon.
S—Friday morning.
T thru Z—Friday afternoon.

Consumers are urged to follow the schedule except where pressing circumstances prevent it, Mulcahy said.

Each registrant should go to the school in his ward nearest his home, Mulcahy said. He emphasized that no registrant should cross a ward boundark to register, even if a school in a neighboring ward should be closer than the nearest school in his ward. This regulation is necessary to keep ration records straight, he said.

The housewife or any other adult in a family may register for the entire household, Mulcahy reiterated, and he reminded that the registrant should have with him ration book No. 1 [sugar book] for each member of the family, and a completely answered consumer declaration form, which will state the family's stock of canned goods and coffee. Registrars will remove stamps for items declared in excess of five cans per person.

Southwest Side Schools.

ISABELLA GROUP WILL GIVE CARD PARTY IN MARCH

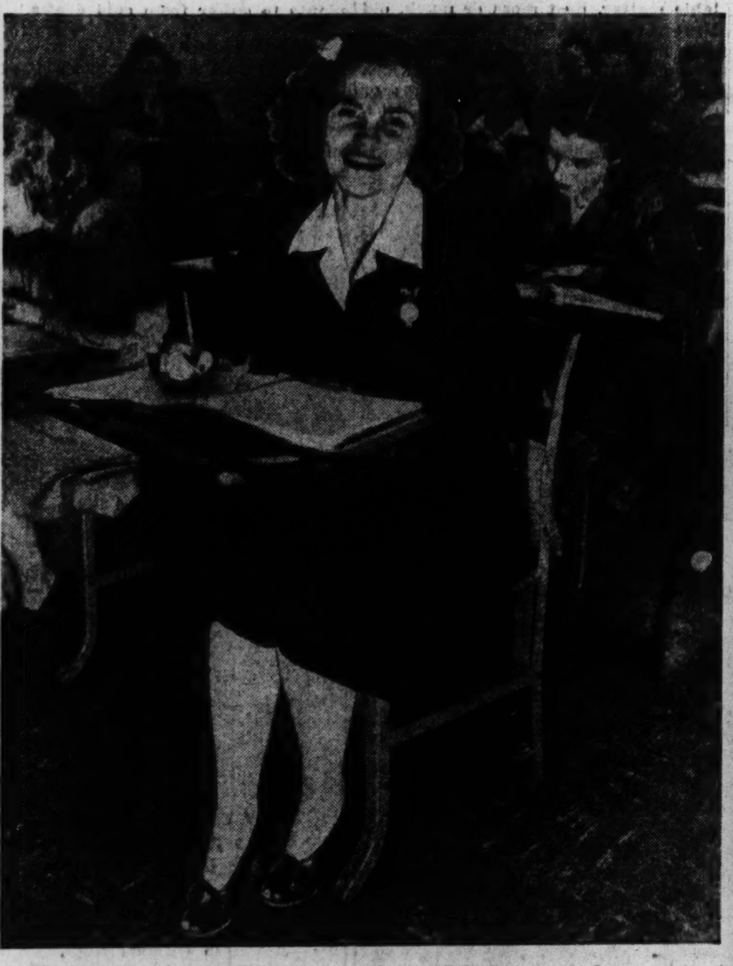
La Rabida circle, Daughters of Isabella, will hold a card party Tuesday evening, March 2, in the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 Union avenue. Mrs. August Connolly, 710 East 89th street, regent, general chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Garfield Peterson, 7946 May street, tickets; Mrs. Martin McNamara, 7341 May street, and Mrs. James F. Cummings, 2908 64th street, tables; Mary Metzler, 5914 South Peoria street, awards; Mrs. Vern House, 5914 South Peoria street; Mrs. Fred Bastien, 8101 Peoria street; Lou Kelly, 6330 Woodlawn avenue, and Mrs. Thomas R. Crothers, 438 West 57th place, hostesses.

Women Prove Valuable Aids in War Time Posts for Air Lines

Now serving as passenger agents at the municipal airport are Miss Marian Hjertsted, 539 West 61st place; Miss Jean Vance, 1525 East 69th street, and Miss Virginia Nelson, 7111 Paxton avenue (left to right). Miss Hjertsted is a graduate of Englewood High school and has attended evening school at Northwestern university school of commerce. Miss Vance is a graduate of Hyde Park High school and has attended Woodrow Wilson Junior college. Miss Nelson is a graduate of St. Xavier academy.

(Story on page 2.)

Helping in the war time job of moving essential civilian and military travelers, Miss Mitzi Kimmel, 847 East 53d street (left), and Miss Eileen Moran, 6237 South California avenue, are now traffic saleswomen in the Chicago office of United Air Lines, 23 East Monroe street. Miss Kimmel is a graduate of Hyde Park High school, '37, and was formerly a secretary. Miss Moran, born in Ireland, came to Chicago when she was 14 and is a graduate of Loretto academy.



Preparation for an air transportation position means going to school again for Miss Frances Hastings, 2039 East 72d place.

The theory of ticket counter work must be mastered in school before young women go forth to wait on real patrons. Miss Barbara Harper, 5424 Cornell avenue, carries on a make-believe conversation over the telephone as part of the classroom work at the air lines school.

6 ON SOUTHWEST SIDE COMPLETE SIGNAL COURSE

Graduation exercises for the third class in advanced radio, electronics, and micro-waves given for the army signal corps at the University of Chicago will be held tomorrow evening in the Quadrangle club.

Six southwest siders are listed among the candidates for graduation. They are William Mercer, 7425 Emerald avenue; Vernon Weber, 5019 South Racine street; Walter Bartley, 5637 South Green street; Vincent J. Burke, 6410 Eggleston street; Walter Fuhlrott, 6519 South Albany street, and John Carlborg, 9922 Charles street.

Dr. George C. Southworth, research engineer of the Bell Telephone laboratories, New York, will speak, and guests from the 6th service command will be Col. Charles N. Sawyer, commandant of the signal schools; Col. John F. Davis, chief of staff; Col. William H. McCarty, in charge of operations and training, and Lt. Col. Samuel D. Ringsdorf, control division.

Longwood Club Marks Day of Recollection Tomorrow

Longwood Mothers' club, Academy of Our Lady, will observe its annual day of recollection tomorrow in the chapel of the academy, 95th and Throop streets. The club will hold its regular meeting in the Da Vinci parlor at 2 o'clock Tuesday. The Rev. Thomas C. Clayton will conduct the church service, and students from the vocal department will present the program Tuesday, directed by Miss Genevieve Mullen.

ENGLEWOOD CLUB HIKERS TO BRAVE LAKE FRONT COLD

The Englewood Outdoor club will hike along the lake front this morning, ending at the promontory in Jackson park for lunch. The Prairie club will go to Palos Hills today for a hike in the southern section of the forest preserve. The Englewood group will leave 67th street and Stony Island avenue at 10 o'clock in the morning, and hikers are asked to take lunch. Prairie club hikers will leave on the Suburban Transit bus from 63d and Halsted streets at 10:15 o'clock, carrying their lunch with them. They will return late in the afternoon.

Crescendo Music Group to Hear Varied Program

The Crescendo Musical club, meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Wood, 10502 Seeley avenue at 4 o'clock this afternoon, will hear a program by Doriss Briggs, harpist; Alvis Trnka, celloist; Margaret Heywood Wood, soprano, and Leo Podolsky, accompanist. Miss Florence Dangremond has charge of arrangements.

St. Rita's Mothers Group Giving Party Tomorrow

Sophomore mothers of St. Rita High School Mothers' club will sponsor a card party at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the school gymnasium, 63d street and South Oakley avenue.

2 New Members Named to Rationing Board 13

Two new members have been appointed to rationing board 13 on the southwest side, Michael F. Mulcahy announced. They are William C. Claussen, 3208 West 66th street, a pickle dealer, and Philip J. Newman, 3301 West 60th street, affiliated with the steamfitters' union.

KUKIELSKI PAIR GREETED BY 400 ON GOLDEN DAY

More than 400 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Ignatius Kukielski recently gathered at the Lorraine ballroom, 28th street and Hamlin avenue, to honor them on their 50th wedding anniversary. They were married at the St. Adalbert Polish Roman Catholic church a half century ago, when the parish was being organized. Mrs. Kukielski is 68 years old and Mr. Kukielski celebrated his 77th birthday at the party.

Among the guests were the couple's four children, John, Frank, Alexander, and Mrs. Peter Napolski, and 12 of their 14 grandchildren. The three sons have a combined record of 91 years' service at the Western Electric company plant.

The two grandsons who could not attend were Theodore and Edward, serving in the army overseas. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kukielski, 4408 West 28th street. Another grandson, Theatheus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Napolski, 2726 Kolin avenue, entered the army last week. John and Frank Kukielski both served in the army in World War I.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

John J. Madigan and Gosta Johnson, aviation cadets, have been assigned to the army flying school at Greenville, Miss., for their intermediate training in flying. Upon completion of their work at Greenville, they will be sent to another field of the southeast army air forces training center for their final training. Madigan is the son of Dennis F. Madigan, 417 West 79th place, and Johnson's father is Knute O. Johnson, 8125 South Perry avenue.

Camp Lee, Va., reports promotions for two southwest side men. Lieut. Harry T. Harlow Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Harlow, 1723 West 102d street, has been advanced to captain in the quartermaster corps at Camp Lee. A former employé in the advertising sales department of THE TRIBUNE, Capt. Harlow is a 1934 graduate of the University of Illinois. He was graduated from Morgan Park High school in 1930.

John C. Carney, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Carney, 6920 South Peoria street, was advanced to first lieutenant recently. He attended Loyola and Northwestern universities.

News from WAAC releases tells of the promotion of Auxiliary Jean L. Waiter, 5942 South Fairfield avenue, to technical corporal at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Now in training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, is Auxiliary Catherine Davis, daughter of Walter E. Davis, 175 Throop street, Hazelcrest, Ill.

Eight women from the southwest area were sworn in at the WAAC recruiting office, 166 West Van Buren street, recently. They include Viola M. Anderson, 7157 South Aberdeen street; Shirley E. Buble, 10000 Claremont avenue; Elizabeth M. Hesse, 1617 West 65th street; Mildred Lubovich, 6558 Normal avenue; Evelyn McKenzie, 1249 West 72d place; Helen B. Strzclczyk, 4909 31st street; Dorothy E. Walsh, 4951 South Princeton avenue, and Jane G. Williams, 8950 Leavitt street.

Valentine Scanlon Jr., 19, signalman 3d class, whose parents live at 5637 South Artesian avenue, and Fred D. Cummings, radioman 3d class, son of Mrs. Mary Cummings, 7938 South Paulina street, have completed basic training at the submarine base, New London, Conn. A 1942 graduate of Gage Park High school. Scanlon received letters in basketball, boxing, and baseball. Cummings was graduated from Lindblom High school in 1930, and studied at the American Institute of Banking for four years. Both men received "boot" training at Great Lakes.

Valentine Scanlon.

Albert J. Rehling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rehling, 8844 Parnell avenue, and Louis M. Krist, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Krist, 2505 West 69th street, have completed the officer candidate course at the infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, and have been commissioned 2d lieutenants. Lt. Rehling first served at Camp Robinson, Arkansas. Both men attended Tilden Technical High school.

Upon completion of his training at the advanced flying school of the army air forces at Stockton field, California, Cadet Walter M. Myszkowski, son of Mr., and Mrs. Joseph Myszkowski, 2746 47th street, will be commissioned a 2d lieutenant and receive his wings. The cadet has completed 18 weeks of primary and basic training at King City and Chico, Cal.

W. M. Myszkowski.

Staff Sergt. Radivoj Lah, son of Mrs. A. W. Kolens, 57 West 74th street, who played with Leopold Stokowski's All-American youth orchestra before entering the army, has received musical assignments with army bands and orchestra. He is a tuba player with a regimental band in California. He played string bass with the Victory division symphony orchestra when it appeared at Camp Cooke, California, recently, and a week later he performed with the

HARD BATTLES ON IN 3D, 16TH, 18TH AND 19TH

Lindell Is Ahead in Easy Race.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Sitting aldermen in four of the 11 southwest side wards had real fights on their hands last week as the council campaigns neared the balloting next Tuesday. On that day Chicagoans will elect their aldermen and nominate candidates for the mayoral election April 6.

Runoffs appeared probable for the 3d, 16th, 18th, and 19th wards. These runoffs will be held April 6 for wards where no candidate gets more than half the total vote next Tuesday. Democratic candidates probably will be elected in the 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 17th wards, while the 9th gave every indication it would retain its G. O. P. council representative. In most wards the aldermanic elections are nonpartisan only in the sense that the candidates' names do not appear under party labels.

Situation by Wards.

Below is given a ward by ward stackup for the southwest side as matters stood in the final days. For each ward is shown the complete list of candidates and their principal political support. In most wards indorsements have been made by the regular Republican and Democratic ward organizations, the Free Democrats [Boyle-for-mayor] and the Better Government association.

Third—Ald. Benjamin A. Grant, attorney, 1st term, Reg. Dem. Oscar de Priest, real estate, former congressman, G. O. P. ward committeeman, Reg. Rep. Zedrick T. Braden, attorney, B. G. A. Marco Killings, pharmacist. All the candidates are colored. Braden may so split the vote as to cause a runoff between Grant and either De Priest or himself.

Ninth—Ald. Arthur G. Lindell, electrical engineer, 3d term, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. James J. Van Zeyl, real estate and insurance. The regular Democrats sponsored no candidate against Ald. Lindell, whose reëlection is therefore practically assured.

Eleventh—Ald. Hugh B. Connelly, real estate, 2d term, Reg. Dem. John F. Wall, clerk, former city and state employé, Free Dem. G. O. P. made no indorsement.

Twelfth—Ald. Bryan Hartnett, real estate, 5th term, Reg. Dem. Henry James Shelton, merchant, Free Dem. Gust F. Galimski, bartender. G. O. P. made no indorsement.

Thirteenth—Ald. Michael P. Hogan, former county jobholder, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. Charles P. Kal, attorney. Alex C. Alesauskas, former furniture dealer, Free Dem.

Fourteenth — Clarence P. Wagner, attorney and assistant to the probate judge, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. Joseph Palka, cigar manufacturer, Free Dem. Jozef J. Pash, retired stockyards employé. Thomas Tomaszkiewicz, stockyards laborer. G. O. P. made no indorsement. Former Ald. James J. McDermott was elected to the county board of tax appeals last November.

Fifteenth—Ald. James F. Kovarik, alderman or election board clerk since 1919, 5th term, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. Anton Rada, mechanical engineer. James F. Tomsovic, painting contractor. G. O. P. made no indorsement.

Sixteenth—Paul M. Sheridan, son of former Assessor Michael K. Sheridan, sanitary district engineering clerk, Reg. Dem., B. G. A. Richard J. Burns, personal bailiff for Circuit Judge Julius Miner, Reg. Rep. Joseph T. Chopp, building contractor, Free Dem. Ald. John S. Boyle, the council's great dissenter after Ald. Paul Douglas resigned, is running for the Democratic mayoral nomination and has thrown his support to Chopp, who may force Sheridan into a runoff with Burns.

Seventeenth—Ald. William T. Murphy, civil engineer and attorney, 2d term, Reg. Dem. Clifford L. Hazzard, finance company executive and state oil inspector, Reg. Rep., B. G. A.

Eighteenth—Ald. Bernard J. O'Hallaren, insurance, 1st term, Reg. Dem. William J. Morgensen, supervising fuel tax auditor, state finance department, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Herman J. Muth, general contractor, Free Dem. William E. Shaughnessy, former ward yard foreman. William A. McGlynn, newspaper distributor.

Nineteenth — Ald. John J. Duffy, florist, 2d term, Reg. Dem. Harry A. Carlson, attorney and G. O. P. ward committeeman, Reg. Rep., B. G. A. Sidney J. Williams, truck line owner. Gordon Edward Townsend, roofing contractor. Townsend has asked his friends to vote for Williams, who therefore may force Ald. Duffy, one of the abler members of the city council, into a runoff with either Carlson or himself. A runoff, for which Republicans turn out in greater numbers than for the first aldermanic election, would confront Ald. Duffy with a hard battle to retain his seat.

Leo High Junior Mothers Will Give Party Tuesday

The Junior Mothers of Leo High school will sponsor a card party at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 79th and Peoria streets. Mrs. Michael Bishop is chairman and Mrs. Frank A. Nessinger is co-chairman of the event. They are assisted by Mrs. Ann Anders and Mrs. William Specht. Mrs. Thomas Curley is president of the club and the Rev. P. D. McCarthy is club moderator.

AIR LINE TRAINS WOMEN TO FILL WAR BLED STAFF

School Opens New Career for Personable Girls.

(Pictures on page 1.)

Handling reservation calls, selling tickets, and helping clear traffic at the terminals, women are proving their value in air transportation. Key positions in the flying and dispatching of planes are retained by the men, but the fair sex are finding opportunities in a new career as they step into the places of men who have gone to war or taken more important posts with the air lines.

To meet the demand for trained workers in a field where few women possess previous experience, United Air Lines started a school last fall at its Chicago headquarters. Fifty students are graduated every two weeks to fill vacancies of men now on leaves of absence in the 36 cities where the transport corporation operates.

Service Training Desired.

Applicants, preferably between the ages of 22 and 30, must first pass the personality test. A high school diploma and some college training is required, and previous experience including duties in a service capacity are desired.

Recently, the school reached its first objective, set last fall, of 300 trained women gathered here from coast to coast. Chicago neighborhoods are well represented in the list of those now active on the "front line" where they come in contact with the public. The school continues to hum with its courses in reservation and passenger handling procedures.

Women on duty say they are fascinated with their new jobs. Among them are women who formerly taught school, studied art, trained for the stage, modeled, or were receptionists. They feel themselves a part of the glamour connected with travel. In the beginning, they may not have known the difference between a stabilizer or an aileron but the something called "charm" which was innate, together with schooling, has enabled them to transfer their enthusiasms to details of air transportation.

Find Numerous Jobs.

Once, the only part played in the air line business by women was that of stewardess, secretary, or stenographer. Now they are demonstrating that there are numerous places where they can be equally adept as men in handling important tasks. Back in 1930, but eight young women were employed on the United Air Lines coast to coast route. Today, the corporation estimates that approximately 30 per cent of its 6,500 employés are women as compared with 15 per cent a year ago.

D. A. Medland, employment manager, who sifts the applicants for the work that requires personality, speed, accuracy, and patience, seeks for the school young women who are well balanced emotionally. They must have a capacity to absorb training and go into the field and apply it.

William Gentry, instructor at the school, has a background in passenger service rather than as a pedagogue. His classroom is equipped with the traditional blackboard and desks. Hours are from 9 to 4:30, five days a week, and one-half day on Saturdays. Equipment includes a sample ticket counter and a memo vox for recording the voice and playing it back to its possessor.

Stress Tone of Voice.

The tone of voice is stressed by the teacher as an expression which displays the feeling or attitude of the speaker. It must be capable of having a warmth that is contagious. Enunciation must be watched carefully.

Those who graduate to the United's reservations department at the municipal airport come in contact with patrons thru telephonic conversation only. A second group is trained for ticket offices where the public is met at close range. Members of a third group wear uniforms and work as passenger agents at the terminals.

Handle Telephone Work.

Workers in the reservation department handle all telephone calls requesting space on the many flights leaving Chicago. Their important job is to see that seats are properly assigned and that planes are not oversold, and to answer intelligently calls about schedules and rates. Graduates who go to the traffic offices must know all about ticketing, the code names of cities, the company's history, about other air lines, and the company's policies. They help materially in the big wartime job of moving essential civilian and military travelers.

A career, undreamed of by their mothers and grandmothers before them, has been made available to these hundreds of young women of modern times. Fascination for the work has given those who meet the requirements added dignity and a common bond. "What is the fare to Los Angeles . . . to New York?" "What time can I leave?" "Can you give me a reservation on the 5 o'clock?"

They know all the answers.

OLD FLOORS LOOK LIKE NEW AFTER SIMPLE REPAIRS

Paint or Good Finish Will Work Wonders.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our home! It's the best we will have till victory is won, so let's take the best possible care of it, and everything in it!

Did you know that—

You don't have to worry about the age of a hardwood floor? No matter how old it is or what service it has seen the chances are that it can be reconditioned like new.

Recently we saw oak and maple floors in a research house that were more than 50 years old. New boards were used for patching at certain points and yet it was almost impossible to tell where the new boards joined the old flooring that had been well sanded and refinished.

Hints for Softwood Floors.

You can do a lot for old softwood floors, too. Woods like hemlock or fir or pine can be painted or given an oil finish. Or they can be varnished and waxed or treated to varnish stain. Yawning cracks can be filled and sandpapered smooth and these fillers can be touched up with stain or paint to match the floor.

If the softwood floor is in really bad shape and uneven you can cover it with a rigid board 4 inches wide and in lengths of 8 feet, 10 feet, and 12 feet to form a perfectly flush base for new linoleum or new hardwood flooring.

In less than a day you can have a prefinished hardwood floor of Colonial type plug planks permanently cemented into place over your existing floor without fuss or muss or nails. If your old floor is too uneven to make a good base you can use ⅛ inch rigid boards as a base. And these same rigid ⅛ inch rigid boards likewise can be used to cover existing doors and convert them into modern flush panel doors.

Lend Beauty to Home.

Hardwood floors deserve the best possible treatment, for when they are cared for wisely they bring warmth, color, and beauty into a home.

A sanding machine will give you the best results and if possible an expert should be called in to use this machine. It isn't easy to manage it as it is powerful and must be operated properly to produce a smooth finished floor.

Buy only a good floor finish, whether it is varnish, stain, wax, or one of the penetrating floor seals. You want a finish manufactured by a good firm and your dealer will help you in your selection. And the manufacturer of the finish material will have instructions as to application, if you do the work yourself. If you engage an expert floor refinisher he will give you instructions as to the proper care of the floor, once it is reconditioned.

If a hardwood floor is soiled and a bit scuffed it probably can be put in good shape by thoro washing with soap and water, quick drying, and then revarnishing. If the varnish has worn thru and the wood underneath become soiled, the floor should be sandpapered after washing and drying and two coats of varnish applied.

Southwest Side Ward Boundaries

Boundaries of wards on the southwest side shown here, will be important for two reasons Tuesday when city aldermanic elections will be held and registration for point rationing, to begin March 1, will open. Ration registration will continue thru Friday in all public elementary schools of the city. Consumers must register within their own wards, according to the OPA.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 22.

If you want a fast growing tree that does not grow too large, plant a Chinese elm. It is drouth resisting, hardy, not too dense, and is suitable for city conditions. But the gardener must remember that trees need plant food to respond in a vigorous manner.

Wait until the end of the month to sow vegetable seeds. Give full sun after the seeds germinate and transplant into boxes before the seedlings become weak and spindly. Never sow seeds too thickly.

Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Many garden soils in city gardens lack humus or decayed matter, with the result that the soil packs hard after a rain. No gardener should refuse a load of manure, for it is invaluable in building up garden soil.

The working in of decayed vegetable matter, peat moss or muck, old leaves, leafmold, or other material aids materially in the improvement of the soil. If the soil is heavy work in two or more inches of ashes or some sand. If sandy, the soil will become more moisture holding if manure is spaded into it.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Feed the lawn in early March to make ample nourishment available from the beginning of growth. Commercial foods will not burn if they are used at that time, and no raking in is necessary.

Order all seeds now to have them on hand for sowing when the proper time arrives. All tender vegetables and flowers should not be planted until all danger from frost has passed, and this is usually after May 20, or even later according to season.

Thursday, Feb. 25.

Many gardeners will grow some flowers in the vegetable garden, but wherever possible vegetable growing must be given first consideration.

By planting annual vines on porches, up the side of the garage, or wherever they can be used to advantage, the effect will be pleasing.

Friday, Feb. 26.

Get rid of the pestiferous dandelion by digging them out of the lawn and using them as greens. When properly prepared, they are delectable.

House plants start into active growth at this season. Water each morning. Turn the plants occasionally so that all their parts will enjoy their share of light. Give plenty of fresh air, but do not allow the plants to suffer from cold drafts.

Saturday, Feb. 27.

Never give the insect pests a chance to become established on house plants. Watch continually for them and begin a program of eradication immediately. Ferns and ivies are likely to be attacked by scales.

Prune grape vines this month. Cut back all branches to about two buds, and give an application of plant food.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

MODERNIST HOME IN BLUE ISLAND DRAWS INTEREST

Building Detail Enhanced by Spacious Lawn.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Aaron B. Heimbach at New street and Greenwood avenue, Blue Island, has caught the attention of those interested in modern architecture. Its sweeping lines, long rows of windows, sundeck, carport, and massive fireplace chimney are among the things that arouse interest. Surrounded by lawn on all sides of its corner location, it has the outdoor spaciousness a thoughtfully planned home demands.

Prime features of the two story glass and brick home are its long window walls, overhang cantilever construction, a fireplace that is waist high, a suspended stairway, and partial floor heating.

Ample Living Space.

Altho modern architecture decrees that home units be referred to as "living space" rather than rooms, the Heimbach home has by standard rules approximately nine rooms, three baths, and lavatory.

It also contains the offices and laboratory of Dr. Heimbach, a physician, and a darkroom for photography. Both Dr. Heimbach and his wife, who was a medical social worker at Michael Reese hospital, are photography hobbyists.

Bertrand Goldberg, young Chicago architect who studied at the Bauhaus, Germany, designed the home, and Arthur Ehrlich, Chicago, was the decorator. Goldberg followed a light type of construction, in contrast to the heavy style popular at the Bauhaus, using slight steel support poles, and slender window dividers for the window walls.

Fireplace Metal Curtains.

The elevated fireplace forms one end of the windowed living room. When a drawstring is pulled, the linked metal curtain moves — clink, clank—and drapes itself at either side. A charcoal grill for steaks is revealed, at a convenient height for grilling.

Such items as permanent copper screening for the long porches, and copper pipes, are but a home designer's dream today, but they are notably present in the Blue Island home, which was completed a year ago. Orders for building materials were placed just a hairbreadth of time before priorities, Mrs. Heimbach said.

Now is the time to apply fertilizer for your successful spring and summer victory gardens. With the proper fertilization done early you'll be sure of the right plant food to produce a bigger yield of good, sound vegetables. New government chemical regulations make it necessary that the greater part of the ntirogen in your garden soil be derived from organic materials. Fortunately organic materials feed the plants more steadily over a longer period of time than do chemical materials.

Remember—if you fertilize now, the plant foods are all ready to work on the day you plant! If you're going to grow a garden—grow a good one—get the best results possible from your work. Order your fertilizer tomorrow from The FAIR and get it spread at once.

South siders who will assist in house to house solicitation of the Red Cross war fund drive, beginning Monday, March 1, have been announced by Fred B. Snite, chairman of the urban division of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross.

Rudolph L. Johnson, 160 North La Salle street; Walter J. Riley, president of the South Shore National bank, and Stanley A. Van Dyke, 5443 South Halsted street, are chairmen of districts 1, 2, and 3 on the south side. The districts conform with civilian defense areas.

Will Ask Day's Pay.

The Chicago chapter seeks $8,750,000 in the war fund drive. The house to house solicitation will supplement industrial coverage, in which employés are asked to pledge an amount equal to one day's pay.

The suburban area, which includes Cook and Du Page counties and the southern half of Lake county, has been divided into six districts, with a chairman and vice chairman for each district. Arthur H. Schneider, vice president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, is general chairman of the suburban drive.

The drive in suburban district 3, which is southern Cook county, will be directed by Peirce Vandercook, Chicago Heights.

Vice Chairmen Listed.

Vice chairmen in district 3, appointed by Vandercook, include Mrs. Henry B. Welch, Mrs. Fred J. Nichols, and Lynn H. Burne, Blue Island; Mrs. William Thrailkill, Calumet City; Stanley Bujaski, Roseland; Mrs. Clarence Berolzheimer and Mrs. Daniel M. Selfe, Chicago Heights; Mrs. M. D. Ammerman, Chicago Ridge.

LAYMEN SPEAK IN METHODIST PULPITS TODAY

Southwest Side Joins in Nation-Wide Rites.

Laymen will occupy the pulpits of the 71 Methodist churches in the Chicago southern district today as part of a nation-wide observance of Laymen's day, Dr. C. A. Bloomquist, district superintendent, announced.

"Methodist Men in World Reconstruction" is the theme for the day, which will be observed in 42,000 Methodist churches across the country, as a preliminary to the opening of the denomination's Week of Dedication next Sunday in which 8,000,000 members will be called to rededication of "self, service, and substance."

Bishop Indorses Plan.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, head of Methodism in Illinois, has given indorsement to use of laymen as the preachers in pulpits today. "This observance gives laymen an opportunity to declare themselves on the importance of building a better world thru consecration of self and money in this present hour of world crisis," he stated.

Robert H. Harper and Max Wilson will be the lay speakers today at Trinity Methodist church, 9848 South Winchester avenue, and other laymen who will take part in the services include Samuel J. Smith, Prof. Cecil Williams, L. W. Hoffman, and Harry W. Olsen. The Rev. Ira G. McCormack is pastor.

Services in Englewood.

Englewood Methodist church, 64th street and Stewart avenue, will listen to Cleon Pilgrim, lay speaker, the Rev. Arthur W. Mohns, pastor, has announced. Albert J. Obrecht will speak at Thoburn Methodist church, 64th and Paulina streets. In the evening a service honor roll dedicated to 200 men in the service will be unveiled, the Rev. J. H. De Lacy, pastor, said.

In Blue Island the Central Methodist church, whose pastor is the Rev. Frank T. Palm, will hear Fred H. Meister, layman. In Dolton Stanley Steinko will speak from the pulpit of the Sandridge Methodist church.

BETHANY UNION RED CROSS UNIT GAINS MEMBERS

From a membership of 135 in June, 1940, the Bethany Union unit of the Red Cross, 103d and Wood streets, now has grown to an enrollment of 651 members, Mrs. Alfred D. Biggs, 9554 Longwood drive, chairman, reported. Mrs. George K. Walton, 1527 West 107th street, is assistant chairman.

The report of work turned out in the last 11 months shows that 48,256 surgical dressings were completed in 11,022 hours by 339 workers. Included were 112 surgical packs, which required one hour's work each, and a large number of cotton filled pads. In the knitting department, 1,405 knitted garments were completed by 280 workers in 26,635 hours and 32 members of the sewing department completed 1,000 garments in 3,197 hours.

NEW SCRAP DRIVE ENDS; PARKER, TILDEN PILES BIG

Other Schools Turning In Bronze, Brass, Copper.

Harper High school students, winners of the 1942 city-wide scrap collection contest with a per-pupil average of 157 pounds, expect to retain the title in the copper-brass-bronze salvage drive which ended yesterday among city schools.

The new campaign, including all public elementary and high schools, was sponsored jointly by the board of education and the war production board. If the drive turns out a success here it will be extended to other cities.

Collect 1,000 Pounds.

Approximately one thousand pounds had been brought in by Harper students at the half way mark of the drive. Included were an old fashioned brass bedstead, an antique brass umbrella rack, and a modern but worn out electric motor. Huskies of the school's football team volunteered to carry heavy pieces to the school from homes and stores nearby.

Miss Jean Navarro, 6448 South Rockwell street, was leading the school at the half way mark, with 46 pounds. Jack Schmidt, 6513 South Wolcott avenue, and Jerome Zuro, 6556 South Wolcott avenue, were tied for second place with 42 pounds each.

Civic Groups Push Drive.

The last five days of the campaign at Harper were sponsored by five local organizations. A special assembly for all students will be held March 2, according to Butler Laughlin, principal of Harper, when prizes of war bonds and stamps will be awarded student winners by the following:

Tilden Scrap Still Coming.

Tilden Technical High school's salvage chairman, Arthur Woerner, reported that approximately 1,000 pounds of bronze, brass, and copper had been collected. However, boys at Tilden are still bringing in an average of a ton of scrap iron and steel every week.

Mrs. Mary R. Prendergast, Kelly High school's salvage coördinator, revealed that interclass competition was used to increase the school's "scrapping spirit." Last year Kelly was first in the state on a total pound basis, with 311,315 pounds of iron and steel collected. Walter Eggert, "scrap king" of Kelly who headed the transportation committee which rounded up more than 20 tons, graduated last month and is now in the army.

Virginia Poznack Leads.

Virginia Poznack, 4103 South Richmond street, a senior, led the students at the half way mark with 100 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze, taken from a piano.

Fenger High school's scrap collection chairman, Kenneth Dean, organized a dance on the final day of the campaign, admission to which was by articles of copper, brass, or bronze.

Lindblom's 4,000 students had gathered more than 2,200 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze by Wednesday, according to Principal Harry F. Yates. Calvin McCain, 4836 Wentworth avenue, a senior, led the school at the half way mark with 127 pounds. Verne Kuick, 3317 West 62d place, was runner up with 117 pounds, and Keith Rasmussen was leading the Hubbard branch students with 87 pounds. Shirley Legant, 5542 South Winchester avenue, led the freshmen with 35 pounds.

Prizes at Lindblom.

Pupils of the Dewey elementary school, which placed 14th last year among the city's 375 schools, had accumulated 218 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze up to last Tuesday, according to a count kept by Miss Mae Murtaugh, chairman of the school's salvage drive.

Dolores Schmutz, 748 West 52d street, who brought a roll of copper wire weighing 4½ pounds, and Ronald Sobie, 5319 South Union avenue, with an old floor lamp, were among the first contributors. Mrs. Kathryn Ranquist, now acting principal at Dewey, was chairman of the school's campaign last year.

Major Greets New Warrant Officer

Michael Schweihs, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schweihs Sr., 3130 Parnell avenue, is congratulated upon his promotion to warrant officer at the army air base, Maxton, N. C., by Maj. James C. Baker, executive officer of the first troop carrier command's base at Maxton. Maj. Baker, a Chicagoan, is a member of the Chicago Stock exchange and a veteran of World War I. Schweihs is a graduate of St. Ignatius High school and Northwestern university, class of 1934. He rose thru the ranks in less than a year after induction.

CHILD AID GROUP SIGNS 39 SOUTH SIDE VOLUNTEERS

Miss Spiker Has Charge of Training Class.

Thirty-nine south side residents answered a recent call for volunteer aids issued by the child care committee of the office of civilian defense, the Chicago recreation commission, and the Council of Social Agencies, according to Mrs. W. J. Loarie, recruiting chairman.

Dorothy Spiker.

Miss Dorothy Spiker, director of recreation at the Institute for Juvenile Research, 907 South Wolcott street, heads the training course committee. Registration in the course is closed, but persons with special talents may offer their services at the volunteer office, 111 West Jackson boulevard.

All but 3 of the 39 south side volunteers are women. The three men, who have had experience coaching amateur athletics, will be assigned to centers where athletic coaches are needed, and, in addition, they will aid in recruiting another 100 men, the number set by the directors as needed for coaching, directing woodcraft, game rooms, and club leaders.

The three men are Fred Downer, 444 East 47th street; Ray Epstein, 5218 Woodlawn avenue; and Harold Fisher, 8003 Carpenter avenue.

The course is being offered Tuesday and Friday evenings at 111 West Jackson boulevard, and will continue for a month.

SOUTHWEST SIDE MEN COMPLETE NAVY PILOT CLASS

Fifteen southwest side men were among the 43 prospective navy combat pilots from Chicago who completed their ground school and elementary flight training recently at the University of Chicago. The trainees studied under auspices of the civil aeronautics administration. They took their ground school work at the university and flying instruction at the university airport, Lansing.

The men have been reassigned to naval bases for secondary instruction, C. O. Houle, who is in charge of the training, announced.

Southwest side graduates include Richard Bagdonas, 5243 South Winchester avenue; Edmund Budris, 6611 South Sacramento avenue; Russell Fiske, 18 East 111th place; William Fries, 411 West 63d street; Leonard Jachera, 12135 Yale avenue; Robert D. Kennedy, 9755 Charles street; William Lawler, 10847 Washtenaw avenue; John Macracken, 10605 Eggleston avenue; Donald Matthisen, 7539 Parnell street.

The marriage of Miss Lolita A. Rempert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Rempert, 3228 West 61st place, to Clifton O. Koolmo, naval instructor stationed at the navy pier, took place recently in Nazareth Lutheran church, 60th street and Spaulding avenue. Mrs. Koolmo is a graduate of Lindblom High school. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Koolmo, Gilman, Wis., is a graduate of the Gilman High school.

PASTEUR CENTER PREPARES WHOLE FAMILY PROGRAM

Events scheduled for Friday evening at the Pasteur social center, 5825 South Kostner avenue, will be directed toward recreation needs of every member of the family, Miss Kathryn Steinmetz, director, has announced.

Mrs. Hattie Durkin, dressmaker, will conduct a remodeling class in the sewing machine room, and Mrs. Rose Mizar will supervise a surgical dressing unit. From 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, Mrs. Frank Greer, Red Cross instructor, will direct a first aid class.

Louise DeBone will be in charge of the game room until 10 o'clock and Winifred Willis will supervise a choral class. A girls' gym class will meet under Patricia Hawkins and Alexia Moran will teach the art of making artificial flowers.

Henry George Teacher to Talk to Woodshore Club

Willis Shipley of the Henry George school, will speak on "Democracy" tomorrow night at a meeting of the Woodshore Junior club, to be held at 7311 Stewart avenue.

PUSH LEGAL WORK ON NEW ASHLAND AVENUE VIADUCT

Plan Construction as Soon as War Ends.

Engineering and legal details are being completed for two viaduct improvements at troublesome locations on the southwest side in order that construction may start immediately after the war. The work is being done by the bureau of local improvements of the city's department of public works.

The largest of the two jobs involves rebuilding the underpass of Ashland avenue at the stockyards railroad crossing just south of 39th street. The estimated cost is $1,018,000. This narrow subway is a bottleneck on a heavily traveled street which is a state route and has been widened to 100 feet for the full length of the city.

Seek 70 Foot Roadway.

The proposed structure would provide better visibility, a 70 foot roadway in the underpass and eliminate supports in the middle.

The Chicago Junction railway, serving the stockyards, and other lines use the viaduct. Improvement of the structure would ease street traffic congestion in the neighborhood of the large packing plants.

Already the city has presented arguments before the Illinois Commerce commission and is seeking apportionment of part of the cost against the railroads. The city's costs would be paid from motor fuel taxes.

Seek Improvement at 55th Street.

The other proposal is for raising the nine or more tracks of the Grand Trunk railway over 55th street at Central Park avenue. Traffic on 55th street is heavy and crosses the Grand Trunk tracks at grade. City engineers report heavy switching traffic across the street.

Cost of this job has been estimated at $525,000. The city council has authorized expenditure of fuel tax funds for engineering surveys and plans to be put before the ICC.

6:30 TONIGHT

MIKE TRENT

Mike Trent—erstwhile magician—now private detective and nemesis of racketeers—has struck another hot trail. Hear Trent tonight in "Easy Money" over WGN, as the famous racket-buster and crusader against crime, through his knowledge of magic, exposes the nefarious workings of a notorious shoplifter. Distinctly different in technique, unique in plot, "Easy Money"—now in its second season—ranks among the most popular detective dramas on the air. Tune in every week.

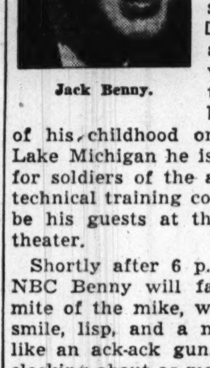
BENNY TO BATTLE LITTLE JOE, QUIZ KID BALL OF FIRE

Comedian and Bright Boy to Exchange Visits.

When Jack Benny broadcasts from Chicago today for the first time in many years he will be confronted by an extra heckler, the 6 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman. Benny's regulars, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Rochester, and Don Wilson will be on hand to explode the boastful stories of his childhood on the shores of Lake Michigan he is bound to recite for soldiers of the army's air forces technical training command who will be his guests at the Eighth Street theater.



Jack Benny.

Shortly after 6 p. m. on WMAQ-NBC Benny will face Joel, mighty mite of the mike, with his toothless smile, lisp, and a mind that works like an ack-ack gun. Joel has been clocking about as many laughs lately on the Quiz Kids' show as writers Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin have been giving Benny each week. Tonight listeners will get a double dose not only on the Benny show—but on the Quiz Kids' session on WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m.

For as soon as Joel has pulled a few "secret" mathematical tricks on Benny he will race over to the Merchandise Mart for his own show. Jack will follow at 6:29½ and expects to be on hand for the last half of the Quiz Kids' show. As "judge" of the quiz Benny may have an opportunity to get back at little Joel.

Joel Kupperman.

Benny and his troupe will be in and around Chicago for two weeks entertaining soldiers and sailors. They plan to go to the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow evening; Fort Sheridan a night or two later, and also to Camp Custer in Michigan.

Benny, who grew up in Waukegan, is looking forward to his visit to Great Lakes. There, just 25 years ago, he received his naval training and while stationed there got his start as a funny man. Prior to the war he had toured theater circuits as a violinist.

Benny volunteered his talents as a violinist to the revue. Dave Wolff, now a Chicago advertising man, wrote and produced the show. He discovered Benny's latent talent for humor. Today Jack calls him his first gag man. After the war Benny toured vaudeville circuits with Ned Miller, Chicago composer, as partner.

Benny never abandoned the violin altogether and that ultimately paid a dividend. After a wait of 25 years he was invited recently to play at a benefit concert in Carnegie hall.

"You've heard what they've been saying on the radio almost continuously ever since" he remarked. "'The best tunes of all come from Carnegie hall.'"

STANLEY JOHNSTON JOINS IN REVIEWING STAND HOUR TODAY

A discussion of "How Fast Are We Winning the War?" will be presented on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10 a. m. today. Participants will be: Stanley Johnston, noted Chicago Tribune war correspondent; Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago; Kenneth E. Olson, dean of the Medill School of Journalism, and Dr. Melchior Palyi, economist and current events analyst.

These discussions, broadcast in W-G-N's main studio are open to studio guests. A question and answer period follows the broadcasts.

Scott in Mystery.

Martha Scott, screen star, will appear in "Screams in the Night" presented on Inner Sanctum mystery at 7:30 p. m. today over WLS-Blue.

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALS SLATED FOR TWO NIGHTS

The finals of the Golden Gloves tournament of champions will be broadcast by W-G-N tomorrow and Tuesday from ringside at the Chicago Stadium with Sportscaster Jack Brickhouse giving the blow by blow account.

The finals will be broadcast both nights from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The winners will make up the team to represent the middle west in a match that will be held later with New York champions.

Brahms' Second Symphony Feature of Philharmonic

Brahms' Second Symphony in D major will be played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra at 2 o'clock this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. The balance of the program will consist of the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Mozart's Symphony in G minor, No. 40 [K. 550].

Russia as Permanent Ally Subject of Round Table

University of Chicago Round Table will discuss, "Russia As an Ally in War and Peace" at 1 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Participating in the discussion will be Walter Duranty, Reinhold Niebuhr, and Louis Gottschalk.

Stevens and Spalding Guests of Kostelanetz

Rise Stevens and Albert Spalding will be guests on the André Kostelanetz program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The American overture, arranged and introduced by Kostelanetz, will be played. Miss Stevens will sing "The Song Is You" and "I'll Follow My Secret Heart." Mr. Spalding, violinist, will play "Meditation" from "Thaïs."

Quaal to Norfolk.

Ensign Ward Quaal, former announcer for W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System, has been assigned to the naval training station at Norfolk, Virginia, as an instructor and communications officer.

IN WARTIME, AMERICA NEEDS TRIM, ENERGETIC WOMEN!

Don't Be Fat!

Reduce this proved way that requires no strict diet lists—
No exercises—
No harmful drugs

Lovely Radio Star, Irene Rich, 2nd Lieutenant in Women's Ambulance & Defense Corps of America, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch Way to reduce.

READ AMAZING FACTS:
Today, thousands of patriotic American women are discovering a remarkably effective way to lose ugly, sluggish fat! To thus have that trim, "active look" and alert, peppy feeling so important today! It's easy! Merely mix ¾ glass* Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* water—drink before meals and at bedtime. Then what amazing action follows! First: You have less desire to eat sweet, fattening foods—thus cutting down caloric intake. Second: Natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime actually helps Nature consume excess fat! Builds quick-energy, too! Thus you look better—feel better! Have more of the pep you need in wartime! Start reducing the Welch Way today! *8-oz. glass

MOUNT VERNON MODELED HERE IN RARE WOODS

Washington Life Inspires Northwest Sider.

BY CHARLES CARROLL.

Chicago now has its own Mount Vernon. It was finished last week, the climax of six years of work. Built on a scale of three-eighths inch to the foot, it is, in detail, plan, and sturdiness, every inch the equal of the first Mount Vernon. Made of 30,000 pieces of wood, carved from specimens of rare woods of six continents, the model was based on working blueprints of Washington's home. To complete it, the builder, spent 15,000 hours in his workshop.

It was the dream of Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry street. Ever since he left his home in Germany 15 years ago this month and came to America, he had looked forward to that goal. Inspired by the freedom of America which Washington's courage first made possible, and as detetrmined as the first President that "whatever is done should be well done," he began his model six years ago. And it was the immigrant admirer of Washington who quoted so accurately that bit of philosophy of the father of our country.

Quit Work to Build.

He had earned enough to make it possible for him to devote all his time and energies to his project. In the years since 1937 he returned to his work as a bricklayer for only eight months.

First step in building the model was correspondence with authorities in colonial architecture. He wrote the architect of the capitol in Washington, historians of the Daughters of the American Revolution, officers of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, and the superintendent of the home at Mount Vernon. The superintendent provided plans from which he made his blueprints.

Second step was selection of woods. He chose woods from six continents; went about their purchase in Chicago. He wanted fine and durable woods for his model — woods that would simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon without the use of modern paints.

Rare African Woods.

From Africa came ebony for the weather vane ball; bubinga for the small steps in the cupola; avodire for the brick of Mount Vernon's walls; vermilion wood for the roof, and benin for the lawn.

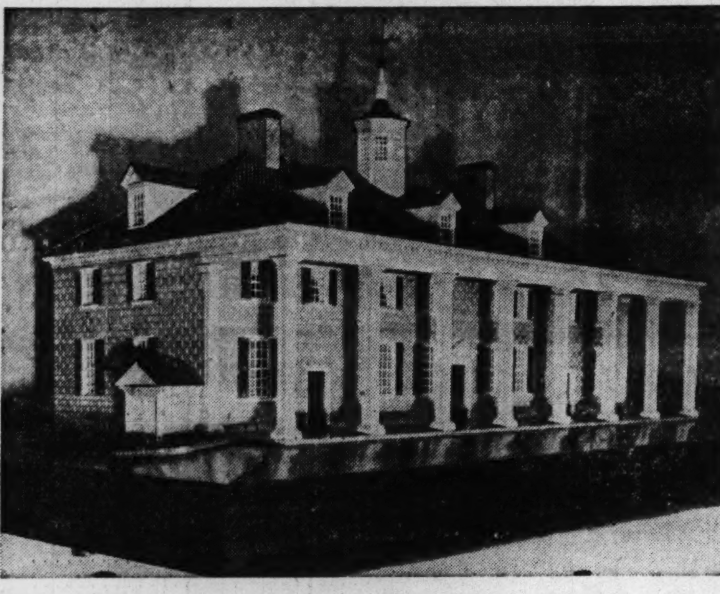
The boxwood for the columns, the cornices, the cupola, the banquet hall window, and the rear doors came from the East Indies. So, too, did the padouk for the cupola roofing and the teak for the sidewalk foundation.

From England came sycamore for the basement windows, pearwood for the front and rear steps, and harewood for the sidewalks. The model Mount Vernon's window frames are of American holly; the shutters of Circassian walnut from Russia; Venetian blinds of West Indian satinwood. The molding is of narra wood from the Philippines and the gravel of the drive is of Australian lacewood.

All in all, Chicago's Mount Vernon was made of 23 types of rare wood.

Zoller and his wife have three children, two sons and one daughter. Jacob, 30, is a private in the army at Fort Custer, Michigan. Herman, 28, is a corporal, stationed at Camp Pickett, Virginia. Their daughter, Mrs. Katharine Meier, lives at 4206 Troy street.

Builds Model of Mount Vernon



This model of Mount Vernon, exclusive of its base, is 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 24 inches in height, from ground level to the tip of the weathervane. Built on a scale of three-eighths of an inch to the foot, the model was made of 23 types of rare woods from six continents. The woods were chosen to simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon. Only features of the model home to be made without wood are the glass windows, the painted curtains of the second floor and the brass weathervane.

Determined as was Washington that "whatever is done should be well done," Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry avenue, spent 15,000 hours in the last six years completing his model of Mount Vernon. Only unnecessary work in that time was this intricately cut model of the Chippendale railing that surmounted the piazza at Mount Vernon. He learned that the railing had been removed from the front of the home in 1935 when it was discovered it was not an original feature.

Add 3 New Members to South Side Ration Boards

Three new members have been appointed to three rationing boards serving the south side, Michael F. Mulcahy, metropolitan area administrator, announced. Appointments were as follows: Board 1, Stephen B. Maher, 237 East Delaware place, vice president of a business firm; board 6, Mrs. Ruth M. Jackson, 6323 St. Lawrence avenue, retired principal of Colman school; board 7, Edward G. McDougall, 6946 Euclid avenue, retired president of a food concern.

Jewish War Veterans Plan Benefit Military Ball

Gov. Henry Horner post of Jewish War Veterans will hold its first military ball at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Southmoor hotel. Proceeds from the ball will be used to help purchase one of the six pursuit planes which the national commander of the organization has pledged.

Two South Siders Donate Blood for 5th, 6th Time

Two south side residents recently donated blood to the Red Cross, one for the sixth time and the other for the fifth. James L. Butler, 2358 Indiana avenue, was the sixth time donor and Harry B. Cohen of 4906 Greenwood avenue, the fifth.

Music of France, Scotland Feature of Thomas Show

John Charles Thomas will sing "A Wearyin Awa'" and "Tommy Lad" on his show at 1:30 this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. The Lyn Murray chorus will offer "Allouette," with the orchestra playing "Yankee Doodle."

STOCKYARD AREA COUNCIL TO SHOW OCD'S ACTIVITIES

Movies on Point Rationing Planned Tuesday.

How the community can gear itself to war effort thru civilian defense channels will be the theme of a patriotic meeting of the community council of the stockyards district Tuesday evening in the Valentine Boys' club, 3400 Emerald avenue Stewart W. Knarr, a director of the boys' club, is president of the council.

A demonstration of the operation of point rationing will be given by the dramatic group of the local American Youth Reserves, and the Bridgeport Dramatic club will present a short dramatization of how to obtain good community morale. Movies on defense measures will be shown.

OCD Leaders Invited.

Civilian defense leaders who will attend are Ernest Goranson, director of the citizens service corps, OCD, and Robert Bantz, division chief, and Frank Covert, assistant division chief, of Division 3, OCD.

The community commanders will include Raymond J. Welsh, Bridgeport; John Owen, Fuller Park; Dave Kerwin, Sherman Park; John Finn, Town of Lake; P. J. Stransky, Garfield-Damen, and Dr. F. J. Laibe, McKinley Park.

The community council of the stockyards district has prepared a bulletin listing health centers where limited medical advice and assistance may be obtained. The bulletin is the first in a series of releases to encourage physical fitness among civilians in the area.

Locate Health Centers.

Hours and locations of the following health centers are given in the bulletin: Municipal tuberculosis sanitarium clinics, Visiting Nurses' association, Salvation Army clinics, infant welfare stations, public health services, and the Douglas-Smith fund. Purpose of the latter is to give health examinations to employed and employable women between the ages of 16 and 35, and to repeat regular examinations until the age limit is reached.

VOTE TUESDAY ON BITTER WARD FIGHTS

NAME SCHOOLS TO ISSUE NO. 2 RATION BOOKS

Teachers Start Big Task Tuesday.

Lists of elementary schools by wards were announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, to guide Chicago residents in registering for point rationing, beginning Tuesday and continuing thru Friday. Registration hours will be 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Registrations will be taken in 333 elementary buildings, with 9,000 elementary teachers, 6,500 teachers and advanced students in the city's junior and teachers' colleges and thousands of volunteers to do the work.

Expect 3½ Million.

Three and a half million Chicagoans are expected to be registered in preparation for canned goods rationing, to begin March 1.

High school classes will not be affected, but elementary schools, junior and teacher colleges will be dismissed during the registration.

Registration will be in alphabetical order, Mulcahy announced, according to the following schedule:

A thru B—Tuesday morning.
C thru E—Tuesday afternoon.
F thru H—Wednesday morning.
I thru L—Wednesday afternoon.
M thru N—Thursday morning.
O thru R—Thursday afternoon.
S—Friday morning.
T thru Z—Friday afternoon.

Consumers are urged to follow the schedule except where pressing circumstances prevent it, Mulcahy said.

Each registrant should go to the school in his ward nearest his home, Mulcahy said. He emphasized that no registrant should cross a ward boundark to register, even if a school in a neighboring ward should be closer than the nearest school in his ward. This regulation is necessary to keep ration records straight, he said.

The housewife or any other adult in a family may register for the entire household, Mulcahy reiterated, and he reminded that the registrant should have with him ration book No. 1 [sugar book] for each member of the family, and a completely answered consumer declaration form, which will state the family's stock of canned goods and coffee. Registrars will remove stamps for items declared in excess of five cans per person.

Women Prove Valuable Aids in War Time Posts for Air Lines

Now serving as passenger agents at the municipal airport are Miss Marian Hjertsted, 539 West 61st place; Miss Jean Vance, 1525 East 69th street, and Miss Virginia Nelson, 7111 Paxton avenue (left to right). Miss Hjertsted is a graduate of Englewood High school and has attended evening school at Northwestern university school of commerce. Miss Vance is a graduate of Hyde Park High school and has attended Woodrow Wilson Junior college. Miss Nelson is a graduate of St. Xavier academy. (Story on page 2.)

Helping in the war time job of moving essential civilian and military travelers, Miss Mitzi Kimmel, 847 East 53d street (left), and Miss Eileen Moran, 6237 South California avenue, are now traffic saleswomen in the Chicago office of United Air Lines, 23 East Monroe street. Miss Kimmel is a graduate of Hyde Park High school, '37, and was formerly a secretary. Miss Moran, born in Ireland, came to Chicago when she was 14 and is a graduate of Loretto academy.

Preparation for an air transportation position means going to school again for Miss Frances Hastings, 2039 East 72d place.

The theory of ticket counter work must be mastered in school before young women go forth to wait on real patrons. Miss Barbara Harper, 5424 Cornell avenue, carries on a make-believe conversation over the telephone as part of the classroom work at the air lines school.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Capt. Howe.

Jerome J. Howe, son of Mrs. Margaret Howe of 7051 Prairie avenue, recently was promoted to captain at an air base in the Caribbean defense zone where he is with the army air forces. Announcement of his promotion was made at the headquarters of the Antilles air task force, San Juan, Puerto Rico. Graduating from the University of Illinois in 1939, he entered the air forces after a year with a packing company and was commissioned in April, 1941, after training at Maxwell field, Alabama. He has been serving outside the country for the last two years.

Arthur Naber, stationed with the army in the Panama Canal Zone, recently was promoted to private first class. His sister, Rosemond, resides at 8505 Muskegon avenue. Entering the army last February, he served at Edgewood arsenal, Maryland, before being assigned to his present post.

Morton Cohen, 8208 Maryland avenue, recently was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air forces technical training command at Chanute field. He attended Northwestern university and formerly served in the Hawaiian Islands as an enlisted man.

Dr. David S. Jaffray of 2376 East 71st street, recently was commissioned a captain in the army medical corps and left for duty last week. He is married to the former Alice Hunting and has one son.

Gordon F. Bradburn, son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Bradburn of the Woodlawn Methodist church, recently was promoted to first lieutenant. He is plans and training officer for the army air forces technical training command at Atlantic City, N. J.

H. D. Wilson of 7020 Jeffrey avenue recently was promoted from major to lieutenant colonel at his post in Africa. An engineer, he is a graduate of the old Armour institute.

Sergt. Carl B. Moore of 6620 Drexel avenue, an instructor at Gulfport field, Miss., recently was selected to take the engineering officers course at Valley Forge Military academy, Wayne, Pa. Upon completion of the course he will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

Col. McElvain.

Clifford A. McElvain of 7516 Essex avenue recently was promoted to the rank of full colonel in the army air forces in the Caribbean area, where he is in command of an air base. His military experience began in World War I when he was shot down over France and was saved from being shot by German infantrymen by the German pilot who had just destroyed the American plane in combat. Before entering service he was a real estate investment broker.

Harry King of 6526 Kimbark avenue recently was promoted to sergeant at the air depot training station of the New Orleans, La., army air base.

Lt. Ralph E. Niemi, son of Mrs. Minnie Niemi, 7938 Colfax avenue, recently arrived at Camp Polk, Louisiana, for duty with an armored division. He was commissioned a second lieutenant Jan. 9 at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Lewis Schimberg, son of Mrs. Rose Schimberg of 5107 Blackstone avenue, a member of the quartermaster board detachment at Camp Lee, Virginia, recently was promoted to corporal. A graduate of the University of Chicago and the Harvard law school, he was inducted in the army October, 1942.

Woodlawn A. M. E. Pastor to Address Massmeeting

SOUTH SIDE HAS LIVELIEST TIME IN MANY YEARS

1st and 5th Scenes of Struggles.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Marked by speechmaking and floods of literature, charges and countercharges, the south side's liveliest aldermanic campaigns in several years roared toward their finish last week. The climax will come Tuesday when Chicagoans will elect their aldermen and nominate candidates for the mayoral election April 6.

The fights were especially interesting in the 1st and 5th wards. In the 1st James McVittie, Business Men's committee candidate, added spice last week with the charge that his Kelly-Nash rival, John Budinger, is falsely registered as a voter from 2449 Wentworth avenue. McVittie says Budinger has long lived with his daughter at 6029 Kimbark avenue, carrying on a real estate business at the Wentworth avenue address. Members of the B. M. C. announced they will challenge Budinger if he tries to vote in the 1st ward Tuesday.

Moss Repeats Charges.

In the 5th Bertram B. Moss, from whom the city hallers snatched their indorsement to hand it to former County Treasurer Horace G. Lindheimer, reiterated his charge that the indorsement was bought from Patrick A. Nash and declared Lindheimer is spending $250 a precinct in a desperate effort to buy the election.

Following is the stackup for the 13 south side wards. The list identifies the candidates, summarizes their political support, and indicates the main contestants. Groups that have made indorsements include besides the regular ward organizations the Business Men's committee, the Free Democrats [Boyle for mayor] and the Better Government association.

First—John Budinger, real estate man, regular Democrat. James McVittie, owner of his own electroplating business, B. M. C. and B. G. A. Ald. Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, who helped the late John [The Bath] Coughlin boss the ward since the early '90s, is retiring.

Second—William H. Harvey, furloughed city fireman, regular Democrat; Mack Atkins, undertaker, regular Republican, B. G. A..; Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, first term incumbent, B. G. A.; Jacob R. Tipper, publisher. All the candidates are colored. Dickerson was shelved because of his long standing feud with the Democratic ward committee man, Congressman William L. Dawson. A run-off here is likely between Harvey and either Atkins or Dickerson.

Third—Ald. Benjamin A. Grant, attorney, first term, regular Democrat. Former Congressman Oscar De Priest, real estate, regular Republican. Zedrick T. Braden, attorney and former member of De Priest's organization, B. G. A. Marco Killings, pharmacist. Braden claims he has much aid from both the Grant and De Priest camps, and may land in the expected run-off.

Fourth—Ald. Abraham H. Cohen, attorney, first term, regular Republican, was left unopposed by the withdrawal of two candidates. The Democrats declined to make an indorsement.

Fifth—Horace G. Lindheimer, real estate, former county treasurer, regular Democrat. Bertram B. Moss, attorney, who had the Kelly-Nash machine indorsement until the final days of the campaign. Walter Johnson, University of Chicago instructor of American history, backed by the supporters of former Ald. Paul H. Douglas, who resigned to join the marines, and by the B. G. A. Gail Strader, radio dealer. A run-off appears probable.

Sixth—Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith, real estate and insurance, first term, former city clerk, regular Republican, B. G. A. Prof. Maynard C. Krueger, University of Chicago economics department, former Socialist candidate for Vice President. John J. Carroll, amusement promoter. Ald. Smith appears well out ahead.

Seventh—Matthew J. Ryan, assistant city real estate agent, regular Democrat. [Is brother of Democratic Ward Committee Man James W. Ryah, chief deputy county clerk.] Nicholas J. Bohling Jr., security supervisor for Illinois industrial commission, regular Republican, B. G. A. Bernard Goodman, air compressor engineer, B. G. A. Ald. Thomas J. Daley died Jan. 5, 1942. Bohling is putting up a determined fight and may win.

Eighth—Ald. Roy E. Olin, attorney, first term, regular Republican, B. G. A. Harry P. Hensel, attorney, regular Democrat. Olin appears winner.

Ninth—Ald. Arthur G. Lindell, electrical engineer, third term, regular Republican, B. G. A. James J. Van Zeyl, real estate and insurance. The Democratic organization made no indorsement here and Lindell's reëlection appears certain.

Tenth—William J. Pieczynski, lumber company executive, regular Democrat. Dr. Harry E. L. Timm, physician and G. O. P. ward committee man, regular Republican. Clarence G. Koller, merchandise broker and lobbyist, B. G. A. Former Ald. William A. Rowan was elected representative of the 2d congressional district last No-

AIR LINE TRAINS WOMEN TO FILL WAR BLED STAFF

School Opens New Career for Personable Girls.

Handling reservation calls, selling tickets, and helping clear traffic at the terminals, women are proving their value in air transportation. Key positions in the flying and dispatching of planes are retained by the men, but the fair sex are finding opportunities in a new career as they step into the places of men who have gone to war or taken more important posts with the air lines.

To meet the demand for trained workers in a field where few women possess previous experience, United Air Lines started a school last fall at its Chicago headquarters. Fifty students are graduated every two weeks to fill vacancies of men now on leaves of absence in the 36 cities where the transport corporation operates.

Service Training Desired.

Applicants, preferably between the ages of 22 and 30, must first pass the personality test. A high school diploma and some college training is required, and previous experience including duties in a service capacity are desired.

Recently, the school reached its first objective, set last fall, of 300 trained women gathered here from coast to coast. Chicago neighborhoods are well represented in the list of those now active on the "front line" where they come in contact with the public. The school continues to hum with its courses in reservation and passenger handling procedures.

Women on duty say they are fascinated with their new jobs. Among them are women who formerly taught school, studied art, trained for the stage, modeled, or were receptionists. They feel themselves a part of the glamour connected with travel. In the beginning, they may not have known the difference between a stabilizer or an aileron but the something called "charm" which was innate, together with schooling, has enabled them to transfer their enthusiasms to details of air transportation.

Find Numerous Jobs.

Once, the only part played in the air line business by women was that of stewardess, secretary, or stenographer. Now they are demonstrating that there are numerous places where they can be equally adept as men in handling important tasks. Back in 1930, but eight young women were employed on the United Air Lines coast to coast route. Today, the corporation estimates that approximately 30 per cent of its 6,500 employés are women as compared with 15 per cent a year ago.

D. A. Medland, employment manager, who sifts the applicants for the work that requires personality, speed, accuracy, and patience, seeks for the school young women who are well balanced emotionally. They must have a capacity to absorb training and go into the field and apply it.

William Gentry, instructor at the school, has a background in passenger service rather than as a pedagogue. His classroom is equipped with the traditional blackboard and desks. Hours are from 9 to 4:30, five days a week, and one-half day on Saturdays. Equipment includes a sample ticket counter and a memo vox for recording the voice and playing it back to its possessor.

Stress Tone of Voice.

The tone of voice is stressed by the teacher as an expression which displays the feeling or attitude of the speaker. It must be capable of having a warmth that is contagious. Enunciation must be watched carefully.

Those who graduate to the United's reservations department at the municipal airport come in contact with patrons thru telephonic conversation only. A second group is trained for ticket offices where the public is met at close range. Members of a third group wear uniforms and work as passenger agents at the terminals.

Handle Telephone Work.

Workers in the reservation department handle all telephone calls requesting space on the many flights leaving Chicago. Their important job is to see that seats are properly assigned and that planes are not oversold, and to answer intelligently calls about schedules and rates. Graduates who go to the traffic offices must know all about ticketing, the code names of cities, the company's history, about other air lines, and the company's policies. They help materially in the big wartime job of moving essential civilian and military travelers.

A career, undreamed of by their mothers and grandmothers before them, has been made available to these hundreds of young women of modern times. Fascination for the work has given those who meet the requirements added dignity and a common bond. "What is the fare to Los Angeles . . . to New York?" "What time can I leave?" "Can you give me a reservation on the 5 o'clock?"

They know all the answers.

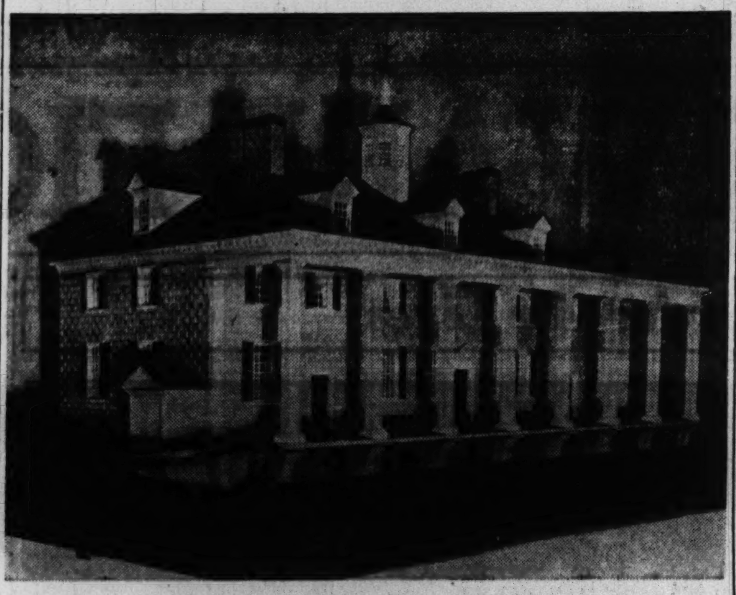
Builds Model of Mount Vernon



This model of Mount Vernon, exclusive of its base, is 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 24 inches in height, from ground level to the tip of the weathervane. Built on a scale of three-eighths of an inch to the foot, the model was made of 23 types of rare woods from six continents. The woods were chosen to simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon. Only features of the model home to be made without wood are the glass windows, the painted curtains of the second floor and the brass weathervane. Jack Zoller of 2220 Barry avenue built the model.

OLD FLOORS LOOK LIKE NEW AFTER SIMPLE REPAIRS

Paint or Oil Finish Will Work Wonders.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our home! It's the best we will have till victory is won, so let's take the best possible care of it, and everything in it!

Did you know that—

You don't have to worry about the age of a hardwood floor? No matter how old it is or what service it has seen the chances are that it can be reconditioned like new.

Recently we saw oak and maple floors in a research house that were more than 50 years old. New boards were used for patching at certain points and yet it was almost impossible to tell where the new boards joined the old flooring that had been well sanded and refinished.

Hints for Softwood Floors.

You can do a lot for old softwood floors, too. Woods like hemlock or fir or pine can be painted or given an oil finish. Or they can be varnished and waxed or treated to varnish stain. Yawning cracks can be filled and sandpapered smooth and these fillers can be touched up with stain or paint to match the floor.

If the softwood floor is in really bad shape and uneven you can cover it with a rigid board 4 inches wide and in lengths of 8 feet, 10 feet, and 12 feet to form a perfectly flush base for new linoleum or new hardwood flooring.

In less than a day you can have a prefinished hardwood floor of Colonial type plug planks permanently cemented into place over your existing floor without fuss or muss or nails. If your old floor is too uneven to make a good base you can use ⅛ inch rigid boards as a base. And these same rigid ⅛ inch rigid boards likewise can be used to cover existing doors and convert them into modern flush panel doors.

Lend Beauty to Home.

Hardwood floors deserve the best possible treatment, for when they are cared for wisely they bring warmth, color, and beauty into a home.

A sanding machine will give you the best results and if possible an expert should be called in to use this machine. It isn't easy to manage it as it is powerful and must be operated properly to produce a smooth finished floor.

Buy only a good floor finish, whether it is varnish, stain, wax, or one of the penetrating floor seals. You want a finish manufactured by a good firm and your dealer will help you in your selection. And the manufacturer of the finish material will have instructions as to application, if you do the work yourself. If you engage an expert floor refinisher he will give you instructions as to the proper care of the floor, once it is reconditioned.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Feb. 22.

If you want a fast growing tree that does not grow too large, plant a Chinese elm. It is drouth resisting, hardy, not too dense, and is suitable for city conditions. But the gardener must remember that trees need plant food to respond in a vigorous manner.

Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Many garden soils in city gardens lack humus or decayed matter, with the result that the soil packs hard after a rain. No gardener should refuse a load of manure, for it is invaluable in building up garden soil.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Feed the lawn in early March to make ample nourishment available from the beginning of growth. Commercial foods will not burn if they are used at that time, and no raking in is necessary.

Order all seeds now to have them on hand for sowing when the proper time arrives. All tender vegetables and flowers should not be planted until all danger from frost has passed, and this is usually after May 20, or even later according to season.

Thursday, Feb. 25.

Many gardeners will grow some flowers in the vegetable garden, but wherever possible vegetable growing must be given first consideration.

By planting annual vines on porches, up the side of the garage, or wherever they can be used to advantage, the effect will be pleasing.

Friday, Feb. 26.

Get rid of the pestiferous dandelion by digging them out of the lawn and using them as greens. When properly prepared, they are delectable.

House plants start into active growth at this season. Water each morning. Turn the plants occasionally so that all their parts will enjoy their share of light. Give plenty of fresh air, but do not allow the plants to suffer from cold drafts.

Saturday, Feb. 27.

Never give the insect pests a chance to become established on house plants. Watch continually for them and begin a program of eradication immediately. Ferns and ivies are likely to be attacked by scales.

Prune grape vines this month. Cut back all branches to about two buds, and give an application of plant food.

BUY NITROGEN-RICH FERTILIZER AT THE FAIR AND USE IT NOW!
Now is the time to apply fertilizer for your successful spring and summer victory gardens. With the proper fertilization done early you'll be sure of the right plant food to produce a bigger yield of good, sound vegetables. New government chemical regulations make it necessary that the greater part of the ntirogen in your garden soil be derived from organic materials. Fortunately organic materials feed the plants more steadily over a longer period of time than do chemical materials.
Remember—if you fertilize now, the plant foods are all ready to work on the day you plant! If you're going to grow a garden—grow a good one—get the best results possible from your work. Order your fertilizer tomorrow from The FAIR and get it spread at once.

MOUNT VERNON MODELED HERE IN RARE WOODS

Washington Life Inspires Northwest Sider.

BY CHARLES CARROLL.

Chicago now has its own Mount Vernon. It was finished last week, the climax of six years of work. Built on a scale of three-eighths inch to the foot, it is, in detail, plan, and sturdiness, every inch the equal of the first Mount Vernon. Made of 30,000 pieces of wood, carved from specimens of rare woods of six continents, the model was based on working blueprints of Washington's home. To complete it, the builder, spent 15,000 hours in his workshop.

It was the dream of Jack Zoller, 2220 Barry street. Ever since he left his home in Germany 15 years ago this month and came to America, he had looked forward to that goal. Inspired by the freedom of America which Washington's courage first made possible, and as detetrmined as the first President that "whatever is done should be well done," he began his model six years ago. And it was the immigrant admirer of Washington who quoted so accurately that bit of philosophy of the father of our country.

Quit Work to Build.

He had earned enough to make it possible for him to devote all his time and energies to his project. In the years since 1937 he returned to his work as a bricklayer for only eight months.

First step in building the model was correspondence with authorities in colonial architecture. He wrote the architect of the capitol in Washington, historians of the Daughters of the American Revolution, officers of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, and the superintendent of the home at Mount Vernon. The superintendent provided plans from which he made his blueprints.

Second step was selection of woods. He chose woods from six continents; went about their purchase in Chicago. He wanted fine and durable woods for his model — woods that would simulate the actual colors of Mount Vernon without the use of modern paints.

Rare African Woods.

From Africa came ebony for the weather vane ball; bubinga for the small steps in the cupola; avodire for the brick of Mount Vernon's walls; vermilion wood for the roof, and benin for the lawn.

The boxwood for the columns, the cornices, the cupola, the banquet hall window, and the rear doors came from the East Indies. So, too, did the padouk for the cupola roofing and the teak for the sidewalk foundation.

From England came sycamore for the basement windows, pearwood for the front and rear steps, and harewood for the sidewalks. The model Mount Vernon's window frames are of American holly; the shutters of Circassian walnut from Russia; Venetian blinds of West Indian satinwood. The molding is of narra wood from the Philippines and the gravel of the drive is of Australian lacewood.

All in all, Chicago's Mount Vernon was made of 23 types of rare wood.

Two Sons in Army.

Zoller and his wife have three children, two sons and one daughter. Jacob, 30, is a private in the army at Fort Custer, Michigan. Herman, 28, is a corporal, stationed at Camp Pickett, Virginia. Their daughter, Mrs. Katharine Meier, lives at 4206 Troy street.

Ward Boundaries of the South Side

Boundaries of wards on the south side, shown here, will be important in two respects Tuesday when city aldermanic elections will be held and registration for point rationing, beginning March 1, will open. Ration registration will continue thru Friday in all public elementary schools of the city. Consumers must register within their own wards, according to the OPA.

SHE: Why, Jim, I had no idea this place was so lovely! Good as a trip to the tropics!
HE: This Hawaiian panorama of palm trees and hula dancers certainly does make you think you're in the land of soft moons and balmy breezes.
SHE: Yes, and the food! I've never tasted anything so delicious. The drinks, too!
HE: That's because Martin's use the best of everything. The finest liquors, the freshest vegetables, cream and eggs, the choicest meats.
SHE: Everything's cooked just right, too! Especially the homemade pies!
HE: Looks like we'll have to come here often. There are other rooms besides the Hawaiian Room — the Colonial Room and the Ruby Room. They're all swell for luncheons and dinners. Midnight snacks, too. And the dining rooms are open all night.

4 ARTS LEAGUE PLANS BENEFIT FOR USO BAND

Pick South Side Cast After Contests.

The Greater South Side Four Arts league will sponsor a fashion show and musical at 2 o'clock Wednesday in the crystal ballroom of the Del Prado hotel. Proceeds from the event will go to the band fund of the Midway U. S. O.

"South American Revue" will be presented by Miss Emma Rund, program chairman of the league. Members of the cast were selected in recent juvenile contests sponsored by the league. Cast members are: Charlotte Ross, model; Joanne Lewis, singer; Paula Wasserman, dramatics; Jack Sutherland, singer; and Judith Pientke, dancer.

Other Winners Take Part.

Other winners in the contests in the older juvenile groups, who will participate in the show, include: Rita Mae Domini, model; Lois Giffney, singer; Lois Witkewiz, accordionist; Veda Mae Zimmerman, dancer; Jonella and Peter Kidwell, brother and sister models; Patsy Mysker and Robert Koteles, dance team.

These youngsters will be featured in a "Yankee Doodle Revue," directed by Miss Rund. Highlight of the revue will be a patriotic number, giving representation to the various branches of civilian war work, which will be led by Ensign Mary L. Kennedy, a SPAR, and enlisted men from other branches of the military services.

Models who will participate in the show include: Pat Longfield, Mildred Wesselmeyer, Roberta Nigg, Eleanor Kazer, Florence Tyler, Marian Linn, Mary Korn, Helen Harwood, Mildred Wagenman, Dolly Kraus, Bobby Weil, Lois Vise, and Anita Bee Hyman.

Musical Contest Winners.

Other musicians who will appear on the program include: Shirley Simmons, dramatic soprano, a finalist in a contest held recently by the league; and Roland Setnam, violinist, who was a winner in the instrumentalist division of the contest. Mildred Wagenman, soprano, who has been featured in the league's music festival for the last two years, will sing the national anthem. She also will appear in the Fay Epperson whistling ensemble with Gladys Crowl.

Mrs. Ida Headley, chairman of the Midway U. S. O. band fund committee, heads the ticket committee. Members of the arrangements committee are: Mrs. James Kidwell, Mrs. Jerry Turivas, Mrs. Glenn Mitzner, Mrs. Vernon Dawes, Mrs. Hazel Mann, and Mrs. Harry Ross. CHATHAM, GRAND CROSSING GROUPS STUDY GARDENING

OCD Officials Stress 1943 Importance.

Would-be farmers and farmerets have been invited to the first of a series of meetings explaining the intricacies of gardening for the Grand Crossing and Chatham communities at 8 o'clock Tuesday in the Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 77th street and Ingleside avenue. Gardening this year assumes greater importance in the face of impending point rationing of many foods.

Aim of this meeting will be the distribution of information which will lead to the harvesting of vegetables from four or six weeks earlier than usual. Methods covered will include indoor and hotbed planting while snow is still on the ground and transplanting outside in mid-May. The lecture will be illustrated with 21 color slides recently completed by the horticultural staff of the park district in coöperation with the war garden department of civilian defense.

Question, Answer Period.

The series of garden talks has been arranged by Bernard Thompson, war garden chairman for the Grand Crossing ODC; Orville Dailey, Chatham war garden chairman, and Ernest L. Rea, supervisor of Grand Crossing park. Following the initial lecture there will be a question and answer period on all aspects of the war garden movement, conducted by Ernest Gries, war garden chairman for ODC division 2.

A booklet, "How to Grow a Victory Garden," will be given to each person who attends this and subsequent meetings. The second meeting in the series will be March 4.

Women's Gym Classes.

Tuley park supervisor, John H. Morris, reported that members were enrolled in women's gymnasium classes at the park's fieldhouse, 90th street and Eberhart avenue. A class for senior women is being held at 7:30 o'clock on Mondays, while a class for married women is held on Thursdays at the same hour.

In addition there are two classes in tap dancing, one for married women at 7 o'clock on Thursdays and another which meets at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday.

NEW SCRAP DRIVE ENDS; PARKER, TILDEN PILES BIG

Other Schools Turning In Bronze, Brass, Copper.

Harper High school students, winners of the 1942 city-wide scrap collection contest with a per-pupil average of 157 pounds, expect to retain the title in the copper-brass-bronze salvage drive which ended yesterday among city schools.

The new campaign, including all public elementary and high schools, was sponsored jointly by the board of education and the war production board. If the drive turns out a success here it will be extended to other cities.

Collect 1,000 Pounds.

Approximately one thousand pounds had been brought in by Harper students at the half way mark of the drive. Included were an old fashioned brass bedstead, an antique brass umbrella rack, and a modern but worn out electric motor. Huskies of the school's football team volunteered to carry heavy pieces to the school from homes and stores nearby.

Miss Jean Navarro, 6448 South Rockwell street, was leading the school at the half way mark, with 46 pounds. Jack Schmidt, 6513 South Wolcott avenue, and Jerome Zuro, 6556 South Wolcott avenue, were tied for second place with 42 pounds each.

Civic Groups Push Drive.

The last five days of the campaign at Harper were sponsored by five local organizations. A special assembly for all students will be held March 2, according to Butler Laughlin, principal of Harper, when prizes of war bonds and stamps will be awarded student winners by the following:

Frank Hildon, president of the Lions club; Henry Kloese, president of the Kiwanis club; Arthur Moldenhauer, past commander of the Three-Links American Legion post; Frank McGarr, commander of the Ogden Hill OCD office, and Mrs. O. F. Courtney, president of the Harper PTA.

Tilden Scrap Still Coming.

Tilden Technical High school's salvage chairman, Arthur Woerner, reported that approximately 1,000 pounds of bronze, brass, and copper had been collected. However, boys at Tilden are still bringing in an average of a ton of scrap iron and steel every week.

Mrs. Mary R. Prendergast, Kelly High school's salvage coördinator, revealed that interclass competition was used to increase the school's "scrapping spirit." Last year Kelly was first in the state on a total pound basis, with 311,315 pounds of iron and steel collected. Walter Eggert, "scrap king" of Kelly who headed the transportation committee which rounded up more than 20 tons, graduated last month and is now in the army.

Virginia Poznack Leads.

Virginia Poznack, 4103 South Richmond street, a senior, led the students at the half way mark with 100 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze, taken from a piano.

Fenger High school's scrap collection chairman, Kenneth Dean, organized a dance on the final day of the campaign, admission to which was by articles of copper, brass, or bronze.

Lindblom's 4,000 students had gathered more than 2,200 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze by Wednesday, according to Principal Harry F. Yates. Calvin McCain, 4836 Wentworth avenue, a senior, led the school at the half way mark with 127 pounds. Verne Kuick, 3317 West 62d place, was runner up with 117 pounds, and Keith Rasmussen was leading the Hubbard branch students with 87 pounds. Shirley Legant, 5542 South Winchester avenue, led the freshmen with 35 pounds.

Prizes at Lindblom.

Pupils of the Dewey elementary school, which placed 14th last year among the city's 375 schools, had accumulated 218 pounds of copper, brass, and bronze up to last Tuesday, according to a count kept by Miss Mae Murtaugh, chairman of the school's salvage drive. As in other elementary schools, children from kindergarten thru the 8th grade participated.

Roll of Copper Wire.

Dolores Schmutz, 748 West 52d street, who brought a roll of copper wire weighing 4½ pounds, and Ronald Sobie, 5319 South Union avenue, with an old floor lamp, were among the first contributors. Mrs. Kathryn Ranquist, now acting principal at Dewey, was chairman of the school's campaign last year.

The Fulton elementary school was leading the grammar schools with 500 pounds collected by Wednesday. One of the largest items was an antique brass bridal bed donated by Mrs. George Harka, 2061 West 52d street, a member of the Fulton PTA. Her son, George Jr., 19 years old, who graduated from Fulton, is now a naval air cadet.

Ridge United Charities Group to Hear Workers

The Ridge advisory council of the United Charities, Inc., has asked case workers of the organization to describe problems involving illegitimacy and child adoption procedure at a meeting at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the home of Miss Alice Howe, 10233 Wood street. Other community organizations in the area have been invited.

Air Cadet's Bride

MRS. ALLAN GULLBORG.
[De Haven Photo.]

Miss Ruth Anne McElhaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. McElhaney of 1517 East 71st place, recently was married at Montgomery, Ala., to Air Cadet Allan P. W. Gullborg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gullborg of 2402 Eastwood avenue. The bride is a former student at the University of Illinois and the bridegroom attended Armour institute and Georgia Institute of Technology.

STAFF IS NAMED FOR SOUTH SHORE SCHOOL PAPER

Inger Olson has been named the editor-in-chief of the Shore Line, school paper of South Shore High school. Announcement of her appointment was made at the annual staff banquet at the South Shore country club. Other members of the staff are: Carol Crumpacker, makeup editor; Dana Olsen, Ellen Bransky, Georgeanne Spring, assistants; Phyllis Brewer, news editor; Dorothy Meyers, girls sports editor; June Arnold, copy editor; Betty Keating, Judy Kugelman, assistants; Alan Grant, proof editor; Marvin Adler, Dick McLaughlin, assistants; Bob Price, photography; Helen Withrow, publicity editor; Jeanne Grant, art editor; Gwen Slovenko, exchange editor; and Barbara Sward, columnist. Anna Mae Alb was named business manager.

10 SOUTH SIDERS END U. OF C.-NAVY GROUND SCHOOL

Prepared for Assignment to Naval Bases.

Forty-six prospective navy combat pilots—all but three Chicago residents—have completed their ground school and elementary flight training at the University of Chicago, according to C. O. Houle, secretary of the university's department of education. Ten of the students live on the south side.

Training, given under the auspices of the civil aeronautics administration, began Nov. 11. Ground school work was given at the university and flying instruction at the university's Lansing airport. This course was the third offered by the university.

Reassigned to Navy.

No formal graduation exercises were held. As soon as they completed their final flying examinations they were reassigned to naval bases for secondary instruction.

South side residents who completed instruction are: Julius Barish Jr., of 601 East 91st place; Robert Cahill, 2714 East 78th street; Alexander Ciolek, 7950 Exchange avenue; William Creswell, 8843 Dante avenue; Francis Cronin, 7936 Clyde avenue; Joseph DeHaven, 1451 East 116th street; Joseph Madl Jr., 837 East 47th street; George Schnackenberg, 6936 Euclid avenue; Warren Stevens Jr., 13243 Exchange avenue, and Walter Von Sydow, 6805 South Chicago avenue.

FINISH SIGNAL COURSE

Forty-eight Chicagoans are among the 111 students who will be graduated from the University of Chicago's course in advanced radio, electronics, and micro-waves at a dinner at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Quadrangle club. The course was given for the army signal corps. Twenty-four of the Chicago graduates live on the south side.

Dr. George C. Southworth, research engineer for the Bell Telephone laboratories and a pioneer in the field of high frequency radio, will speak at the graduation exercises. The graduating students constitute the third such class to be graduated in the university's program, which is being increased so that 160 will complete training every 10 weeks.

Graduates will either enter service in the signal corps, some in officers training schools, or will enter the employ of the signal corps as civilians. South side graduates are: Charles Butler, 5226 Dorchester avenue; Lester Fink, 8540 Bennett avenue; Glendell Gilman, 1052 East 52d street; Leonard Nierman, 1401 Hyde Park boulevard; William Adams, 4737 Drexel avenue; James Cleary, 4756 Lake Park avenue; Harry Hartzmann, 1524 East 62d street; Raymond Perlman, 1102 East 53d street; Albert Busch, 5437 Kimbark avenue; Jewell Ebers, 5130 Kenwood avenue; Irving Given, 1745 East 71st street; Leonard Gough, 5130 Dorchester avenue; Stanley Leonard, 1234 Hyde Park boulevard; Seymour Myerson, 1715 East Marquette road; F. Otis O'Neil, 536 East 34th street; Henry Simons, 1111 East 61st street; Wilfred Stock, Calumet City; Bernard Weissbourd, 823 East 49th street; Donald Connor, 6035 Dorchester avenue; Bernard Dimsdale, 5514 Blackstone avenue; Harold Friedman, 7835 Phillips avenue; Paul Gutt, 5342 Ellis avenue; Raymond Norton, 1170 East 54th street, and William O'Brien, 1416 E. 72d place.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH PLANS HOMECOMING FETE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Rev. T. J. Hayes.

A homecoming party for former parishioners of historic old St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, will be given Saturday night in the Morrison hotel. Mayor Kelly and other prominent guests will attend, the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor, announced.

The radio team, Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh, will headline the entertainment. There also will be an orchestra for dancing and tables for cards. The party is being sponsored by the Order of Seville, Knights of Columbus, of St. Patrick's council, Altar and Rosary society and Irish organizations.

The committee assisting Father Hayes includes Charles Conroy, newly elected grand seignuer of the Order of Seville; J. C. Rogers, past grand seignuer; Clarence A. Leary of Knights of Columbus; Mrs. Rose Owens, and Mrs. W. P. Reynolds of the Altar and Rosary society; John P. Butler and Parsek Erkiletian of Lake lodge, Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; Michael Burns of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Maurice Cotter and Paul M. Sheridan of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Thomas Gibbons, leader in Irish organizations.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 5th WARD REGARDLESS OF PARTY

At the insistence of civic, business and professional leaders BERTRAM B. MOSS, candidate for Alderman of the 5th Ward, received the UNSOLICITED endorsement of the Democratic organization.

When PAT NASH and his machine found that MOSS would not be their rubber stamp against the interests of the people of the ward, they DUMPED him, as they did GOV. HORNER and Judge JARECKI. Now they propose to PLAGUE YOU WITH LINDHEIMERISM and MOSS IS OUT TO STOP THEM!

With Your Support—
BERTRAM B. MOSS
Will Be Elected Alderman on Feb. 23

COMMUNITY LEADERS PRAISE MOSS

I recommend Mr. Bertram B. Moss for alderman of the fifth ward for I believe him to be a man who will be a credit to this community.
Rev. E. R. Hellyer,
Hyde Park Bible Church

I believe that there is no man in the fifth ward better qualified than Bertram B. Moss to represent it as Alderman. His character and public spirit should result in his election.
M. Sherman, Ph.D.,
Professor, University of Chicago

As a Hyde Park merchant I have known Mr. Bertram B. Moss for many years as an active and capable worker in civic and communal affairs. I have a high regard for his integrity and have no hesitancy in recommending him for the office of alderman.
R. S. Thomas,
Merchant, Hyde Park

I am very happy indeed to give my whole-hearted endorsement of Bertram B. Moss for public office. I am intimately acquainted with his background, training and experience, all of which fit him admirably for service as alderman. He possesses a high sense of responsibility for the well-being of our community. He has an unshakable faith in democratic processes, and I can attest, personally, to his active interest in helping to enable all sections of our population to enjoy the benefits of the American way of life. Equipped as he is with a capacity for sound judgment, with a gift for genuine leadership, and with a zeal for social justice, I am confident that Bertram B. Moss will make a truly consecrated public servant, whose contribution to the community will strengthen America and its democratic foundations in war and in peace.
Morton M. Berman,
Rabbi, Temple Isaiah Israel

The Better Government Association Says: "MOSS IS APPROVED"

BERTRAM B. MOSS
FOR ALDERMAN
OF THE FIFTH WARD

Moss has been a resident of the Hyde Park-Woodlawn community for more than twenty years. He is a member of the Chicago Bar Association and for many years was an associate of the Hon. John F. Haas, now Judge of the Superior Court.

He attended Chicago Public Schools and received his academic and legal training at the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois and Chicago Kent College of Law. Prior to his legal career Moss had a well-rounded business background.

Since its inception Moss has served the Office of Civilian Defense as block captain. He lives with his wife and daughter at 5436 South Harper Avenue and is 38 years old.

BERTRAM B. MOSS understands the needs of the 5th Ward and his training and experience qualify him to serve the people of the Ward efficiently and effectively.

MOSS' PLATFORM

1. One hundred cents of public service for every tax dollar spent by the city government.
2. Adequate transportation facilities for the masses of people who are happy to cooperate with gas-rationing but demand efficient street car, elevated, and bus service to and from their jobs at reasonable fares.
3. Better housing condition in the 5th Ward through the cooperation of all elements in the community and all agencies of the government.
4. The establishment of Community Day Nurseries for children whose parents are engaged in war work.
5. A more comprehensive approach to the child delinquency problem which always becomes more acute in wartime—by setting up community recreation centers in the ward.
6. The elimination of hazards to safety—repaving of dangerous streets, improvement of "blind corners," elimination of speedway streets and a modernized safety control system.
7. More adequate policing of the ward—equality in the distribution of the police force in all districts.
8. Full employment of all races and creeds in municipally owned, operated, or franchise agencies.
9. Improvement of the garbage system for all families in the ward.
10. Periodic meetings of all 5th Ward citizens in the old-style "town hall" fashion. This is true democracy in action!

Underlying and overall this 10 point program is Moss' dedication to the cause of Winning the War and Winning the Peace.

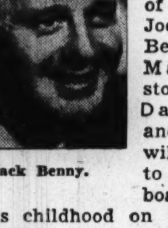
BENNY TO BATTLE LITTLE JOE, QUIZ KID BALL OF FIRE

Comedian and Bright Boy to Exchange Visits.

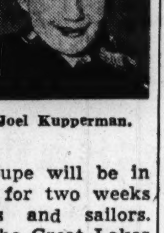
When Jack Benny broadcasts from Chicago today for the first time in many years he will be confronted by an extra heckler, the 6 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman. Benny's regulars, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Rochester, and Don Wilson will be on hand to explode the boastful stories of his childhood on the shores of Lake Michigan he is bound to recite for soldiers of the army's air forces technical training command who will be his guests at the Eighth Street theater.



Jack Benny.

Shortly after 6 p. m. on WMAQ-NBC Benny will face Joel, mighty mite of the mike, with his toothless smile, lisp, and a mind that works like an ack-ack gun. Joel has been clocking about as many laughs lately on the Quiz Kids' show as writers Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin have been giving Benny each week. Tonight listeners will get a double dose not only on the Benny show—but on the Quiz Kids' session on WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m.

For as soon as Joel has pulled a few "secret" mathematical tricks on Benny he will race over to the Merchandise Mart for his own show. Jack will follow at 6:29½ and expects to be on hand for the last half of the Quiz Kids' show. As "judge" of the quiz Benny may have an opportunity to get back at little Joel.



Joel Kupperman.

Benny and his troupe will be in and around Chicago for two weeks entertaining soldiers and sailors. They plan to go to the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow evening; Fort Sheridan a night or two later, and also to Camp Custer in Michigan.

Benny, who grew up in Waukegan, is looking forward to his visit to Great Lakes. There, just 25 years ago, he received his naval training and while stationed there got his start as a funny man. Prior to the war he had toured theater circuits as a violinist.

Benny volunteered his talents as a violinist to the revue. Dave Wolff, now a Chicago advertising man, wrote and produced the show. He discovered Benny's latent talent for humor. Today Jack calls him his first gag man. After the war Benny toured vaudeville circuits with Ned Miller, Chicago composer, as partner.

Benny never abandoned the violin altogether and that ultimately paid a dividend. After a wait of 25 years he was invited recently to play at a benefit concert in Carnegie hall.

"You've heard what they've been saying on the radio almost continuously ever since" he remarked. "'The best tunes of all come from Carnegie hall.'"

Brahms' Second Symphony Feature of Philharmonic

Brahms' Second Symphony in D major will be played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra at 2 o'clock this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. The balance of the program will consist of the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Mozart's Symphony in G minor, No. 40 [K. 550].

Stravinsky's C Symphony Scheduled by Stokowski

Leopold Stokowski and the NBC Symphony orchestra will feature Igor Stravinsky's Symphony in C at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Other selections to be played will be Debussy's "Night in Granada" and Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe."

Miss Stevens will sing "The Song Is You" and "I'll Follow My Secret Heart." Mr. Spalding, violinist, will play "Meditation" from "Thaïs."

Quaal to Norfolk.

Ensign Ward Quaal, former announcer for W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System, has been assigned to the naval training station at Norfolk, Virginia, as an instructor and communications officer.

IN WARTIME; AMERICA NEEDS TRIM, ENERGETIC WOMEN!
Don't Be Fat!
Reduce this proved way that requires no strict diet lists—
No exercises—
No harmful drugs
Lovely Radio Star, Irene Rich, 2nd Lieutenant in Women's Ambulance & Defense Corps of America, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 18. She recommends the easy Welch Way to reduce.
READ AMAZING FACTS:
Today, thousands of patriotic American women are discovering a remarkably effective way to lose ugly, sluggish fat! To thus have that trim, "active look" and alert, peppy feeling so important today! It's easy! Merely mix ¾ glass* Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* water—drink before meals and at bedtime. Then what amazing action follows! First: You have less desire to eat sweet, fattening foods—thus cutting down caloric intake. Second: Natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime actually helps Nature consume excess fat! Builds quick-energy, too! Thus you look better—feel better! Have more of the pep you need in wartime! Start reducing the Welch Way today! *4-oz. glass

CHILD AID GROUP SIGNS 39 SOUTH SIDE VOLUNTEERS

Miss Spiker Has Charge of Training Class.

Thirty-nine south side residents answered a recent call for volunteer aids issued by the child care committee of the office of civilian defense, the Chicago recreation commission, and the Council of Social Agencies, according to Mrs. W. J. Loarie, recruiting chairman.

Dorothy Spiker.

Miss Dorothy Spiker, director of recreation at the Institute for Juvenile Research, 907 South Wolcott street, heads the training course committee. Registration in the course is closed, but persons with special talents may offier their services at the volunteer office, 111 West Jackson boulevard.

Three Men on List.

All but 3 of the 39 south side volunteers are women. The three men, who have had experience coaching amateur athletics, will be assigned to centers where athletic coaches are needed, and, in addition, they will aid in recruiting another 100 men, the number set by the directors as needed for coaching, directing woodcraft, game rooms, and club leaders.

The three men are Fred Downer, 444 East 47th street; Ray Epstein, 5218 Woodlawn avenue; and Harold Fisher, 8003 Carpenter avenue.

The course is being offered Tuesday and Friday evenings at 111 West Jackson boulevard, and will continue for a month. Trainees will be assigned to recreation centers where they will work under the direction of professional recreation leaders.

VOTE TUESDAY ON CITY'S ALDERMEN

NAME SCHOOLS TO ISSUE NO. 2 RATION BOOKS

Teachers Start Big Task Tuesday.

Lists of elementary schools by wards were announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, to guide Chicago residents in registering for point rationing, beginning Tuesday and continuing thru Friday. Registration hours will be 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Registrations will be taken in 333 elementary buildings, with 9,000 elementary teachers, 6,500 teachers and advanced students in the city's junior and teachers' colleges and thousands of volunteers to do the work.

Expect 3½ Million.

Three and a half million Chicagoans are expected to be registered in preparation for canned goods rationing, to begin March 1.

High school classes will not be affected, but elementary schools, junior and teacher colleges will be dismissed during the registration.

Registration will be in alphabetical order, Mulcahy announced, according to the following schedule:

A thru B—Tuesday morning.
C thru E—Tuesday afternoon.
F thru H—Wednesday morning.
I thru L—Wednesday afternoon.
M thru N—Thursday morning.
O thru R—Thursday afternoon.
S—Friday morning.
T thru Z—Friday afternoon.

Consumers are urged to follow the schedule except where pressing circumstances prevent it, Mulcahy said.

Each registrant should go to the school in his ward nearest his home, Mulcahy said. He emphasized that no registrant should cross a ward boundark to register, even if a school in a neighboring ward should be closer than the nearest school in his ward. This regulation is necessary to keep ration records straight, he said.

The housewife or any other adult in a family may register for the entire household, Mulcahy reiterated, and he reminded that the registrant should have with him ration book No. 1 [sugar book] for each member of the family, and a completely answered consumer declaration form, which will state the family's stock of canned goods and coffee. Registrars will remove stamps for items declared in excess of five cans per person.

Schools on West Side.

Schools in wards lying wholly or partly in the west side metropolitan area are as follows:

20th—Dante, 840 South Des Plaines; Foster, 720 O'Brien; Gladstone, 1231 South Damen; Goodrich, 915 Taylor; Jackson, 820 South Carpenter; Jefferson, 1522 Fillmore; Medill, 1326 West 14th place; Riis, 1111 South Throop; Smyth, 1059 West 13th.

PAN-HELLENIC GROUP GIVES STYLE SHOW IN OAK PARK SATURDAY

Miss Dorothy Schwartz.
[Toloff Photo.]

The 19th annual spring benefit bridge party and style show of the Oak Park-River Forest Pan-Hellenic association will be given at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Oak Park club, Oak Park avenue and Ontario street. Miss Dorothy Schwartz is general chairman. Mannequins for the style show will be Pan-Hellenic members who will model dresses and suits furnished by local merchants. Proceeds of the party provide scholarships for senior girls of Oak Park-River Forest Township High school.

Girls Do a Great Job Helping Air Lines Move Travelers in War Time

Helping in the war time job of moving essential civilian and military travelers, Miss Mary Dee Kissoch, 1538 West Midway Park, is a traffic saleswoman in the Chicago office of United Air Lines, 23 East Monroe street. Miss Kissoch was born in Toronto, Canada, and is a graduate of Oak Park High school, '34. She has been active in dramatics.

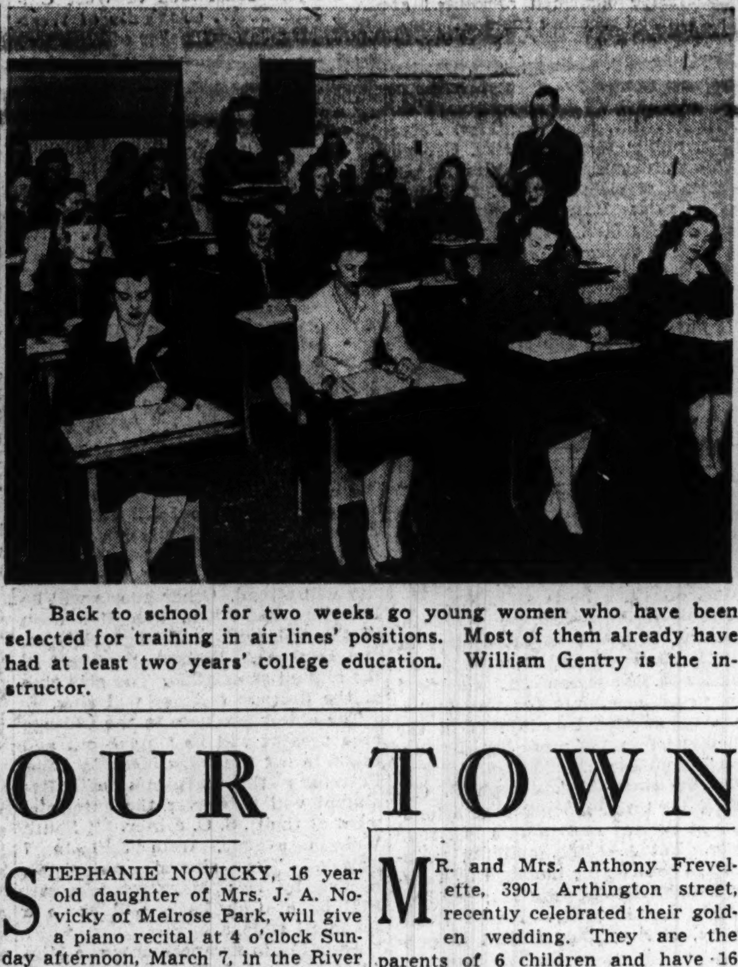
Mrs. Genevieve Robison checks a passenger's baggage. She formerly resided in Oak Park and graduated from Morton High school in 1928. Before becoming a passenger agent, Miss Robison was a specialist in child psychology.

Working in the reservations department at the municipal airport, left to right, are Miss Betty Tuskey, 313 South Lincoln street, Hinsdale, and Miss Elaine Doherty, 101 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park. Miss Tuskey, a graduate of Hinsdale High school, '38, is a former kindergarten teacher. Miss Doherty, a graduate of York High school, Elmhurst, '36, has been with the United for two years.



Back to school for two weeks go young women who have been selected for training in air lines' positions. Most of them already have had at least two years' college education. William Gentry is the instructor.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Robert C. Robinson, 20 year old son of Mrs. Frances Robinson, 340 North Pine avenue, has left for training at the army air corps school near Nashville, Tenn. He was graduated an honor student from Austin High school in 1940 with the rank of captain in the school's R.O.T.C. unit. Since then he has studied mechanical and Diesel engineering at Bradley Tech, Peoria, and at Northwestern Technological institute. He had 40 hours of civilian pilot training at Sky Harbor airport before entering the army.

Robert C. Robinson.

Pvt. Edward Polak of 1422 West Augusta boulevard recently was home on a furlough. He is attached to the field artillery at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Sergt. Andrew Frontera has received his chevrons and silver wings from aerial gunnery school at Laredo, Tex. He has been ordered to remain there 10 months as an instructor. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frontera, 3543 West Lexington Street.

Sergt. Frontera.

Two west side men, Pvt. Edward J. Stefaniak and Pvt. Charles A. Martino, have been promoted to corporals at Camp Polk, Louisiana. Stefaniak is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stefaniak of Cicero and Martino's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Martino, 1921 Taylor street.

John A. Rzepka who formerly lived at 1217 Augusta boulevard is now a corporal at Coffeyville, Kas. He is a mail clerk at an army air field.

Friends of Pvt. Anton F. Matulewicz of Cicero have received word he was wounded in action. He enlisted in the marine corps in October, 1941, when he was 17 years old.

Anton Matulewicz.

CONCEDE EDGE TO DEMOCRATS IN WEST WARDS

Battles Centered in 20th and 36th.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Eight of the nine incumbents on the almost solidly Democratic west side will be returned to office in the election Tuesday, observers predicted last week as aldermanic campaigns neared their climax. Democratic candidates also are expected to win in two of the other three west side wards where vacancies exist.

Republicans are concentrating on capturing or forcing a runoff for the vacant seat in the 20th ward and obtaining a runoff in the 36th ward, where the Democratic vote may be divided by an intraparty feud. Because of the heavier G. O. P. vote which usually turns out for the mayoral election, Republicans are confident of making good showings in runoffs, which will coincide with the mayoral election on April 6 in all wards where no candidate polls a majority of the vote cast Tuesday.

Get Party Backing.

As in the past, regular party organizations are exerting efforts on behalf of selected candidates in most of the wards, tho the aldermanic election is technically nonpartisan and political labels do not appear on the ballot.

Ald. Richard M. Walsh [36th] is regarded as the incumbent least likely to succeed in keeping his job Tuesday. Two factions are working strenuously for his political downfall. One is the regular Republican ward organization, which is sponsoring Herman [Max] Richter, a factory superintendent and former Schurz High school football star.

The other faction is led by George W. Robinson, alderman from 1931 to 1939, who was barely overtaken by Walsh in a rousing runoff battle four years ago. In the meantime Robinson has been purged by the Kelly-Nash machine as ward committeeman but he is said to have a large following which is indignant over the arbitrary ousting. A fourth candidate is Zeb Zarnecki, Polish radio announcer and independent. Ald. Walsh and Richter are expected to wind up in a runoff.

Wide Open Race in 20th.

The 20th ward race for the seat left vacant when Ald. William V. Pacelli died last fall is apparently wide open. Anthony Pistilli, veteran precinct captain who is backed by the regular Democratic ward organization recently built up by Peter Fosco, committeeman and county commissioner, has the inside track, according to west side pundits.

A runoff probably will be necessary between Pistilli and Anthony Mordente, who has been indorsed by the G. O. P. ward organization controled by Ald. Pacelli for many years. There are three other candidates—Miss Florence Tye Jennison, a contender for the Democratic nomination to congress in the 8th district in 1938; Frank A. Sloan, former alderman in the old 26th ward, and Joseph R. Salerno, an undertaker.

The two man fight for the vacancy left when Ald. Francis E. Callahan [37th] joined the marine corps recently is between William J. Lancaster, regular Democratic choice, and Francis X. Connell, regular Republican nominee. Tho Connell, an attorney, has been delivering a blistering attack on the city hall organization, Lancaster, assistant corporation counsel and former assistant state's attorney, seems to have the support necessary to win the seat.

Janousek Given Edge.

The vacancy in the 22d ward probably will be won Tuesday by Otto Janousek, an auditor for the city fire department, because of the ward's overwhelmingly Democratic setup. Janousek is the choice of Henry J. Sonnenschein, who vacated the 22d ward seat last fall to become Superior court clerk and is now committeeman. The other candidates are Anthony Benkowski, indorsed by the regular Republican ward organization; Charles Miska, a minor candidate in the 1935 and 1939 elections, and Frank Novak, a factory inspector.

Three of the incumbent aldermen on the west side are unopposed for reelection. They are Fred Fischman [24th], George D. Kells [28th], and Edward J. Upton [30th].

A "who's who" of the candidates in the other west side wards follows:

Twenty-first—Ald. Joseph F. Ropa, 2d term, 86 per cent attendance at council meetings in last four years; regular Democratic indorsement. Frank Brozak, cigar manufacturer and former storekeeper at the government quartermaster depot in Chicago; candidate in 1933; Republican. Laddie J. Zelenka, industrial appraiser and formerry in county treasurer's office; Free Democratic indorsement.

Twenty-third—Ald. Joseph Kacena Jr., 2d term, 99 per cent attendance at council meetings in last four years. William H. Hogg, insurance broker; indorsed by regular Republicans and by 23d ward independent Democrats. William Rott, contractor; Republican precinct captain for 20 years.

Twenty-fifth—Ald. James B. Bowler, president pro tem of city council and

AIR LINE TRAINS WOMEN TO FILL WAR BLED STAFF

School Opens New Career for Personable Girls.

Handling reservation calls, selling tickets, and helping clear traffic at the terminals, women are proving their value in air transportation. Key positions in the flying and dispatching of planes are retained by the men, but the fair sex are finding opportunities in a new career as they step into the places of men who have gone to war or taken more important posts with the air lines.

To meet the demand for trained workers in a field where few women possess previous experience, United Air Lines started a school last fall at its Chicago headquarters. Fifty students are graduated every two weeks to fill vacancies of men now on leaves of absence in the 36 cities where the transport corporation operates.

Service Training Desired.

Applicants, preferably between the ages of 22 and 30, must first pass the personality test. A high school diploma and some college training is required, and previous experience including duties in a service capacity are desired.

Recently, the school reached its first objective, set last fall, of 300 trained women gathered here from coast to coast. Chicago neighborhoods are well represented in the list of those now active on the "front line" where they come in contact with the public. The school continues to hum with its courses in reservation and passenger handling procedures.

Women on duty say they are fascinated with their new jobs. Among them are women who formerly taught school, studied art, trained for the stage, modeled, or were receptionists. They feel themselves a part of the glamour connected with travel. In the beginning, they may not have known the difference between a stabilizer or an aileron but the something called "charm" which was innate, together with schooling, has enabled them to transfer their enthusiasms to details of air transportation.

Find Numerous Jobs.

Once, the only part played in the air line business by women was that of stewardess, secretary, or stenographer. Now they are demonstrating that there are numerous places where they can be equally adept as men in handling important tasks. Back in 1930, but eight young women were employed on the United Air Lines coast to coast route. Today, the corporation estimates that approximately 30 per cent of its 6,500 employés are women as compared with 15 per cent a year ago.

D. A. Medland, employment manager, who sifts the applicants for the work that requires personality, speed, accuracy, and patience, seeks for the school young women who are well balanced emotionally. They must have a capacity to absorb training and go into the field and apply it.

William Gentry, instructor at the school, has a background in passenger service rather than as a pedagogue. His classroom is equipped with the traditional blackboard and desks. Hours are from 9 to 4:30, five days a week, and one-half day on Saturdays. Equipment includes a sample ticket counter and a memo vox for recording the voice and playing it back to its possessor.

Stress Tone of Voice.

The tone of voice is stressed by the teacher as an expression which displays the feeling or attitude of the speaker. It must be capable of having a warmth that is contagious. Enunciation must be watched carefully.

Those who graduate to the United's reservations department at the municipal airport come in contact with patrons thru telephonic conversation only. A second group is trained for ticket offices where the public is met at close range. Members of a third group wear uniforms and work as passenger agents at the terminals.

Handle Telephone Work.

Workers in the reservation department handle all telephone calls requesting space on the many flights leaving Chicago. Their important job is to see that seats are properly assigned and that planes are not oversold, and to answer intelligently calls about schedules and rates. Graduates who go to the traffic offices must know all about ticketing, the code names of cities, the company's history, about other air lines, and the company's policies. They help materially in the big wartime job of moving essential civilian and military travelers.

A career, undreamed of by their mothers and grandmothers before them, has been made available to these hundreds of young women of modern times. Fascination for the work has given those who meet the requirements added dignity and a common bond. "What is the fare to Los Angeles . . . to New York?" "What time can I leave?" "Can you give me a reservation on the 5 o'clock?"

They know all the answers.

OLD FLOORS LOOK LIKE NEW AFTER SIMPLE REPAIRS

Paint or Oil Finish Will Work Wonders.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our home! It's the best we will have till victory is won, so let's take the best possible care of it, and everything in it!

Did you know that—

You don't have to worry about the age of a hardwood floor? No matter how old it is or what service it has seen the chances are that it can be reconditioned like new.

Recently we saw oak and maple floors in a research house that were more than 50 years old. New boards were used for patching at certain points and yet it was almost impossible to tell where the new boards joined the old flooring that had been well sanded and refinished.

Hints for Softwood Floors.

You can do a lot for old softwood floors, too. Woods like hemlock or fir or pine can be painted or given an oil finish. Or they can be varnished and waxed or treated to varnish stain. Yawning cracks can be filled and sandpapered smooth and these fillers can be touched up with stain or paint to match the floor.

If the softwood floor is in really bad shape and uneven you can cover it with a rigid board 4 inches wide and in lengths of 8 feet, 10 feet, and 12 feet to form a perfectly flush base for new linoleum or new hardwood flooring.

In less than a day you can have a prefinished hardwood floor of Colonial type plug planks permanently cemented into place over your existing floor without fuss or muss or nails. If your old floor is too uneven to make a good base you can use ⅛ inch rigid boards as a base. And these same rigid ⅛ inch rigid boards likewise can be used to cover existing doors and convert them into modern flush panel doors.

Lend Beauty to Home.

Hardwood floors deserve the best possible treatment, for when they are cared for wisely they bring warmth, color, and beauty into a home.

In any refinishing work only good prepared removers which you can get at hardware, paint, and material supply stores should be used. Directions should be closely followed.

A sanding machine will give you the best results and if possible an expert should be called in to use this machine. It isn't easy to manage it as it is powerful and must be operated properly to produce a smooth finished floor.

Buy only a good floor finish, whether it is varnish, stain, wax, or one of the penetrating floor seals. You want a finish manufactured by a good firm and your dealer will help you in your selection. And the manufacturer of the finish material will have instructions as to application, if you do the work yourself. If you engage an expert floor refinisher he will give you instructions as to the proper care of the floor, once it is reconditioned.

If a hardwood floor is soiled and a bit scuffed it probably can be put in good shape by thoro washing with soap and water, quick drying, and then revarnishing. If the varnish has worn thru and the wood underneath become soiled, the floor should be sandpapered after washing and drying and two coats of varnish applied.

'Commando' Training Gives School Gym War Aspect

To make the boys of East High school, Aurora, better fitted for their tasks in winning the war, work in the gym has been divided into two parts, one for Commandos, the other for Rangers. The program has been devised by Joe Maze, physical education director. The rank of Commando is the more difficult to achieve and is sought the hardest. The class is divided into squads, and the boys with the most ability are chosen as leaders.

Boundaries of West Side Wards

Boundaries of wards on the west side, shown here, will be important in two respects Tuesday when city aldermanic elections will be held and registration for point rationing, to begin March 1, will open in all public elementary schools. Registration will close Friday night. Consumers must register within their own wards, according to the OPA.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Feb. 22.

If you want a fast growing tree that does not grow too large, plant a Chinese elm. It is drouth resisting, hardy, not too dense, and is suitable for city conditions. But the gardener must remember that trees need plant food to respond in a vigorous manner.

Wait until the end of the month to sow vegetable seeds. Give full sun after the seeds germinate and transplant into boxes before the seedlings become weak and spindly. Never sow seeds too thickly.

Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Many garden soils in city gardens lack humus or decayed matter, with the result that the soil packs hard after a rain. No gardener should refuse a load of manure, for it is invaluable in building up garden soil.

The working in of decayed vegetable matter, peat moss or muck, old leaves, leafmold, or other material aids materially in the improvement of the soil. If the soil is heavy work in two or more inches of ashes or some sand. If sandy, the soil will become more moisture holding if manure is spaded into it.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Feed the lawn in early March to make ample nourishment available from the beginning of growth. Commercial foods will not burn if they are used at that time, and no raking in is necessary.

Order all seeds now to have them on hand for sowing when the proper time arrives. All tender vegetables and flowers should not be planted until all danger from frost has passed, and this is usually after May 20, or even later according to season.

Thursday, Feb. 25.

Many gardeners will grow some flowers in the vegetable garden, but wherever possible vegetable growing must be given first consideration.

By planting annual vines on porches, up the side of the garage, or wherever they can be used to advantage, the effect will be pleasing.

Edgings of low growing vegetables or herbs may be used in the flower borders to good advantage. One of the best annuals for a narrow strip next the house is the showy portulaca, and it self-sows.

Friday, Feb. 26.

Get rid of the pestiferous dandelion by digging them out of the lawn and using them as greens. When properly prepared, they are delectable.

House plants start into active growth at this season. Water each morning. Turn the plants occasionally so that all their parts will enjoy their share of light. Give plenty of fresh air, but do not allow the plants to suffer from cold drafts.

Saturday, Feb. 27.

Never give the insect pests a chance to become established on house plants. Watch continually for them and begin a program of eradication immediately. Ferns and ivies are likely to be attacked by scales.

Plant lice or aphids attack almost any kind of plant and red spiders work injury before one is aware of their presence. Use recommended remedies that are available at supply houses.

Prune grape vines this month. Cut back all branches to about two buds, and give an application of plant food.

TALMUD TORAHS TO REVIEW WORK AT ANNUAL MEET

Judge Caplan Presides at Session Tomorrow.

Members of the Associated Talmud Torahs of Chicago will hold their seventh annual meeting at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the playhouse of the Jewish Peoples' institute, 3651 Douglas boulevard. Rabbis, communal leaders, officers, and workers of Hebrew schools and the women's division of the Associated Talmud Torahs will attend.

Municipal Judge Oscar S. Caplan will preside. Rabbi Ephraim Epstein, president, will give his annual message, and reports will be given by Rabbi Menahem B. Sacks and Rabbi Leonard C. Mishkin, executive and educational directors of the association.

Pupils to Give Talks.

Pupils from the Talmud Torahs, the Chicago Jewish academy, and the School of Jewish Studies for Girls will conduct a symposium on "My School." Each will discuss the contribution of his school to Judaism, Americanism and to the war. They will present a dramatic sketch, "Torah Thru the Ages."

Cantor Tevele Cohen will appear in a program of liturgical music and folk songs. Twin sisters, Meriam and Shulamith Wald, pupils of the Chicago Jewish academy, also will sing.

Board to Be Elected.

The meeting will end with election of the board of directors. The officers are Rabbi Epstein, president; John Balaban, Abraham M. Goldberg, and Harry Schaffner, vice presidents; Joseph Rolnick, treasurer; Isadore Shalowitz, financial secretary; Rabbi Harold Berger, recording secretary, and Herman E. Krulewitch, auditor.

Chairmen of committees are Alex Eisentein and Wolf P. Cohen, budget; Rabbi Elazer R. Muskin, education; William Siegel, administrative; Adolph Robin, house; Jacob S. Gray, children's welfare, and Charles Pozin, public relations.

Re-elect Mrs. W. B. Gasser Head of Maywood Home

Mrs. William B. Gasser, 2219 South Hamlin avenue, has been reëlected president of the Maywood Home for Soldiers' Widows for the 11th consecutive term. Other officers who will serve with her are: Mrs. J. C. Brown, 4823 Lake Park avenue; Mrs. James Scott, 2827 Madison street, and Mrs. William H. Pfister of Maywood, vice presidents, and Mrs. J. A. Pusk of Oak Park, secretary.

Now is the time to apply fertilizer for your successful spring and summer victory gardens. With the proper fertilization done early you'll be sure of the right plant food to produce a bigger yield of good, sound vegetables. New government chemical regulations make it necessary that the greater part of the ntirogen in your garden soil be derived from organic materials. Fortunately organic materials feed the plants more steadily over a longer period of time than do chemical materials.
Remember—if you fertilize now, the plant foods are all ready to work on the day you plant! If you're going to grow a garden—grow a good one—get the best results possible from your work. Order your fertilizer tomorrow from The FAIR and get it spread at once.

WAVES OFFICER TALKS TO AUSTIN CLUB TOMORROW

Young Women Invited to Hear Lt. Mary Daily.

Young women interested in joining the WAVES are invited to attend the meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Austin Woman's club at 8 o'clock tomorrow in the Washington Pine Apartment hotel, 5511 Washington boulevard. Lt. Mary Daily, officer in charge of the navy's WAVES enrollment in the 9th naval district, will talk on "Women in the Navy." The meeting is being sponsored by the citizenship department.

Lt. Daily was in the first group of WAVES commissioned last August to serve in the administration of the women's reserve activities. She is a Chicagoan, having attended Northwestern university's school of music and liberal arts and was affiliated with a Chicago insurance company. She has two brothers in the service, Maj. Richard Daily, a veteran of World War I. who is again on foreign duty with the army, and Lt. Samuel S. Daily who is attached to the office of naval officer procurement in Indianapolis, Ind.

Austin Woman's Club.

Members of the Austin Woman's club will celebrate Washington's birthday with a patriotic program tomorrow afternoon in the clubrooms, Central avenue and Fulton street. A talk on "We, Americans," will be given by Dr. Emory Wylie Luccock, pastor of Evanston First Presbyterian church. Constance Louise Connette of the American Opera company will sing.

19th Century Club.

Dr. Gerald Wendt, authority on science, will address members of the Nineteenth Century Woman's club of Oak Park at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the clubrooms. His subject will be "The Challenge of Science."

K. H. Parker will talk on ceramics at the morning meeting sponsored by the art department. He will show an exhibit of art ranging from the finest china to the crudest of earthenware.

Millard Avenue Club.

The garden circle of Millard Avenue Woman's club will meet at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Otto Profant, 2400 South Christiana avenue. The speaker will be Frank K. Balthis, horticulturist at Garfield park conservatory, who will talk on "Growing Plants in the Home."

West End Catholic Club.

The best seller, "The Song of Bernedette," will be reviewed for the West End Catholic Woman's club by Edward Clasby at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Nineteenth Century clubrooms in Oak Park. The department of education will be in charge of the meeting.

La Grange Woman's Club.

Brotherhood week will be observed by the La Grange Woman's club Tuesday afternoon when the members will hear a roundtable discussion among representatives of three faiths —Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish. The speakers will be Mrs. William Linklater, Catholic leader; Mrs. Margery L. Sherman, writer and public speaker, and Mrs. Wendell E. Green, lecturer and church leader. Mrs. Raymond A. Ryer, Bible chairman, has arranged the program.

Elmhurst Woman's Club.

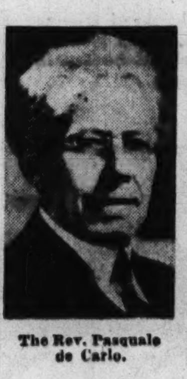
Mrs. Peter J. Smale is chairman of the department of literature which sponsors the program of the Elmhurst Woman's club tomorrow. Kathryn Melton Simmons will present the play "Marked Corners" at the morning meeting. In the afternoon, Curtis D. MacDougall, journalism professor at the Medill school of journalism of Northwestern university, will speak on the literature of current affairs.

Dorothy Lois Blohm Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. August Henry Blohm of Oak Park have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Lois, to Richard Frederick Hoyt, a sailor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoyt of Abbeville, S. C. Miss Blohm is an alumnae of the Chicago School of Dramatic Art and Expression. Her fiance attended the University of South Carolina. He formerly made his home with his parents in Elmhurst and Oak Park.

'HIS BOYS' GREET ITALIAN CHURCH FOUNDER AT 80

Soldiers Recall Kindly Advice of Pastor.



The Rev. Pasquale de Carlo.

The Rev. Pasquale Ricciardi de Carlo, founder of St. John's Presbyterian church and guiding star for hundreds of Italian boys on the near west side, will celebrate his 80th birthday tomorrow. Now pastor-emeritus of the church at Harrison street and Hoyne avenue which he started 26 years ago, the white haired minister can look back on a quarter of a century of rich memories.

More than 2,000 choice letters from "his boys" are proof of his good work. Many of them are coming from service men now spread to far flung posts and some are from prosperous business men and prominent community leaders, all of whom as boys came to his church for his guidance.

Soldier Praises Him.

"Somehow the farther I get from home the more your wise advice strikes home. Certainly you reached many of us youngsters and it is my firm belief that much credit is due you for my development. You sponsored and aided me and now on a far flung front I am doing for our country what little I can do." He mentions later in the letter that he always carries the Rev. Mr. de Carlo's picture with him.

As much as the venerable pastor regrets the tragedy of war he feels it will be a broadening experience for the fighting men.

"This is especially true of the 18 and 19 year olds," he prophesies. "They will come back better able to work for the future of America and from experience can tell the older ones what to do. The flag will have a greater significance for them and they will be more loyal to God."

Native of Italy.

Born in Calitri, Italy, Feb. 22, 1863, the Rev. Mr. de Carlo came to America at the age of 25. He wanted to establish himself in business, make his fortune and return to Italy. That was 55 years ago and he has been back to Italy only once—for a brief visit.

OCD, RED CROSS IN SOUTH AUSTIN PLAN DUAL DRIVE

Seek 5,000 Blood Donors in Week's Campaign.

Civilians of the south Austin community are taking the initiative this week in sponsoring one of the first and largest OCD blood donor drives to be attempted in the city. A goal of 5,000 donor pledges has been set for the week which will begin today and continue thru next Sunday.

The week will get off with a parade at 1 o'clock this afternoon. More than 2,000 OCD workers, Red Cross nurses, world war veterans, and school children will march from Clark's playground, 4601 Jackson boulevard, to the Madison Athletic club building, 4721 Madison street, where there will be a massmeeting and blood donor pledges will be accepted.

Parade to Feature Floats.

The parade will go west from Clark's playground on Jackson boulevard to Central avenue and north on Central to Madison street and the athletic club building. Two floats depicting Red Cross activities and a battle scene will be featured in the parade.

Among those participating will be 800 OCD defense members of the protective branch who will wear their fire equipment and police patroling uniforms. More than 1,000 other OCD workers in the service corps and OCD orchestra will march as well as 150 American Victory Patrol girls, Boy and Girl Scouts from the community, 150 Red Cross nurses and 150 nurses from St. Anne's and Loretto hospitals.

All war veterans have been asked to march and the community American Legion posts will be represented. Others to take part will be the St. Mel High school band and R. O. T. C., Crane High school drum and bugle corps and R. O. T. C., selective service boards, Columbus park drill team, church organizations, and fraternal organizations.

Red Cross Speakers.

Two Red Cross speakers will be heard at the massmeeting after the parade. This will be one of the first demonstrations in the city in which the OCD has coöperated with the Red Cross in obtaining blood donors.

Ralph A. Neff is commander of the south Austin community. William J. Butler is in charge of arrangements for the blood donor week. Among those assisting him are John Bernbom, Charles Owen, Mrs. Helen Anderson, George Grimes, Benjamin B. Kokley, John I. McGowan, William B. McGowan, James Del Bello, Dr. M. J. Sullivan, James V. Routson, Miss Betty Toomey, Carl Gruber, and P. W. Jorgenson.

Others will be George Genoar, Al Benoar, Dudley Howell, Arthur Petersen, Bert Bertelson, Mrs. Rose Barratt, T. H. Matthews, Robert Lancaster, William Lennon, and Emmett O'Connell.

Mrs. Glenn Frank to Speak Before Oak Park Women

Mrs. Glenn Frank, vice president of the speakers' bureau of the women's division of the United States treasury department, will address members of the Woman's National Republican club of Oak Park at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Oak Park Arms hotel.

The speaker is the widow of Glenn Frank who was president of the University of Wisconsin, editor of the Century magazine, and chairman of the Republican program committee in 1938-1940. She will be introduced by Mrs. David Werner, president.

Mrs. Kurt Hitke, house chairman, will be in charge of the social hour following the program. Cards will be played and refreshments served by the February committee.

In keeping with the month's program theme, the club has made arrangements to sell stamps and bonds during March. The members will staff a booth set up at the Woolworth store, 1112 Lake street, in the village. Those who wish to sell have been asked to notify Mrs. Werner.

Further plans are being made by Mrs. John K. Russell, first vice president, who is organizing a school to teach the selling of stamps and bonds. Women completing the course will be registered on the staff of the treasury department and will be accredited to sell anywhere.

Classes began last Friday in the Public Service company, 114 North Oak Park avenue. Mrs. Russell is conducting the morning sessions from 10 o'clock to noon and Mrs. Richard Whitney of the treasury department is conducting the afternoon meetings from 1:30 to 4 o'clock.

The next board meeting of the club will be held at 1:15 o'clock Friday afternoon, March 12, in the home of Mrs. Hitke, 618 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park.

SPELLING BEE
TODAY
12:00 NOON

"Professor" HAROLD ISBELL

It's four members of the WAITS against four of their male instructors in today's spelling bee—and the WAITS, in case you don't recall, represent the Women Airplane Instrument Technicians, so the sparks are really apt to fly. Cash prizes will be awarded the winners as usual in this popular combination spell-down and funfest. Be at your radio promptly at 12:00 noontime when "Professor" Harold Isbell calls the class to order.

FIRESIDE PARTY
TODAY AT 4 P. M.

LOUISE MASSEY

For a half hour of genuine Sunday afternoon pleasure and relaxation, tune in WGN's popular "Fireside Party" at 4 o'clock. Dream to the singing of soloist Louise Massey and "The Westerners" in a program of your favorite ballads. Thrill to a new dramatic sketch of the Merriweather family by prominent Chicago radio actors and actresses. Here is music and drama combined in its most entertaining form to be enjoyed from your favorite armchair. WGN at 4:00 p.m.

EASY MONEY
6:30 TONIGHT

MIKE TRENT

Mike Trent—erstwhile magician—now private detective and nemesis of racketeers—has struck another hot trail. Hear Trent tonight in "Easy Money" over WGN, as the famous racketbuster and crusader against crime, through his knowledge of magic, exposes the nefarious workings of a notorious shoplifter. Distinctly different in technique, unique in plot, "Easy Money"—now in its second season—ranks among the most popular detective dramas on the air. Tune in every week.

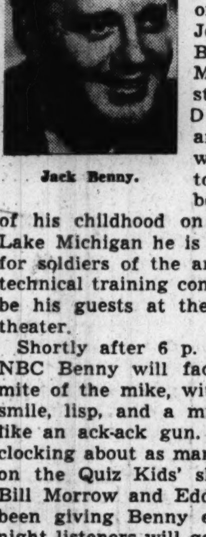
BENNY TO BATTLE LITTLE JOE, QUIZ KID BALL OF FIRE

Comedian and Bright Boy to Exchange Visits.



Jack Benny.

When Jack Benny broadcasts from Chicago today for the first time in many years he will be confronted by an extra heckler, the 6 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman. Benny's regulars, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Rochester, and Don Wilson will be on hand to explode the boastful stories of his childhood on the shores of Lake Michigan he is bound to recite for soldiers of the army's air forces technical training command who will be his guests at the Eighth Street theater.

Shortly after 6 p. m. on WMAQ-NBC Benny will face Joel, mighty mite of the mike, with his toothless smile, lisp, and a mind that works like an ack-ack gun. Joel has been clocking about as many laughs lately on the Quiz Kids' show as writers Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin have been giving Benny each week. Tonight listeners will get a double dose not only on the Benny show—but on the Quiz Kids' session on WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m.

Joel Kupperman.

For as soon as Joel has pulled a few "secret" mathematical tricks on Benny he will race over to the Merchandise Mart for his own show. Jack will follow at 6:29½ and expects to be on hand for the last half of the Quiz Kids' show. As "judge" of the quiz Benny may have an opportunity to get back at little Joel.

Benny and his troupe will be in and around Chicago for two weeks entertaining soldiers and sailors. They plan to go to the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow evening; Fort Sheridan a night or two later, and also to Camp Custer in Michigan.

Benny, who grew up in Waukegan, is looking forward to his visit to Great Lakes. There, just 25 years ago, he received his naval training and while stationed there got his start as a funny man. Prior to the war he had toured theater circuits as a violinist.

Benny volunteered his talents as a violinist to the revue. Dave Wolff, now a Chicago advertising man, wrote and produced the show. He discovered Benny's latent talent for humor. Today Jack calls him his first gag man. After the war Benny toured vaudeville circuits with Ned Miller, Chicago composer, as partner.

Benny never abandoned the violin altogether and that ultimately paid a dividend. After a wait of 25 years he was invited recently to play at a benefit concert in Carnegie hall.

"You've heard what they've been saying on the radio almost continuously ever since" he remarked. "'The best tunes of all come from Carnegie hall.'"

'MUSIC IN THE AIR' TO BE PRESENTED ON THEATER OF AIR NEXT

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present Jerome Kern's "Music in the Air" over W-G-N, W59C and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas will be co-starred.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Sieglinde and Thomas that of Karl. Laurette Fillbrandt will take the dramatic part of Sieglinde. The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Jack LaFrandre is the writer-director.

IN WARTIME, AMERICA NEEDS TRIM, ENERGETIC WOMEN!

Don't Be Fat!

Reduce this proved way that requires no strict diet lists—
No exercises—
No harmful drugs

Lovely Radio Star, Irene Rich, 2nd Lieutenant in Women's Ambulance & Defense Corps of America, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch Way to reduce.

READ AMAZING FACTS:
Today, thousands of patriotic American women are discovering a remarkably effective way to lose ugly, sluggish fat! To thus have that trim, "active look" and alert, peppy feeling so important today! It's easy! Merely mix ¾ glass* Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* water—drink before meals and at bedtime. Then what amazing action follows! First: You have less desire to eat sweet, fattening foods—thus cutting down caloric intake. Second: Natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime actually helps Nature consume excess fat! Builds quick-energy, too! Thus you look better—feel better! Have more of the pep you need in wartime! Start reducing the Welch Way today! *8-oz. glass

CASSIDY CAN HELP YOU KEEP YOUR CAR RUNNING

TIRE AND TUBE SERVICE is our main business. We have the latest equipment for repairs, vulcanizing, tube patching. We guarantee our repairs to outlast the rest of the tire!

QUALITY RECAPPING. Every recap is tailor-made to fit the individual tire. The recapping process is carefully controlled under factory methods using the latest equipment.

BATTERY SERVICE. Warning—your battery is starving to death on only 240 miles per month! Better join our "Battery Health Club" and have it checked every month.... We'll check your radiator hose and fan belt, too.

TIRES. A limited assortment of used tires. A fairly good stock of new pre-war tires: U. S. Royal DeLuxe and the famous U. S. Royal Master. Also a few Take-Offs—practically new.

We Can Furnish Batteries at Lowest Prices

We are fully equipped to provide the finest kind of service for your car, and the best and fastest inspection service you'll get anywhere. Save time and trouble by bringing all your problems to us.
